The president and vice-president are elected for four year terms. The constitution provides that there must be two United States senators from each state, elected by the whole state, and one or more representatives as the population decrees, most of them for electoral districts but some at-large where circumstances dictate.

The constitution also provides that elections be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of the election year.

Set For November 7

Thus, on Nov. 7 next, the United States will elect a president, a vice-president, 435 representatives and 32 senators.

That is the federal picture. But the ballots will also have on them candidates for numerous state, county and municipal offices ranging from state governors down to minor local posts, according to the needs and customs of each state. The ballots are huge affairs but voting machines in urban centres reduce the work of the voters.

The presidential contest is the main attraction of this 48-ring circus but no names of presidential candidates appear on the ballots.

Each party nominating a presidential candidate must also name "Electors" who are members of the "electoral college." There is one elector for each congressional representative in each state—New York has the most with 47. The names of the "electors" are placed on the ballots.

Voters mark their ballots for the "electors" who are named by the party whose presidential nominee they wish to support.

Whichever party's "electors" get the majority of the votes in any state, those electors certify to the state secretary of state that their party's candidate is the choice for president. This is largely an age-old formality but it leaves the possibility of a candidate winning because he wins the states with the most electoral votes although trailing another candidate in the total vote cast throughout the nation.

Selection of Candidates

But before the voting there is the long, tedious business of selecting presidential candidates.

There are only two parties likely to be in the picture this year, Republicans and Democrats. Their candidates for president will be selected at national conventions, the former opening June 19 and the latter July 26, both in Chicago.

Republicans will trust this selection to 1,059 accredited delegates, the Democrats 1,176.

Selection of the delegates is customarily by three methods depending upon the state laws and party regulations—primary elections, state conventions and state committees.

In the primaries held by a number of states the delegates are voted upon after expressing their choice of candidate and the results indicate how that state delegation will vote at the convention.

State conventions and state committees may choose delegates who are pledged to support a certain candidate, or a series of choices in a certain order, or may be left free to decide their stand at the convention.

State conventions and state committees may choose delegates who are pledged to support a certain candidate, or a series of choices in a certain order, or may be left free to decide their stand at the convention.

Noisy Conventions

At the convention there is a free-for-all melee in which delegations who are free to do so swing from one candidate to another as they see no possibility of their first choice winning, or who are lured by eloquence to shift their support.

The vice-presidential candidate is nominally the choice of the party but in practice the party's presidential candidate has the say as to who will be his running mate. He is elected by the same vote that elects the president.

On Dec. 18 after the elections the "electors" meet, supposedly, those who got the most votes, and "elect" the president, certifying the election to the secretary of state who transmits the result to Congress.

At a joint sitting of both houses, presided over by the president of the Senate, on the following Jan. 6, two tellers each from the two houses examine the reports from the state secretaries and formally announce the reports from the state secretaries and formally announce the results of the presidential and vice-presidential contest.

On Jan. 20, following, the president is formally inaugurated on Capitol Hill, sworn in by the chief justice, and takes up residence in the White House. The vice-president takes up his duties which consist almost exclusively of presiding over the United States senate.

HELP THEM PROTECT YOU

Most of us are earning good money these days. Money that could produce the disaster of inflation or money which, invested in Victory Bonds, can provide work for all when the war is won. Our boys are fighting for Canada overseas, the least we can do is protect the Canada they love, at home. Buy MORE bonds this time!

ONTARIO WORKERS

PUT VICTORY FIRST

Working people are practical people. We believe in doing first things first. The biggest and most important job to be done now is to win this war in the shortest possible time. The longer the war lasts the heavier the casualty list of those fighting on our behalf. We must make every effort through every medium and through every direction for a One Hundred Per Cent War Effort.

We must fight, work and pay. Ontario labor will put all possible into Victory Bonds. This war is a costly war. Canada needs money to speed the day of Victory. Money put into Bonds is a sound investment financially and a strong investment in liberty.

PUT VICTORY FIRST... That Labour's Freedom May Last

The organized workers of Ontario may properly look forward to continued freedom and progress in the years which will follow the winning of the war.

But, just as it was necessary to put up a long and arduous struggle to attain the present position of Labour, the preservation and improvement of Labour's status in the future demand a heavy price.

The first essential is Victory. Out of the families of Ontario workers have gone many thousands of sons and daughters, husbands and brothers, making up the fighting forces of the nation. This is part of the price which Labour is paying. The workers at home are devoting their strength and skill to the production of war materials and essential civilian goods, breaking all previous records of achievement. That's part of the price, too.

But, there is still another part—to refrain from unnecessary expenditures, buying only what we have to buy until the war is won, and making our savings fight for us, along with our loved ones in the fighting forces and the war materials we have produced.

BUY VICTORY BONDS

Canada's Victory Bonds make it easy to put Victory First. To buy a bond is to lend what you can to your country's war-effort. Every dollar you can save beyond essential living costs will earn interest, and ultimately return to you in full.

Every Victory Bond you buy will provide spending power later, and help make your dreams come true.

12,155 Soldiers Join Legion

TORONTO, April 25 — (CP) — Thomas Magladery of New Liskeard said to-day in his presidential address to the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion that paid-up Legion membership in the province has increased by 12,155 since, the last Command convention in 1941

"I submit that this is an achievement equalled by no other province in Canada—and just to show..... that we are equally as good in 1944 ...I have pride in announcing that already this year we have a total of paid-up new memberships of a few over 2,000, which figure is our convention objective," he said.

The increase in memebrship nas been achieved despite loss of many members by death and by removal to different cities to enter war industry or by enlistment in the armed forces. Many of the new members were veterans of the present war.

Mr. Gagladery outlinetd a program of activity for the Ontario Command in preparing for the post-war years. It could help in ployment by Federal, Provincial, and municipalGovernments and in a housing program, in urging preference for ex-servicemen in employment by Federalu, Provincial, and municiptl Governments and in seeing that returned veterans are placed in positions equal to those they held before enlistment.

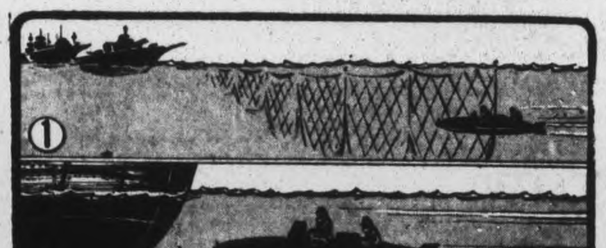
3 Fliers Killed

Eight fatalities were reported in Eastern Canada during the week-end, all of them in Ontario.

Two airmen were killed early Saturday when a plane from No. 6 S. F. T. S. at Dunnville crashed near Willow Grove, and another died later in the day when a plane from Camp Borden crashed near Orangeville. Next-of-kin have been notified and names will be announced shortly.



HOW HUMAN TORPEDOES STRIKE — They seem to have dropped from the pages of Jules Verne, but very real indeed are Neptune's fearless sea-going rough riders, who straddle a torpedo as a cowboy straddles a broncho and ride it to its destination. And here, in a series of sketches, is the story of what the British dare-devils do and how they do it. The human torpedoes are sufficiently small to penetrate the enemy's net defences, and did just that (1) when they sneaked under water in the harbor of Palermo to blow up a transport. They approach the ship's hull (2) after diving under the water. The two-man crews fix the warheads (3) of their torpedoes to the bottom of the boat and set time fuses. Then they slip away again on their electrically-driven cylinders (4) which are now minus the "heads" as the ship blows up.

Boy, am I broke!

"I've just made a grand discovery . . . how to be happy though broke!

"You see, I have a son right in the thick of it. He's my only boy, and . . . well, never mind that.

"So when they asked me to buy Victory Bonds, I always came through . . . somehow . . . although it meant doing without some things until the war is over.

"But this time I figured I simply couldn't buy another bond. I just simply couldn't.

"And then I realized that about all a fellow gets out of life is what he thinks of himself. So I asked myself what kind of a man I'd really like to be? It was different from then on.

"Now I've arranged to buy more bonds than ever before out of my savings. And I've agreed with the Victory Loan salesman to pay for additional bonds through the monthly savings plan. And am I BROKE! And HAPPY!

"And you'll be happy, too, when you take every single dollar you can find and buy Victory Bonds. You'll be the kind of fellow you like to know!"

Anna Doreen Kidd Weds Norman Joseph Lillico

Murray Street Baptist church, Peterborough, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, when Anna Doreen Kidd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kidd, became the bride of Norman Joseph Lillico, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Lillico. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe. Mr. Stanley Northrop presided at the organ. Miss Doreen Groombridge sang "Because" before the bride entered the church and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love."

A profusion of yellow snapdragons and mauve stocks, backed by a screen of ferns, made a beautiful setting for the ceremony. Clusters of the same bridal colorings and white satin ribbon bows marked off the pews reserved for the guests.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a graceful gown of white brocaded satin made on princess-lines, with sweetheart neckline. Tiny self-covered buttons were at the back from the neck to torso-length waistline. The long sleeves were puffed at the shoulder and tight-fitting from elbow to wrist coming to a point over the hand. A central panel of white satin inset at the back widened into a graceful train. The long Queen Anne veil of bridal net was accented with small white velvet orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a three-strand necklace of pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of deep red Bettertime roses from which hung streamers knotted with bouvardia.

Miss Elizabeth Lillico a sister of the groom, was the maid of honor. She was attired in a floor-length gown, with sweetheart neckline, mauve lace bodice and long full sheer skirt. Her fingertip veil was of mauve net.

The two bridesmaids Miss Maxine Kidd youngest sister of the bride, and Miss Mary Cullins, friend of the bride, were similarly gowned in yellow lace and net over taffeta, with a full skirt, long sleeves and sweetheart neckline. Both wore shoulder-length veils. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of yellow roses and the bridesmaids carried ring bouquets of yellow snapdragons and mauve stocks.

Little Miss Barbara Bulmer, niece of the bride, was the charming flower-girl, daintily frocked in pale green sheer, trimmed with tiny pearl buttons, and carrying a nosegay of sweet peas.

Mr. Leonard Mahood, friend of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were Pte. Russell Kidd, and Mr. William I. Robson.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for about 75 guests. The bride's mother received, wearing a gown of rose crepe, rose hat, and accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. The groom's mother assisted, wearing a royal blue sheer gown, matching hat and accessories. Her corsage was also of white roses.

For the occasion, the house was attractively decorated with pink and white streamers extending from a ring of small silver bells. The table, covered with a lace cloth, held the three-tiered wedding cake, flanked on either side with tall candles in silver holders. A buffet luncheon was served by eight associates of the bride, Misses Nettie Elgar, Dorothy Johnston, Mary Ridge, Frances Haines, Melba McGee, Hilda Sharpe, Viva Harris, and Elva Elliott.

The groom's gift to the bride was a five-piece silver tea-service. The bride's gifts to the maid of honor and bridesmaids were birthstone rings; to the flower-girl an emerald ring, to the soloist a sterling silver bracelet and ear-rings. The groom's gift to the best man was a leather wallet, and to the ushers gold collar and tie pins.

The couple left for Toronto, Niagara Falls, and points west. For travelling, the bride wore a powder-blue silk jersey dress, biscuit swagger coat with brown velevt collar and brown accessories. On their return they will reside in North Monaghan.

Auxiliary Men Take Chances With Soldiers

As the soldiers slowly advanced, clearing the towns, street by street, Auxiliary workers crawled up in the shelter of the buildings, and appropriated Italian trucks, to use in their work. This was only one of the hazardous and exciting experiences of Major W. B. Welbourn, of the Salvation Army, when he was in charge of the Auxiliary Services, Central Mediterranean Forces, 1st Canadian Division. Now invalided home from Italy, Major Welbourn is on tour, speaking about the Canadians over there, and telling people at home how much their backing means to their boys.

"When we first landed on the Sicilian beachhead", Major Welbourn related, we did not have any equipment, so worked in the dressing stations. We also wrote letters for wounded, buried the dead, and assisted with the checking of prisoners. As soon as we were organized, we set up recreational facilities. Because our trucks had four-wheel drive, when we arrived in Italy we were given the mountain district.

"There is one thing I would like to stress. The Canadians are tops. Some of those young kids, who had never been in action before, acted like seasoned veterans, and Jerry didn't like meeting them either. I think we can best guage the fighting qualities of our men by remembering that General Montgomery asked for them for his 8th Army. He's a hard fighter and a good leader and judge of men. He wanted Canadians because he knew their fighting qualities."

Letters Important

Another point stressed by Major Welbourn, was that the boys wanted letters and more letters. He said that mail was the most important thing to a soldier, and that they never get enough of them. "Sit down whenever you have a spare moment," he said, "and drop him a line. It doesn't have to be much, but if you only knew how those boys read and re-read letters from home, you would realize how much even stories of the most commonplace home happenings mean to soldiers thousands of miles away."

The speaker gave a few minutes to a description of the fighting qualities of the Germans and the Japanese. He said that the Germans were good fighters, that a long hard job lay ahead. Since he had lived some years in Korea, he also had first-hand information about the Japanese He gave a brief outline of the religion which makes the Jap such a fanatic fighter, and said that in his opinion, the only way to make the Jap crack was to bomb his land until he was finally convinced that he was vanquished.

Major Welbourn was introduced by Col. W. Dray, of Toronto, who gave a brief outline of his life. Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Local Council of Women, who sponsored Major Welbourn's talk, in the Y.W.C.A., was in charge, and thanked Major Welbourn for appearing to address the group. Mrs. W. G. McLaren gave a reading, and Mrs. Leslie McLaren, accompanied by Mrs. H. F. Doig, sang "He Smiled on Me," and "I Heard a Forest Praying."

Gabriel Menard Married At Sacred Heart

Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty wedding recently, when Gabriel Menard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodolphe Menard, became the bride of Aloysius Desbarbieux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Desbarbieux. Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiated, and the church was decorated with Easter lilies and snapdragons. During the signing of the register, the choir sang "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in floor-length white sheer, with a basque waist and soft flaring skirt. Her finger-tip veil of white embroidered silk net, hung from a halo of lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a bouquet of Columbia roses and fern.

Miss Carmen Menard, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Miss Marie Desbarbieux, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, were gowned alike in floor-length sky blue sheer, made on the same style as the bride's dress. They wore small halo hats of taffeta and net, caught with forget-me-nots, and carried Sweetheart roses. Joseph Desbarbieux, brother of the groom and Lucium Menard, brother of bride, were groomsmen.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother received, in a dress of flowered navy taffeta, with matching hat and a corsage of red roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in navy British silk crepe, with matching hat and a corsage of red roses.

For a trip to Toronto and points west, the bride chose a navy suit, cornflower blue hat and matching accessories, and opossum furs. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Desbarbieux will live in Peterborough.

DOES YOUR CHILD Lack APPETITE?

Try New, Improved Ovaltine

If your child lacks a zest for food, it may be that his diet is short in very important food elements which, science has discovered, everyone needs for health. His growth may be stunted or impaired and he may be an easy victim to prevailing sickness.

As a "protecting" food-drink, New, Improved Ovaltine adds to a child's meals the essential food elements most likely to be deficient in his diet.

Three servings of New, Improved Ovaltine furnish a child with a significant portion of his daily requirement of Vitamins A, B_1, and D, and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron—also quick food-energy elements and high quality proteins—all for building sturdy bodies.

So—if your child eats poorly, is thin or under par, why not start giving him New, Improved Ovaltine regularly? Get Ovaltine at your drug or food store.

For Wednesday, April 26

ALTHOUGH CLEVER and enterprising efforts may be under highly stimulating auspices on this day, yet all may not be "plain sailing." There is a sign of stubborn obstacles, delays and limiting, depressing or thwarting factors to cope with, but nothing which may not be surmounted or walked around. Perseverance, application and patience are likely to attract the needful assistance and hearty cooperation of those in power. It is probable that personality, prestige and social or sentimental influences may have force. Utilize these but be sure not to force matters and be alert to dubious or suspicious circumstances.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of opportunity to make definite progress and attain its cherished objectives against some tenacious obstacles, delays, limitations and discouragements. However the energies, faculties and initiative should be well stimulated for success, especially by the intervention of those in financial power or social prestige. Personal appeal as well as sound principles have much weight in winning and holding worthwhile support. Do not hesitate to use such influences but beware of schemes, and doubtful affiliations or projects.

A child born on this day may have ability, sound principles and impressive personality, which should win it the interest of influential persons. It may, however, be subject to treachery or business double-dealing.

SIX EASILY GROWN HERBS FOR VICTORY GARDEN

THE GROWING of herbs for daily use has always been very popular in England and in many parts of Europe, but we in America are fast becoming herb minded. If you have never grown herbs before why not begin with just a few in the Victory garden and then next year—well, just watch the list grow. Plants can be purchased from seed houses or nurserymen, yet six herbs which are easy to grow from seed are basil, chervil, dill, marjoram, sage and savory.

Basil, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is a small, spicy annual which grows about one foot high. It branches profusely. It is a good all-around kitchen herb, useful for seasoning soup, meat and salads.

Chervil, also illustrated, is an annual known as a Pot herb. Successive sowings should be made. It is used mainly as an added ingredient of salads, but it also makes a delicious cream soup. This herb deserves to be better known.

Dill, famous in the making of dill pickles, is, of course, well known. Its leaves are also used to flavor soups and sauces.

Marjoram, called the Queen of Herbs, is used to flavor soups, roasts, stews and salads. The leaves and ends of shoots are used during the summer and also dried for winter use.

Sage, illustrated, is useful for all seasoning purposes, but especially for flavoring poultry dressings, some kinds of cheese and strongly flavored meats.

There are two Savories, the summer savory, an annual, and the winter savory, a perennial. The leaves and young shoots are used for flavoring soups, meat dressings as well as other culinary preparations.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Throughout the warmer days ahead in town or out, young juniors are going to want fresh, crisp spun dotted dresses One made in the two piece effect, has the trim lines of a suit. The skirt is slimly gored, the jacket is smooth fitting, has elbow sleeves and is smart in either tangerine, California green or the lilac shades.

This dress may also be trimmed with eyelet embroidery and clear plastic buttons with the unpressed pleats in the skirt. A good suit knows no season, versatile suits dominate the 1944 silhouette. These suits are wonderfully soft and very colorful. These new styles are made in the finest wools and imported Scotch fabrics. The new spring suit is softly tailored and it takes the skill and knack, the deft, sure hand of a master tailor to successfully make one of these suits. The coats are collarless, nearly all three-buttoned, with two pockets. The skirts are either perfectly plain or with an inverted pleat down the front. These, if worn with a smart, small hat and pull-over gloves are the last word in smartness for spring.

The hats from now on will swing to the larger types. A new brim, definitely a big brim with the new drop edge that scoops down over your bright eyes to protect them from the glaring sun. This hat is very smart in tan fur felt, bound on the edge with white cotton pique with three bows of the same material around the very flat crown. Another hat that all New York is talking about is a sailor, shorter at back than in front, crown of medium height and covered with bright colored striped taffeta silk. This makes a charming suit hat. The larger sailors are made of this same rayon taffeta in the Roman holiday stripes, demure shepherd's checks, the shot taffetas or plain color. Any one of these coverings is new for the spring hat. With so many of the suits ladies are wearing mink furs, some large neck pieces and others the smaller more tailored type of neck piece.

Another smart spring accessory is the high polished alligator hand bag so much in fashion's favor for spring.

The rayon jersey dresses are all flowered with such bright colors, the rambler rose design being one of the newest. Royal blue, tomato red and violet on white are among the predominating shades and they make such a smart looking dress for the teen age girl. With one of these may be worn the small hat made of flowers in the same shades as are in the dress or just one shade is nice. These hats must be very small and worn well back on the head with the veil draped to form a snood for your curls to rest in.

There never was a season when we had so many styles from which to choose.

THE REAL THING—The short-skirted evening frock gets scant recognition from the great Mainbocher who creates evening gowns with plenty of glamor. Here is one of the newest creations from this American-born designer who achieved top-flight place in before-the-war Paris. It is fashioned of black taffeta, its snug bodice marked by deep decolletage fore and aft, and held up with narrow bowed shoulder straps. Two pale pink roses offer color contrast. A great occasion dress.—By Alice Alden.

Friends Honor Recent Bride

SELWYN, April 25.—(ENS).— A bride and groom of Saturday, Ruth Davis and Charlie McIlmoyl were given a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McIlmoyl, prior to their marriage.

After the popular young couple had been seated under the pink and white streamers a program was presented. Two vocal solos, "All Packed Up In My Little Bottom Drawer" and "Walter, Walter. Lead Me to the Altar" were sung by Joyce Mathieson and a reading entitled "In the Usual Way," was given by Joan Whitmore. This was followed with an address read by Roleen Fitzgerald, while a decorated wagon was drawn in and placed before them by Pauline Fitzgerald and Roy Bell dressed as a comic bride and groom.

The large number of beautiful gifts was a token of the high esteem this community holds for the young couple. The gifts were unwrapped and placed on display by Rosemary Nicholls, Roleen Fitzgerald, Leatha Kidd and Mrs. George McIlmoyl. Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing. Music was supplied by the Blewett brothers. The bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Davis and the groom the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyl.

Personals.

The regular meeting of the War Workers will be held at the home of Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyl on Thursday, April 27.

Mr. Leonard Wilson returned home on Friday evening, having completed his twelve weeks' dairy school course at Guelph Agricultural College.

CHILDREN SHOULD KNOW THE TRUTH

Glad to Help Parents When They Realize Sacrifices Must Be Made In Homes.

THE greatest mistake that parents make consists in undervaluing the intelligence of their children. This seems a ridiculous thing to say in view of the fact that most people who have youngsters bore everyone whom they know to extinction by repeating the clever things Junior said, and bragging about how the baby breathes just as natural as can be.

Nevertheless, although the adoring fathers and mothers see genius in the little deadpan faces that are just as innocent of expression as a cream cheese, and expect their offspring to, at least, be Presidents and Miss Americas, yet when they are growing up they treat them as if they were morons, incapable of understanding anything that goes on about them. Yet any mother will tell you that by the time a baby is three weeks old it has already found out how to get what it wants, and has settled for all time who is going to be boss in that home.

Parents' Belief Causes Conflicts

To this fixed belief of parents that their children are nitwits who can't understand what it is all about is due the conflicts between the two generations that embitter so many lives and that send so many boys and girls away from home just as soon as they can stand alone.

Most of the trouble between parents and children stems back to the parents' refusal to recognize that the children have minds of their own and to deal with them on that platform. Take the lack of obedience, for instance, which is the pet grievance of most of the fathers and mother you know. "Johnny won't do a thing I say," Father complains. "Mary won't listen to me," wails Mother. And it never occurs to either one of them that the reason the children don't obey them is because they resent being ordered about arbitrarily. They would cooperate if they knew why they were told to do this and forbidden to do that, but they refuse to be driven into doing things for which they have been given no reason.

Many parents never talk over family problems with their children because they don't want the youngsters to be burdened with their troubles. Mother works herself to death in the kitchen while the girls play tennis for exercise; Father goes shabby so the boys can have fancy sweaters, and then they complain about how selfish the children are in taking the best of everything without even saying "thank you."

Children Would Be Glad to Help

Yet the children would gladly help and make their own sacrifices cheerfully if Mother and Father would only confide in them and tell them how hard times are, and how little they had to spend. Many a child would think his parents heroes if he knew how hard they worked and how much they denied themselves to give him all they do, instead of thinking they are tightwads and being grouchy because they didn't give him more.

In dealing with their children most people appeal exclusively to their affections. They would get better results if they appealed to their intelligence.

$314,000 Raised In M.D. 3 On First Day

KINGSTON, April 25 (Special). —In an unprecedented wave of enthusiasm which swept throughout Army establishments in Military District No. 3 to-day, officers, soldiers and members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps got behind Canada's Sixth Victory Loan campaign to send the district's quota of $755,000 to within 59 per cent of its objective.

At two o'clock on Monday afternoon Major G. T. Gayford, V.D., chairman of the M.D. 3 Victory Loan Committee reported that the bond purchases amounted to $314,000, and that four establishments had already gone over the top. The response of Army personnel in the sixth campaign so far exceeds that of previous drives, he said.

Leading the district in bond purchases is No. 3 Ordnance Depot Company Kingston, which bought 147 per cent of its $20,500. Quota runners-up are: No. 3 Company, R.C.A.P.C., Kingston, with 136 per cent of its $2,500 quota; No. 31 Canadian Infantry (Basic) Training Centre, Cornwall, with 110 per cent of its $38,200 quota, and No. 7 Company, C.W.A.C., Kingston, which reported its $1,900 quota fully subscribed.

In the Fifth Victory Loan M.D. 3, with a quota of $550,000, sold $1,001,500 worth of bonds Although a separate command, Royal Military College, Kingston, reported that it also had over purchased its $33,000 quota by 52 per cent.

Urge Austrians To Rebel Now

LONDON, April 25 — (CP). — The Moscow radio called on the Austrians Monday to emulate the Yugoslavs by revolting instead of "waiting passively until Austria is liberated from the outside."

In a German-language broadcast, a speaker identified as Ernst Fischer, an Austrian, said the Yugoslav Army of Liberation "did not fall from the skies" but came from armed combat units which were small in the beginning.

"Such units already exist in Austria, composed of Austrian deserters, workers, sons of peasants, foreign workers and escaped prisoners of war," Fischer said.

"The time has come to strengthen this movement. Don't wait longer for a so-called decisive moment, but help bring it about by deeds."

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

Buying Victory Bonds is supposed to be the exclusive job and privilege of the people who remain at home, exempt from the fighting and the hardships of invasion. Yet Peterborough boys stationed in Italy are already headed for an "over the top" objective, before the Loan even gets nicely started in Canada.

Earl Hope, stationed in Italy with the R.C.A.S.C. did his bit by purchasing a $100 bond and the others in his outfit are not far behind him, according to a letter written April 14.

"I paid cash for it, if you can imagine a soldier having that many lire at one time (400 lires equals $4.47) and to make it even more astounding I still have $17 to my credit. We are a unit of approximately 400 strong and they've set a mark for us of 25,000 bones. From what we've heard, we're headed over the top. One of our chaps bought four $100 bonds so that should according to paper talk, give Jerry quite a kick. You can expect the bonds anytime between now and 1980 though, if distribution is carried out like the last time."

Meets Peterborough Boy

To his surprise, Pte. Hope ran across another Peterborough boy, George Merritt, stationed across the road from him. He was formerly a well known hockey player in the district, and when he lost the sight of one eye, players held a benefit game for him. He is the son of Mary Merritt and the late Mr. Merritt 339 Burnham street.

Some time ago, the young soldier sketched the story of the soldier's home in war torn Italy. Some of his buddies had fashioned rough huts in the mud, were, except for the mud walls collapsing occasionally, they were quite comfortable. Two experts, the carpenter and electrician, went in for style and built themselves a model house. To this prize possession Sparks (the electrician) has added a buzzar on the door so that it will be even more like the home he left behind him. Pte. Hope is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hope, 219 Stewart street. Three other brothers are serving overseas, Staff Sgt. William Hope in Italy and C. S. M. Spencer Hope and Sgt. Roy Hope at other points overseas.

Cruel Act

When a man goes into action overseas, the thought of the loved ones he left behind and for whom he is giving up so much, helps drive him on to attain victory. Girl friends in particular, are apt to be idolized and those who let a man down while he is "over there," can tear a man to pieces with their faithfulness. The following story is an example.

Cpl. Donald Vore, a farm boy from Montana, now serving in Italy, had a girl back home he was crazy about. After he came to Italy, she sent a beautiful new photograph, which like most tank men, he carried with him in his tank.

After a bit of action recently, a shell hit the tank. It caught fire and the whole crew piled out and ran as fast as they could. Cpl. Vore had gone a little way when he suddenly stopped, turned and went dashing back to the tank.

Flames were shooting out and the heavy ammunition was beginning to explode. But he went right into the flaming tank, and a moment later, climbed out with his girl's picture safely in his hands.

The payoff came a few hours later after the crew had trudged back to home base. Mail had arrived during their absence and there was a letter from Cpl. Vore's girl. The letter was merely to tell him she had married someone else.

Gets Wings

Mrs. Frank Scully, 468 Stewart street, has received word that her husband, Pte. Frank Scully, has received his wings as a qualified parachutist at Camp Shilo, Manitoba.

Besfore enlisting Pte. Scully was employed in the Machine Shop at the C.G.E. when he enlisted in December 1943, he joined an infantry unit and later transferred. He is the son of Mrs. Stella Scully of Windsor and Pte. Joseph Scully who was killed in 1918. A brother, Glenn, is serving in the Provost Corps overseas.

Old Home Week

Telegrapher Chum Gillespie overseas, recently had an "old home week" celebration on a leave as he met many Peterborough boys. Among those he met were Gordon Hunt (of Coldsprings), Pat Shaughnessy, Chuck Murduff, Bill Cuppy, Fred Bartley, James Holly and Donald Howell. A few days later he ran into Glen Harrison, Ray Parnall, Ed. Courneya and Lieut. Neis Foster.

Tel. Gillespie, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Gillespie, 110 Lock street, received 35 letters in one mail recently. He writes that two other Peterborough boys are serving on his ship. They are William Roode and Robert Honor. One of his biggest thrills since going overseas was a chicken dinner he tracked down while on leave.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH BOY

Pilot Officer Donald Henderson, only son of the late W. George Henderson, who was at one time manager of the Peterborough Utilities, is serving overseas. His father died in Cobourg in 1939 and his mother and siters live in Toronto. An aunt, Mrs. S. T. Harris, 207 Perry street, received a letter a few days ago from the young airman.

"As you may have learned I received my commission at Halifax, and am a pilot. It was a tough grind but well worth it. I can't tell you anything about my flying, except that there is nothing I like doing better. We always say that when your number is up there is nothing can stop it.

"Over here I have had a chance to look back at the life I have lived and I do not regret it. The world has changed a lot for me in the last eight years and I doubt if they would ever return. I believe the best days were from the time I was five until I became 15 years of' age.

I have met lot of fellows over here that I knew while in training, but so far have not found any Peterborough boy that I know. I miss the snow and it is odd to see green grass all the year round. On my first leave overseas, I went to Scotland and certainly enjoyed it."

P. O. LLOYD ROUTLY

Pilot Officer Lloyd Routly, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Routly, 593 Walnut street, is serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas. After enlisting in June 1943, he took his training at Manning Pool, and No. 1 I.T.S. Toronto, graduating as a navigator and receiving his commission at Malton. Twenty years old, he attended thet Collegiate, and is well known in sports circles, being a member of the winning C.O.S.S.A. rugby team in the 1941-42 season. He will be remembered as the drum major of the Collegiate Band, and leader of the Ranger band.

Not Much Change

Life in the army to Cpl. Joe Watkins is pretty much the same as same as civilian living. A telegrapher in peace time at the C. N. R. office at Camp Borden, he is now stationed at Vimy Barracks, and is night supervisor of the telepraph exhange and radio stations operated by the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals. His wife who was formerly Miss Gardner is employed as secretary in the law office of Wilfred Huycke.

New Badges

Defence headquarters has announced official insignia for the army's recently-formed Canadian Intelligence Corps.

The cap badge is in silver for officers and white metal for other ranks and bears within a wreath of maple leaves ensigned with the Imperial Crown the true and magnetic north points of the compass, entwined in a scroll inscribed "action from knowledge." Below is a scroll inscribed "Canadian Intelligence Corps."

The collar badge, worn by officers only, is in silver, with the true and magnetic points entwined in a scroll inscribed the same way as is the cap badge.

The design perpetuates that of the former Canadian Corps of Guides.

Small Grass Fire Damages 4 Homes

STURGEON FALLS, April 25—(CP)—One home was destroyed and three others damaged by a fire in Springer Township on the outskirts of the town Saturday. The fire was started by a small boy in grass and quickly went out of control.

A group of other houses in the small settlement were threatened but fast action by the Sturgeon Falls fire department was credited with saving them from destruction.

The house destroyed was that of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Lang, owned by Mrs. J. Armitage, from which the occupants escaped shortly before the fire cut off all exits. About 75 men, women and children assisted firemen in fighting the flames.

No one was injured.

the Government's request to loan money." He urged confidence in "our leaders as the strength of our country depends in the confidence we place in them."

Must Meet Objective.

Prior to the raising of the Victory Loan insignia Mayor Frank Long addressed the gathering saying, "We have faith in our armed forces to maintain and uphold the best traditions of our Empire But what about the faith in us? Are we going to back them to the limit as we should? There are many things at this time that we should do, and others we must do. One of the most important is that we meet our objective of $175,000 in Campbellford and $125,000 in Seymour."

As the insignia floated skyward 500 pupils speaking in unison gave the pledge to the flag.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

DON'T SPEED THE DANGER

IF THERE is some particular danger which you may possibly prevent, surely you want to provide for protection against it before it arrives. Doing things out of logical order can keep you from that. If seeking of an extra trick above your contract involves such a procedure, then in rubber bridge, or total point duplicate, you should always go for the contract.

North: ♠ J 9 4 ♥ 7 5 ♦ A K 6 ♣ Q J 10 9 8

West: ♠ K 6 5 ♥ J 9 8 6 ♦ Q 10 7 3 ♣ 7 4

East: ♠ 3 2 ♥ K Q 4 3 2 ♦ J 8 4 ♣ A 6 2

South: ♠ A Q 10 8 7 ♥ A 10 ♦ 9 5 2 ♣ K 5 3

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	4 ♠

After winning the heart 6 lead with his A, South saw a chance to make an extra trick above his contract. If the spade finesse would work, he would lose only two tricks, as he figured it, one in hearts and one in clubs. He could discard a diamond on the clubs. With that in mind, he led to the diamond A and finessed the spade J, which lost to the K. West raked in his heart K and returned the diamond 3, which was taken by the dummy's K.

Now, all at once, South realized, too late, that he had played unsoundly. He had to lose a trick to the club A, and when he did, the fatal diamond trick was scored by the defense.

South could have made his contract airtight by getting down to first principles and foregoing the luxury of an extra trick. After scoring the first trick with the heart A, his sound play was to lay down the spade A, then lead a spade to the K. West would doubtless score a heart trick then for his side, and switch to a diamond to knock out one of dummy's honors. Winning this, South could eliminate the last trump and lead clubs until East used the A. After that, the diamond A would be an entry to use clubs and discard the diamond loser.

When South led a diamond before progressing the black suits on which he wanted to work, he was really helping set up a tric for the defense.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 10 9 8 ♥ A 5 ♦ 6 5 3 2 ♣ A K 8 7

West: ♠ Q 5 ♥ K 10 9 8 ♦ 10 9 4 ♣ 10 9 6 4

East: ♠ J 4 2 ♥ J 6 3 ♦ A K J 8 7 ♣ J 2

South: ♠ A K 7 6 3 ♥ Q 7 4 2 ♦ Q ♣ Q 5 3

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What finishing play is bound to develop if South plays this hand correctly for 4-Spades after East takes a diamond trick and switches to his spade 2?

Winter Wheat Fields Bring Cheer To Peterborough County Farmers

Peterborough farmers are becoming impatient of the casual and dilatory approach of this fifth wartime Spring with its paramount problem of maintaining agricultural production of essential foodstuffs.

One bright spot appears in the township fields, encouraging evidence that the fall wheat and clover have come through the winter with only slight losses from adverse weather.

"The week end rain has held up the plowing and cultivating work that everybody has been planning to get started," Alex Huston of Otonabee said, "but the wheat and clover fields are greening up, and they look healthy and safe. Some fields that probably were not planted in the best condition are looking a little doubtful, but they may improve after these rains and as soon as the sun gets on the job."

Mr. Huston said he had done some cultivating, but generally work in his section of Otonabee was being held up for drier ground. No spring sowing has yet been reported, and farmers need all the time the season can spare them. Help is a continuing problem, here and there, and the rural industry is anxious about an accumulating 'bottle neck' of work if the weather does not begin co-operating with them this week.

Elmer Milburn of Smith told the Examiner a few farmers had managed to get a little plowing done, but seasonal work so far has been negligible.

Wheat and clover in Smith is showing an expanse of color that is allaying any doubt about the effects of winter and late spring.

"The ice in Chemong Lake hasn't moved much; Smith farmeds like to see it out of the way before they feel work delay and crop danger has passed," Mr. Milburn said.

Sam Bell of Bridgenorth said that the Chemong Bridge has been closed to traffic for several weeks. "They are working on the pier at this side, and they're not through yet. There is still a great body of ice in the lake, and it looks to be thick and solid."

Hospital Slides Shown At Church

HAVELOCK, April 25—(ENS)—A complete set of slides, dealing with "The Ministry of Healing in Canada" was shown and explained at the evening service of the United church, to the members of the Women's Auxiliary Society and the Evening Auxiliary.

One set of pictures was moonlight scenes pertaining to the Hospital at Matheson, Ontario. Several outpost hospitals in Manitoba at Teulon, Ethelbert, Pine River and Gypsumville were shown, also the prayer groups, dog teams and snowmobiles. Dr. Archer was shown near a patient's home in the Cold Lake district in Alberta. It was at Lamont that a training centre for nurses was first started, and it has the proud distinction of being the first training school to admit Orientals. Miss Ada Sandall, a missionary evacuated from Korea, is at present in charge. A modern X-ray machine has been added to the equipment of the Battle River Hospital, through the efforts of Albertans and donations from the east.

In British Columbia the Burn's Lake Hospital serves many Indian patients, as well as the lumbermen, fishermen and settlers. In all, the pastor, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, briefly reviewed the work of the 10 hospitals and 2 units, as supported by the Missionary Societies. The choir sang an anthem "God Is Love."

Mrs. Harvey Fallis Is Hostess To Auxiliary

BETHANY, April 25—(ENS)—The April meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Fallis on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Clarence Rowan favored with a beautiful solo, "Jesus Stand Amongst Us." A special collection was taken for the Victor Home, Toronto.

Watch Towers were responded to by Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Fallis and Mrs. Rowan. It was decided to order fifty packages of Christmas Cards. An interesting feature of the program was "News Flashes" from the World, in which several of the members told how the Christian message was appreciated by men in service the world over. Mrs. Fallis took the study period.

The meeting was closed by a hymn followed by prayer by Mrs. Harding. The Easter Thankoffering totalled $26.00, it was reported.

The deaths last week were announced of two men who were well known in this village, Frank Gailbraith of Port Hope, whose wife was Adelaid Staples of Bethany, and of William Boggs of Bethany, whose wife also was a Bethany girl, Mary Ann Davis. The death is also announced in Toronto of Rev. James McMullen, who was born and attended school here.

These days people are working harder, worrying more, sleeping less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living lowers resistance—increases body and mental fatigue. Overwork; hasty meals; irregular hours; worry—any of these may upset proper kidney action.

When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and poisons remain in the system. Then backache, headache, rheumatic pain, disturbed rest or that "tired-all-the-time" feeling may soon follow. To help keep your kidneys in good order—to help guard against physical let-down—use Dodd's Kidney Pills, for over half a century a favourite remedy for faulty kidneys.

Jap Troops Die In Droves Trying To Hold Burma Lines

Bomber Dodged Skyscrapers

Death Toll In Montreal Crash Stands At 16

MONTREAL, April 26—(CP).—Smoke still curled from a shattered block of tenement houses today, as investigators sought to determine what caused an R.A.F. transport plane to crash into the block yesterday with a toll of at least 16 dead. The investigators had little to work on, so hard did the Liberator bomber hit and so fiercely did the wreckage burn. A fragment of wing, a piece of the tail assembly, the shattered parts of a motor were all that was left of the plane which a few minutes before the crash had set off on a trans-Atlantic flight.

Numbered among the known dead were the five crew members of the big plane, three of them of Polish nationality, a policeman last seen entering a madly-blazing building, and nine residents of the demolished tenement block including an 18-month baby. An elderly man was listed as missing and three other persons were in critical condition in hospital.

Houses Collapsed.

Four of the known dead were women whose homes collapsed like card-houses around them when the plane struck and exploded, sending flames 75 feet into the air. A fifth was a three-year-old boy whose mother was also killed.

Death of the boy, Jimmy Wells, and his mother and his mother's sister-in-law left two brothers, James and Walter Wells, without families. Both men were at work at the time of the tragedy. Others to die were Constable Philippe Lemieux, Mrs. Victor Geoffrion, Mrs. Delia Dowling, Aurele Larochelle, Victorien Marchand and T. H. Hebert.

The plane struck buildings facing on Shannon street and intersecting Ottawa street, two blocks south and a block west of Old Bonaventure Station. The death list included residents of both streets.

Constable Lemieux was last seen alive entering a fiercely-blazing home a short distance from where he had been on point duty when the crash came. He had been informed an undetermined number of persons were trapped inside. Nobody came out of the building alive.

Had No Warning

Those in the tenement had no warning of what was coming, but hundreds of Montrealers had a foreboding of disaster as they watched the roof-top-skimming battle that the plane's pilot put up in a futile effort to reach the St. Lawrence river before his failing aircraft took its final plunge.

The plane came roaring over the slopes of Mount Royal, obviously trying to gain altitude but failing.

Victory Loan Subscribers Invest 131 Millions So Far

OTTAWA, April 26—(CP).—The National War Finance Committee announced today that yesterday's purchases of Sixth Victory Loan bonds totalled $56,999,850, bringing the loan total at the end of the second day of the three-week drive to $131,276,000.

Total for Monday, first day of the $1,200,000,000 campaign, was $74,276,150.

Yesterday's total was approximately $2,000,000 down from the corresponding day of the fifth loan.

"Due to the change in our reporting system, comparison is difficult," loan officials said, "but the lag would appear to be in purchases of individual Canadians. This loan, for instance, we already have more than $7,000,000 reported from the troops overseas. We did not have this total until much later in the last loan."

They said subscriptions to date are just about equalling the average which must be maintained. Eleven per cent. of the canvassing time has passed and 11 per cent. of the minimum objective has been achieved.

Reports from communities across Canada Showed salesmen are canvassing and local committees are functioning with the same enthusiasm of previous loans.

It started out with four completely unabashed soldiers, each dressed only in his underwear, and standing at a central point in the area. Each soldier represented one unit. As his unit reached a point in the objective, he was allowed to put on his socks When it progressed a little further, he was allowed to wear shoes. First soldier completely dressed, represents victory for the unit he represents.

Halifax, unbeaten in sales records in former loans, is competing against London, Ont., in a special competition on general sales and payroll savings. The two cities were reported running a neck-to-neck race.

The Armed Services are rapidly approaching the first half of the more than $36,000,000 they combined to raise in the Sixth Loan.

Eight ships and two shore establishments of the Royal Canadian Navy's West Coast Command topped their quotas before the close of business on Tuesday.

In Vancouver, H.M.C.S. Burrard passed its quota for both the Pacific Coast Naval Headquarters civilian and naval personnel, while at Jericho Beach reported 50 per cent of quota.

From the Army at home and overseas has come nearly $10,000,000.

Group standings in Canada include: Quebec City $433,500, Winnipeg $326,150, Calgary $340,850, Regina $131,560, Camp Borden

Martin Opposes Finance Plan

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA, April 26 (CP)—Paul Martin, speaking for the Canadian Government, told the International Labor Organization conference today that he could not agree with the present form of a proposed resolution giving the I.L.O. authority to "scrutinize" international economic and financial policies, and otherwise widely broadening the organization's scope of operations.

He proposed that the organization set up a committee, with headquarters in Montreal where the international office now is located, and give it the task of "fitting the organization into its proper and rightful place in the new international framework now beginning to emerge."

Martin, parliamentary assistant to the Canadian labor minister and head of the Canadian Government delegation at the conference, spoke in the debate on the organization's proposal to take on extraordinary powers of scrutiny over public policy.

He urged the I.L.O. to do nothing that would indicate a desire to break away from the League of Nations.

Would Go Slow

Arrangements for collaboration between the I.L.O. and other existing or projected international organizations should be regarded as of a tentative character "pending the establishment of a world council or the restoration of the league, or the creation of other central control agency," he said.

The committee he proposed would prepare a report for submission to the next I.L.O. conference.

"By that time the patterns of the new world organization may be expected to have taken such shape that, with the aid of considered opinions from governments, the conference may well be able to take further steps toward completing the

1,000 U.S. Bombers Hit Brunswick 750 Fighters Along

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 26.—(AP).—American heavy bombers smashed at targets in the area of Brunswick. German aircraft production centre, to-day carrying the pre-invasion aerial offensive—heaviest the world has ever seen — through the 12th consecutive day.

The bomber fleet which thundered into Germany for the third time in as many days was described in an American announcement as of "medium" strength, escorted by up to 750 fighters.

This indicated the total force was similar to that of more than 1,000 planes from Britain which hit three Nazi airfields in France and industrial targets in Germany yesterday, but smaller than the 2,000-plane armadas sent out in daylight five times since the gigantic offensive began.

The German radio claimed the American force invading the air over the Reich tangled with Nazi fighters in fierce battles as the air drive, which has scourged enemy targets in a 750-mile arc across Europe, rolled forward. Berlin claimed the Americans "tried to raid" Osnabruck and Brunswick.

Hundreds of lighter planes blackened the skies over the channel in an onslaught against targets in occupied territory similar to the attacks which cost three bombers yesterday. The explosions from their assault were heard all the way across the channel.

Fighters escorted the four-engined bombers to Germany and the first fighter pilots returning said they encountered no German fighters in the deepening overcast. These pilots went only part way to the target, however.

Swarms of daylight raiders soared out after R.A.F. Mosquito squadrons in their 15th operation this month last night pounded Cologne — hit three times before in this current campaign — and other R.A.F. planes sowed mines, all without loss.

The U.S. bombers penetrated into central Germany and flew back over north-west Germany, the Nazi radio reported at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. E.D.T.).

"Despite unfavorable weather conditions the American bombers

Canadians Sink Hun Destroyer Off French Coast

LONDON, April 26 — (CP Cable) — A Royal Navy offensive force, including three Canadian tribal class destroyers, sank a German destroyer in an early morning action today against three or four enemy ships in the vicinity of Isle de Bas off the northwest coast of France. the Admiralty announced.

The Canadian ships, operating in a force led by the British cruiser Black Prince, intercepted the enemy destroyer while she was attempting to escape after being damaged early in the action. She was sunk after taking repeated hits from the guns of the three Canac ships and a British destroyer.

The Canadian ships participating were the Haida, skippered by Cmdr. H. G. de Wolfe of Halifax, the Athabaskan, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. John Hamilton Stubbs, D.S.O., of Victoria, B.C., and the Huron, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. H. S. Rayner, D. S. C., of Grimsby, Ont.

The Admiralty said the British and Candian ships returned safely to harbor, suffering only minor casualties and superficial damage.

An Admiralty communique said the force, commanded by Capt. D. M. Lees, D. S. O., R.N. in the Black Prince encountered the enemy force of three or four destroyers, believed to be of the Elbing class, and the Germans immediately altered course and tried to speed away under a smoke cover.

The Black Prince illuminated the enemy force with star shells and the British ships opened fire, obtaining several hits.

"Later H. M. Ship Black Prince sighted torpedoes approaching and took successful avoiding action," the communique said. "Meanwhile His Majesty's destroyers continued to press home the attack."

One German destroyer, seeking to escape under cover of darkness, was intercepted and engaged at short range by the Haida and Athabaskan.

Allies Tighten Grip On Imphal Area

Air-Borne Chindits Harass Enemy Cutting Supply Route

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press War Correspondent

KANDY, Ceylon, April 26—(AP)—Japanese jungle troops are desperately attacking road and rail blocks established in Central Burma by Allied "Chindits," air-borne troops, and are "coming in to the attack like a boxer with his head down" and dying in droves, an Allied observer said today.

At the same time British forces continued to tighten their grip on the Imphal-Kohima area which had been threatened by a Japanese invasion of Indian designed to cut the Bengal-Assam railroad, Allied supply line to China and North Burma, a communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced.

The communique said British forces yesterday captured the Napao Hill feature north of the Imphal Plain, inflicting heavy casualties on the enemy.

The Japanese know they must seek to dislodge the obstructions the Chindits have placed on their communications 240 miles inside Burma, the official observer said, especially because of the aid such blocks give to Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell's forces driving down upon them through the Mogaung Valley in the north.

Suicide Attacks

At present the Chindits are astride more than 100 miles of Japanese communications serving the enemy in northern Burma.

The Japanese are throwing waves of infantry against the perimeter of one Chindit road block established a month ago and are "perishing in droves," the commentator said.

The Japanese blow bugle blasts, shout, and even charge while swearing lustily in English. They employ all sorts of weapons, including light tanks, howitzers, "coal scuttle" mortars, machine-guns and even bangalore torpedoes, which usually are used against wire entanglements.

"Waves of Japanese rushed blindly into our mines and booby traps. As they went down machine-gun and rifle fire swept into them. Casualties were counted by the dozen. Nonetheless wave after wave came through the jungle and rushed forward to our wire, some carrying bungalore torpedoes which failed to reach our wire and were turned into deaths for the enemy.

"Morning found the Japanese in retreat. Around half-dug burial pits, the diggers themselves were dead. Twelve naked bodies were found in our wire."

Mountbatten's communique, which was unusually terse, said the Allied advance continued northeast of Imphal on the Ukhrul road but did not mention the situation in the Bishenpur area southwest of Imphal where bitter fighting has been in progress against Japanese infiltra-

Voicecast Used First Time On Anzio Front

BY DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Italy April 26 — (AP) — Six thousand screaming shells and a special voice warning, "surrender or die", swept over a crude hilltop fortress one mile north of the Garibaldi tomb where possibly 60 German infantrymen crouched before dawn Tuesday.

Squatting in a shallow foxhole with his head enveloped in a blanket held by two correspondents while he read the script with a flashlight, Australian-born Capt. Martin F. Herz of New York delivered the first battlefield voicecast to the enemy ever attempted in the Italian campaign.

Loudspeakers almost within hand grenade range blared a ghostly ultimatum to the German soldiers that they must walk into the Allied lines immediately or be torn to pieces by the fury of 200 guns.

Four surrendering Germans appeared.

Then battalions of light, medium and heavy artillery landed a gigantic 18-minute punch. About 100 shares were fired for every estimated soldier in an area 1,000 yards square.

Again Herz gave the enemy a brief chance to quit.

Five minutes later riflemen and assault crews charged the hilltop while five Sherman tanks with sirens wailing rumbled in close support into no man's land.

In 20 minutes the force cleaned up the hilltop, took eight or 10 prisoners and began a planned withdrawal, carrying back their own casualties.

German guns fired a savage cunter barrage.

The value of voicecasts in battle tactics was left very much up in the air, at least for this blanket-holding observer.

Arsenal Workers In Special Category

OTTAWA, April 26—(CP).—The National Wartime Labor Relations Board has refused to certify the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) as bargaining agents for the employees of Dominion Arsenals, Ltd., at Lindsay, Ont., on the ground that the company is a branch of the Government, board officials said today.

While the new Federal labor code, under which the board operates, makes provision for the certification of bargaining agencies in Crown companies, it does not apply to direct branches of the Government and the board ruled that Dominion arsenals was in that category.

Reds Launch Terrific Land Attack

Will Invade Reich Russians Claim In Review

LONDON, April 26 — (CP). — The Red Army has launched an attack on a broad front in Southern Russia from the Carpathians to the Black Sea, German and Romanian reports claimed to-day.

A German communique claimed the Nazis had scored "a complete defensive victory after heavy battles" when the Red Army attacked in the lower Dnestr yesterday with strong artillery and air strength. The Nazis claimed they had sealed off the Soviet break-throughs.

The Germans claimed their forces along with Romanian troops, had driven into Russian lines northwest of Iasi yesterday and "smashed enemy offensive preparations," and added that Hungarian troops had frustrated Soviet counter-thrusts supported by tanks in an area between the Carpathian Mountains and the Upper Dnestr.

These German claims followed an assertion last night in an authoritative Soviet war review that the Red Army intends to drive into Germany in a mighty continuation of its 1944 offensive to finish off Hitler's legions and bring about the Nazis' final capitulation in close collaboration with the Allies.

The review, broadcast by the Moscow radio, declared 500,000 Axis troops had been slain or captured, and enormous booty swept up in less than two months on the lower Russian front, without counting the Crimea. Since last summer the Red Army has liberated more than 65,000 localities and more than 310,000 square miles of territory, the review added.

The review came as a Soviet communique told of the killing of several hundred Germans southeast of Stalislawow in pre-war Poland in a powerful flanking attack which

Clark Refuses To Be Sworn

OTTAWA, April 26 — (CP). — James Clark, former Chief Inspector for the Canada-United Kingdom Joint Inspection Board, to-day declined to be sworn as a witness before a Commons War Expenditures Sub-Committee after being subpoenaed last night to appear, it was learned after the sub-committee rose for its noon adjournment.

The meeting was in secret, but authorities said it was to be assumed the sub-committee would make a report to the main War Expenditures Committee.

A decision then could be made as to whether Mr. Clark would be reported to the House. If this was done he might be brought before the Bar of the House on a charge of contempt, and, if the complaint was sustained, "committed to the Tower."

However, authorities said they considered it "unlikely" such proceedings would be instituted against Mr. Clark and they noted the sub-committee as continuing its study of charges made by Mr. Clark that 1,000,000 pairs of army boots were made of inferior materials.

They Disobeyed—Cheated Death

MONTREAL, April 26 — (CP) — There's one mother in Montreal who is mighty thankful her children disobeyed her yesterday.

The woman—officials didn't give her name—left her three children in the house while she went to the store yesterday. She gave them strict instructions not to go outside.

While she was at the store she learned that an R. A. F. transport plane had crashed near her house. She ran all the way back, found the building a smoking ruin, and collapsed on the sidewalk.

While police weer reviving her, Three disobedient children who had been a safe distance away at the time of the crash, came up and asked, "what's the matter with mummy?"

The crash took at least 16 lives.

Irish Vessels Frozen In Port

DUBLIN, April 26— (CP) — The newspaper Irish Press said to-day that Eirie's shipping connection with Lisbon had been stopped because of refusal by British authorities to issue navicerts for Irish vessels.

"Prolonged stoppage of Ireland-Lisbon traffic would have serious effects on our supply position," the paper said, "as large consignments of wheat, paper and other materials needed by Irish industries have been shipped from America to Lisbon and taken from there to Ireland in Irish vessels."

May Penalize Some Neutrals

U.S. Will Ask Sweden Second Time

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP).—The extent to which neutrals cooperate with the Allies in cutting off strategic shipments to Germany turned out today to be a standard on which they may rely in seeking Allied help in reconstruction after the war.

The rule was applied specifically in the case of Sweden, which has rejected an American request to stop shipping ball bearings and other items directly aiding Germany's war machine. Sweden was not asked to halt all trade with Germany, as Turkey recently was, the theory apparently being that their position was not equally independent.

Th United States State Department gave every evidence of pursuing the request to Sweden insistently, despite the rebuff last Saturday.

The same principle may be applied to other neutrals of which the United States and its allies have made requests—Turkey which recently decided to cut off all chrome shipments to Germany and declared itself an ally; Spain, which still has not concluded a formal agreement with this country on halting tungsten ore shipments; Ireland, where Axis diplomatic officials still roam despite American assertions that they are spies.

Paratroopers to Spearhead Invasion

Airborne Attacks Near Perfection As War Moves Closer To Climax

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

When the Allied forces finally have stormed their way on to the European continent in the approaching invasion we shall find that we owe great things to airborne troops—those daring adventurers who are dropped from the skies into enemy territory.

It's no longer a secret that they are to be used extensively. Indeed a month ago Prime Minister Churchill, having watched hundreds of American paratroopers do a mass leap at their British base, told them with emotion that they had a 'great part to play,' and characterized them as the most modern expression of war.

The Nazis have taken full note of all this and now have notified the world that they are prepared to counter paratroops landings. And last week Pierre Laval, chief of the French Vichy government, issued a panicky call to his countrymen not to co-operate with the paratroopers.

When D-Day arrives we may find that one squad of paratroopers within Hitler's fortress are worth a legion outside, for it bids fair to be a terrific job to get amphibious troops ashore.

Paratroopers are temporarily self-contained when they hit the air, so far as equipment and food are concerned. Their tasks are myraid—all tough ones—such as destroying enemy communications and catpturing or even buliding airfields Once the paratroopers have established a base, the regular air transport and gliders get into artion with more men and equipment, including guns up to three-inch calibre. Even Jeeps and Bulldozers are moved by air.

Reserves Inland

And the air-borne troops are expected to play a vital part in breaking up the Nazi reserves. The German defences are so arranged that reserves are held well behind the Atlantic wall. They will wait to see wheer the Allies break through and then will counterattack.

One of the earliest paratroops successes was the German capture of Crete three years ago.

The Russians achieved another notable victory last fall. Their paratroops captured the strategic railway junction of Ovrich and 30 other places in the Zhitomir sector, thereby enabling the regulars to retake Zhitomir.

The Americans in the Pacific have used paratroops freely and successfully. And at this moment both Britain and United States have large airborne forces doing yeoman's work behind the Japanese lines in the Burmese jungles.

Will Not Cede British Land

Churchill Assures Commons Bases Are Safe

LONDON, April 26.—(CP-Reuters).—Prime Minister Churchill assured the House of Commons today there was "not the slightest question of cession of British territories" and that there had been no developments calling for review by the government of the existing position regarding western hemisphere bases leased to the United States.

Mr. Churchill gave the assurance after Rhys Davies, Labor member, called attention to the suggestion by a sub-committee that a study be made of the possibility of obtaining permanent possession of these bases.

The House could rest assured, said the Prime Minister, that "there have been no developments calling for review by the government of the existing position" respecting these bases.

When Mr. Davies asked "had not the Prime Minister made a promise that he will not preside over the liquidation of the British Empire," Mr. Churchill replied, amid laughter, "I will welcome all the aid I can receive from so valiant a quarter."

Another Labor member, George Strauss, asked for an assurance that, since the Atlantic charter provided for no annexation without the consent of the population concerned, this would also apply to Allied territories.

"There is not the slightest question of any cession of British territories, not the slightest," the Prime Minister replied.

Partisan Units Attack Island

LONDON, April 26 — (AP). — Partisan troops of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) have landed on Mjlet Island off Yugoslavia and are battling fiercely against the Nazi defenders, a Cairo broadcast said today.

The broadcast, quoting Free Yugoslav sources, said the Partisans went ashore under support of Allied warships on the 24-mile-long island, some 20 miles north-west of Ragusa.

Mjlet is 12 miles south-east of the slightly larger German-held island of Korcula. Allied forces at last reports already held or were fighting on three other islands just north and west of Korcula.

Seizure of Mjlet thus would give the Allies island positions flanking Korcula on both sides, strengthening control over these Adriatic stepping-stones for invasion of Yugoslavia or supply of the Yugoslav Partisans.

Tito has claimed capture of Hvar Island north of Korcula and at least past of Brac Island a few miles farther north and just south of the port of Split. Berlin in March said 1,500 British and American Commandos had landed on Lissa, farther out in the Adriatic west of Korcula.

The German radio, meanwhile, claimed the Partisan base of Mrkonjicgrad in Central Bosnia had been captured, and said the town had replaced Jajce as Partisan headquarters.

Tito's communique last night acknowledged tank-led German penetrations of Bosnia. It claimed capture of the towns of Bilek and Kkobuk in Hercegovina, and said enemy forces had been routed in Montenegro.

The percentage required for those two days was 11.11. Huge Battle Looms At Hollandia

14,000 Japanese Not Engaged So Far By Invaders

By FRED HAMPSON
Associated Press War Correspondent

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, April 26—(AP).—Covered by warplanes operating off the captured Tadji airfield near Aitape, one spearhead of the Allied invaders of northern New Guinea was virtually within sight of the main airdrome at Hollandia, today's reports indicated.

Opposition still was negligible, headquarters reported, and the only aerial molestation was from a lone Japanese plane which bombed one of the Hollandia beachheads, causing moderate damage and light casualties.

The three-runway Tadji airfield, 150 miles southeast of Hollandia, was captured by the first invasion wave a few hours after the landings at dawn Saturday, and immediately Australian and American engineers went to work with bulldozers and graders while troops chased the Japanese into the hills and jungle.

Captured enemy guns were set up as defence weapons and ground crews worked even at night by floodlight to whip the bomb-pocked field into shape.

Australian and American planes based at Tadji then were put to work in the campaign of annihilation against 60,000 isolated New Guinea Japanese.

Allied troops, battling to re-open the highway between Kohima and Imphal in northern India, have driven the invading Japanese from the village of Kanglatongbi, 22 miles of Imphal.

The advance was announced last night by Allied headquarters, which also declared that Japanese counter-attacks had been repulsed by Allied troops striking out from Imphal.

Another Allied force advancing along the Ukhrul Road, which runs in a northeasterly direction toward the Burma frontier, also made additional progress.

Farther north in the Kohima area, long columns of men, tanks and guns are moving into position for a big attack to remove the Japanese threat to this important Allied base.

In northern Burma, fresh progress was reported in the twin Allied drives on the Japanese-held railway towns of Myitkyina and Mogaung.

Chinese infantry advancing down the Mogaung valley with tank support reached Inkagahtawng. The Chinese force scored an unexpected success when Japanese troops facing them in well-prepared pillboxes and deep foxholes suddenly panicked and fled.

More than 1,000 Allied planes flew out from Britain yesterday

In 11 days this mightiest of sky offensives has lambasted the Germans with over 50,000 tons of explosives and thousands of incendiaries—and cost the Allies probably more than 2,300 airmen and 373 planes.

Enemy raiders pounded two south coast towns during the night in double-header blows, first hitting soon after midnight, and then returning before dawn.

At least four planes were downed by anti-aircraft guns.

An official announcement said damage and a small number of casualties resulted.

A U.S. headquarters announcement today disclosed that railway yards at Mannheim and Landeau in Germany were hit during yesterday's offensive. Hits were scored on a choke point in the Mannheim yards by one formation, and seven of nine buildings at a nearby anti-aircraft site were demolished, photographs showed.

At Landeau, northwest of Karlsruhe, a concentration of bombs covered tracks at the freight station it was announced, and "good results" were obtained in the raids on enemy airdromes in France at Metz, where 15 planes were damaged or destroyed on the ground, and at Dijon and Nancy.

Other planes bombed coastal fortifications and objectives in northern France and in Belgium.

End Of Strike Expected Soon

BY JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 26 — (CP) — Definite proposals for a basis of settlement of the six-day work stoppage at Ford Motors plants at Windsor, Ont., are under consideration by a Union delegation here The Canadian Press learned today on good authority.

Indications that negotiations for settlement of the work stoppage involving 14,000 employees, were moving rapidly toward a climax were evident following a second meeting of the delegation with a National Wartime Labor Relations Board Committee, which already has conferred with company officials.

"We will probably be going back to Windsor tonight—either with or without a settlement," Roy England, president of the Ford Local of United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) said.

The second meeting between the Board committee and Union lasted an hour this morning. The committee then left the conference room and it was understood this step was taken to enable the Union officials to discuss privately the proposal under consideration.

Yesterday a special committee of the National Wartime Labor Relations Board met representatives of the company and the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) separately. Today they are to resume discussions with the union representatives and may later report to the full board.

There were no statements forthcoming after yesterday's meeting and those informed on the proceedings were cautious in their comments, but it was apparent some headway had been made toward finding a common ground on which work could be resumed at the plant, idle since April 20.

It is understood the committee is striving to have the two parties agree on a memorandum which could form the basis of work resumption. Such a document would have to deal particularly with the procedure to be followed in handling grievances—the main point of the dispute between the union and company.

The union has offered to return to work under its old agreement which the company cancelled immediately after the work stoppage last Thursday. The company has offered to negotiate a new agreement if the employees return to work.

Decision to have a committee discuss the situation privately with the two parties was reached by the board yesterday after general statements of the company and union position had been made at two meetings of the board.

Martin said there likely would be a number of world organizations set up, each concentrating on a particular phase of international economic or social relations.

He suggested these would be in the sphere of monetary and exchange policy, international collaboration to permit full employment, commodity policy, international investment, food and agriculture.

"In the view of the Canadian government these international organizations must eventually be brought together in an international framework," he said. "Their functions must be clear-cut and no over-lapping permitted...."

Scout Planes Parked In Market Hall

Model airplanes, some of them elaborated even to the installation of motive power, are an attractive feature of the annual display of the activities and handicraft of Boy Scouts and Cubs of Peterborough which opened in the market hall last night and continues until Thursday night.

Officially opening this 3rd annual demonstration, Mayor Hamilton congratulated the youngsters on the interesting variety of their work, and complimented their leaders on the progress of Scout organization in the city.

Mayor Hamilton said that Scouting afforded the boys an excellent outlet for their aptitudes and personalities at an important stage of their development of character, and the citizens generally were heartily in accord with the movement and its results. Everybody realized that the boys and girls of today would become the citizens of tomorrow, and the Scouts and Cubs acquired in their organization a sense of discipline and a place in affairs which was manifest in their budding personalities.

Mayor Hamilton said he was personally deeply interested in Scout activities and could bespeak for the council and the citizens as a whole their support of the movement which has become well established in Peterborough, and their interest as new boys join and others graduate as the years go by.

The public is invited to attend the show tonight and Thursday night. It reflects a phase of the city's youthful spirits and abilities directed into useful group efforts cultivating personality and manual skills.

The demonstrations last night were put on by the Sea Scouts of St James and St. Peter's, and Cub work by boys of Murray Street and St. Andrew's congregations. Stan Leggett was in charge of Sea Scouts and Miss Grace Marshall directed the Cubs. The officers who supervised the display arrangements were George Groombridge and William King. One of the attractions was a miniature camp site by the Scouts of Mark Street Church who have become especially active during the year.

In the program formally opening the show Barry Ottewell, president of Peterborough District Boy Scouts Association, and Ernie J. Wolff, District Commissioner, spoke briefly.

It swung off the regular northeast course then, and turned directly south in a bee-line for the river.

That sent it weaving down busy Peel street. It crossed St. Catherine street at 250 feet, just missed the Dominion Square Building and then the Windsor Hotel, veered off to avoid the Tower of Windsor Station and then swung again to graze the main post office.

Only the fact that the ground falls away sharply there in the Windsor street hill, offsetting the plane's loss of altitude, prevented a crash in one of Montreal's busiest streets.

The aircraft had just cleared the post office, and was flying, ever lower, over the tenement district beyond, when a wing came off and fluttered to the ground, shedding one of its two motors as it fell. The rest of the plane pitched sharply down then, clipped a flagpole off a school and then crashed into the tenements. Within a second, the explosion of about 2,000 gallons of aviation gasoline completed the destruction to the block.

Allies Improve Positions On Anzio Front

NAPLES, April 26 (AP)—Allied troops "continued to improve" their positions on the Anzio beachhead yesterday and heavy bombers blasted an aircraft factory at Turin, headquarters announced today.

Other heavy bombers attacked a bridge at Parma in North Central Italy and railyards at Ferrara, the bulletin said.

Thirteen Allied heavy bombers and three other planes were listed as missing from more than 1,400 sorties yesterday against the destruction of 14 enemy aircraft.

The raids included the pounding of communications north of the battlefront.

Allied beachhead troops have been breaking lull below Rome the last three days with several limited attacks in the Carano area in the central sector which have netted more than 50 prisoners.

Yesterday, in the most recent of the series, a raiding party took nine prisoners—four of them coming in after a persuasive loudspeaker talk and five after a sharp fight. They were quoted as saying their casualties have been heavy and their

6-Hour Session Fails To Gets Anywhere

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 26 (CP)—Commons members today turn to committee business after spending most of yesterday's session in examining House procedure without rose-colored glasses.

After nearly six hours of discussion, the House had not passed an item in the report of a committee on standing orders which suggested changes in House rules to facilitate business.

For nearly three hours during the afternoon they discussed procedure to be followed and whether an introductory statement by the committee should be passed on as well as 10 specific amendments to rules suggested.

When the House rose at 11 p.m., one proposed amendment had been discussed. It would make it compulsory for a member in his seat when a division occurred to cast his vote for or against.

A. W. Neill (Ind.-Comox-Alberni), who expressed criticism of suggestions in the report several times during the discussion, moved an amendment to the amendment which would provide that no member be compelled to cast his vote in the House.

Touch of Humor

The discussion concluded for the night when Deputy Speaker Joseph Bradette rose and reported "progress" as is always done when the House has sat in committee and has not completed its work.

Several members laughed as Mr. Bradette made the routine statement.

The House does not sit today and the members engage in committee work. On Thursday examination of war appropriation bill items will be resumed and the report of the committee on standing orders will come up again at some later date.

The Senate at a brief session last night gave first reading to six bills already approved by the House.

Several times during the discussion of the House committee's report, members said they were concerned about the public opinion of parliament.

The committee report, in its introductory paragraphs, said that it had taken into account "the existence of general criticism of parliament both by members and representative citizens," and sought means of facilitating the House business.

T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) said "practically all our rights, privileges and functions have been taken away with the result that the high court of parliament has been turned into something which it was never intended to be."

Defence Minister Ralston, acting government leader in the House, said the government was not pressing the amendments which were proposed by a committee, and he was simply watching House members discuss amendments to the rules of the House. Several times he said that the introductory remarks in the report represented opinions of the committee and that the House was asked to deal only with the specific amendments proposed.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, said there was no compulsory voting for Canadian electors and there should be no compulsion on members to vote in the House.

Cobourg Council Plans Booklet

COBOURG, April 26—(ENS)—A routine meeting of Cobourg town council was held Monday night with a full attendance. Preparations are being made to publish an illustrated folder to provide information about Cobourg for enquiring concerns and individuals. Mayor J. D. Burnet stated that many enquiries about Ontario are being received in London, England, and he suggested that the data be put into printed form so as to be readily available.

"We can't send our present folders about in broadcast fashion, as they are too expensive," said the mayor, referring to a number of typewritten folders which had been prepared recently. C. E. Adcock and the committee have been reviewing the present folders and have made suggestions for improvement. Although the committee felt the original material quite good, they thought more photographs should be used. The revised copy for the folder will be ready for the next council meeting, the mayor said.

A routine by-law was passed authorizing borrowing from the Bank of Toronto of sums up to $78,000. A temporary borrowing by-law for $50,000 was passed in January but the new one covers the year. $30,000 has been borrowed so far this year.

The Maxwell property was again leased to Albert Hircock for pasture for the sum of $20.

Councillor Reuben Jackson said that the town's stone crusher, which had cost about $1,000, will soon disappear beneath the waters of Lake Ontario if left at its present location on the beach near the orphanage. Councillor Ed Morton said that James Campbell and a crew intend to "bring it up from the beach" in the near future. The crusher had not been used for some years.

Councillor Jackson also enquired about the salaries being paid Streets Foreman Campbell and the payroll was produced to show that he gets $1,465 plus free house for his various town jobs. Councillor Jackson said that he was not criticizing Mr. Campbell but was enquiring for his own information. Several members of the council expressed the opinion that Mr. Campbell is doing a big job for the salary.

Marsh Case Judgment Is Reserved

COBOURG, April 26—(ENS)—Judgment was reserved by Judge J. C. M. German in county court yesterday in connection with four charges of false pretenses laid against James H. Marsh of Toronto, son of the deputy-minister of labor. The matter was laid over until May 5. Judge German observed that he expected there might be other charges of similar nature laid against Marsh in other parts of the province and he wondered if it were going to be like Securities Frauds Commission prosecutions where a man was tried all over the province. Marsh was tried on false pretense charges in connection with the sale of a correspondence course in stationary engineering which he sold under the name of Engineering and Technical Services.

Perhaps in the meantime we can learn what other charges Inspector Hammond has in mind," stated Judge German in reserving his decision until a week from Friday.

Marsh testified yesterday that he had experience in engineering gained in practical work while engaged in various engineering capacities by different firms. He testified that his course was not disjointed and the practice of a number of subjects being covered in one group of lessons was quite in keeping with the custom of other correspondence schools. The 96 lessons for a second class stationary engineer's paper consisted of mimeographed basic lessons plus lesson assignments based on text books sent during the course.

Marsh was questioned closely by Judge German on how he established the relationship between the assignments in the text books and the earlier mimeograhed basic lessons and Marsh's explanation was described as difficult to understand by the judge. The accused stated that the reason some of his pupils didn't receive lessons during the summer months of last year, was because he was working in the Kitchener area and discussions with students there had convinced him that his mathematics lessons in the course should be revised, with the result that he intended to change some of the lessons. Failure to so advise the students was a matter of neglect, he admitted. Marsh denied using his father's name to further the sale of his courses.

Questioned by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman, the accused admitted that he held no engineering certificate in Ontario. Part of the course was composed of assignment lessons based on two text books and two sets of text books of which 124 of one book had been sent out, 50 of another and about five of the other two texts, had been sent out to students last year.

Asked why he didn't tell his prospects that he was the sole concern instead of the manager, Marsh said that he had no particular reason. The accused added that an engineer at Copper Cliff operated a trade school course in Hamilton, under a business name. Judge German pointed out that Marsh's course was not registered under the Trade Schools Act, and the accused replied that a Montreal lawyer had told him that his Wartime Prices and Trade Board permit was sufficient.

Judge German commented that he was sure that none of the men who had laid the charges would have done so on their own, had it not have been for the interest which the department had taken in the matter.

Lindsay Arsenal Protests Ruling

TORONTO, April 26.— (CP). — The United Electrical Workers of America (C.I.O.) last night sent a telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King protesting the refusal of the Wartime Labor Relations Board to grant collective bargaining rights to workers at Dominion Arsenals, Limited Lindsay, Ont., it was announced by President C. S. Jackson.

Word that the Board had refused the request was received earlier yesterday by the Union.

The Union contends that for seven months the organized employees of the Crown company have sought the same status as employees of Canada's nationally-owned railways in bargaining on wages and conditions and that assurances had been made by Cabinet members that the new labor code would extend this right.

TAMBLYN Makes Timely Suggestion

The fact has been established by actual check that by far the largest proportion of accidents occur at home. Most of these of course are of a minor nature and if treated properly and promptly cause comparatively little discomfort. It is therefore most essential that the "home medicine chest" be equipped at all times with adequate requisites for this purpose, particularly in view of the fact that so many members of the "medical profession" are on duty with the armed forces and therefore not available to the civilian population. Following this thought, your Tamblyn Drug Store this week is again featuring "First Aid Supplies" for the home and also stressing the importance of the acquisition now of these very necessary items as a measure of preparedness against future emergencies. A Matter Of Morale

We have been assured many times that letters to men in the services do more to keep their morale high than anything else; good news from home is what keeps up their spirits. We must send them all the good news we can, therefore, and as quickly as possible.

Our men abroad are now living in a highly-charged atmosphere. They realize, as we can never do, that the great moment of invasion is drawing near — the moment toward which all training and planning has been directed. They are understandably keyed up and it is only human that they should expect and look for a corresponding excitement in the news from Canada. The current Victory Loan gives us our best chance to show that we share their excitement, and that we are doing all we can to back them up in the great effort.

It is more difficult for most people to find money for this Loan than it was for former Loans. But it is immeasureably important that the money should be found and subscribed as quickly as possible. If we fail to do our utmost, what will our fighting men think about the support they expect from home?

Everybody who has ever spent a long time away knows how significant news from home is likely to become. Things which would not normally take the attention assume an exaggerated importance; doubts and fears which are entirely groundless spring up in the mind and are very hard to dispell. If the men overseas were to think that Canadians at home were lukewarm toward the Loan, or that there had been difficulty in realizing the national and local objectives, what a dash of cold water it would be for them! There is only one way to avoid such a possibility, and that is to subscribe as quickly and as generously as you can, and to do everything in your power to make the Loan a success.

The Reduced Electrical Rate

There will be general satisfaction over the reduction of the electrical rate by the local Utilities Commission. For some time the Electrical Department of the Commission has shown a surplus, and at the last nomination meeting there was some outspoken criticism of this state of affairs. At that time the chairman of the Commission, Mr. Gordon Matthews, promised that a reduction in rates would be made, and that promise has now been fulfilled.

In order to make a reduction it was necessary to go through the complex business of striking a new rate, and it was then necessary to get the assent of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to the change. Now that these preliminaries have been completed, the new rates will go into force with the first May issue of bills.

It is expected that the new rates will bring about a ten per cent. reduction in revenue from Domestic Lighting, and a five per cent. reduction in the return from Commercial Lighting, and an equal reduction in the revenue from Power. These reductions will almost consume the surplus which is accumulated under present rates, and should thus be satisfactory to everyone. One of the objects of a local utilities commission is to provide service at the minimum charge, and the accumulation of surpluses is firmly discouraged. The local Commission has dealt with this matter expeditiously and the reduced scale of charges is welcome.

First Round To Premier Drew

On August 4 last Premier George Drew and a Progressive Conservative government were chosen to govern the Province of Ontario; so slight was their majority that some people doubted whether they would be able to govern at all, and others foresaw that their course would be a difficult one of compromises, temporizing and tergiversation; in point of fact none of the predicted disasters has come about, and Premier Drew has concluded his first session with dignity and greatly increased strength.

Premier Drew went to power with a program of twenty-two points and he has stuck faithfully to his promises. He has never allowed his program to be submerged. Instead of leaving it to the Opposition and the press to drag the program out of the cupboard and rattle its bones, Premier Drew has kept it always to the fore, and has done a remarkably good job of putting the program into action. Of his twenty-two points he has taken recognizable forward steps toward the realization of all but four; he has completed the realization of eight; and he has done more than most people expected would be possible about the remainder. This, in the realm of practical politics, is a first-rate record.

Premier Drew has given the chamber at Queen's Park a badly needed dose of ginger. Without undue rush he completed the session in less than seven weeks, because he exercised a firm generalship over his own forces, and insisted that matters be brought before the chamber only when they were well-prepared. His Opposition, which was vigorous but not well organized, found that he had a short way with brawlers. Not having a large majority, it was not possible for Premier Drew to use heavy artillery methods in dealing with his opponents; he showed, however, that he could manage very well with the limited means at his command.

This undoubted success, we feel, springs from qualities of statesmanship which Premier Drew has not had a chance to show before. In Opposition he was brilliant, but often erratic; in power, he shows a stability and a command which have surprised and delighted many observers. There seems to be no reason why he should not continue as he has begun, and if he does his power and his following will certainly increase out of all proportion to the actual number of seats which he commands.

Strengthening The Conservative Party

The political fabric of the nation has been strengthened by the appointment of the Hon. C. P. McTague and Mr. Henry Borden to permanent positions in the executive of the Progressive Conservative Party. The more men of character, strong opinions, wide interests and advanced education there are in the political life of Canada, the better for the country, whatever party they happen to be in. Mr. McTague has resigned as chairman of he National War Labour Board and as Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario to further the interests of a great political party; that is to say, he has given up the honour of a great position, and the ease of a secure position, to fight for what he considers the best interests of Canada. All honour to him! We need more men of his stamp in all parties.

As National Chairman, Mr. McTague will be in a position to influence party policy strongly. What direction will his influence take? It is impossible to say, but in spite of the exchange of compliments between the two gentlemen when Mr. McTague was appointed, it is quite possible that it will be a direction contrary to that which has been taken by Mr. Bracken during the past year. As leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, Mr. Bracken has thrown his whole weight on the forward, or Progressive, part of the name; it may be that Mr. McTague and an influential section of the party may seek to shift the emphasis to the latter, or Conservative aspect of policy.

That might not be a bad thing for the political situation as a whole. At present Canadian voters are faced with three parties, all outbidding one another in reform along socialist lines. Those who do not like socialism, and do not regard it as an inevitable trend of the times, have no party and no allegiance. And yet such people are numerous. Perhaps with Mr. McTague's help the Progressive Conservative Party will take a stand as a recognizable descendant of the old Conservative Party, and there can be little doubt that such a stand would bring it increased strength. Every country has room for a Conservative (not a reactionary) party. But no country has room for three contending parties which, under different banners, advocate reforms of strikingly similar nature.

False Memories And Soft Watches

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

IT WAS in 1942 that Salvador Dali published his memoirs, called "The Secret Life of Salvador Dali"; I obtained the book as soon as it was available, read it with avidity, and decided not to write anything about it for some time. The reason for making this decision was that, although the book was clearly of great interest to a limited public, it was the sort of book which might stir up a journalistic wrangle, inflame the Boston Watch and Ward zealots, and be forbidden entry to Canada. But nothing of the sort happened. The critics gave the book the cold shoulder, and a few red-blooded citizens wrote to "Time," calling Dali a louse and a degenerate; the red-blooded citizens had not read the book, but they had read a "Time" review of it, and they felt themselves fully qualified to pronounce on it. So far as I know the book was not reviewed in Canada at all, and it may be that this is the first notice of it to appear in a Canadian paper.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE indignation which Dali's book aroused was not the result of any pornographic writing in it; it has no spicy passages designed to assure it of a large sale. But the book is drenched with an atmosphere which many readers would certainly consider degenerate, because it deals with ideas and conceptions which are extremely unconventional. They are not the ordinary unconventional ideas with which we are familiar, and which we expect to find in artists; Dali is not an advocate of free love or reformed dress. No, his outlook on life is completely divorced from convention of any sort—divorced often from common sense and a realistic perception of the nature of common objects. Dali sees no reason why a teacup should not be made of fur, or a watch of limp substances which would enable it to stretch and droop. Furthermore, he has unusual ideas about truth. He remembers things which never happened; he knows that they never happened, but he remembers them all the same, and includes these "false memories" in his memoirs.

◆ ◆ ◆

AS a result of these oddities of mind, Dali's book is sometimes brilliant, stimulating and amusing, and at other times it is dull and nonsensical. It contains some passages which would undoubtedly give the smut-hounds their little thrill, but they are unlikely to pay seven dollars and fifty cents for it, or read its 400 pages, for that reason. The book will only appeal to those who are interested in the vagaries of the mind, and those who are interested in the art of Salvador Dali. These two classes of people are important, but they are not numerous.

◆ ◆ ◆

DALI'S oddities are significant because he is, in the technical sense if in no other, one of the greatest painters of our day. He is not a frowsy Bohemian, who boozes and talks his life away, painting when the spirit moves him. He is an unremitting hard worker. As a student he slaved for ten and twelve hours a day, learning to paint; when it was too dark to paint, he drew He despised his fellow students at the School of Fine Arts in Madrid; they were talkers, theorists, Bohemians — anything but workers. Dali was a worker, and the result is that today, whatever a critic may think of the content of his pictures, it has to be admitted that they are painted with a skill perhaps unequalled by any contemporary.

◆ ◆ ◆

DALI is a surrealist. There has never been a satifactory definition of surrealism, and Dali himself is not the man to ask for one; surrealists can talk for hours about their work without anyone being any the wiser. Perhaps the best way to find out what it is would be to study several surrealist pictures, and sculptures, and 'constructions,' and see what they say for themselves. They are not irrational; they are controlled by a logic of their own; but it is a logic which has no relation to the obvious aspects of daily life. Surrealism is an attempt to put forward in art the personal, subjective and seemingly irrational ideas and emotions of the artist. People who have no taste for mental adventure, or who fear everything which is not firmly hitched to the evidence of their senses will do well to keep away from surrealism, for it is not for them. But considered merely as a mans of extending our range of perceptions, surrealism is a good thing and a healthy movement in art.

DALI'S story, as he tells it himself, comes to a somewhat sticky end. After years of work in Europe, and after creating a hullabaloo in artistic circles by producing movies in which dead donkeys encased in grand pianos played a part, he came to the United States, and was received with characteristic generosity and friendliness by the American people. But Dali found that he was able to exploit his artistic principles commercially, and little by little he has drifted into the advertising business. Now no one quarrels with advertising or the commercial artists who prepare it, but it has always been clear that in advertising a tendentious spirit is necessary which has nothing to do with art of the highest quality. Dali's parade of artistic sensibility is only credible when he keeps it up for twenty-four hours a day; but if he relaxes it in order to push the merits of—let us say—a perfume, he begins to look like a charlatan. His connection with the Dream of Venus exhibition at the New York World's Fair was not a happy one, either, though he explains in the book that he really had very little to do with that show. Dali is still a comparatively young man, and if he hopes to have a place in the history of art—and he insists that he does—he will have to put aside the fleshpots and busy himself again at work which has no connection with the glossy-paper magazines.

British Sports Fashions

The dying artist in "The Doctor's Dilemma" asked his beautiful wife to wear her gayest dress at his funeral. In yesterday's AP dispatch from Penrith, England, it was not stated whether the late Earl of Lonsdale made a similar request, but apparently his wishes were taken for granted. Dozens of persons came to the funeral of England's famous sporting peer in loud-checked suits, scarlet waistcoats and feathered hats. One visitor said: "This is how the old Lord knew us and this is how he would like to see us."

It is one more example of how slowly things change in England. The picturesque sporting costume of 1944 sends a person's thoughts back more than a hundred years to the most famous figure in the whole history of English sport, and that is Mr. Nathaniel Winkle, when we first meet him at a session of the Pickwick Club, "communicating addition lustre to a new green shooting coat, plaid neckerchief and closely-fitted drabs."—New York Times.

PRE-INVASION BULL'S-EYE

—By Rube Goldberg

A Traveller In Burma

FORTY years ago India was a traveller's Mecca, but relatively few thought Burma worth more than a glance. They would sail from Calcutta to Rangoon, look at the great pagoda, rush up to Mandalay and see the sights of the city, interesting enough to be sure, and then call it a day and move on. We decided to do a little differently.

We crossed from Calcutt to Mandalay and found something which I have never forgotten and which really whetted our appetites for more. This was not Shwe-Dagon, astounding as that great temple is, but rather a row of big trees of Amherstia nobilis encircling the lake in the city park. Amherstia is certainly the A number 1 flowering tree of the whole world and this its homeland. The individual blossoms look like tiny hummingbirds each mounted on a slender wire and all tied into a long dropping cord, so that the dozen or more little birdlike flowers stick out quite evenly in all directions. The individual blooms are scarlet with big blobs of gold symmetrically placed and as sharply defined as if each one were hand-painted. The foliage of the tree, especially the new shoots, is delicately tinted, and with the leaves makes up a combination of colour and form which is superb. After driving out repeatedly to look at the Amherstias, we decided to postpone our trip to Java, where we had a real job to do, in order to see a little more of this fascinating country. For the more we heard of it the more we wanted to see....

Comfortable and reasonably rapid express steamers carried the mails from Mandalay to the head of navigation on the Irrawaddy, and on these most of the few visitors desiring to take the trip usually travelled. We, however, to our great good fortune, found that the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company was planning to send a bazaar boat up the river in a few days and that this would offer a comfortable and leisurely way to see this long stretch of water....

The boat on which we travelled was like a gigantic pumpkin seed with a great stern wheel. She had a fine upper deck giving forward, an airy dining room and quite comfortable cabins, with the beds well screened. She was built to draw very little water because the river is shallow and the bars shift constantly. Lashed alongside was an even larger flatboat or scow, roofed over but with open sides. On this great barge space was rented out to merchants who sold almost everything. This meant that we travelled slowly, did not run at night, and tied up at innumerable little villages where the people on shore would come piling down to bargain and chaffer with the merchants on board the flat. We had time for many pleasant walks in the woods, for opportunities to observe birds and animals, and even the chance to do a little collecting....

We stopped in many strange little towns. I remember particularly Mingoon, where there is the largest hanging bell in the world. (The great bell in Moscow is a little larger but has a chunk knocked out of it and it is set down on the pavement in the city.) The great bell at Mingoon is about two feet clear of the ground and as you creep under it and look up twelve feet or more into the beautiful polished inner surface, you can but wonder what would happen if it dropped while you were inside. — From "Naturalist at Large", by Thomas Barbour.

The Socialist Trend

(THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

SIR William Beveridge of social security fame is now engaged in an inquiry into the means of maintaining full employment in the United Kingdom after the war. A "group of Fabians" presented a brief to Sir William and, subsequently, issued it in printed form. This brief follows the socialist pattern of thought and might well have been the product of the C.C.F. brain trust.

The Manchester Guardian in commenting on this brief expresses views which are equally apt in a Canadian setting. The Guardian points out that so-called deficit financing has become almost orthodox on the Left. The government is supposed to prevent depressions by public spending and currency manipulation. To this end, the socialists argue that the government must have much more direct control, if not outright ownership, of the banks. On this point, the Guardian remarks that the attitude of the Left is dictated more by the desire for socialism, as such, than by considerations of employment.

The emphasis on socialism, on the national rather than the international aspects of policy, becomes much clearer when the problem of employment is related to foreign trade. Foreign lending, for example, is an important factor in creating export markets and in placing foreign countries in a position where they can pay in goods. But socialists do not like the notion of foreign lending and they are highly suspicious of foreign trade. The "Group of Fabians," like our own C.C.F., pays lip service to foreign lending and foreign trade, but insists that the United Kingdom "must never be hypnotized by our apparent dependence on imports and exports."

The reason for this antipathy is that the socialists' aim is to socialize the greater part of industry and production and to plan, or regiment, all of it. And they dislike any element which cannot be controlled and which might upset the plan. Therefore they instinctively cling to the narrow national concept in which they can control and plan and regiment to their hearts content. The "Group of Fabians" put it this way: "The greater the relative importance of foreign trade to the world, and to this country (the United Kingdom), the more likely are trade fluctuations to spread and affect us."

While C.C.F. spokesmen and the party literature pay lip service to export and import trade, and even nod now and then to foreign trade except as straight government barter to be carried on by government boards and as a minor phase of the great national self-sufficiency plan. Their ideal for this country is self-sufficiency. Instead of exports they write surpluses and in the place of imports they would prefer to write deficiencies. Lending abroad is sheer give away and foreign investment in Canada is exploitation in a sinister sense. The fewer of both, they argue, the better.

In other words, Canada while in this world must not be of it. They forget and would like others to forget that investment of foreign capital made us what we are and that we grew and prospered mightily as an exporting nation. We are and, indeed, were even in the depth of the great depression, a country with a standard of living second in the world only to the United States.

The war again has proved what Canada—and the west in particular—can do, given export markets. The Canadian government in collaboration with the governments of the United Nations is busily engaged in planning a post-war world in which trade can flow more freely than ever before. It is inconceivable that the farmers of the west or the people of this country generally, will turn from that bright prospect and choose the way of retreat and failure.

$64 Question

Writing in the Toronto Telegram, Thomas Richard Henry thinks the following a pretty fair $64 question: "Why is it that when you pull the plug in a wash basin, the water always swirls out clockwise?" Mr. Henry has often watched it, wondering why it wouldn't swirl the opposite way just once. We forget the precise physical explanation, but we seem to remember hearing that it does swirl counter-clockwise in the lands south of the equator.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Eating Is An Art

One should not live to eat, but neither should one eat merely to live. Eating can and should be an art, a refinement, a pleasure to be relished. Shakespeare had the right of it when he wrote:

"Now good digestion wait on appetite
And health on both!"

Even that spare ascetic, Bernard Shaw, forgot his lentils, lettuce and lime-juice long enough to say: "There is no love sincerer than the love of food."

One might prefer the rotundity of Falstaff to the lean and hungry look of Cassius any day, but artistry in eating leads to a happy mean between these deplorable extremes.—Brantford Expositor.

A Bible Message

And Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married: for he had married an Ethiopian woman. And they said, Hath the Lord indeed spoken only by Moses? hath he not spoken also by us? And the Lord heard it....

And the Lord spake suddenly unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and unto Miriam, Come out ye three unto the tabernacle of the congregation. And the three came out....And he said, Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, I the Lord will make myself known unto him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream.

My servant Moses is not so, who is faithful in all mine house. With him will I speak mouth to mouth, even apparently, and not in dark speeches, and the similitude of the Lord shall he behold: wherefore then were ye not afraid to speak against my servant Moses?....

And the cloud departed from off the tabernacle; and, behold, Miriam became leprous, And Aaron said unto Moses, Alas, my Lord, I beseech thee, lay not the sin upon us, wherein we have done foolishly, and wherein we have sinned....

And Moses cried unto the Lord, saying, Heal her now, O God, I beseech thee.... And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days: and the people journeyed not till Miriam was brought in again. (Num. 12: 1, 2, 4, 6-8, 10, 11, 13, 15.)

Letter To The Editor

DON'T WASTE FOOD!

Sir,—I observe several very interesting items in the Examiner's news and advertising columns. That warning of Dawes Black Horse Brewery carries a patriotic message: "Don't Waste Food! Farmers are working overtime to produce it"; which should appeal to your urban readers as well as those of us "down on the farm".

Whenever I go to town, it gives me no pleasure to see the quantities of perfectly good, highly-processed food which remain uneaten on urban restaurant dishes—food which millions of famished folks in various parts of the world would actually fight for! Sometimes I get the idea that we here in North America might be described as "the spoiled children" of the ages—knowing little of hunger and less of famine?

I was struck by that clean-cut assertion by a speaker before the Lions' Club (J. E. Weir, manager of Silverwood's Dairy) recently, dealing with the tremendous job ahead for North American farmers who, as the speaker indicated, have already "done a fine job" in the present struggle: "The cow population in Europe has been cut in half, at least, by butchering and war losses—and it will be four years after the close of hostilities before an increase in the number of cattle can be brought about, to aid production on that continent." That is something to reflect upon, Mr. Editor? I realize that our livestock herds have grown appreciably in the past few years; but, as Mr. Weir makes plain, the post-war burden and responsibility will be unprecedented. So far as I know, the bottleneck in this livestock tonnage is our processing machinery—said "plant" being substantially the same as in pre-war years—which, presumably, is working around the clock? I would like to see that "plant" increased (to save human lives) with something of the same dynamic enthusiasm with which this virile young country changed-over and geared for war. Why not?

I was heartened by that news-story from Montreal, April 12—(CP)—"Co-operation rather than competition must govern the relationships between the major nations of the world, if international affairs are to improve after the war, Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, United Kingdom high commissioner for Canada, said here last night." The same applies, it seems to me, to the minor nations, and to individuals?

"THE FOUR FREEDOMS."

"All A Man Can Ask"

Stephen Leacock carried with him the affection of human beings who were made to laugh when laughter was like bread to the hungry senses. Leaving a world so obviously in need of a sense of humour, it is all a man can ask that his fellows should be unable to remember him without a smile, that laughter should be the ultimate expression of their love.—Christian Science Monitor.

Admiral Urges Retention Of Huge U.S. Fleet

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP)—Admiral Ernest J. King, telling how the United States Navy was caught short by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, urges that the fleet never again be permitted to twindle to its comparative weakness of pre-war days.

His plea appears in his first official report on the progress of the war, which recounts the measures by which the Navy was built up to its present stature while defending itself and the country against odds. The report was made public last night.

Now, he says, the fleet is ready to "travel far and fast to victory."

"The encirclement of Germany is in sight," the commander-in-chief of the Navy said, and the Pacific theatre "a situation which must be dark and threatening to Japan as it is full of promise to us."

But, his report showed, that stage was reached only after dark months of battling against overwhelming odds while industry built the Navy up to striking strength.

Low Ebb in 1927

He said the low ebb of American naval strength was reached in 1927.

"Our failure to build progressively was a mistake which it is hoped will never be repeated," he declared in a formal report to Navy Secretary Frank Knox.

The war in Europe, coupled with indications that Japan would enter the war at a propitious moment, he said, placed the United States "in an unfavorable strategic position in that our naval forces were not adequate to meet the demands of both oceans should we be forced into the war.

"The sudden treacherous attack by Japan which resulted in heavy losses to us made our unfavorable strategic position at the outbreak of the war even worse than we had anticipated."

Now, however, he said, the picture is reversed—the United States Navy is large enough to roam the seas unchallenged and pick the spots and times it wishes to strike.

Actor-Composer Sent To Jail

LONDON, April 26 (CP-Reuters)—Ivor Novello, British actor and producer who composed "Keep the Home Fires Burning," a First Great War hit, was sentenced to eight weeks imprisonment and fined £25 when convicted today of conspiring to commit offences against the motor vehicles order—obtaining gasoline for his motor car.

Dora Constable, charged with being his accomplice, was fined £50 and £25 costs.

Evidence was that Novello conspired with Miss Constable to obtain the gasoline. Novello claimed he required the use of the car for week-end visits and that governmental authorities looked upon his occupation as essential to the war effort.

Legion Wants Men Drafted To War Theatres

TORONTO, April 26 — (CP) — Premier Drew of Ontario Monday told the 13th biennial convention of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion that every man in uniform should be made available for active service everywhere.

He was commenting on a speech made by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, General Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the Pacific Command Saturday to members of the Pacific Coast Rangers in which Gen. Pearkes said: "No man should wear that khaki uniform unless he is willing to wear it anywhere."

The Premier said every veteran should take "appropriate action" and urged the Legionaires to return to thir homes and raise their voices "so that your demands might be heard all over Canada."

He added: "You know as others do not, what reinforcements mean at the hour when victory or defeat may hang in the balance. Nearly everyone here has seen occasions when adequate reinforcements meant the difference between victory and defeat.

"Gen. Pearkes also knows. It is our duty to tell the people of Canada about it. When Gen. Pearkes says reinforcements are necessary, there should not be any more delay in making every man in uniform available."

Premier Drew said the "greatest fighting team" in history is ready for the invasion of Europe but he added that peace "can only be ours if the people of the British Empire and the United States stand together in peace as in war." The first step toward this is a closer partnership of the British Empire under the British flag.

To Remain British

"I cannot forget that there are people in Canada who believe our close association with Britain should not continue after this war. That is their right, in a democracy. But it is also our right to let them know Canada will remain British and when the war is over we want to be part of a stronger British Empire than the world has ever known."

In an address at a meeting yesterday, Alex Walker, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, said the government should "put into power the authority it already has and tell these men (home defence army personnel) they are going wherever required." The convention earlier had passed a resolution asking the Federal Government for "its immediate implementation in the matter of calling men for service anywhere."

Mr. Walker urged men and women dicharged from the Canadian armed services to join the Legion. The Legion wants these young veterans and would welcome them into its organization so that they may share its responsibilities and increase its influence.

He said the Legion believed the clothing allowance for men discharged from the services should be $125 for 12 months service instead of $65 as at present and a minimum of $50 for six months' service.

Curtin Thanks U.S. For Help

WASHINGTON, April 26—(AP)—Australia is in the war to the very limit, Prime Minister Curtin of Australia told a press conference Monday.

"I come here on my way to London with but one message and one request for our Allies," he said. "That request is to carry on."

Curtin said the purpose of his visit is to confer with the President, adding that he hoped to exchange views both on the state of the war and "on the legacies which in the nature of things this war will leave."

"My preeminent duty as the head of the Australian government is to express to the government and people of the United States the profound gratitude of the Australian people for the assistance that has been rendered to them," he told newsmen.

Asked about the question of post-war bases in the Pacific, Curtin replied.

"We don't think because our forces have fought outside Australia that bases which they used in such external operations should come under our jurisdiction after the war."

Mission Band Gives Banquet For Mothers

LAKEFIELD, April 26—(ENS)—Members of the Mission Band of Lakefield United Church entertained their mothers at a banquet Friday evening in the church basement. Three large tables were set and dinner was prepared by members of the Women's Missionary and Service club.

Following the dinner a short program was given. Frances Erskine played a piano solo. Carolyn Ann Erskine proposed honors to the mothers and Mrs. Jack Brown, president of the Service club responded.

Mrs. R. M. Hanscom of Peterborough, secretary of the Presbyterial Mission Band, gave an address outlining the work of Mission Band and presented the band with a daisy, the Mission Band emblem—the green representing growth, the white purity and the yellow light.

Mrs. F. Harris, also of Peterborough told the story of Frances Nickawa, an Indian maiden and held her small listeners enthralled. Margaret Richardson, as youngest child present, was given a gift by Mrs. Hanscom.

Mrs. George Kelly, who presided for the program asked the mothers to cooperate with the Mission Band leaders by seeing that the children attended Mission Band regularly.

Far Eastern Farming Discussed At W.M.S.

SPRINGVILLE, April 26—(ENS)—An Easter meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Oscar Dunford. The president, Mrs. B. Preston, occupied the chair, and Joy Preston played quiet music in opening the worship period. This was followed by a solo by Mrs. Edison Kimbal, "Jesus Stand Among Us." The Scripture reading was taken from Luke 23 and Acts 2 and the worship service as given in the Missionary Monthly was foluowed.

It was decided to hold a quilting and pot luck dinner in the basement of the church. At that gathering, a collection will be taken to be sent to the Victor Home in Toronto. Mrs. Neals offered her home for the May meeting, and Mrs. G. Whitfield's group will be in charge of the program.

Mrs. Shaw had charge of the program and the chapter of the study book dealing with "The Skill and Joy of Work" was taken. This depicted the farming and industrial conditions in Asia and Africa. Those taking part in this section of the program included Mrs. Edison Kimbal, Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Walter Bowles, Mrs. F. Clark and Mrs. Preston.

It was pointed out that present farming conditions in these countries create a spirit of defeatism and fatalism in the natives. This has to be overcome by the missionaries before the people are ready to accept Christianity. In summarizing the chapter a quiz was conducted, the different questions being taken by Joy Preston, Edna Dunford, Mrs. Kimbal, Mrs. Everson and Mrs. J. Whitfield. An article in connection with citizenship dealing with post-war planning was read by Mrs. Whitfield. Mrs. Everson led in prayer.

Despite low alcohol content, shortage of supply and some cases of watering it produced £15,500,000 (about $69,750,000) above treasury revenue estimates, Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, informed the House of Commons in his budget speech.

Sabang Raid Just Starter

COLOMBO, Ceylon, April 26—(AP). — Hinting at greater developments to come, Admiral Sir James Somerville dismissed Wednesday's raid on Sabang off the northern tip of Sumatra as "just an ordinary show—nothing out of the ordinary."

"We've got a powerful fleet in the Indian Ocean—which the Japs have seen—and their golden opportunity to take India during the past two years no longer exists," he told a press conference on Friday.

Admiral Somerville said the Sabang raid, carried out by British and American planes from a powerful Allied naval task force, had caught the enemy by surprise.

"The destruction of oil, gas, food and cargo ships hurt the Japanese," he added "Particularly the loss of oil tanks, which makes it necessary that the enemy divert many tankers which they can ill afford because American submarines are taking such a heavy toll in the Pacific."

Plaque Is Presented At Ceremony Marking Opening Of Victory Loan

Although the weatherman proved uncooperative, the people of Peterborough demonstrated their sportsmanship and love of a parade, as they braved the pelting rain Tuesday night to attend the military parade and formal opening ceremony of the 6th Victory Loan.

Surrounded by a sea of bobbing umbrellas, Mayor James Hamilton formally presented a plaque to Gordon Matthews on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough as a pledge that they will subscribe the $4,500,000 they have as their objective. An engine borrowed from the Fire Department served in place of a platform, for the speakers.

While men from the military units stationed in Peterborough were drawn up on both sides of George street and across the intersection at Charlotte, His Worship the Mayor urged citizens to dedicate themselves anew to the cause of freedom. He emphasized the need of backing the Loan so that those who are fighting and dying in the heart and outposts of the Empire, will know that the people back home will spare no effort to supply them with the tools of War.

The insignia on the plaque which Mr. Matthews accepted a schairman of the Victory Loan committee reads "At this hour it is the solemn duty of every community to support the men and women who are fighting for us on the battlefronts around the world." The plaque is walnut, with a large red VI, topped by blue wings in the centre.

Guest Speaker

A surprise guest at the ceremony was Brigadier A. V. Tremaine, formerly O. C. at Petawawa Camp. He was described as one of the outstanding artillerymen in Canada who are serving, have shown what Canadians can do and will show what more they can do in a little while. He recalled that the money subscribed by the services was growing rapidly and said he had not the faintest doubt but what this Loan will be oversubscribed.

"All we ask is that you do your bit in any way," he told the crowd in closing.

Brig. Tremaine did not make a special trip to Peterborough for the Loan ceremony. He will be here until Thursday on a regular visit from M. D. H. Q. and his time coincided with the Loan opening.

Led by Lt. Col. Walter Bapty, O. C. of the R. C. A. M. C. (B) T. C. men of the Training Centre paraded behind the R.C.A.M.C. Band under the direction of Albert Croasdale, W.O. 1 to Charlotte street. The Band gave a short concert, until units of the Legion, Prince of Wales Rangers Lakefield Naval Cadets, Sea Cadets, Air Cadets and their respective bands, marched from the Armouries.

Alderman Adam Sands acted as chairman for the presentation and introduced Mayor Hamilton and Brig. Tremaine.

ON VICTORY BONDS

"Last night, I took a look at that Victory Bond I bought last year, and read it again. And, as I read, that Bond talked to me.

"'Listen, Joe,' it said, 'this is Canada talking. Not the Canada that you have read about in your geography—of parallels, of latitudes and longitudes, of Temperate Zone and Arctic Circle—not of rivers and lakes and mountains, not of exports and imports, but, as a vital, living Canada, young, vibrant, fearless, whose swift red blood pulses through every province and mingles with that of every tongue, whose broad acres are the bosom from which you were suckled, a Canada of which you are a greater part even than my mountains that hold back the sea or my rivers that move towards the oceans. In you I live and move and have my being. With you I go forward to victory. Without you I wither, become impotent, and die.'

"That's why, folks, I went out today and bought more Victory Bonds. For you and I don't just LIVE in Canada—we ARE Canada."

Help Bring this Daddy Home!

LETTER TO NANCY

This was V-mailed from overseas to my two-year-old daughter by her father, Corp. John M. Irwin.
There must be lots of Nancys and Mommys now.
—KATHRYN L. IRWIN.

Hello, Nancy Kay Irwin, my own little girl!
Daddy misses you terribly! All he's got is your curl,
And he can't squeeze a curl like a girl should be squoze,
And none of his pictures show the shape of your nose.
How is my baby? Mommy says you're okay;
Getting bigger and smarter, more pretty each day.
I know you're as good as a girlie could be,
And I love you most awfully, and I hope you love me.
Dad's a long way from home, in a place that's so queer,
Where little brown men steer elephants by ear!
In town, you'd see cows just roaming the street;
Dozens of beggars and children you'd meet.
Their candy is funny—so bright and so fancy,
But not good to eat. At least, not for Nancy!
And clothes are mostly just cloth wrapped around.
I think that is why these folks are all brown.
You might see a camel pulling a cart.
All the autos are old, just falling apart.
Sometimes, monkeys run 'round just as bold as you please,
And the prettiest birds peek down from the trees.
Out in the country the houses are mud,
With grass for roofs. Not so good in a flood!
And in the mud houses the farmer's family, of course,
And his cows and his chickens and maybe a horse!
And it's not very clean here, just nothing like home.
And that's a good ending for this silly old poem.
I love you, my sweetheart, and soon I'll be back
To see if my baby still loves her dad, —Jack.

Balloon Ball Bewilders Higgins

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sport Writer

CHICAGO, April 26 (AP)—After a dozen years in the American League, the last five as third baseman for the Detroit Tigers, Pinky Higgins thought he had seen everything.

But there is one guy who amazes him—and a National Leaguer at that.

"I could stand with my mouth open and watch the Pirates' Rip Sewell throw his balloon ball," he says, "in fact, I did just that during an exhibition game this spring."

Pinky calls Sewell's high-arching throw, which helped him deposit 21 victories last year, a "publicity pitch." But don't get him wrong, there's nothing derogatory in the remark.

"I got acquainted with Rip this spring," relates Pinky. "He didn't use that floater on me when I was at bat, but I saw him pull it on another guy. That was the first time I'd seen it, but certainly not the first time I'd heard of it. His control amazed me—he'll probably win another 21 games this year and maybe more, for he's got a lot of stuff to go with it."

Sewell's got it down so it's a strike if you stand there and let it flutter by.

"Just watching it start out and float by like a feather gets a batter off balance with anticipation to spank it. As the result he flubs it.

"I think it's the most amazing accomplishment of sheer control in modern baseball."

McCready Loses To Bob Wagner

The turbulent Bob Wagner of Portland, Oregon, completely ruined the evening for Peterborough wrestling fans Tuesday night when he out-battled the popular Earl McCready in the main bout of the Tunney rodeo at the Brock Street Arena, and took the decision two falls to one. Practically everyone in the crowd had gone there to see the Moose give the bad man from the coast a wrestling lesson and they were a badly disappointed gallery when Wagner strutted out of the ring a winner.

In fact the fans only had one good chance to cheer and that was when the popular choice came back after losing the first fall to take the second in quick order with a perfect demonstration of his old reliable rocking chair cradle hold. It looked like a McCready victory at that stage but the tough grappler from the coast rallied to out-fight the Moose in the third round and finally grab a victory after taking McCready for a ride that had the fans biting their nails.

It was a tough argument between two game and powerful wrestlers, and while the disappointment over McCready's failure to come down in front was understandable, the fans had to admit that Wagner, always a doughty adversary, was even more effective in his ruthless tactics than ever.

Wagner Takes First

The first round took 21 minutes of hard going and it was the Strangler who finally landed on top. Wagner got in bad right off the reel by refusing to break cleanly and by staging a series of sneak attacks on the Moose after the latter had stepped back in obedience to orders from Referee Ernie Powers. Wagner clamped a series of headlocks on McCready that had the big Aurora grappler in a bad way but Earl finally got out of that jam by adroitly slapping a head scissors on the Strangler. He kept it on for some minutes and had Wagner in distress. However he finally worked loose and from then on until he finally took the fall had a slight edge on McCready. The end came when Wagner pinned the Moose with a reverse headlock that gave the big Canadian no chance of escape.

Old Rocking Chair

McCready, apparently angered at the unexpected turn of events, lost no time in squaring the match. When the second round opened he sailed into Wagner with a barrage of punches, softened him up with a couple of body slams and then whipped the rocking chair cradle grip on the Strangler, who was rolled around the ring until he was dizzy and then nailed for the fall. It only took two minutes.

The third round was something else again. Wagner rallied quickly

With five clubs already lined up for the City Softball League the prospects seem to be excellent for a good season, with plenty of competition. Two of the clubs are new to the circuit, the DeLaval team and the U.E. outfit and nothing has been given out as to their prospective lineups. They probably have been doing a lot of spadework and will be ready with strong clubs when the season opens. Switchgear, managed by "Murph" Chambers will be back again and will have a stronger outfit than the team which represented them a year ago. The Military Training Centre still has a number of last year's players available but the strength of the Soldiers' entry will depend largely upon the material that comes into Peterborough in the next draft or two. Plazas who won the league two years ago under that name and repeated last season as the 4th Battery face the opener with most of their championship lineup intact. In addition to Joe Stewart the Plazas have also lost the useful Bob Crowe to the Navy. Crowe came on fast as a pitcher at the end of last season and throughout the campaign was a handy utility man. The present outlook finds the Plazas with Dave Wilson as pitcher, Eddie Starr behind the bat, Jim Ellis, Bill Jones, Bun Kingdon, Art Heal, Honey Tompkins, Ned Vitarelli and possibly George Hawks as infielders and Les Burton, Joe Blewett and Phil Pryde for the outfield.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Softball League will be held tonight in the Duffus' Board Room and an enthusiastic gathering is expected to be on hand for the election of officers and other business. Impetus has been given to girls' softball here by the election of Gladys Mortimer as present of the Provincial Women's Softball Union and of Eunice Armstrong as secretary, making this city the headquarters for the province. That development should be followed by one of the most successful seasons in the history of the loop and it would be a fitting climax if the winner of the Peterborough league should go on and win the provincial championship. Westclox have come close the last two seasons and this might be the year for an Ontario title. Just what teams will line up this season is yet an unknown quantity but all clubs intending to enter should have representatives at tonight's meeting to help the league get an encouraging start. There should be a real attendance for this important gathering.

A Soccer Comeback

After several years of inactivity, caused by the depletion of playing strength by war demands, soccer players in Peterborough, formerly connected with local teams, feel that there are enough players back from the armed forces, after being discharged, to form the nucleus for the revival of the game here this summer. It is pointed out that among the players available are Joe Dayes, Mac Mackenzie, Curly Todd, Alex and Ken Mitchell, Benny Wilson, Asa, Newt and George Downer, W. Crisbiss, Ben McMaster, Tom McPhate, William McCracken, Eric Jones and others who have already signified that they are willing to play this season and that they would like to see a team formed as a city eleven to bring outside teams in for games here. All those interested in reviving soccer are asked to turn out for the first practice on Saturday at 2.30 o'clock when plans will be discussed for what is hoped will be a successful season.

St. Louis Browns are the only unbeaten club in the majors after yesterday's doings when the winning streak of both the St. Louis Cards and the New York Giants came to an end. The National League champs were beaten when Mort Cooper, their ace pitcher making his second start of the season was given a hot reception by the Cincinnati Reds who scored five runs in the opening frame and drove the big right-hander to cover. Elmer Riddle turned in a neat card for the Reds who won 10 to 3. It took 12 innings for the Phillies to write finis to the Giants' string of consecutive wins. They came from behind to tie the score in the 6th and pushed a run over in the 12th to win 4 to 3. Charlie Schanz, San Diego rookie was the winning pitcher. Brooklyn hadn't a great deal of trouble beating Boston 11 to 3 with Bob Chipman making his first start tossing steady ball for the Bums. In the American loop big Ernie Bonham and the Yanks took a pasting from the Philadelphia Athletics who scored seven runs in the last two innings to chase the Yanks' star to the showers and take the decision 8 to 4.

Only Service Hockey

Bill Walshe of the Kingston Whig-Standard sees nothing but service hockey in the senior field next winter and he could be right. This is what he wrote on the eve of the last Allan Cup game: "The daffiest hockey season in history should end tonight when Quebec Aces play Port Arthur Shipbuilders in Quebec in the third game of the Allan Cup finals. The Aces should have no trouble taking the title and trophy. The juniors completed their season Saturday when Oshawa won the fourth straight over Trail Smoke Eaters. With the services banning members from Canadian championship play and the junior finalists both packed for the final games, the C.A.H.A. crowns are rather empty honors this year. The Memorial Cup this year was not a club honor but a test between stars from east and west and to make the series more absurd the west had to patch with eastern boys to make a respectable showing in the last game. There will not likely be any senior hockey next season, except in the services, and from hints it is learned the army plans its own hockey program next winter on a system similar to the boxing which will bring zone and district winners together in a final series.

According to an American press story Ralph "High-Pockets" McCabe was recalled from the Albany Senators by the Toronto Maple Leafs yesterday and reported to Manager Burleigh Grimes at Newark, says Ken Colling in his Belleville sport column. Previously the Leafs had sent McCabe to Albany to help bolster the Senators' hurling staff and in part payment for a player obtained from Albany. However, other International League clubs wanted McCabe if he was cut loose by Toronto. According to the AP story Toronto must either keep him or accept the International waiver price if any other league club desires McCabe's services. This marks the third time the Leafs have farmed McCabe out, but according to the National Commission ruling the local moundsman must now be either retained or offered for sale by the Leafs. Last year big Ralph won two and lost one for Toronto, starting in 12 games. He appeared in ten games with Albany.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The Public School softball picture is even brighter than was announced the other day....Since then the Queen Mary School has decided to particpiate in the secondary championship series and will operate its own school league as the other schools are doing....Queen Mary will be placed in the third zone, completing that division....Mel Ott was back in the Giants' lineup yesterday, after passing his military medical examination....Pitcher Bob Muncrief who has recently passed his pre-induction medical tests will play with the St. Louis Browns until he is called out for service. Most of the Brownies, incidentally, are 4F category men and a number of them have already been discharged from the armed services....Rudy York is another well-known ball star who seems headed for the army. The Detroit powerhouse has his examination tomorrow....The C.A.H.A. has been able to subscribe for $50,000 worth of Victory Bonds....A fine gesture, but a lot of folk will wonder why the hockey governing body should be accumulating 50 grand instead of using some of it for the assistance of hockey among the kids.

Keene Y.P.S. Meets

KEENE, April 26.—(ENS).—The Young People's Society met last Sunday evening with Tom Gall presiding. It was decided to hold the banquet on May 26. Lois Humphries was in charge of program and gave the theme "Fellowship." A reading was given by Lenore Mather and a very interesting address by Lois Wright, the topic being "The Religious Life of Russia." A recent census of Russia (1937) shows there are on hundred million persons who profess the Christian religion and the larger percentage are young people.

WHY, MR. GODOY!—According to a dispatch from Lima, Peru, Arturo Godoy, above, Chilean holder of the South American heavyweight championship, and Alberto Lovell of Argentina, former titleholder, have both been placed under arrest following a no-decision verdict given in their title bout at Lima. The Lima press described the bout as "the biggest swindle in history of Peruvian sport."

Second Place Gets More Than First

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, April 26 (CP) — The horse that ran second received a money prize five times greater than the winner.

It sounds complicated and don't ask for a detailed explanation, but it came about in the Kiplingcotes Derby, Yorkshire's oldest horse race, which was staged over four miles of deeply-furrowed treacherous Roman road.

The winner was F. W. Barnaby, who was making his first attempt. He led throughout and collected $26. The runner-up was last year's winner, Ivan Anson, who received $126.

The reason was that it was agreed before the race that the winner would take the interest on an invested sum, whereas the second-place horse would receive the entry fees.

A Hull family which provided the clerk of the course for 100 years was represented by R. H. Huston, a sergeant air-gunner in the Royal Air Force.

The King has decided to lend the Ascot course to the Jockey Club again this season because of the great success of last year's experiment when, for the first time, there was no Royal enclosure. All parts of the course, with the exception of the Royal box, will be available to racegoers.

Formerly the Royal enclosure was open only to members and in peacetime years had a garden-party atmosphere and pagentry that made Ascot one of the world's most fashionable meeting places.

Sun Chariot, who won the Oaks, St. Leger and 1,000 Guineas for the King two years ago, has given birth to her first foal, a colt by the 1939 Derby winner, Blue Peter. She will next be mated with Big Game, who completed four classic successes for His Majesty in 1942 by winning the 2,000 Guineas.

Do you rate a ration of this ESSENTIAL TRANSPORTATION?

CCM

THERE are bicycles to be had and larger quantities of materials are being made available to provide bicycles for essential users. But, in spite of these improved conditions, voluntary bicycle rationing by the bicycle manufacturers and dealers in co-operation with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is still necessary to ensure that all available bicycles are supplied to essential riders.

This is vital to our war effort as the bicycle can relieve the severe wartime strain on other modes of travel as well as provide essential transportation in communities where there are no public conveyances.

So, if you need a bicycle, and can qualify under one of the groups A, B, C or D listed herewith, go to your favourite C.C.M. dealer and fill out the regulation Bicycle Purchase Application Form.

Then, if the C.C.M. dealer considers that you "Rate a bicycle for essential transportation", your dealer will supply you with one as soon as it is available on your application.

And, if you should have, or know of, any idle bicycles, suggest to their owners that they sell them to a C.C.M. dealer and get them rolling.

A A user in the course of whose daily duties the bicycle is needed to enable him to earn his livelihood (such as delivery messenger, messenger, watchman services, police patrol, collector, employee of public utilities).

B A war worker, who requires a bicycle for transportation purposes to and from place of employment, minimum 15 miles weekly.

C A civilian worker, who requires a bicycle for transportation to and from place of employment, minimum 15 miles weekly.

D A school teacher or student, who requires this form of transportation to and from school or college, minimum 15 miles weekly.

A clergyman, professional man or farmer who requires the use of a bicycle as a means of transportation for the carrying out of his work.

TORONTO, April 26 — (CP). — Most people have one fault or another to find with the horse-racing game, mainly that the steeds they bet on don't always come in near the head of the parade. But a citizen in South Africa now comes up with a studied complaint about the number-color system of identifying horses in a race.

Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick reproduces the suggestion to rectify this complaint, made by Captain M. R. D'Arcy, stipendiary steward of the Jockey Club of South Africa. Capt. D'Arcy says the public (that's a mass term for the feverishly-hopeful bettors at the track) can't follow the horse of their choice through the running of a race because of the confusing number of racing colors used by different stables.

He suggests adoption of plain racing colors which would be uniform throughout the world for each individual number on the race card. Thus, number one might wear red silks, number two blue, and so on. All the trackgoer would have to do then would be to pick out his color and follow it around the track with bated breath to the bitter end.

Sport's great loss:

Sport writers throughout Canada are paying tribute to the memory of W. A. "Bill" Fry, one of Canada's outstanding sport personalities. Bill Fry was editor of the Dunnville Chronicle, and his column in that weekly paper was widely read. "Old Bill," as he was popularly known, was one of the few bularks of true amateurism in the Dominion.

He opposed the advance of professionalism in formerly amateur sport fields, and devoted much of his time and energy to the work of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. He was past president of both those bodies, and was also prominent in Olympic Games affairs.

Sport has lost one of its staunchest adherents in his death.

Parade:

Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Lea suggests a Dominion play-off in one of the minor hockey groups, preferably midget, as a means of encouraging the younger hockey players......Hairy Lou Adelman, once starry centre with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and newspaper sport columnist, played a new role at the Winnipeg Press Clubs 11th annual smoker. As a female impersonator, he reached stage stardom in the role of "Mrs. Murgatroyd," a mid-Victorian landlady who had difficulties with the Prices Board and Rental Controller on moving day.

Rookie Hurls Win For Jersey

By The Associated Press

Red Schoendienst, Rochester's shortstop star who is tabbed for future duty with the parent St. Louis Cardinals, is starting off as though he means to repeat as batting champions of the International Baseball League.

The young infielder came up with three base socks in four times at bat last night although Rochester bowed to Baltimore, 6-5. The three singles boosted his 1944 average to an even .500 for the first three games.

In the only daylight game, one of Carl Hubbell's farm prospects, 19 year old Andy Hansen, hurled Jersey City to its first victory of the season at the expense of Montreal 3-2.

Doubles by Ed Badke and George Washburn and a base on balls cost Hansen a shutout in the ninth.

Bruno Betzel's starter, Johnny Travers, blanked the Giants for six frames but yielded three runs in the seventh on three hits.

The Toronto-Newark and Buffalo-Syracuse games were postponed on account of wet grounds and rain.

St. Louis Browns Seeking League Record

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer.

If those amazing St. Louis Browns trim Cleveland Indians today they will tie the modern league record for winning streaks at the opening of a season.

Luke Sewell's Browns have captured six games in a row, only one short of the total compiled by the Yankees in reeling off seven straight starting with opening day in 1933.

The big league mark of 12 is still safe in the hands of the 1884 New York Giants, but the modern big league mark of nine held jointly by the 1918 Giants and the 1940 Brooklyn Dodgers is within reach.

Both current National League streaks went by the boards yesterday when the Giants were knocked off 4-3 by the Phillies in 12 innings and St. Louis Cardinals were slaughtered by Cincinnati 10-3. Only the Brownies, who had an open date in the schedule, remain to threaten the record books.

Cooper Chased.

Mort Cooper had trouble in his second straight start and was knocked off the hill before he could get anybody out in the first inning. While Mort was getting his bumps, Elmer Riddle threw a neat eight-hitter for Cincinnati and didn't yield a Card hit until the sixth.

Buster Adams and Charley Schanz, a rookie hurler from San Diego, were the culprits in the Phillies' exciting 12-inning 4-3 victory over the Giants, proving to Mel Ott that all good things must end. Adams hit a two-run homer to tie in the sixth and bashed a double, scoring Schanz with the decisive tally.

Brooklyn and Boston battled away at a 3-3 clip for eight innings until the Dodgers cut loose with eight runs in the last to make it a lopsided 11-3 final. Lefty Bob Chipman went all the way to capture his second straight.

Connie Mack's Athletics refused to be awed by Johnny Lindell's grand slam homer, the first in the major leagues this season, and overcame that four-run deficit to knock Ernie Bonham out of the box and win an 8-4 series opener on late rallies.

Marathon honors for the infant season go to oBston Red Sox who were persistent enough to down Washington 5-4 in 14 innings. Bobby Doerr kept pecking away for three doubles, his last being the blow that started the winning spurt.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 26—(AP). — A lot of quotes about a little subject—but one of our pets—scholastic and college baseball in the United States:

From Southern Coach and Athlete: "More emphasis on baseball in High Schools would not only help solve the player shortage, but would make good cash customers out of thousands of non-participants, who now know and care nothing for the game."

From Connecticut: "Nearly every school plays it. An effort several years ago to put on a state tournament attracted a good entry, but didn't arouse too much interest. Basketball packed 'em in nightly, whereas baseball didn't draw flies, mainly because of the hours. No effort has been made to put on a baseball tournament since."

From North Dakota: "Its like a 21-year-old physically fit youth in 1-A — practically non-existent. Harry Bridgeford, Fargo athletic director, says in his 14-year tenure here, the North Dakota High School League never has sanctioned baseball as a major sport and he assumes that it conflicts with track."

The pros and cons of college ball are similar, and from this opinion sampling, we've concluded that the big needs of both school and college ball are (1) better coaching and equipment, (2) less snatching of good players by organized baseball, (3) more enthusiastic support from older folks who love the game (it might be catching), (4) further incentive in the form of championship competition, and (5) some sort of a summer program.

Brig. H. Graham Awarded Bar To D.S.O.

OTTAWA, April 26. — (CP). — Acts of heroism by Canadians on the Italian front were disclosed to-day in a Defence Headquarters announcement of citations covering the award of 22 decorations announced March 16.

The citations—for awards of two bars to the Distinguished Service Order, one award of the Distinguished Service Order, seven Military Crosses and 13 Military Medals—told of a wide range of courageous deeds, carried out under fire, and all branches of the service from chaplain to infantry were represented.

They also disclosed a tragic case of mistaken identity in which an infantry lieutenant had his leg blown off by bombs from a plane seeking his guiding flares to direct it to an enemy target. Lieut. S. E. Lipin, of Montreal, won the Military Cross for continuing to direct the planes after he was wounded

Sappers were cited for sweeping mine fields under heavy fire, and ploughing a path with a bulldozer at great risk; artillery-men were cited for sticking to heavily-shelled observation posts to direct successful battery fire; infantrymen were cited for pressing hazardous attacks, stalking and capturing machine-gun nests and for deliberately drawing enemy fire so other attacks might be successful.

Through the citations were repeated such phrases as "courage under fire," "courage far beyond the bounds of duty," and "with complete disregard to his own safety." The infantry came in for many tributes and the phrase "in keeping with the highest traditions of an infantry soldier" occurred several times.

Here are a few stories of bravery:

Brig. H. D. Graham of Trenton, won the bar to his D.S.O. for cooly directing an assault from an exposed position.

Brig. B. M. Hoffmeister of Vancouver won the bar to his D.S.O. for inspiring his men in advance under heavy fire.

Major A. A. Kennedy of Owen Sound, won the D.S.O. for renewing an attack which caught the enemy off balance and gained an objective. His weary men responded to his inspiring leadership "by killing large numbers of the enemy and capturing 50..."

Capt. G. A. Eaton of North Bay, Ont., won the M.C. for sticking to an exposed observation post and succesfully sending fire orders to his battery.

Capt. the Rev. W. E. L. Smith of Grafton won the M.C., for pushing through direct enemy fire to administer first aid to wounded.

The citation ofr Brig. Graham says:

Brigadier Howard Douglas Graham, D.S.O., E.D., Canadian Infantry Corps: On December 8, 1943, the enemy were holding strongly the line of the River Moro. A Canadian Infantry Brigade was ordered to carry out an assault across the river on the night of December 8-9 and secure a covering position to screen a bridging operation. The whole success of subsequent operations depended on early completion of this engineering task, which could not commence until the covering position was secure.

Brigadier Graham, in command of the brigade, positioned himself well forward, and, although continuously under enemy shell, mortar and small arms fire, directed the assault so skilfully that the enemy was driven back from the river with heavy loss, and the covering position secured.

Brigadier Graham's skilful leadership and devotion to duty, in the face of extremely difficult conditions, were of the highest order. His example of coolness and courage under fire were an inspiration to his command and played a large part in the success of the operation.

The citation for Captain Smith says:

Honorary-Captain Waldo Edward Lovel Smith, Canadian Chaplain Service; Hon. Captain W. E. L. Smith was working with the regimental medical officer, in his capacity as Chaplain, when the tanks of his regiment went forward into battle at Colle D'Anchise on October 23, 1943. A crossing being constructed by Engineers for the tanks came under heavy enemy fire, and the Engineers suffered many casualties. Without thought of personal safety, and although it was not part of his duty to do so, this officer went forward under direct enemy fire and observation to administer first aid, comfort and help in the evacuation of wounded His conduct was an outstanding example of gallantry and courage far beyond the bounds of duty.

The broadcas review said that the Red Army's offensive was striking in three respects:

"First, its length. With a short break the Red Army has been on the offensive for 14 months. Such a long offensive is unknown in the history of wars.

"Second, for the Germans and for the whole world our spring offensive this year was a surprise.... The Russian soil turned out to be penetrable for our war machine and bogged that of the Germans....

"The third feature of the battles of last year lies in the failure of all the numerous attempts of the German Fascist command to stem the advance of the Soviet troops by their counter-attacks."

The review said the Nazis miscalculated in thinking the approach of the Red Army to the Soviet border would sow dissension among the Allies.

"Molotov's (Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov) statement that the Soviet Government does not pursue the aim of acquiring any part of Romanian territory or of changing the existing social system of Romania was met by public opinion in Britain and the U.S.A. with the deepest satisfaction," the article declared.

Patriotic Farmers Secure $10,000 In Bonds At Lakefield Auction

War bonds to the tune of $10,000 were subscribed for Tuesday night at Lakefield in the first of a series of four farm auctions to be held in the interests of the current Victory Loan. Before an audience that taxed the capacity of the community's Memorial Hall, many valuable articles donated by various Peterborough firms were put on the block and auctioned off by Gordon Hancock in an hour's time.

Estimated to have exceeded 400 people, the closely packed crowd of young and old alike, many of whom were obliged to stand throughout the entire proceedings, were entertained first by a variety program featuring the music of Graydon Sheldon and his orchestra and piano solos, songs and tap dancing by N. Love, S. Garner and A. Dalton. Before the auction itself got under way, Lieut. T. W. Mason, instructor at the Peterborough Basic Training Centre, made a special appeal from the serviceman's point of view to the public to buy bonds. The windup of the evening's show consisted of a period of dancing to the music of Mr. Sheldon's band. Karl Monk, served as master of ceremonies.

Some of the bids were encouragingly high and were a pleasant surprise to the organizers of the farm auctions, who derived no small satisfaction from the success of the affair. Most optimistic guesses made before the auction started did not give it a chance of bringing in much more than $5,000; whereas the final result showed a total of twice that amount. A great deal of credit went to the expert, professional handling of Mr. Hancock, who managed to keep the auctioning at a lively pace the few times that competition in the bidding showed a tendency to slacken.

It was not possible to keep a complete record of the successful bidders on every one of the articles auctioned off, and two or three of the higher bidders specifically requested that their names be omitted from the summation of the evening's activities. Highest price in bonds paid by an individual for a single article was $1,500. which was paid for a Johnson Iron Horse, by a Peterborough man.

A total of $1,850 was collected in War Bond subscriptions for an electric fence contributed by the Peterborough Co-Op. This article was first drawn for, each $50 subscription entitling the subscriber to a ticket in the draw. $1,100 was collected in this manner and the draw was won by John Stuart, Jr., R. R. No. 7 Peterborough, who turned the electric fence back to be auctioned off in the regular manner. Harry Dunford, R. R. No. 2, Lakefield, subscribing $750, was its final winner, Mr. Dunford also purchased five bags of Quaker Chick Starter or $250.

A consistent bidder throughout the proceedings was Ben Irwin, who paid $50 in bonds for a year's subscription to the Examiner, $150 for a battery contributed by Lillico Motors, $200 for a pair of halters from B. F. Akerman and $150 for a horse blanket. Another was Jack Murphy of Lakefield, who took home a ton of Canada Packers Fertilizer for $100 in War Bonds, a pair of lines from Stewart Hall for $350, and a Congoleum rug donated by Cherney Bros. for $500.

Five sacks of Ful-O-Pep Calf meal brought $450; an armchair from Belleghem's Furniture Store, $650; 100 Plymouth Rock chicks given by George Lockington, $250; and 2 sacks of Quaker flour donated by W. E. Charlton of Lakefield, $250 Two hay forks from Kingan Hardware brought $50 in bond subscriptions; a case of peas, $200; five bags of hog grower from Dewart Bros., $250; and a bag of cement from the Peterborough Lumber Co., $200.

Paige Rowell, Peterborough, bought a $50 war bond to pay for a pair of rubber boots contributed by Neill's Shoe Store; Gale Elliott won five bags of Quaker Pig Starter for a $100 bond; Mrs. Margaret Johnston, Smith, paid $200 for five bags of Ful-O-Pep 24 per cent. Dairy Ration; W. J. Northey of Lakehurst $50 for a roll of barbed wire from Campbell and Best Hardware store; E. W. Simpson, Peterborough, $50 for a pail and hammer from the Pratten and Chown Hardware stores; a young boy, Stewart Peel of Lakefield $50 for a can of Scarfe's barn and implement paint; and John Stuart, Jr., $250 or a 25 lb. can of Marvelube grease, $50 for a gallon of Fly spray from the Standard Farm Supply and $150 for a halter.

Three alarm clocks given by the Western Clock Co. were auctioned separately and brought in a total of $450 in bond subscriptions; while a smoke stand from the Canadian Department Stores went for $50 and two cans of Ovaltine, donated by A. Wander, Ltd., for $150.

The farm auctions come into the city on Saturday, when the second will be held at 7 p.m. in the Co-operative Hall on George street. The entertainment and arrangement of the program will follow closely the outline of the Lakefield auction, and several surprises in the way of articles to bid on await the patriotic interest of all potential bond buyers.

could mount aerial counter blows while ground forces in the Hollandia area, advancing from the northwest in ankle-deep mud at the base of the towering Cyclops range, were last reported well beyond Sabron. This would put them three miles or less from the Hollandia airdrome, largest of three within the Yankee and Dutch pincers.

The force which landed 35 miles to the northeast was well beyond Pim village, which is eight miles from the Tami airfield. Thus the jaws of the pincers were about 20 miles apart.

One Dutch correspondent wrote that "the main Japanese force has not yet been engaged." This force has been estimated at 14,000 troops.

OTTAWA, April 26—(CP)—Mayor F. J. War Prisoners May Get Vote

OTTAWA, April 26 — (CP) — The Commons Committee on the Dominion Election Act approved Tuesday a recommendation that arrangements be made for Canadian prisoners of war by proxy in the next Dominion election.

The recommendation said every person on active service officially recorded as a prisoner should be entitled to vote by proxy on a special certificate issued by the Chief Electoral Officer, Jules Castonguay.

"Such certificates shall be issued not earlier than two weeks before polling day to the person officially recorded at headquarters as the next-of-kin of such prisoner of war, provided such next-of-kin is qualified to vote in the electoral district in which the prisoner of war ordinarily resided prior to his enlistment" said the recommendation.

Six Employees Subscribe $2,800

Although they are small in numbers, the employees of the Lucky Strike Bait Company make up for it in patriotic fervor. Each time the Victory Loan rolls around this little plant piles up an enviable record. This time with an objective of $1,500, six employees have contributed $2,800, going over the top by 86 per cent.

Other plants operating under the group payroll section are doing fine work too. Zeller's store, with about 24 employees, had a quota of $1,900 which they have oversubscribed to $2,500. Five employees at Selkirk Men's Wear had an objective of $1,000 and have voluntarily given $1,350. Fourteen employees at Grafton's gave a 100 per cent. subscription of $1,500.

C.D.S. stores hit their objective by what they term a "lucky shot." They had not been given a quota, and after a 100 per cent. subscription by their employees found that the $2,700 they had collected was the exact sum set by loan headquarters. This represented the efforts of 36 employees, some of whom work only Saturday afternoons.

Mrs. G. O'Dette Rescues Boy

Pushed off the jetty dock in Little Lake by a five year old boy companion, Alan MacNab, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick MacNab, 173 Crescent street was rescued from the danger of drowning in ten feet of water about noon Tuesday by Mrs. W. George O'Dette, 90 Lock street.

Only the fortunate chance that Mrs. O'Dette happened to glance out her window overlooking the lake discovered the strange peril of the older of the two small boys.

Alan MacNab was clinging to some projection on the side of the wharf, and the other boy was kicking at his fingers, as he afterwards related. Mrs. O'Dette rushed from her house down to the wharf and lifted the MacNab boy from the water, which was estimated at ten to twelve feet in depth. He had sank at least once, as indicated by pieces of old leaves and soil from the bottom that were noticed inside his clothing when he was undressed at home and bathed and put to bed.

"We are extremely grateful to Mrs. O'Dette," the mother of six-year old Alan told the Examiner today. "It seems almost providential that she happened to look out her window toward the dock at that moment."

10 Industries Over Top In Victory Loan

Canada Packers Company and the Western Clock Company both reported this morning that they had gone over their objective and were still not through canvassing. This brings the list of ten firms under the payroll savings plan which have reached their quota.

Canada Packers is credited with subscribing 108 per cent. of their objective. Their quota was set at $28,100 and they had collected this morning $30,350. Out of 247 employees, 227 have already been canvassed. The Western Clock Company was given an objective of $55,200 and this morning they had totalled $58,300, or 105 per cent. of the objective. This included 90 per cent. of the employees participating, and the canvassing is continuing. Employees are also proud of the fact that Tuesday they completed 1,000,000 man hours without loss of time in accidents.

Another company turning in a good job, loan officials said, is the Colonial Weaving Company, which has reached 196 per cent. of its objective of $3,800. One hundred per cent. of the employees subscribed $7,600.

These figures are not the official ones released at Victory Loan headquarters, but those given by company representatives today. The transactions between heads of industry and loan officials have not yet been fully completed so official reports from the Victory Loan office will show a lower total than those appearing in this story.

The Peterborough Lumber Company said they have achieved 142 per cent. of their quota. Their objective was set at $7,200, and at 11 o'clock today they had sold $10,200 worth in bonds with about 90 per cent. of the staff canvassed.

The Brinton Carpet Company has been working hard and is 24 per cent. over the top. Their objective was set at $17,900 and so far $22,150 has been subscribed to work for victory. Several other plants were credited with 100 per cent. or more on Friday night, and their results are as follows:

A. Wander Company, objective $6,000, 27 per cent. over the top with $7,625; G. Whitaker and Company, objective $5,000, 16 per cent. over with $5,800; Dominion Woollens, objective $15,300, over 18 per cent. with $18,000.

B. F. Ackerman is reported today to be 7 per cent. to the good. The objective for the plant was $5,400 and so far they have totalled $5,750. This is a canvass of 57 employees out of 62. One of the best reports came in Tuesday when J. J. Turner & Sons went over the top with 223 per cent. of their objective, $12,500, and with only 82 per cent. of the employees canvassed.

The Canadian Nashua Paper Company and the Canadian Sealright Company have a total objective of $12,000 and have achieved 93 per cent of their quota. The Raybestos has a total set at $17,000 of which they have turned in 13 per cent.

Plan Widening Of Aylmer St.

In order to facilitate the exit of larger pieces of apparatus from the firehall an operation that has been interfered with because of the narrowness of Aylmer street, the Fire, Water and Light Committee, meeting at the fire hall under the chairmanship of Ald. J. E. Sullivan Tuesday decided to have the west curb of the street for some distance between Simcoe and Charlotte streets moved back two feet. It was the opinion that this change would afford the necessary clearance.

Tenders for the furnishing of 1,000 feet of 2½ inch fire hose were let. The following firms will each supply two hundred feet at a price of $1.70 per foot, including couplings: J. K. Hughes, J. J. Duffus, F. H. Johnston, Peterborough Automotive Company and Campbell and Best.

Grafton and Company submitted the only tender for supplying uniforms and received the contract at $43.75 per uniform, including two pairs of trousers.

It was decided to sell the two oldest pieces of apparatus owned by the department, two old trucks. The body of one of these will be retained and mounted on a new chasis and tenders will be called for the furnishing of the chasis.

Put Victory First

In the rural parts of the county Norwood village appears to be taking the lead. Harry Morgan and W. H. Giffen have reported a total of $7,200 of $56,000 objective, sufficient to buy two ambulances and also a collapsible assault boat.

Smith, where George Hancock is again working, is in second place with $6,100 of a $90,000 objective, or enough to purchase two universal carriers.

E. J. Leeson, who is working Belmont and Methuen, reports two sales, both of $1,000.

Walter Metheral is the leading salesman in the city, having reported 12 cash sales for $7,200. Walter is working in section "C" and his team mates of James Juby and Vic Tully are also in there punching with a team total of $11,500, and there comes another training plane for the R.C.A.F.

A. J. McClellan in second place to Walter Metheral in sales has cash total of $6,750, and also instalment buying total of $350. He actually is only $100 below Walter. His team mates in section "H" are in there with a total for the three men of $11,250—and Mr. Howe send up another trainer.

R. Irwin, J. D. Anderson and Fred Revoy in section "F" report $7,750 and in goes an order for an ambulance and a 6-pdr. anti-tank gun.

An order to fully equip 42 soldiers went in when S. G. Cole, John Lee and W. P. Kinlin in section "G" reported $6,200.

Lou rooks, R. Payne and W. Roberts have put in $4,100 and this will provide 32 2-inch trench mortars to back up the invasion.

For many years, Andy Matols, 87 Hunter street, has been working hard and saving money out of his salary for the day when he can go back to Central Europe and visit his beloved homeland, Hungary. But in the meantime, he told canvasser R. H. McClellan, that he wants to do his bit for his adopted land, and he withdrew his savings of $1,200 and put them into Victory Bonds.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schiarizza, 582 Bethune street, are glad to do a little sacrificing so that they can purchase Victory Bonds they told their canvasser. Their son, Anthony Paul (Tony) Schiarizza, was reported wounded a week ago while fighting on the Italian front. He enlisted with the Rangers, later transferring to the Paratroop Corps. Mrs. Schiarizza expressed the hope that the money they were investing might help to bring their son home soon.

School students during the present war have been very active in helping to sell War Savings Stamps and are alive to the importance of buying Victory Bonds. Herbert Bryan, 264 Lansdowne street, is a 12-year-old Collegiate student, and during a previous Loan he purchased a $50 Bond out of the first money he had ever earned. He works only after school and on Saturdays. This time, he is buying a $100 Bond, and is already looking ahead to the next Loan.

It is only through the efforts of every Canadian that the Victory Loan will be successful and the prosecution of the war continued. Miss Jane Jackson, 566 Chamberlain street is 93 years old and has never missed purchasing a bond, from her canvasser. In spite of her years, Miss Jackson keeps up to date with world affairs and is glad to be able to help out.

The Bond taken out, which cannot be afforded, is the one which means the most to Peterborough men fighting overseas. Charles Woodcock, 67, only recently became janitor at Kresge's. When he was canvassed by John Lewis, he said that he hadn't been working long enough to be able to carry it. Mr. Lewis said today he realized he was right, so went on to the kitchen to canvass other employees. On his way out he met Mr. Woodcock again who said he had been thinking it over and had decided he could manage somehow. He asked to sign an application form right then.

The oldest canvasser at the Outboard Marine, H. J. White, considered his best sale the bond which he sold to his youngest purchaser, Garry Edward Jobe, four months old. The young man could not sign his application personally so the deal was transacted by his father, Eddie, Jobe, employed at the plant.

It was announced today that Kresge's store, canvassed by John Lewis, has achieved 110 per cent of its objective of $1,600. The canvass is not complete, but to date they have given $1,760 for Victory Bonds.

There was considerable excitement at the Victory Loan office Tuesday afternoon. Reg Turner had all his trucks and his team of horses on review. It was a Victory Loan parade on his own. In keeping with the spirit of the Loan, all the trucks had Victory Loan signs painted and placarded on them.

Making a tour of many Peterborough industries, R. C. Ward, has been showing Victory Loan films. He has been giving as many as seven shows a day. Another picture in aid of the Loan is being shown at the Centre Theatre. It is the action story of the work of paratroopers overseas, who say they have two aims, one to fly the planes which Canada sends, and the other to buy bonds. Of the group shown, not one had failed to buy a bond in the 5th Victory Loan, and all were ready to sign up for this one.

OTTAWA, April 26 (CP)—Urging the release of old office files to aid in the paper salvage program, an article yesterday in the Wartime Information Board's publication, "Canada at War," said 700,000 different manufactured items, ranging from parts of military tanks to pins and needles, had been shipped overseas to the fighting fronts in paper packages.

OTTAWA, April 26—(CP).—Disclosure that Canadian airmen played a part in the transport of airborne troops dropped behind Japanese lines in Burma was made yesterday in the Wartime Information Board publication entitled "Canada at War."

Russians Want New Generators

TORONTO, April 26.— (CP). —The Globe and Mail says to-day in an Ottawa dispatch that the Russian government is negotiating through its trade representatives in Canada for the purchase of Hydro-Electric generating equipment to replace Dnepr installations destroyed in the German advance in 1941.

"While the amount and details of the proposed deal are a closely-guarded secret, it is understood that the cost of the equipment would be in the neighborhood of $25,000,000," says the story. It said the Canadian government would guarantee low-interest bank credits to equipment manufacturers to finance the manufacture.

School Children Do Good Work For War Effort

Some time in the future, and hosts of people will hope that the time is not too long deferred, the heroes who have survived the greatest of all tests after offering all they had to give, even life itself, will be marching home to receive that well deserved acclaim to which they will be more than justly entitled to.

On the home front there is much that also can be done by those whose lot might be considered to have been cast in much less dangerous and therefore fortunate channels, and it would seem that to be worthy of looking these heroes straight in the eye, every individual must first be able to say, I also did my bit in some form or other.

A very large number of school children in this city will be honestly able to say, "I did have a hand in helping" for it can be said to their credit that they too worked for the day of victory in more ways than one, among which the gathering of salvage has played a prominent part, and thus they can honestly help swell the chorus of acclaim when the boys come marching home.

Confederation School Works

Not the least among these groups will be found the boys and girls of of Confederation School presided over by Mrs. H. B. Jackson as principal, who have turned in the results of many notable efforts in various ways, a number of which have been held on behalf of the victims of air raids over Britain, through the local and district fund which operates to give them a helping hand.

Just now the salvage of waste paper of all sorts is a most important work in which all boys and girls of school age can render a very good service to the war effort, and the beauty of this work is that it also provides them with further compensation in the shape of some financial return, which in turn can be utilized in their name to do further good for the same purpose.

Through the exercise of their opportunities mostly in this connection, the children of this school have raised another nice sum of money, which added to a little they raised in other ways, has resulted in their being credited with a further $26.00 to add to the splendid record of achievement previously reported on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims. May every blessing still crown the labors of the school children in their work to help others.

First Penny Box Again

The penny boxes were first started through one being placed at the Bert McLeod Drug store, since which time they have collectively raised over $2,000 for the fund. Another collection from this same box was made by the secretary of the fund on Tuesday morning, to add another $1.30 to the good record already achieved for the objects the fund seeks to assist.

C.G.E. Canvass In High Gear

In big figures on the huge register of Sixth Victory Loan progress at Canadian General Electric Company and Geneloo Limited this morning, subscriptions were reflected at $304,500.

On minor boards at the same time the accounting had not caught up with the latest total. At one of these boards at a side gate the previous total was still marking time at something around $240,000.

"We're hoping to close our campaign this week," Tom Glover, works accountant, commented to the Examiner this morning in confirmation of the $304,500 total at 9.30 o'clock this morning.

Shop committees and canvassers were generally reporting that they had gathered up most of the icing on the cake and they now had to get down to work in the secondary stage of the canvass where the query was becoming something like "how about another bond", and "how about that little extra this time?"

The employees of the two plants have a joint objective of $450,000, and beginning the third day of the campaign the folks at the big electric works still faced a margin of $145,500. Committees are satisfied that the entire staff knows what it is all about, and that the climax of the approaching invasion is tensing them, for the most part, to do something more than in other Loans.

Tools Of War Featured In Store Windows

Unusual displays of Army and Air Force equipment that illustrate vividly even to the mere passerby the necessity of investing in the 6th Victory Loan may be seen this week in many of the city's larger stores. The articles shown are all authentic, many of them having been lent to the city by military district headquarters, and in most cases they represent an expenditure that may be figured in the hundreds of dollars.

An example is the display to be seen in Zeller's window this week, and it would take perhaps all of $1,500 to duplicate the array of articles which lie there in a comparatively small space. They include that delicate and highly technical instrument known as a course-setting bomb sight, a pyrotechnic pistol for use in sending distress signals, aircraft identification models, rifles and a rack of dummy practice bombs.

At the Canadian Department Stores, one may see a number of the articles on which the flying efficiency and indeed the very lives of airmen going into battle may often depend. There are the flying suit and boots which aviators find a necessity in the sub-zero temperatures encountered in high-altitude flying! a heavy Browning machine gun, the type that is carried as part of the armament of Wellingtons and Lancasters; and a parachute made of pure silk. Also on display is a rubber dinghy, the kind of life-saving equipment which has saved the lives of many an airman forced down at sea.

At Kresge's is a "complete line" of equipment for gas attacks, including protective devices such as ointments and varnish dressings for soldiers' clothing, gas masks, eye shields and gas detectors used in training ground troops in the presence of insidious, lethal gases.

The uniforms worn by airmen, airwomen and members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are the feature of exhibits at Richard Hall's, Ed. Riley's Men's Wear Store and Loblaw's; while Comstock's Furniture Store and Neill's Shoe Store show examples of the work of the Army Ordnance in repairing and making fit for longer use such things as worn-out boots, fired cartridges, rusty or dented helmets, and waterproof coats and battle dress that have seen better days. This is the Army's department of economy, and it is obvious that no equipment which could possibly be used again is overlooked by its salvage experts.

Colorful and unique among the merchants' displays advertising the Victory Loan is the exhibit of beautiful ceremonial flags to be found at Grafton's. Here, alongside of the Canadian Ensign, stand the R.C.A.F. flag, the British Navy White Ensign, the Stars and Stripes, and flags of two of the great nations united for Victory, the Soviet Union and the Chinese Republic.

Weather Slows Farm Work Across Ontario

A common note of muted springtime industry sounds through the weekly crop reports of the representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculutre surveying up to Saturday night clouded and gloomy skies that should be blue and full of sunshine, and wheels recently lubricated for the season standing idle beside plows that are eager to take off with the other cultivators.

Hastings says: "A few farmers have started work on the land and a small acreage of high, well-drained land has been sown." And in Ontario county: "Farmers on higher land have begun work, but no seeding is reported yet. Fall wheat fields are showing green, and there has been a higher acreage come through the winter than was expected."

These comments scan from Ontario to Hastings and across the Peterborough farm lands. Peterborough reports: "A few farmers have rolled their meadows, and a little spring plowing has been done. Wheat and clover crops appear to have wintered well. Some farmers are enquiring about help. A few boys have been placed this week."

Prince Edward says: "A few people have sown peas and planted potatoes; alfalfa and grasses for permanent pastures are very scarce."

Need Brood Sows

Brood sows are in demand in Frontenac. "And demand is quite keen for improved pasture grasses. Farmers are adding awnless Brome Orchard grass to their mixtures. An order for ten men for farm work was received, the offer being $60 a month with board. There seems little possibility of filling this order locally."

At the Yorkshire breeders show in Grenville a few sows sold above the $100 mark, and one young board set the top price at $112."

Cheese factories from East Peterborough through Hastings and further on through eastern Ontario are opening, and some went into operation this week. Others were previously in production.

Sap buckets are being lifted in the woods. Renfrew maple syrup men say the season was quite satisfactory. "In Lambton on the west front of the province spring seeding was begun last week; 50 per cent of the farms in that country are "one-man operated." Where the operator is fifty-five years and over he is cutting down on his farm work. A larger part of the land is being seeded to grass. Fall wheat and last spring's seeding of clover look promising."

On the whole cool weather and lean and patch sunshine are holding up the works on Ontario land.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

WIFE MUST FORGET PARAMOUR

Will Ruin Her Life and Those of Her Husband and Children By Thinking of Outsider.

DEAR MISS DIX—I married at 19 and have two grand girls, aged 8 and 10. No one could have a better or more generous husband than I have. He gives me a beautiful home and every comfort and I have made him happy all these years, but I have never been thrillingly in love with him.

Now I have met a man who attracts me so much that I am afraid, because I believe in God and the sanctity of marriage and I intend to live up to my marriage vows and do my duty as a wife and mother. I don't know much about this man with whom I have become so much infatuated and he has never said anything to indicate how he feels about me, but sometimes one has a feeling that is so big that words aren't necessary.

I don't want to be disloyal even in my thoughts to my husband. Is there anything I can do to overcome the feeling I have for this man?

A READER.

Woman Must Forget Enticing Man

ANSWER—I think there is a lot you can do. You can quit thinking about him. You can refuse to indulge yourself in romantic day dreams about what might have been. There is no more untrue theory than the one that we cannot control our thoughts. We can. We can wrench them away from subjects that are folly and worse for us to dwell upon and force them into more wholesome channels. It takes courage and determination to do it, but it can be done.

You can ruin your life and the lives of your husband and children by continuing to think of this man whom you cannot have, or you can force yourself to forget him and have a happy normal life doing your duty by your family. And if duty lacks thrills, it brings the peace that comes of a clear conscience.

Life is mainly self-hypnotism, anyway. Practically any woman can think herself in love with any man if she really gives her mind to it. And my advice to you is to concentrate on your husband. It will pay you better in happiness.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a young sister who for the past few months has been running around with a married man. I have remonstrated with her and so have a lot of our crowd, and she promises to break off with him and then in a week she is back with him again. It will nearly kill my parents if they find out how she is acting. Can't you say something to her that will make her see how foolish she is behaving?

A BROTHER.

Such Girl Deaf To Advice

ANSWER — Though you spoke with the tongues of men and of angels it would have no effect upon a girl who is infatuated with a married man, for there is nothing you can say about the folly of it that she doesn't know. You can tell her that any married man who makes love to a young girl is a double-dyed cad because he is betraying two women, his wife to whom he is in honor bound and the girl whose chances of happiness he is destroying to gratify his own egotism.

You can tell her that any girl who runs around with a married man throws away her good name, because everybody puts the worst construction on it. And you can tell her that she is jeopardizing her chances of ever making a good marriage and having a home of her own, because few men care for the leavings of a married man. And you can tell her that when her Lothario gets tired of her he will ditch her just as he has done his wife. And it will all be to no avail.

DEAR MISS DIX — How can I break off an engagement to the boy I am betrothed to without hurting his feelings? There is nobody else, but I have just decided he is not the one for me.

WORRIED.

ANSWER—If your fiance is in love with you, it is bound to hurt his vanity, if not his heart, for you to break the engagement. But in any case it is the kind and honorable thing for you to do if you have decided not to marry him. Perhaps absence has cooled off his affection, too, and that he will be glad to be free.

Capacity Audience Attends Agnes Logan Green Recital

BY ROBERTSON DAVIES

The belief that a prophet is not without honour but in his own country was directly contradicted by the very large audience which attended Agnes Logan Green's pianoforte recital on Tuesday night at the Collegiate Auditorium. Mrs. Green could not have been more enthusiastically supported. The hall was filled, and it was necessary to bring in chairs for a large number of people who would otherwise have been forced to stand for the duration of the recital.

Mrs. Green's program was pleasantly unlike those to which we have become accustomed. She attempted no heaven-storming works, but preferred rather to confine herself to compositions which fell readily within her emotional and technical compass. This is not to say that she played an 'easy' program; it was anything but that. But she laid her emphasis on delicacy of execution and beautiful miniature effects, rather than on a mighty tone and dramatic interpretation. Lack of emotional fire handicapped her somewhat in the Beethoven Sonata in E Flat, and a richer tone would have added impressiveness to the group of Bach chorales, but the rest of the program had qualities which compensated fo rthese disappointments.

Schumann's "Scenes From Childhood" are not often heard in their entirety, and it was a great satisfaction to hear them played with such delicacy and understanding by Mrs. Green. Schumann is often dismissed as a "literary composer"—indeed, Huneker described him as "a pathological case, a literary man turned composer"—and some shallow critics have tried to invalidate his claims to greatness on this peculiar charge. The "Scenes From Childhood" may not be 'pure music' but their inspiration is infinitely richer and more felicitous than many works of unimpeachable musical respectability. More Schumann in the recital hall would relieve the burden at present borne by Chopin and Mendelssohn, and would delight the public. Mrs. Green deserves special thanks for giving this beautiful series of miniatures one of its infrequent public performances.

The delicacy which gave distinction to her playing of Schumann was also apparent in the two Debussy selections, the well-known 'Clair de Lune' and 'Minstrels'. The Scriabine Nocturne for the left hand was a tour de force, and the Albeniz 'Triana' was fresh and pleasant.

Mrs. Green was particularly successful with her last group of compositions by contemporary composers. As encores she played a Lullaby by Brahms, a Valse by Leschetizsky, and Percy Grainger's arrangement of 'Shepherd's Hey'. Throughout the recital the audience showed its pleasure by warm and plentiful applause.

Mission Circle Plans Tea

The members of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle of St. James' United Church, held their April meeting at the home of Mrs. Leslie McLaren, Wescott Street, with a good attendance.

With Mrs. J. Huggins, the president in the chair, the meeting opened with prayer offered by Miss Jean Hammond, representing St. James Mission Band. June Bullied gave a piano solo, Minuet in C" (Mozart).

Plans were made to entertain the C. W. A. C. at tea on Sunday, May 21 with Miss Anne Deyell, 185 Crescent street as hostess. Miss Jessie Martin was appointed in charge of the program and Mrs. Jean Davis and Mrs. Dorothy Martin have charge of refreshments for the occasion.

A fine display of articles for the Mission Circle Sale was on view. The president voiced the appreciation of the Circle for the monthly press reports, to their advisory president. The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. C. Searles, River Road.

"Light and Life to those in darkness," an article by Grace Woodcock, missionary to Bolivia, was read by Miss Jean Hammond. Mission Circle work, as covered at the recent branch excutive meeting held in Belleville was presented by the branch secretary of Circles, Miss Connie Wagar. In the reports it was noted that the Peterborough Presbyterial came first in many respects.

Mrs. Ernest Johnston sang a solo, "Tell Others of Jesus," accompanied by Miss Gladys Langton. A dramatized presentation of the 3rd Chapter of the Study Book "For the Life More Abundant" was led by Miss Jessie Martin, assisted by Misses Eleanor Fife, Alma Hunter, Jean Davis and Zetta Wood.

The closing service of worship, included scripture reading by Misses Deyell, Martin and Hunter, while Miss Helen Moncrief read a prayer poem. The offering as part of the worship was dedicated by Miss Dorothy Martin.

Cottons Play Big Part In New Styles

New York stylists are well under way in their showings of summer styles, and it looks as though it's cotton by a length along the home stretch. Dresses and suits, in varied and smart patterns, tailored as beautifully as the finest woollens, silks or rayons, can easily hold their own with these other materials, and have the added appeal of economy and practicability.

All-white pique and broadcloth take the lead in styles for the junior miss, with bright colors and large patterns showing to best advantage in beach clothes. Black and navy cottons will be the best choice for the smart woman who wants to look her best on hot summer days in the city.

The comfortable and useful two piece suit is certainly leading the parade again this season, with the styles almost the same. Cotton has replaced woollens and crepes, but the suits have lost their attractiveness. Bags or purses made in matching material are also being shown with these new cottons, and should certainly make a hit.

Evening dresses are now made of cotton too, and will appeal to the younger set, because they are cool and comfortable and easily laundered. The junior styles in cotton evening dresses are particularly charming, with dainty princess lines vieing with the two-piece effect for tops on the popularity ladder.

Grease Needed To Gum Up Nazi Program

Saving fats and grease, and turning them into local salvage committees is still one of the most important jobs of conservation the Canadian housewife can do, and with very little bother, too. It just takes a little care and training to remember that every drop of waste fat is vitally needed.

Canada has so long been the land of plenty that a great many Canadians had almost forgotten how to scrimp and save, and it is a little difficult to watch and see that leftovers are saved and utilized. Throwing away excess fat is one habit which is very difficult to break, but it can be done.

Here are a few timely reminders to help save fats. Remember that all meat and fat scraps should be saved while preparing food. The fat can then be rendered down. Grease from frying, even onions or fish, is useful, and should never be destroyed. Skimmings from stews or meat-base soups should be saved carefully and added to the store already put away in a cool place.

Drippings from roasting pans and broilers, and meat and bones left on plates at mealtime, can all be utilized. No grease is too burned or smelly to save. When it is no longer useful for cooking, the fat can still be used in Canada's factories. Don't waste even a drop, even the last drops in the skillet will add to the grand total that will help bring victory closer.

There are still a multitude of important uses for all Canada's waste fats. Salvaged fats are used to make oleic acid, required by synthetic fibres, such as rayon and nylon bags for powder and parachutes. Lubricants for aircraft in sub-normal temperatures are also produced from oleic acids. So, to "grease" the way to victory, save all fat and grease and turn them in to the salvage. Help put the "skids" on Hitler with waste fats.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

All vegetables are valuable. Canada's food rules advise serving two vegetables beside potatoes every day, stressing yellow and green vegetables as most important and including raw ones frequently. Always remember that vegetables lose food value as they lose freshness; always keep in a cool place.

Cheese and Corn Pudding

This mixture remains soft in the baking dish, an additional egg would give it more than the character of a firm custard.

1 can cream style corn, ½ cup chopped celery, 2 tablespoons finely minced onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ½ cup diced nippy cheese, 2 cups corn flakes (crushed), 1 egg, 1 cup scalded milk. Combine the corn, celery, onion, salt and paprika. Place a layer in a greased casserole, sprinkle with diced cheese and crushed cornflakes. Continue these layers until all is used, being sure to have a layer of corn mixture on top. Beat the egg slightly and gradually heat in the scalded milk; pour over the mixture in the casserole. Bake in a slow oven 40 minutes. Serve very hot; nice it accompanied with a green salad.

Raw Vegetable Salads

Canada's nutrition program, advises the frequent serving of raw vegetables, as for example.

Combine about equal parts shredded raw carrot, green cabbage, finely cut celery and apple; season with finely chopped green pepper and minced onion. Lightly mix in salad dressing to moisten.

Combine shredded raw cabbage with half its measure (each) of sliced radish, diced firm tomato and cucumber; season with chopped green onion, minced parsley and chopped pickle. Serve with salad dressing.

Mixed Vegetable Casserole

This mixture has a superlatively good flavor and is of delightful consituency, an excellent dish when there is little or no meat.

1 can peas, ¾ cup cooked lima beans, 1 cup chopped cooked carrot, 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 4 tablespoons dripping, 2 slightly beaten eggs, 1 cup milk, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons thick chili sauce. Drain and mash the peas. Add the lima beans and carrot. In a heated frying pan, make the dripping very hot, add the onion and fry until nicely browned; add to the vegetable mixture. Combine the slightly beaten eggs, milk salt, pepper and chili sauce; add to vegetable mixture and combine thoroughly. Turn the mixture (which is rather thin) into a greased casserole and place in a pan containing hot water; bake in a moderate oven about one hour. A few curls of bacon make a most attractive garnish.

Delicious Bread Custard

Crusts may be removed from the bread when the delicacy of this pudding is to be accented. When served hot this pudding has one character and when deeply chilled seems to be quite different.

1 to 2 tablespoons soft butter, ¼ cup corn syrup, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 3 slices white bread, 1 egg yolk, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup corn syrup, 1½ cups hot milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Blend the soft butter with the corn syrup, blend in cinnamon. Spread this mixture on the bread, cut into fingers and arrange in a greased baking dish. Beat the egg and yolk slightly, add salt and the ½ cup corn syrup. Gradually stir in the hot milk and add vanilla. Strain this custard mixture over the bread in the baking dish. Place baking dish in a pan of hot water and bake for about 40 minutes in moderate oven.

Fashions

Just think! One yard of 35-inch fabric makes this smart beruffled apron. Pattern 9180. It's a practical, comfortable fitting style that looks adorable in bright prints. The scallops and heart-shaped pockets lend a vivacious touch. Make several for housecleaning and "playing hostess."

Pattern 9180 comes in three sizes: small (14-16), medium (18-20), and large (40-42). Small size requires just one yard of 35-inch material.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, April 27

WITH A SENSIBLE alertness to deceptive and tricky factors there is a prospect of surprising progress to be made on this day. Large and important moves, of far reaching scope, should respond to certain dynamic astral forces, that impel toward out-of-the-ordinary initiative and projects. Novelty, ingenuity and innovation may win support from high places. But with it all there is menace of entangling alliances of dubious worth. Be wary of all subtle schemes, lures and wiles in business as well as private life. The latter may be thrilled by romance and change or extraordinary and unforeseen experiences.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a thrilling year, with new and important openings for advancing forward into progressive channels, sudden and unanticipated. This with dramatic or dynamic incident, reaching far into the future, with romance and adventure. Strange, radical and novel propositions attract support from influential persons, impressed by the exceptional and unusual. But in all associations beware ensnaring, intriguing or subtle situations, indicating distress and perhaps ignominy. In private affiliations there is forecast of romance, thrills, change and surprise, with emotional gratifications as well as upsets.

A child born on this day may have much talent and ambition, with exceptional creative ability, to attract those in high places. It should have a romantic and adventurous life, but be subject to deception and illicit intrigues.

Cast of characters include: Miss Hattie Bate, Miss Stella Graham, Miss Myra Davidson, Miss Grace Craighead, Mrs. Maxine Wark, S. R. Pitts and A. H. Hick. The last two are members of the Lindsay town council.

A two year old ewe owned by W. R. Killy of Verulam township, has given birth to its second consecutive pair of twins. One of the lambs has a fifth leg but is doing well.

The village of Minden in Haliburton township which was almost destroyed by fire in 1942, has now purchased a fire pumper and equipment. The funds were raised mainly by public subscription and social events.

Lindsay Women's Conservative Association raised over $30 toward their overseas cigarette fund by a successful telephone euchre and bridge night. Mrs. R. Broom was convener of the event and prizes were won in euchre by Mrs. William Bryan and Bruce Abercrombie and in bridge by Miss Jean Bryan.

Expedition Heads For Antarctic

LONDON, April 26 (CP-Reuters) —The Boy Scout who accompanied Sir Ernest Shackleton's last voyage in the "Quest"—now Lt.-Cmdr. J. W. S. Marr of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve—is back in the Antarctic leading the most secret expedition of discovery ever to leave Britain.

He has with him an exploration party of 14 British scientific and research workers, all volunteers, who have established a base camp of huts and tents amid the snow and ice near Hope Bay, Grahamland, the nearest land mass to the South Pole.

The explorers will remain in the Antarctic for two years, carrying out research into polar meteorology and radio conditions, mineral resources and obtaining biological and botanical data.

The party left Fort Stanley, capital of the Falkland Islands, in February, but the colonial office, which has sponsored the research, has only now announced the expedition.

Jap Supply Lines Harassed Constantly

NEW YORK, April 26 — (AP) — Attesting to the growing strength of Allied attacks on Japanese supply lines, the Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese War Ministry statement today as saying the "hardships which confront our seamen directly participating in the maintenance of supplies are beyond our imagination."

The broadcast, recorded by U. S. government monitors, said both the United States and Britain were "mobilizing great numbers of airplanes and submarines" to harass Japanese overseas communications and declared that supplies were being moved "under extremely hazardous conditions."

Tin Hats Play To Boys In Front Lines

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, April 26 — (CP). — In churches, in a battered Ortona theatre and in recreation centres behind the lines, the tin hats have been bringing to Canadian troops the songs, music, dances and wise-cracks they go for.

For the cast, assembled from Units in Britain four years ago, this is their first appearance in a theatre of operations and it has taken them from rear bases and hospitals to within less than two miles of the German lines.

In one town they played in a Roman Catholic church. In another, near the front, Cpl. Wally Brenan, the little professional showman from Winnipeg who directs the show, was about to slip over a gag about the scant apparel adorning a certain damsel, when a shell whistled down nearby.

Without hesitation, Brenan came out with "Keep that up and she won't have a damn thing on." That one brought down the house.

When they played before units of men who had been long in Britain the performers often stepped on the stage to be greeted by their first names. In many an audience arguments to which Brenan's troupe has become accustomed sprang up.

They concerned the sex of the show's three "girl" performers — Trilby, Trixie and Yvonne. More than once some soldier has forgotten himself when they removed their wigs and a "Well I'll be d——d" has sounded above everything else.

Life has had its difficulties for the tin hats in Italy. The "girls" couldn't replenish the wardrobes they brought to this theatre on Christmas Day.

They have travelled with full equipment including their own cook and cooking facilities. Their transport consists of three 3-ton trucks in which they have travelled thousands of miles.

On the stage they bring forth a show that is smart. It is a fast-moving variety program that includes numbers ranging from cowboy songs by Pte. Norman Harper of Toronto to hot jive from the band led by Cpl. Charles Moore of Toronto.

The 26 men, 21 of them entertainers and the remainder drivers and cooks, are under Lieut. Jack Hay of London, Ont.

McCready Loses

after that merry-go-round and was the aggressor most of the way, although not by much for McCready fought back gamely just as he always does. Both battlers were in a couple of jams, but worked out of trouble. However the end came after 18 minutes tough battling, when Wagner suddenly staged an irresistible onslaught that saw the big Moose tossed into the corner several times like a bag of flour, then trussed up by his feet from the ropes and belted and finally dragged to the mat and pinned for the fall with a flying headlock.

The crowd thought Referee Powers should have intervened when McCready was suspended by his heels, but there was no official action and Wagner took the bout a few seconds after.

Plenty Of Action

There was plenty of action in the semi-final, which introduced a new and formidable grappler in the person of Verne Baxter, another Oregon product. Baxter, who doesn't look like a ring bad man, showed that looks are deceiving by giving Toar Morgan, former marine, a rough passage. Morgan, of course, who is no angel himself, retaliated with the same kind of stuff and the result was a lot of lively wrestling, some boxing tossed in for good measure and a dash of back-alley rough-house. If anything Baxter, who is powerful and clever and very fast on his feet, had a slight edge on the ex-Marine, but not by much for Morgan usually handed out a receipt for everything he got.

Half-way through the battlers forgot they were supposed to be wrestling and staged a fast boxing bout for a minute or more that indicated that both of them might be handy with their dukes. The final bell found them again exchanging punches in the middle of the ring, but that was plain slugging, with none of the speed and science that marked the first fistic encounter. The two had rolled out of the ring and exchanged a few swings out in front of the pews. When they climbed back in again they were punch-drunk but willing and they swung rights and lefts until the bell ended the mad melee.

Tougher Than Ever

They must have been feeding Al Bunny Dunlop a lot of raw meat for the Toronto strong man was tougher than ever in the opener against Tony Leoni, the Italian-American mat artist from Hollywood. Leoni hung on as long as he could and had the upper hand on several occasions but most of the route he was on the receiving end with Dunlop cutting loose with all the rough-house stuff he could think of. Bunny drop-kicked goals from the 25-yard line, swung rabbit punches, pulled hair, gouged and in short gave Leoni the well-known works. Finally after 19 minutes of spirited action Dunlop took the bout with a series of body slams, winding up with a back-breaker that made it easy to pin the Hollywood battler's shoulders.

Referee Ernie Powers had an eventful evening. Two or three times he had to do a little punching himself to get things straightened out and on several occasions he turned the first two bouts into three-somes by getting all tied up with the battlers.

As usual Fred Scates acted in the dual capacity of announcer and official timer.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

After tonight's game at Chicago, First-baseman Rudy York, major league home-run champion, and Pitcher Joe Orrell of the Detroit Tigers are leaving for Detroit where they have been ordered to take their army medical examinations. York, 30, is the father of three children.

Philadelphia Bob Montgomery will tangle with Joe Peralta, a Mexican, in a 10-round lightweight feature Friday night in Chicago Coliseum which has beeen without a fight card for two years. The bout is being promoted by Doc Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey.

Lorenzo Lafleur, president of the Ottawa district branch of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, will be confined to his hotel room in Montreal two more weeks, it was stated last night. The Ottawa official suffered a heart attack during the Association's annual meeting in Montreal several weeks ago.

St. Louis Cardinals yesterday released righthander Eldred (Bud) Byerly to their Rochester farm club in the International League. Byerly performed for the last-place Sacramento club in the Pacific Coast League last season.

Boric Acid Powder Kills 16-Day Baby

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 26—(AP) — Administrator Richard J. Hancock of the Lawrence and Memorial Associated Hospitals announced Monday that Brian Alan Harvey, 16 days old, died at the institution Tuesday from the effects of boric acid powder mistakenly given him in a feeding formula. It was the fifth infant death at the hospital during the past two weeks from this cause.

When the first four deaths were announced on April 13, Hancock said the error had been traced to a young woman employee of the Hospital pharmacy room. She collapsed when the mistake was discovered and herself was a patient at the hospital for several days.

ALL FACTORS IN SIGHT

IN SOME proportion of all hands, the declarer has to act upon the basis of probabilities, without being quite sure just what is going to develop. On other occasions, every important factor is clearly in sight to him, if he has his eyes open, and he does not require any complex deductions to figure out just what is the situation. He knows, just as definitely as a chess player does. And he has only the chess player's problem of what to do about things he can see.

You could not ask a neater example of a squeeze play, which could be read as a likely winner, than developed on this deal. South had to drop his diamond Q on the K after West led the 10, and his spade A won the returned 2, which East picked to prevent ruffs of hearts in the dummy. South led the heart 2 to the A and led back the 5, putting the 7 on [illegible] 6 and letting the 8 win. West sent back his spade Q to the K, and South then ruffed the heart 4 with the dummy's last trump.

When the club K and Q dropped East's J, South promptly placed the other two clubs with West. The play he planned would have worked, however, if they had been divided between the two defenders. He sent a spade to East's J, ruffed the returned diamond and then led his last spade.

He also had the club 5 and heart Q, and the dummy held the club A-8 and the diamond 6. If West had both clubs and the heart K, as he did, he was squeezed. If he put on a club, both of the dummy's would have been good; if his heart K, then the Q and the club A would have scored the last two tricks. If the missing clubs were divided, then the last trick would be sure anyway [illegible] that suit.

Rocco Perri Is Said Missing

HAMILTON, April 26 (CP)—Rocco Perri, who once described himself as "king of the bootleggers" and also won prominence through numerous attempts upon his life, has been missing from the home of relatives here since Sunday and fears are held he may have met with foul play, Hamilton police said Tuesday.

Perri's cousin, Joseph Serge, told police Perri came to Hamilton from his home in Toronto last Thursday and remained until Sunday morning when he said he was going out for a walk. He has not been heard from since and his locked car still is parked outside Serge's home. His Toronto address was checked by relatives but he is not there.

Loyal Greeks Seize Warships

ALEXANDRIA, April 26—(AP)—Loyal Greek forces seized three Greek warships after a brief machine-gun and rifle battle with their crews, who for more than two weeks had refused to obey orders directing them to sail on convoy and minesweeping duties.

(A Cairo dispatch quoted a spokesman for Greek political factions as saying the crews "sit-down" expressed their dissatisfaction with the government-in-exile and a demand for inclusion of Greek guerilla movement representatives in the government).

Announcement of the seizure Saturday night disclosed that a Greek crisis had been brewing since a group of officers called on former Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos on March 31, demanding his resignation, and were arrested by the British, at the request of the Greek government, on the ground that they had exceeded their authority.

Tsouderos subsequently was succeeded as Premier by Sophocles Venizelos who, on April 20, appealed for a "union of all Greeks" and said he found it difficult to understand continued opposition to his regime.

A Greek communique said a few casualties were incurred in the seizures.

Fraser Seeks Subsidy Data

OTTAWA, April 26 — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley said Monday in the Commons he did not believe it was in the public interest to reveal the amount of money paid in subsidies to individual firms importing grapefruit juice.

Competitors would be given valuable information if the Government revealed the names of the individual firms and the amounts they received in subsidies for any particular item.

The Finance Minister spoke on a motion of G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West) which asked for details of grapefruit juice imports and names of individual firms receiving subsidies for the import. The amount of subsidies to each firm was asked.

Mr. Fraser accepted Mr. Ilsley's offer to produce documents showing on what basis the subsidy was paid, and how much was paid.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, and John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said they felt that details of the subsidies should be submitted to the House since they were paid out of public funds.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there had been "a denial lately to members of information which I think is in the public interest to know."

He said he recently was refused information showing the unit prices for coal purchased for the military camp at Dundern, Sask.

Ford Strike Is Being Reviewed

OTTAWA, April 26 (CP)—Representatives of the Ford Motor Co., of Canada and the United Auto Workers (CIO) Tuesday placed before the National Wartime Labor Relations Board their position in a work stoppage which has left 14,000 of the company's Windsor, Ont., employees idle since April 20.

The board, under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor, heard statements from both parties at a morning session and a reply from the company was scheduled for the afternoon session.

The company maintained the union had failed to comply with the grievance procedure outlined in its contract and had violated the contract by striking on three occasions in the past two years—the most recent on April 20.

The union took the position that the company had used arbitrary methods in introducing grievance procedures which were contrary to those accepted and practiced under the contract over a period of 16 months.

Homes Plentiful In Mining Centre

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., April 26 — (CP) — This once-busy gold-mining centre of northern Ontario now is described as a "Utopia for the homeless." A survey shows there are 60 vacant houses within five minutes walk of the main shopping centre and scores more houses, duplexes and apartments throughout the town for which despairing landlords cannot find tenants.

Rents asked by landlords run from "pay what you want" to $15 a month for a modern furnished apartment or about $18 a month for an unfurnished bungalow.

Before the demands of war took away 3,000 of the town's population—some to join the services, others to work in war industries—Kirkland Lake faced a housing shortage with high rents. That was at a time when there was no housing shortage in the rest of the Dominion. Now the situation is reversed.

Fat Stock Show To Be Revived

TORONTO, April 26—(CP)—Revival of the annual Commercial Livestock Show, better know as the Fat Stock Show during 1939-41, at the Union Stock Yards, Toronto, is announced by Minister of Agriculture T. L. Kennedy, upon recommendation of the Ontario Agricultural Inquiry Commission.

A date has not yet been set for the show but management of the Ontario Provincial Winter Fair, Guelph, which operated the show in past years will be in charge in co-operation with the Livestock Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The show was instituted in 1939 as a wartime measure to provide a show for breeders who had been preparing cattle for the Royal Winter Fair and the Guelph Winter Fair which were discontinued on the outbreak of war. In 1941, this show was discontinued on account of price-ceiling orders of the Prices Board.

Since then an order has been issued exempting from price-ceiling regulations exhibition cattle in grades red and blue. This gives incentive to breeders of commercial cattle and other livestock to get their animals ready for exhibition, Col. Kennedy said.

RAF BOMBS RIP ESSEN, SCHWEINFURT

Soviet Guns Mashing Sevastopol

Total Destruction Of Garrison Russian Objective

By EDDIE GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, April 27—(AP)—Field dispatches from the Crimean front declared today that Soviet artillery, commanding every street in Sevastopol, is firing pointblank into the city and asserted that German attempts to hold out had definitely entered their last stage.

"The enemy still holds dead streets and squares," said the Army newspaper Red Star, "but Soviet guns have reached the Germans and Romanians in their last shelters."

It appeared that the Soviet high command had decided to wipe out the enemy at any cost, even though it might mean the complete destruction of what still remains of battered Sevastopol.

The Red Star correspondent said the Germans still held airdromes in the suburbs of the once-great naval base but that they had been rendered unusuable. He declared that Soviet divebombers were co-operating with artillery in blasting the city.

The dispatch added that Russian troops had captured an important hill near the city on which the Germans had located eight artillery and four mortar batteries.

The Russian fleet and air force tightened the blockade on Sevastopol by sea and air and Moscow declared their co-operative blows had sunk five transports presumably carrying Axis troops from the beseiged Crimean base.

In land fighting, the war bulletin said, 1,000 Germans were killed in two sharp but localized actions along the front, but the Russians made no mention of German and Romanian reports of a renewed Red Army drive in the Lowest Dnestr River area.

The five transports blasted in the Black Sea totalled 13,000 tons, the communique said. Two other transports were damaged, and a landing

Erwin Rommel Oversees Defence Forces

By ROSS MUNRO,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

LONDON, April 27 —(CP) — A consistent loser on the battlefield since El Alamein in October, 1942, but a German leader still close to Hitler, Field Marshal Edwin Rommel will likely have a hand in the German defence of Western Europe against Allied invasion troops.

His post is probably Inspector General of the Forces in Western Europe and in that capacity will act on a high planning level, while Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt will deal with actual employment of German troops in the field.

Rommel didn't hold the initial advantages of belonging to the German Imperial Army clique with its established social and military positions. His background was commonplace and he was even denied the opportuntiy of taking the German Army Staff course.

The Field Marshal has slugged his way to the top, however, and he is "Hitler's General" if anybody is.

He now is 53 and in the last war fought as a Junior Officer. He was in on the kill at the Italian defeat at Caporetto and was decorated with the Pour Le Merite.

When the Germans decided to commit a force to the western desert, Hitler gave Rommel the job of training the Africa corps and later commanding it.

But before that he looked after Hitler's H.Q. during the Polish invasion in 1939 and led the leading Panzer division in the attack through Flanders in 1940.

In the western desert Rommel had his moments of triumph and in success showed his flamboyant, extravagant and egotistical nature by his boisterous declarations in his moments of victory.

Goebbels built him into a legend in the eyes of the Germans at home.

In the summer of 1942 Rommel was at the top of the wave and then Montgomery went to the desert. A dismal series of German defeats from El Alamein to Tunis followed in the next six months. Rommel went back to Germany. Hitler had an attachment for the Field Marshal and Rommel remained a member of the German leader's war council.

Victory Loan Zooms To 196,414,600

Number Of Buyers Shows Amazing Increase

OTTAWA, April 27—(CP) — The National War Finance Committee announced to-day that yesterday's purchases of Sixth Victory Loan Bonds totalled $65,138,600, bringing the loan total at the end of the third day of the three-week drive to $196,414,600. The objective is $1,200,000,000.

Total for Monday, first day of the campaign, was $74,276,150. Tuesday's total was $56,999,850. Yesterday's total was approximately $5,000,000 down from the corresponding day of the Fifth Loan.

Yesterday individuals purchased $30,905,200 while large applications for the day totalled $34,233,400.

An overnight analysis made at the Victory Loan Headquarters showed that, up until lat night, a total of 259,822 applications had been received. Up to the same point in the Fifth Victory Loan, only 187,434 purchases had been made.

"The 70,000 increase in the number of purchases in this loan to date is most encouraging," an official stated.

Word from municipalities from coast to coast showed good progress being made. Prince Albert, Sask., for instance, announced last night it had reached 31 per cent. of its general canvass and payroll saving objective.

John Rose of Glace Bay, N.S., has 14 children but managed once again to buy a victory bond as he has done in four previous campaigns. "I want a little nest egg for my children when they grow up," Rose said.

E. Bukin, a Victoria, B.C., motorman and a veteran of the Boer war and the First World war bought bonds as he had done in every former campaign, with the terse statement this time, "To win a war you have to have men and to keep these men you have to have money."

The combined total of $18,588,200 for armed services is more than half of the final total for the whole of the last loan, and includes approximately $1,531,050 from the navy; $11,057,150 from the army; and $6,000,000 from the air force.

Naval headquarters at Ottawa did not start canvassing until Wednesday but in a matter of hours, had secured $15,500, for 4.7 per cent of a $317,400 quota.

No. 3 R.C.A.F. Training Command, Montreal, announced the following units over their quotas: Aeronautical Engineering School, Montreal; No. 4 Convalescent Hospital; No. 4 E.F.T.S., Windsor Mills, Que.; No. 13 E.F.T.S., St. Eugene, Ont.; No. 3 I.T.S., Victoriaville, Que.; and No. 16 Recruiting Centre Halifax.

Large subscriptions reported earlier included National Harbors Board $1,000,000; Imperial Life Assurance of Canada, $6,000,000; Investors Syndicate, head office Winnipeg, $850,000; Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada, Ltd., Montreal, $2,500,000; Canadian Order of Foresters, Brantford, $800,000; North American Cyanamid Limited, Niagara Falls, $1,175,000; The Premier Trust Company, Toronto, $500,000; Dominion Metallurigcal Co. Ltd., Toronto, $650,000; Ontario Loan and Debenture Co. Ltd., $750,000.

Montreal Honors 5 Airmen Killed In Liberator Crash

MONTREAL, April 27—(CP).—A verdict of accidental death was returned today by a coroner's jury following an inquest into the deaths of 15 persons,, including the five-man crew, killed when a four-engined bomber crashed here Tuesday into a flock of tenement houses. Sqdn. Ldr. Fowler Morgan Gobeil, investigating officer of the R.A.F. Transport Command at Dorval airport, testified that "no official suggestion of possible sabotage has been made to the R.A.F.T.C. court of inquiry investigating the cause of the crash."

He said that the big four-motored Liberator bomber took off at Dorval Airport at 10.24 a.m. and that the telephone call telling of the crash was relayed to him at 10.36.

He said it would have been "physically impossible" for the plane to land and take off again before crashing into a block of dwellings in Montreal's south industrial section.

He added that the plane had been tested two days before the crash and put under armed guard in one of the hangars at Dorval until it took off on its fatal flight last Tuesday.

Names of the crew were released earlier as follows:

Flt.-Lt. Kazimierz Burznyski, 47, Polish Air Force, captain of the craft. Next-of-kin in Poland.

PO. Andrzej Kuzniacki, 30, Polish Air Force, co-pilot. Next-of-kin in Poland.

Major Battle Looms For Kohima

Gains In Burma Indicate Allies Forging Ahead

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press War Correspondent

KANDY, Ceylon, April 27 (AP)—A major battle appeared imminent today as Allied reinforcements streamed into Kohima, the gateway hill town guarding the valley entrance into the plains of Assam.

The garrison of Kohima could be seen below by Japanese scattered in the nearby hills, and the reinforcements rolled forward from Manipur under the eyes of the enemy perched in hilltop fortifications.

One of the enemy's strongest points was Kohima village, about a mile west of the main town. Into this the British forces poured artillery fire.

Kohima, 60 miles north of Imphal, the military storehouse of the Manipur valley, and two-thirds the distance between that town and Dimapur, the operating centre on the Bengal-Assam supply line, promised to be an incredible battlefield, with the men fighting both on the dense jungle valley floor and 6,000 feet above sea level.

Tanks Move In

The Kohima garrison recently received tanks to help expand its perimeter, and these circled the town's outskirts, battering at Japanese bunkers with their heavy guns and shooting snipers from the chimneys of houses.

The steepness of the hills to be assaulted and the bottlenecks opening into Japanese strongholds, with narrow spaces afforded for the deployment of the attacking forces, presented many difficulties for the British.

In the air war, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's communique said a heavy air attack was made on Mandalay last night, and American heavy bombers hit Monywa and Alon on the railway from Mandalay to Ye-u yesterday.

In North Burma, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell's Chinese advancing down the Mogaung valley captured the village of Manpin, 10 miles north of Kamaing, southeast Asia headquarters announced.

The sudden success seemed to indicate that the Chinese had broken the back of Japanese resistance which had delayed his offensive the first part of this month.

A delayed dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent William Boni, written April 20 at a U.S. base in Northern India, said that British and American staff officers in that area had drawn an optimistic picture in which the Japanese were portrayed as facing the danger of a major defeat in Burma and Eastern India.

Boni quoted these officers as saying the Japanese had committed more than one-third of their entire known strength in Burma to the Indian invasion and had suffered sufficient casualties to chew up the better part of two divisions while American and Chinese forces in Northern Burma have been cutting steadily into a third division.

The invasion of Northern India, the officers added, has caused no interruption of the flow of essential supplies either to China or to Chinese forces.

7 Seamen Lost When Boats Collide In Erie

PORT COLBORNE, April 27 — (CP) — Seven seamen drowned today when the Lake freighter James H. Reed of the Pickland Mather Co. of Cleveland sank in Lake Erie after an early-morning collision, with the Ashcroft of the Canada Steamship Lines. The collision occurred in heavy fog 42 miles west of Long Point in Lake Erie.

It was learned here a little after 11 a.m. that the Ashcroft had picked up 28 of the 35-man crew of the Reed and had just received orders to proceed at once to Ashtabula, O. Five of the survivors were in serious condition from injuries suffered in the collision and from exposure in the chill waters of the lake.

Earlier Coast Guard headquarters at Cleveland told The Canadian Press that 10 men believed to have been missing and that the Ashcroft had picked up 26 survivors, three of whom were believed seriously injured.

Coast Guard planes are standing by awaiting favorable weather for a takeoff to assist in the search. A doctor was waiting to make the trip in one of the planes to give medical attention to the injured.

Second Sinking

Meanwhile Cleveland Coast Guard officials said they are also sending cutters to Pelee Point vicinity where the steamer Frank Vigor of the Columbia Steamship Co. of Cleveland sank after a collision in a fog with the steamer Philip Minch of the Kinsmen Transit Co., also of Cleveland. It was not known immediately whether there was any loss of life.

The Reed, owned by the Interlake Steamship Co. and operated by Pickand Mather, was carrying a cargo of iron ore from Escanaba, Mich., to Buffalo when she collided with the westbound Ashcroft, travelling light. The Ashcroft passed through here last night at 8.30 p.m.

The 9,250-ton Ashcroft, captained by Fred Davis of Wiarton, Ont., was badly damaged in the collision.

C.S.L. officials at Montreal said reports on the accident were "very slim" because adverse atmospheric conditions affected ship-to-shore radio transmission.

2,000 Planes Lash Atlantic Wall

Pre-Invasion Swoops Maintained On 24-Hour Basis

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 27—(AP)— Two thousand Allied planes slammed perhaps 6,000 tons of bombs on Nazi targets in the gigantic pre-invasion air offensive today—U. S. bombers pounding heavily at the German Atlantic wall after an R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. assault on Essen, Schweinfurt, and railyards near Paris.

Well over 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers rained possibly 4,500 tons of explosives and incendiaries on the Nazi cities and rail targets by moonlight, opening the 13th consecutive day of bombing. Then 500 to 750 United States heavy bombers lashed out against military objectives in northern France, supported by 250 to 500 fighters.

The night's operations, which also included Mosquito attacks on Hamburg, and mine-laying, cost 29 big bombers, one of them Canadian, and two R.A.F. Mosquitoes.

An R.C.A.F. communique said Canadian Halifaxes and Lancasters were in the force which made the Essen attack and Canadian Halifaxes helped blast the railway yards at Villeneuve St. Georges, 15 miles southeast of Paris, the communique said R.C.A.F. Mosquitoes on intruder patrol over Germany destroyed one enemy aircraft.

The German radio reported Allied planes roared into southern and southwest Germany this morning—possibly coming from Italy to make the day operations a two-way blow—and that great air battles were raging.

Four hours beginning at dawn the Channel skies were filled with planes of almost every type resuming the scourging offensive.

Essen once was the main prop of the German heavy armament industry, and was last pounded by more than 750 British and Canadian bombers March 26 and by Mosquito squadrons on April 8.

This was the ninth attack on Essen, a 600-mile round trip permitting the raiders to lug heavy bomb loads. The Air Ministry disclosed recently that the Germans had rebuilt extensively in the city, which once had been believed knocked out of the war.

Schweinfurt, hammered repeatedly by U.S. heavy bombers, is in southwest Germany 475 miles from British bases, and once produced half of all the Nazis' ball-bearings.

German bombers apparently intent on harassing invasion mobilizations struck at the English coast three times during the night, and Berlin identified objectives as the naval base of Portsmouth and other harbors.

Partisans Storm Second Island

LONDON, April 27 (CP)—Yugoslav Partisans have landed on 40-mile-long Korcula Island just off the Dalmatian coast south of Split and killed or captured 900 Germans, a communique from Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) said today.

Korcula is northwest of Mijet Island, where Tito announced yesterday that his forces had landed, and is south of Hvar, another of the Adriatic stepping-stones which the Partisans claim to have captured.

The latest, but fragmentary, reports indicate the Allies now may control most of the island chain strung 80 miles south of the port of Split.

Sweden Resents Pressure from Allies

Allies Feel Swedes Would Be Safe In Resisting Huns Because Of Aid Available

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

The United States, having expressed dissatisfaction with Sweden's rejection of the Allied request to stop sending ball bearings—vital war material—to Germany, has been reproved by the Stockholm Aftonbladet, one of Sweden's big newspapers.

Aftonbladet said Britain merely supported the request and Russia "was the last to say anything." The paper then voiced surprise that the note "came from a nation which among the Allies has done the least in the war" — and that means the United States.

We can readily understand the difficulties of Sweden's position. Ever since the war started she has beeng sitting under Nazidom's big guns, in constant danger of attack. The bulk of her essential foreign imports come from Germany, and for this there has had to be a quid pro quo. Sweden is indeed lucky in being able to maintain neutrality and indepedence.

Having admitted this we come to the present Allied viewpoint. The Allies have recognized Sweden's troubles and up until now haven't made embarrassing requests. They conceded that she wasn't prepared to stand up against Hitler's military might without aid and they couldn't give adequate help.

Now, however, the picture has changed. The Fuehrer already is a beaten man. It only remains to be seen how long he can hang on. Most experts agree with Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States Navy, that victory over Germany is possible this year.

At long last we are able to give Sweden ample aid if she is attacked by Germany. The same is true of other neutrals. On that basis the Allies feel that those who don't line up with them are against them They know that Sweden in her heart stands for the justice of the United Nations' cause. Therefore they ask her to stop rendering vital aid to the Reich and prolonging the war as we plunged into Armageddon.

And now for the claim that America has done the least among the big three. Do we measure the contribution in blood? If so we must admit that both Russia and the British Empire have had far greater casualties than the United States, which hasn't been in the war so long.

Do we gauge it by the lease-lend program under which we already have sent $22,500,000,000 to our Allies?

Do we figure it on the basis of the titanic war machine we've created?

None of these things, it strikes me, gives a correct measure. I think the only true gauge of war contribution is the will of a nation to give everything it has, in total co-operation with its Allies, to achieve victory. If each Ally does its best, then its contribution is the equal of those of the other partners—no greater, no less.

Japs Try Surrender Passes

Use Obscene Pictures To Worry Americans

WASHINGTON, April 27 — (AP) — Optimistic Japanese have been bombarding Allied troops with "surrender passes," embellished with pornographic pictures and carrying the stipulation that one pass is good for any number of soldiers.

Copies of the passes were released by the Office of War Information today along with other propaganda leaflets picked up on Allied bases in the southwest Pacific.

The surrender pass, labeled "ticket to armistice," bears printed instructions to advance toward Japanese troops, wave a white flag, and "strap your gun over your left shoulder." At the bottom, in both Japanese and English, appear the words "sing for peace, pray for peace."

Other exhibits play on the soldier's nostalgia for home, say the home front is letting him down, or contain remarks designed to arouse suspicion between the Allied troops.

Pornographic leaflets follow the propaganda line of many Japanese broadcasts, O. W. I. said, in attempts to worry men at lonely outposts, about the fidelity of wives or sweethearts. Other leaflets lampoon both political and military leaders, some suggesting that the troops are "suckers" to fight for the higher-ups. Other attempts to persuade the soldiers that life would be far easier in a Japanese prison camp.

Broken Back No Obstacle

Flier Returns To Combat Duty After Mishap

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, April 27 (CP Cable)—A Canadian Mosquito pilot, WO. M. Simms of Vancouver, who took to the air again after suffering a broken back 18 months ago, shot down an enemy aircraft over a German airfield to-day and damaged two others on the ground in an early-morning mission.

Simms, a member of the R.C.A.F. City of Edmonton Squadron, joined the unit after a remarkable recovery from the back injury. Until rescued after being hurt, he had to stay three days on Snowdon, a mountain in Carnarvon, Wales.

"When we came over the airfield it was a glorious sight to see the Hun fighters practically queueing up to land," he said on his return from the mission. "If we had time we could perhaps have done better. As it was he sent two one-second bursts into an aircraft and it went straight down."

Returning later, Simms shot up two other aircraft in their dispersal areas.

Simms' navigator, PO. J. Sharples, Toronto, also had made a recovery from illness. A sufferer from chronic air sickness, Sharples was cured after allowing himself to be used as a test patient for a new cure discovered by Canadian naval and British doctors.

Italian Front Fairly Quiet

NAPLES, April 27—(AP)—Allied troops repulsed two minor German attacks in the Canadian-held Adriatic sector of the Italian front yesterday as bad weather limited air operations to a few routine patrols, Allied headquarters announce today.

Only 80 sorties in all were flown by the Allied Mediterranean Air Force during the day and no enemy planes were observed over the battle area, a communique said. One Allied plane was reported missing.

With the exception of the brief flurry of activity on the right flank of the main 5th Army front, other sectors remained quiet.

Allied naval forces, meanwhile, were credited with sinking four small enemy supply ships, three lighters and a tug in the Ligurian Sea north of Corsica Monday night, the communique said. Prisoners were taken.

The Allied forces suffered neither damage nor casualties, headquarters declared.

The same night two enemy destroyers were reported damaged and a Corvette sunk when attacked by U.S. naval craft and Allied planes.

Field dispatches said one of the German attacks in the Adriatic sector was launched a mile south of Canosa and the other about 2½ miles west of Ortona, whch was captured by Canadian troops after bitter fighting last December. Two platoons participated in each assault.

One result of the attacks was to bring down more Allied shelling on the German lines.

Reports from the Anzio bridgehead below Rome said German prisoners recently captured there were members of the 3rd Panzer Grenadier Division, the 362nd Infantry Division and the new 4th Parachute Division.

Tea, Coffee Rations Given Boost

Coupon Values Doubled Starting Monday

OTTAWA, April 27 —(CP)—The Prices Board has announced a 40-per cent increase in Canada's tea and coffee ration starting next Monday, doubling the amount originally allowed when the two commodities were first placed under ration in August, 1942.

Announcing the increase last night, the board said coupon values will be raised to four ounces for tea or 16 ounces for coffee, with two coupons valid each month — one every second and fourth Thursday. President values are two ounces for tea and eight ounces for coffee, with coupons becoming valid at the rate of two every three weeks.

There is no change in the limit of one cup of coffee or one serving of tea in restaurants and other eating places.

(In the United Kingdom, the tea ration is two ounces a person weekly. Coffee is not rationed.)

A Prices Board statement quoted R. T. Mohan, tea and coffee administrator, as saying the increase was in line with board policy of "liberalizing rations as supply situations justify."

However, he said Canada's dependence on shipping for the commodities makes it necessary to keep a close watch on supplies, and warned that invasion plans might at any time interfere with shipping facilities from the sources of supply, principally in Ceylon and India for tea and Jamaica and Central and South America for coffee.

"There are already indications that less shipping will be available for coffee shipments in the next few months," he said.

The announcement said coupons due before May 1 but not used will be accepted on or after that date at the increased values.

Fliers Pounce On Hun Convoy

LONDON, April 27 (AP)—Carrier-based British aircraft pounced on a German convoy off the coast of northern Norway yesterday and damaged four ships and an escort vessel, the Admiralty announced today.

The attack, the announcement said, took place in the vicinity of Bodo, just north of the Arctic Circle. No details of the engagement were given.

A German broadcast yesterday said 25 or 30 British carrier-based planes had attacked a Nazi convoy off the northern Norwegian coast and admitted hits on two or the vessels. It said several of the attacking planes were shot down.

Gordon Miller Re-elected Committee Head

The first annual meeting of the Citizens Coordinating Committee was held Wednesday night in the council chamber. Gordon Miller, the chairman, welcomed the representatives of local War Service organizations and outlined the year's work. Mayor Hamilton spoke briefly and voiced the city's appreciation of the committee's efforts.

The new officers elected are as follows:—Mayor Hamilton, honorary chairman; Gordon Miller, chairman; D. J. Fitzgerald, vice-chairman; Mrs. Clare Collins, secretary; T. A. McKay, treasurer; and a general executive consisting of Mrs. W. Fanning, Mrs. Fred Hooper, Mrs. Frank Lynch, Mrs. Chil Turner, Mrs. J. A. Dewart, Capt. Doug. Loomis, Charles Saunders and Ian McRae.

The report of the Casualty Committee was given by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, who said that between December of last year and the beginning of April, 34 visits had been paid to families of men who had lost their lives or been wounded. Mrs. William Muirhead, reporting for the Comforts committee, stated that 43 letters had been sent to soldiers wounded in Italy and gift-boxes and cigarettes to servicemen in many parts of the world.

A new feature presented by the Library committee, Miss Genevieve Fowler said, was the institution of a music hour on Sundays at the Training Centre. This has been extremely successful, and provided a large number of soldiers with musical inclinations an opportunity to listen to good music. The Committee's Library at the Centre now numbers 750 volumes.

Soldiers Entertained

Outstanding among the figures revealed by the report of the Recreation committee, which was read by Miss Gertrude Cox for Mrs. J. K. Hughes, was the entertaining of 260 servicemen in her home since last October by one patriotic Peterborough woman, who preferred not to have her name known. Altogether, 2,105 servicemen were entertained in homes and at planned functions held in the Y.W.C.A. and the K. of C. halls; while 1,123 were entertained in homes by 490 hostesses. Including the 250 who assisted at Victory Loan dances, there were 2,136 hostesses provided for parties; and at present the hostess list contains 250 names.

The report of the Canteen committee was read by Miss Frances Bonnycastle, and that of the Sports committee by Dave Leether.

Progress in the outfitting of the corvette "Peterborough," which he said would probably be commissioned at Cobourg the first week in June, was reported by the Corvette committee's chairman, George MacDonald. Service clubs and church organizations have all donated generously to its being equipped with the desired articles, and a piano was given by the Peterborough Collegiate. Each man serving on the city's ship is to receive a fur-lined leather vest, the skins for which were contributed by local hunters and the tanning a gift of R. Neill, Ltd.

Mrs. W. Fanning, representing the women's division of the Corvette committee, stated that the sailors' ditty bags were now all made up and that help had been given by the Red Cross in the knitting of various articles for the Peterborough crew.

St. James Church Burns Mortgage

A mile-stone in the history of St. James' United church was reached Wednesday night, when the mortgage was burned at a celebration by the whole congregation.

A program was carried out in three sections, covering devotional, musical and social life of the church. Rev. Fred Craik conducted the devotional exercises reading for his scripture lesson Ephesians 4:1-15. He made special reference to the fine growth and development of the early church. The minister referred to the many from this congregation who are at present on active war duty, and special prayer was offered on their behalf.

Representing Peterborough Presbytery, Rev. E. W. Rowland brought greetings. He congratulated the members of the congregation on the success of their recent appeal for sufficient offerings to clear the mortgage.

Committee Members

Frank Kitney, treasurer of St. James' church, acted as chairman for the ensuing program. In a brief address, Mr. Kitney outlined the steps leading up to the appointment of the committee of five men, A. E. Saunders, B. Pitchford, G. I. Cuff, C. F. Kitney and Rev. F. W. Craik—to devise plans for the removal of the mortgage. Mr. Kitney has been an efficient worker in St. James for many years and has served on many committees for church improvement.

Mr. Cuff, treasurer of the mortgage fund, presented the financial report, and expressed his appreciation for the generous response to the appeal for at least one day's pay from all wage earners in the congregation. Mr. Pitchford, secretary, voiced his gratitude to all those who had helped to meet the full amount of the mortgage.

Oldest Member

The feature of the evening was the ceremony of burning the mortgage, conducted by A. E. Prest, one of the first members of St. James' church. He was assisted by Rev. E. W. Rowland, Rev. Fred Craik, Mr. Kitney and William Prest, Jr., grandson of A. E. Prest, who joined this church Easter Sunday.

Rev. A. W. Filer, of All Saints' Anglican church, representing the Ministerial Association, gave an inspiring address on the spirit of cooperation and loyalty in the Christian church.

George Wallace presided for the miscellaneous program which opened with community singing, with S. Hanlon as song leader, and Ashton Fife at the piano. Two piano solos were contributed by Donald Cole of Brantford.

Refreshments were served by a committee of women of the congregation, including those who had acted as canvassers for the mortgage fund.

Jap Defences Collapse At Hollandia

4 Airfields, 3 Bases Fall To Advancing Americans

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, April 27—(AP)—Utter collapse of Japanese defences at both ends of a 430-mile New Guinea war front, resulting in seizure on the west of two airfields at Hollandia and a third on the east at captured Madang, was reported today by Allied headquarters.

In four days, four airfields and three coastal bases were wrested from the Japanese. One airfield already is in use and engineers are rushing repairs on the other three.

A fifth airfield, the big Hollandia airdrome, was expected to fall momentarily to pincer forces, ending the assault phase of a big military operation undertaken last Saturday. On the west, a force has moved 11 miles to the edge of the 'drome. On the east, another force is nearing a juncture.

Madang Falls

At Madang, bypassed in the amphibious thrust into Dutch New Guinea, Australians, who for months had moved slowly coastward from the Ramu Valley, overcame enemy rearguards to invest the supply base and its airfield on the shores of Astrolabe Bay. Large quantities of supplies and equipment fell to the captors.

The entire invasion front of 150 miles between Hollandia and Aitape was crumbling. Hollandia village was taken on the second day. Today headquarters announced the occupation Tuesday of Aitape, five miles from Tadji airdrome which the Americans seized on the first day of the invasion and now is used by the 5th Air Force.

Brantford Leads Loan By Narrow Margin

Industrial Peterborough, designated as the Payroll Savings Division of the Sixth Victory Loan, has thrust a long salient toward the line of its objective, and this morning was keeping pace with the industries of Brantford.

Bill Reid of Headquarters, who is supervising this division, informed the Examiner this morning that the Peterborough Payroll Savings stood at 82 per cent of its objective on reports that 60 per cent of the Peterborough factories were "over the top."

Brantford was slightly in front Wednesday evening The farm implement city had 80 per cent of their objective and 60 per cent of their plants over the top. Corresponding Peterborough position was 76 per cent of the local objective and 60 per cent of the industries exceeding their plant goals.

Obviously that is fast work in both cities, demonstrating that the men and women of the Payroll Savings shock troops are maintaining their record of activity in the preceding campaigns.

The crew members' names were released shortly before a coroner's inquest was scheduled to start in connection with the crash. Yesterday, R. A. F. T. C. engineers and other technicians at Dorval Airport, which the bomber had left for an overseas destination a few minutes before the crash, spent the day studying the various fragments of the plane in an effort to determine the cause of the accident.

The aircraft, on Tuesday, struck a block of tenement houses near the old Canadian National Railways Bonaventure Station. Those in the tenement had no warning of what was coming, but hundreds of Montrealers had a foreboding of disaster as they watched the roof-top-skimming battle that the plane's pilot put up in a futile effort to reach the St. Lawrence river before his failing aircraft took its final plunge.

6th Loan Drive Slow In Northumberland

COBOURG, April 27 (ENS)—The Victory Loan campaign was a little slow getting underway and the totals to date are not up to par but it is expected that the drive will gain momentum rapidly and swing into full stride. On the third day of the campaign Northumberland County had bought $108,900 worth of bonds, or 6.81 per cent of the objective of $1,600,000. The totals for the various municipalities are as follows:

Cobourg, $31,850—7.96 per cent; Hamilton township, $18,250—13.04 per cent; South Monaghan township—no report; Haldimand township—no report; Alnwick township, $2,950—8.14 per cent; Percy township, $2,800—2.55 per cent; Cramahe township, $2,900—4.14 per cent.

Hastings, $5,750—12.77 per cent; Colborne, $6,950—9.93 per cent; Brighton township — no report; Brighton village $11,000—7.58 per cent; Murray township, $2,250—2.81 per cent; Campbellford, $21,700—12.4 per cent; Seymour township, $2,600—2.08 per cent; total for county, $108,900—6.81 per cent.

From Moscow To Berlin

A very interesting account has reached this continent of a broadcast from Moscow, written and delivered by an unnamed member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party; a significant part of the broadcast is translated in these words: "The task today, as the Red Army sees it, is to drive the enemy completely from Soviet soil, to pursue and batter his armed forces, not only on the territory of his vassals and states under his power, but on the territory of Germany itself".

This gives an answer to the question as to whether Russia would relax her efforts when once the Nazis were driven from Russian soil. Apparently the Red Army is headed for Berlin. And it does not expect to reach Germany alone. Here is another part of the broadcast: "By its victories, the Red Army has facilitated to the utmost for our allies the opportunity of opening military operations in the west and south for which the whole world is waiting impatiently". The reference to "the west and south" is interesting, but we cannot attach too much significance to it; nobody knows where the invasion of Europe will begin, and it is useful to us to keep the enemy guessing about as broad a front as possible. There have been indications that the Russians do not want the Allies to invade the ... which is the likeliest spot for a ... the South. But Russia can ... mind, and very quickly.

... statement also says that ... drive into Germany will be ... laboration with the Allies". ... rse, is of the greatest in... hould give Germany food ... uncomfortable reflection. ... sts from two sides would ... problems of defence to the ... even the remarkable Ger... and of strategy would be ... ned.

At the present time there is a comparative lull on the Russian front, and this may be because the Russian forces are being re-grouped, for a new offensive. This offensive, it has been suggested, might be through Poland, with a possible thrust at the Baltic states which would permit a blow at Germany from the north. And it may be that these new Russian thrusts would be co-ordinated with the Allied blow which has been expected for so many months.

The Virtues Of Basic Welsh

The Manchester Guardian, which has taken a keen interest in the proposals for establishing Basic English as a world language, recently made the suggestion that Basic Welsh might really be more satisfactory. The Basic vocabulary of the Cymric tongue, it points out, might really be less than the 850 words which are necessary for Basic English. And it adds: "Welsh would have another advantage; the appalling spelling problem which makes English, basic as well as standard, such a formidable task for the foreigner hardly exists... Welsh spelling is almost entirely phonetic; with a very few exceptions the same letters spell the same sounds".

After a decent amount of preliminary palaver about the temerity required to contradict so distinguished a journal as the Guardian our temerarious contemporary, the Brantford Expositor, proceeds to do just that. It sets down a few Welsh place names and gives an ap... tion of how they should be pro... and concludes: "It is submit... a case has been made out to ... t, whatever else Welsh spelling ... t is not, with all due respect to ... chester Guardian, 'almost en... onetic' ".

... contemporary is working from ... of the English alphabet, which ... ains 26 letters which singly and in ... bination, can be pronounced in a ... ldering number of ways. The Welsh ... abet lacks the letters j, x and z but ... ntains extra vowel sounds for y and ... nd a number of special characters ... as 'ch', 'dd', 'ff', 'ng', 'll', 'ph', 'rh', ... ell as a group of trigraphs. Understandably, an attempt to reproduce ... h words with the English alphabet ... not be a phonetic success, but the ... remains that, as the Guardian says, ... h is almost entirely phonetic in spelling. Welsh is not an easy language to learn, because its syntax is complex and the variation between the spoken and the literary language is marked, but none the less an intelligent man can learn to pronounce the sounds of the Welsh alphabet in an hour, and learn to pronounce any Welsh words he may be confronted with in another hour. Because Welsh is a language which abounds in words which are compounds of other words it looks harder than it is, but a very little familiarity robs even the formidable Llanfairpwll of its terrors.

We suspect that the Guardian was having one of its little jokes when it made its suggestion about Basic Welsh. The English-speaking peoples are eager to urge their language on others, explaining how simple it can become, but they are long faced and uncooperative when it is suggested that they should learn to speak somebody else's language, however much more convenient it may be than their own. That is human nature; it is also funny.

Cruelty Toward Children

An unusual number of instances of cruelty toward children have been reported in the news during the past few weeks: in the hinterland of Frontenac county a baby was murdered; a woman in Windsor locked a baby in a car, in zero weather, while she went to the movies; a boy suffered brutal treatment on an eastern Ontario highway; in Toronto on Monday a boy of five was struck by a motor car, and instead of being taken to a hospital he was taken to a spot six miles from the scene of the accident and thrown into a ditch, where he might have died if he had not been discovered very shortly afterward. And of course there is the case of the Gillis children of Schumaker, who died of a fire in their home while their parents were absent.

The parents of the Schumaker children have been convicted of manslaughter and have received three years each. They should think themselves lucky, for under the Criminal Code they could have been given a far heavier sentence than that, and popular opinion would have approved of it. The Gillises were recommended to the mercy of the court because they underwent severe mental suffering as a result of their negligence and its consequences; perhaps this was so. But it seems a pity that it needed so horrible an accident to make the Gillises realize that children are human beings, have feelings, are irresponsible and helpless, and must be cared for by their parents. The repentance of people who have been irresponsible, stupid and knowingly cruel for several years is not particularly impressive and, as we said before, the Gillises may think themselves lucky that their unavailing tears appealed so strongly to their jurors.

Although there have been so many instances of bad treatment of children during recent months, the number of negligent parents is not great. There are a few, however, and where they exist it is necessary to protect their children against them. There are many people who have children who have only a vague idea of what being a parent involves, but their natural kindliness prevents them from neglecting their children to the point where the latter are in danger. But where sheer selfishness and brutality endanger children the law has to take a hand in the matter, and help those who cannot help themselves.

And which will be the Victory Loan salesman's parting words to you—Goodbye, or good buy?

Spring may bring poetic inspiration to some people but it merely reminds the racing enthusiast that whatever is gıeen eventually gets clipped.

It has been suggested that Hitler go back to the paper-hanging business. We'll see about the hanging after he has been given a good pasting.

A conscientious objector who was on trial at Kirkland Lake took a punch at an R.C.M.P. man in court. Apparently he only objects to fighting in uniform.

The insignia of the newly organized Canadian Intelligence Corps contains both the true and magnetic North points of the compass. Very intelligent of them to admit that there are two opinions in the matter.

Mr. Churchill does not favour the suggestion that Britain be referred to as the "elder sister country" instead of the Mother Country, and once again the Prime Minister's taste and instinct are faultless. Unless we are badly deceived about family life, the only countries to behave like elder sisters to us were Germany and Italy.

Centenary Of A Russian Master

By GRANVILLE HILL
(In The Manchester Guardian)

ON Saturday in theatres and concert-halls throughout Russia the centenary of the birth of Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov was marked by performances of his operas and orchestral works. In honouring one of the most brilliant of their old-time "national" composers the Soviet people are proving that in spite of the changed outlook on art and literature that has been the consequence of recent great upheavals in social and political life certain romantic traditions (some will say decorative traditions) of the nineteenth century are still cherished in Russia. Rimsky-Korsakov is nearly as popular as ever in this native country, though his faults are admitted.

IT might be thought that Moussorgsky would be the nineteenth-century musician to reawaken the keenest enthusiasm there, yet we did not hear of widespread notice of his centenary year, which occurred in 1939. Moussorgsky, to whom Rimsky-Korsakov and his colleagues owed more than they knew, struggled and gained a place in the sun for Russian music, and in largely releasing his art from the grip of German forms he started his musical fellow-countrymen on the path to complete independence of idiom. While his contemporaries were deeply interested in the purely aesthetic aspect of their music, Moussorgsky was terribly in earnest about ethical matters. He held that the artist's duty is to portray life truthfully at all costs, however unpleasant that truth might be. There must be honesty before everything else. He spoke for the common people, and he often allowed the music to express itself bluntly and harshly. For each of his operas he wanted a libretto that would in some degree voice proletarian ideas, and often enough operatic managers were shy of him and, of course, operatic soloists were highly indignant because he gave more prominence to crowds on the stage than to individuals. Even in later comic works he preserved a style that told of realism.

NOW it is clear that Moussorgsky's views about the relation of life and art are similar to those held by many of the leading Soviet composers today and probably by a considerable section of the Russian musical public, yet of all her past composers it is the brilliant, elegant Rimsky-Korsakov, the man who was seldom in earnest in Moussorgsky's way and whose desire was to divorce his picturesque art from life's stern realities, whom Russia still seems to love best.

It is certainly good to hear that modern Russians applaud the elegance of his music, for though we in Britain have not yet been allowed to know a great deal about Soviet art it would seem that the composers are too much disinclined to value the lighter graces of style and expression. No doubt this is due to some extent to present or recent conditions of an exceptional kind. A little time ago certain Soviet authorities apparently wished that musical art should serve the aims of political and social propaganda. Enthusiasts for what was new even went so far as to form the Russian Association of Proletarian Musicians, and this organization — a powerful one in its time—published its reasons for insisting that the nation's composers should let certain social views influence their musical outlook. The Russians, however, soon realized that such methods applied to art would not do, and, being sensible people, they decided that the R.A.P.M. must go. It was, in fact, dissolved by Government decree in 1932.

THE heaviness that can settle on us after listening to composers who are much concerned about expressing "the Spirit of the Age" finds an excellent antidote in the sparkling style of Rimsky-Korsakov, who, whatever his opinions, rarely let anything interfere with the buoyancy and fantastic imagery of his music. He and his friend Moussorgsky shared one characteristic trait—love of the grotesque and the supernatural. Such elements constantly appear in Russian music of all periods, but these two composers brought a special aptness to their treatment of weird themes, Moussorgsky generally indulging in wild or sombre moods. Rimsky-Korsakov keeping to whimsical and extremely fantastic expression.

No musician has ever surpassed and few have equalled Rimsky-Korsakov in the use, the virtuoso's use, of the orchestra. The Russian flair for the orchestra has always been extraordinary. The success achieved strikes us as being all the more wonderful when we remember that several of the best Russian composers were really amateurs until, at any rate, they were past their early years Rimsky-Korsakov, who was a naval officer, wrote his first symphony while he was on a sea cruise lasting three years. After retiring from the navy in 1873 he soon became the director of the Free School of Music in St. Petersburg, but while there he felt it necessary to work privately at exercises in elementary harmony and counterpoint, so sketchy had been his musical education.

IN his music now most widely known — "The Golden Cockerel" and the "Scheherazade" tone poem—the economy as well as the resource of the scoring is marvellous. Without employing a large number of instruments the composer could build up a richly tinted fortissimo while the texture remains flexible and transparent—and cool. Rimsky-Korsakov was never emotional or passionate in the deeper sense of the words. In his quiet, lyrical movements as in the fantastic ones—and in both styles folk-tunes often appear—his music charms but gives out little warmth. He was quite well aware of this and content that it should be so. At his best he gives us exhilarating themes, picturesque working, and glittering instrumentation. He had a vivid sense of drama and a gift for the stinging phrase and the witty thrust. We ought to know his operas as the Russians do.

OPINIONS ACROSS THE SEA

—By Thomas

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

APATHY AND HOSTILITY

Sir,—May I have space in your columns to express some of my views regarding the proposal to establish a Provincial Park in this county. I will deal with this question from the standpoint of the business interests, from the country gas station to the local department stores, as I see it.

I noticed in a recent issue of the Examiner the announcement of a large bus terminal in this city. Rumour has it that the interests behind this project have very large sums of capital to invest in this city and district. However, that may be, I was impressed with the fact that these people were of the opinion that a greatly enhanced tourist trade for this district was a possibility and was desirable. It would seem that these people do not know as well as most of our local citizens the conditions in respect to increasing our tourist trade

Surely it is well known to the business people of this city and county that the attractions that once brought a great many tourists to this district have been declining for years as well as our tourist trade. This is unfortunate and I am sure unnecessary. However, recognizing this but doing nothing is like Mark Twain's comments on the weather—everybody talks about it but nobody does anything. Perhaps it is not quite that bad. I have been very favourably impressed with the proposal made within the past month or two to establish a Provincial Park in the north central section of this county. This project in my opinion is so sound from every angle that is is surprising to note the apathy to say nothing of the hostility with which it has been received by some of our business men. Can there be any doubt in the minds of unbiased business men that such a park would bring thousands of tourists to this district every year? I am convinced we can accept that as fact. The results where such parks have been established amply prove that. That being the case can these people holiday here without spending money? If they do spend money who will they spend it with? I would say every business in the county and city would get a share of it either directly or indirectly. Are the business people of this city in the centre of what was once the most popular tourist area in this provnice content to go along as we have in the past and watch this valuable trade here diminish steadily while growing elsewhere? As one writer aptly said in a letter to the Examiner, "The roads that bring tourists into this district will as readily take them on past it unless something is done to provide an attraction that holds them here." Can anyone suggest something more certain to do this than a Provincial Park?

Speaking of roads, the construction and maintenance of suitable roads for such a park would in itself be a worthwhile post-war project which would mean continued prosperity for many workmen and hence benefit the business interests.

The proposal to establish a Provincial Park in this county is, I believe, the most valuable from the standpoint of all classes of citizens that has been suggested in my memory.

There must be organizations in Peterborough interested enough in its welfare and with vision to see the possibilities of this project and with the energy to get behind it and accomplish something about having this proposed park established where the residents and business people of Peterborough county and city will benefit.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor — I remain, yours very truly,

W. B. LANG.

A Whiff From A Smouldering Sod

IT is Sunday night and the wind has changed; a matter that may seem trivial to record; and yet the southwest wind which has come has brought back the Ireland that I know best. It is our national wind, the wind that has made the Irish grass and the Irish character, that brings the moss on the southwest side of trees and bends the heads of all thorns, that are not well sheltered, over to the northeast. And with the southwest wind the frost is gone, and the soft airs come back, and cloudy skies; and the rooms at the back of the house are no longer scented with wood-smoke drifting in with fog from gardens that lie to the north of us. Tomorrow should be a day to suit a trip to the red bog at last....

It is a curious thing, but I know no large bog in this country that has not a small steep hill at one side of it, as though it were designed for watching the bog, and seeing who might try to come across it, and, in the only exception I know, one has been built, that is to say a rath.... As much history lies in these bogs as in books, if one has the luck to find it; for every kind of implement that man ever handled in Ireland has sunk at one time or another into the bogs, and every now and then men digging for turf find the bronze heads of spears, and sometimes even gold. ....Here also men used to bury kegs of butter in order to keep them fresh, or butter in earthenware jars; and I think that some glimpse of the yellow treasure or some story of it that changes as it was passed on and on, may be the origin of the faith throughout Ireland that little men buried crocks of gold in the bog or at the roots of thorn trees....

It is from the red bogs that they quarry with spear-like spades the turf for the Irish hearth. The scent of turf from a cottage round here is a thing one notices: further west they would be all burning it. That scent in the air is, of all odors, the most essentially Irish. Would that this book could give to any reader the atmosphere of Ireland, as the smoke of turf can call it up for me. In this smoke the spirit of Ireland seems to lurk and hide. And here is an idea that I will present to the manager of any theatre who desires to get an Irish atmosphere for some Irish play: let him, if he can imitate it, have the sound of a curlew calling occasionally in the distance and let him send into the auditorium a whiff from a smoldering sod of Irish turf. And he will get the Irish atmosphere by those means, certainly more cheaply, and perhaps more surely, than he has ever got it before.—From "My Ireland," by Lord Dunsany.

Victoria at the Play

Occasionally, there were little diversions: the evening might be spent at the opera or at the play. Next morning the royal critic was careful to note down her impressions. "It was Shakespeare's tragedy of Hamlet, and we came in at the beginning of it. Mr. Charles Kean (son of old Kean) acted the part of Hamlet, and I must say beautifully. His conception of this very difficult, and I may almost say incomprehensible, character is admirable; his delivery of all the fine long speeches quite beautiful; he is excessively graceful and all of his action and attitudes are good, though not at all good-looking in face. ....I came away just as Hamlet was over."

Later on she went to see Macready in King Lear. The story was new to her; she knew nothing about it, and at first she took very little interest in what was passing on the stage; she preferred to chatter and laugh with the Lord Chamberlain. But, as the play went on, her mood changed; her attention was fixed, and then she laughed no more. Yet she was puzzled; it seemed a strange, a horrible business. What did Lord M. think? Lord M. thought it was a very fine play, but to be sure, "a rough, coarse play, written for those times, with exaggerated characters." "I'm glad you've seen it," he added.

But, undoubtedly, the evenings which she enjoyed most were those on which there was dancing. She was always ready enough to seize any excuse —the arrival of cousins—a birthday—a gathering of young people—to give the command for that. Then when the band played, and the figures of the dancers swayed to the music, and she felt her own figure swaying too, with youthful spirits so close on every side—then her happiness reached its height, her eyes sparked, she must go on and on into the small hours of the morning. — From "Queen Victoria," by Lytton Strachey.

"Sneer From a Tyro"

In the House of Commons yesterday Conservative House Leader Graydon referred to certain remarks of Mr. King as being such as he would not have made in the days when he was a really great statesman, or words to that effect. That sort of sneer from a tyro in statesmanship who is only leading his meagre party in House because the real leader is shirking his duty of entering parliament will hardly enhance Mr. Graydon's reputation.—Toronto Star.

A Bible Message

And God spake all these words, saying, I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage....

Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared. Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not; for he will not pardon your transgressions: for my name is in him. But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and an adversary unto thine adversaries....

Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, nor do after their works: but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images. And ye shall serve the Lord your God, and he shall bless thy bread, and thy water; and I will take sickness away from the midst of thee. (Ex. 20: 1, 2; 23: 20-22, 24, 25.)

Too Much Sympathy

Severe sentences have been propery meted out to guards found guilty of laxity towad prisoners of war interned in Canada. This iclination to sympathize with a perfidious enemy no doubt springs from natural goodwill, but it effects are deplorable. Thus are explained th numerous escapes which serious people have eplored for five years. Every slackness of disipline is an encouragement to an always dagerous race. War veterans who appear to have rgotten the indignities suffered by their comrad during the last war should be made to realize th fact. They have no right to fraternize with a uel people. Moreover, so that this timely lesson ay have all the desirable effect, it is imperativhat we exercise greater vigilance with regaro pacifists, defeatists and Fifth Columnists, Cnorship frequently permits deplorable statemts to be made over the radio and in news datches, not forgetting newspaper articles ande speeches of incorrigible agitators. Everythi that helps to sow discouragement militates agst the war effort or the confidence of those o try faithfully to fulfil their patriotic dutyQuebec Le Soleil.

That Sense of Huour

There is something essentially reshing in the laconic comment of an unnamNegro pilot whose bomb-laden 'plane crashed ards away from the assembled R.A.F. highmmand in Italy some time ago. The bombs not go off and the pilot was able to walk a.

Said the pilot: "If those things gone off I would have gone to heaven with t of high-powered company."

In the London blitz, a cockney been indoors when a bomb struck. The e of the blast blew him out of a window as house collapsed. "Crikey," he remarked, "t got out of there in time."

There is something more impo than the ability to wisecrack in such incid The remarks reflect a sense of humour provides a safety valve against the mental re which might be expected in such crises. y suggest a good, honest appreciation of tdicrous, a type of nerve that will not fray rt under strain. We already have full plans for implementing the transfer of Allied fighting power from Europe to the Pacific theatre as soon as it appears that Germany is defeated."

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

With four clubs already entered, a fifth practically certain and good prospects of a sixth outfit falling in line the Ladies' City Softball League look to be in for another good season. The annual meeting of the organization was held last night and the four teams definitely entering were the champion Westclox, the Aircraft club who were runners-up, the Brintons, intermediate 1943 title-holders and the Johnson Motors. The Quakers are a very likely entry and it is expected that there will be a team out of the C.G.E., although the Generals and Electrics were not represented at last night's meeting. President Bill Bennett, connected with the league for many years was returned as president. A move on which the loop is to be congratulated is the effort that will be made to organize a junior section for girls 16 years and under. This is the first step that has been made to develop players among the younger girls and is deserves to succeed. Boys have the School League and the lower divisions of the Church League to give them opportunities to learn the game and play organized ball but there have been no similar chances for the girls.

* * * * * *

The Westclox girls are to be congratulated upon their clean-cut win of the first place in the Ladies' City Five Pin League which ended its long schedule on Monday night. The Big Bens who have been consistently steady all season, took over first place early in the campaign and were never headed after that. Outboard Marines pressed them closely during the first part of the schedule but dropped behind half way home and since then the Westclockers have been sailing along in front by a comfortable margin. They wound up seven points ahead of Outboard Marines, Westclox having a season's total of 68 points as against 61 for their nearest rivals. Outboards in turn were 14 in front of the third place Commandos who came on toward the end of the schedule to pass the Brinton girls who for a long period were in the third slot. Brintons took fourth with 45, Lucky Strikes were close behind with 44 and the rest of the teams finished as follows: Corvettes 42, Maple Leafs 34, Generals 30, Beavers 22 and Five V's 12. Westclox team made up of Aggie Anderson, Marg Hawthorne, Marg Selkirk, Isobel Bullock and Audrey Livingstone were hitting up around the 3000 mark all through the campaign and earned their victory by the steadiness of their trundling. They managed to go through the schedule without anything that looked like a slump.

A Peterborough Coach

From Petawawa Camp Bud Lloyd of Peterborough sends this column a number of copies of the camp newspaper, the Grenade, one of which is especially interesting because it contains a picture of Sergt. W. H. Joiner of Peterborough who has come into sport prominence at the big camp as trainer of one of the boxers who have won the right to battle in the zone finals. Sergt. Joiner who used to box here before donning the khaki has been coaching P. H. McQuade of Toronto who won the welterweight honors. In forwarding the Grenades Bud Lloyd writes: "You probably will be interested in some sport news from the big Petawawa Camp, especially in regard to the boxing championships with Sergt. W. H. Joiner of Peterborough one of the coaches for the welterweight champion, P. H. McQuade of Toronto. Then we have Lieut. Jimmy Gilkes, outstanding Canadian athlete as sports officer for the camp. He has a pretty good record himself in track and field, baseball, hockey, soccer and lacrosse. Looks like another big season for sports in army camps across Canada so naturally the boys like to read in your column about who's who at the different training centres. Keep in there for the young lads who some day will be dishing up the sports for the sport fans in Peterborough. They always need encouragement and you seem to be doing a pretty good job in your column."

George H. Campbell, took a page and a half in the Oshawa Times-Gazette to chortle over the triumph of the Generals. Here is a sample of the Campbell gloating: "Dominion champions—that's all! Across Canada today the Oshawa Generals have their name emblazoned as Monarch of the Junior hockey world and hockey fans throughout the Dominion, not as enthusiastically perhaps elsewhere as right here at home, but nevertheless joining the refrain, are singing the praises of what many claim is one of the greatest teams to ever represent Eastern Canada in the Memorial Cup finals. "It Was A Glorious Victory!" Oshawa's hockey fans, the like of which there is no whicher, had a chance to revel in the ecstacy of victory and a championship. Oshawa has been termed "Junior Hockey's No. 1 Hotbed." We ourselves have frequently referred to it as "Canada's Greatest Junior Hockey Town." In this fame and glory, the Oshawa Hockey Club, with an efficiency and wealth of administration talent such as perhaps no other club enjoys, must be given a full share of credit. From their genial president, J. B. Highfield, "Dean" of the Generals, right down the line of executives, the Oshawa Hockey Club has the right man doing the right job, secretary, treasurer, transportation, team coaching, team managing, trainer, stick-boy and every position on the ice not a spot is neglected. With such an efficient set-up, only one thing is needed to assure perfection, that's a contingent of loyal, ("rabid," if you like) supporters and Oshawa hockey fans fill that item on the bill 100 per cent."

Browns Still Winning

They haven't found a way to stop those amazing St. Louis Browns yet. The American League leaders reeled off their seventh straight win at the expense of the Cleveland Indians yesterday and incidentally equalled the league record for opening winning streaks. Steve Sundra went the route and picked up his second triumph of the season. He allowed ten hits as against six off the delivery of Reynolds but the Brownies won the argument 5 to 2. Hank Borowy of the New York Yanks, incidentally, is on a winning streak of his own. He grabbed off his second triumph of the current campaign at the expense of the Philadelphia A's yesterday and that made nine in a row for Hank who finished the 1943 season with seven straight wins. The Yanks sparked by Nick Etten's second homer of the season took the tussle 6 to 2. Another two-game winner is Early Wynn of the Washington Senators who tossed a six-hitter against the Boston Red Sox yesterday as the Senators eked out a 2 to 1 victory. Incidentally Washington have won only two games this season and Wynn has pitched both of them showing that after all there is a lot in a name.

* * * * * *

The St. Louis Cards were beaten for the second successive time by the Cincinnati Reds when Frank McCormick's first homer of the season sent the only run of the game over in the 13th frame but probably Billy Southworth does not believe that the day was a complete loss. He took the wraps off a star rookie pitcher Alvin Jurisch, who had enough stuff on the ball to blank the Reds for 12 innings before yielding the first marker of the game. The veteran Bucky Walters was the winning pitcher, getting the decision on the only run the Reds have been able to make for him this season. The win left the Reds tied with the Giants for first place with the Cards half a game behind the leaders. In the other National League game Elwin Roe, from the American Association pitched the Pittsburg Pirates to their first win. Roe held the Chicago Cubs to seven scattered hits, the Pirates getting the nod by a 6 o 1 count.

4 Home Runs Brighten Games

By the Associated Press.

Catchers, the most underrated diamond performers, had quite a day for themselves in yesterday's International League baseball program.

The mask and mitt men accounted for four homers, 10 hits and 11 runs batted in.

The most prominent receiver was Stan Andrews, who helped Montreal gain a 13-inning decision from the Baltimore Orioles 11-8. Andrews made four hits, including a double and home run and batted in four runs. His round-tripper came in the ninth with two on which forced the game into extra-innings.

Sherman Lollar, 17-year-old catcher of the Orioles, kept his team in the game by clouting a homer in the seventh inning.

Otto Denning, regular catcher of the Buffalo Bisons, playing in the left field, hit a double and home run which drove in four runs and paced his team to an easy 9-3 victory over the Newark Bears Jack Tising, veteran Bison hurler, went all the way, issuing no walks, and struck out eight Bears. Walt Van Grofski, Newark catcher, also hit a home run.

The Rochester Red Wings eked out a 1-0 shutout over the Jersey City Giants. Pitchers Jean Pierre Roy of the Birds and young Bob Henry of the Giants each allowed only two hits, but Henry gave up nine bases on balls, which finally proved his undoing

Rochester scored in the eighth on a hit batsman, two walks and a single by Jack Study. Dave Rice, Rochester catcher, made one of the two Birds' hits.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP). — Ever hear of an all-star baseball team made up entirely of pitchers ....No. It takes a guy like Ernie Lanigan to figure out one like that. Here they are, in their regular positions, and all guys who pitched in the majors at one time: Outfield, Turkey Mike Donlin, Babe Ruth and James J. Callahan; first base, Don Brouthers; second base, Kid Gleason; third base, Rhody Wallace; shortstop, John Montgomery Ward; catcher, Roger Bresnahan; pitcher take your pick ,but how about old Tony Mullane, who died yesterday? Mullane not only was big league baseball's only ambidextrous pitcher, but one of 13 who won 300 games.

Practical Attitude

Fight fans at the Broadway arena Monday night were all excited when one preliminary boy punched another all over the ring and finally flattened him in the third round. But Nat Rogers Mike Jacobs' matchmaker, didn't seem to share their enthusiasm. He just sat by the ringside when a beachoomber rushed up and asked: "There's a swell scrapper, ain't he, Nat?" "Yeh," grunted Rogers, "but he's a soldier so what good is he to anyone?"

A Rookie a Day.

Joe Just Cincinnati catcher—Joe handled such pitchers as Whit Wyatt and Joe Heving at Milwaukee in 1938 but while they were going up, he's had nothing but hard luck that culminated with a year's idleness last season. Rejected for services because of three brain concussions suffered on the ball field. Also suffered two broken thumbs within nine weeks at one time....Apparently Just is just the kind of player needed this season.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Turf followers who pressed all kinds of horse-drawn conveyances into use in order to attend Eire's "Ascot" in county Kildare found some reward in witnessing a filly, Princess Philippa, take the Touche Memorial Cup at the stupendous odds of 467 to 1. Even funeral coaches were used by some to make the 26-mile trip from Dublin, paying as high as £5 for a seat in such vehicles. Many race horses had to be walked miles to the track before starting in the races at the two-day meeting.

M. B. Goff's Skytracer sprang a surprise at Churchill Downs yesterday in winning the $10,000 Blue Grass Stakes in a field of eight Kentucky Derby candidates, paying $22 to win. Challenge Me, the favorite, was soundly beaten in the mile and a furlong race.

The appointment of Maj. Harry Beaumont of Toronto, Sports Officer in the last war, as successor temporarily to Maj. Ian Eisenhardt as Army Sports Director at National Defence Headquarters was confirmed last night at Ottawa. Maj. Eisenhardt becomes National Fitness Director of the Department of Pensions and Health May 1.

President T. P. Gorman of the Quebec Racing Association announced yesterday at Montreal a general increase in purses for races on Quebec tracks this season. The minimum will be $400 and there will be a $500 main event daily, with $600 to $1,000 handicaps Saturdays and holidays.

Owner W. G. Irvine and Jockey Hedley Woodhouse, both of Vancouver, had the winning mount, Sad Story, in the feature race at Bay Meadows track, San Mateo, Calif., yesterday, the backers getting $5 to win.

Tony Mullane, 85, former big league pitcher who won more than 300 games in his 25-year career, died yesterday at Chicago. He became an ambidextrous twirler when he developed a sore right arm while playing for Detroit.

Merritton Team Takes 2nd Win

ST. CATHARINES, April 27 (CP) —Merritton Hayes Steel last night downed United States Army Engineers of Edmonton 52-35 to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series for the Canadian Senior Basketball championship.

The Merritton quintet, Eastern Canadian champions, won the first game 63-61 in overtime Monday but dropped the second encounter Tuesday night, 51-43.

Fourth game of the series will be played here today.

For the third successive night Jack Gullegson, former University of Wisconsin athlete, led Edmonton with 15 points. Mazza, with 19 points and Captain Sal Maglie with 10, were top scorers for Merritton.

TORONTO, April 27 — (CP). — This is sure to start up another argument President Frank Shaughnessy of the International Baseball League says that baseball is getting "sissified," and there is not enough of the old-time rough-and-ready play in the game now.

The great Shag told Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley in New York that the "namby-pamby stuff and the white-collar idea has replaced the sweatshirt a little too much." The game needs a few more men of the John McGraw and Tyrus Raymond Cobb type to restore its vitality, Shag expounded.

This Ancient vs. Modern feud is always good for hours of argument, so Shaughnessy's statement will start some debates around the corner lots. Probably the International prexy has some ideas like those of Dick Irvin, Canadiens' hockey mentor, to speed up the game and pep up its crowd appeal to a more satisfactory point.

Incidentally, Shag is justifiably proud of his family's record. He has sons in three services of the United States and Canadian Armed Forces. The Shaughnessy's are an international family, and even Shag has a hard time remembering which ones are Canadians and which are Americans, he has shuttled back and forth across the border so much.

Remember the day:

W. J. Holmes, manager of the Winnipeg Amphitheatre Rink, is retiring May 1 after 44 years seeing the best in Western hockey go by the boards and about the nets. He has selected his all-time all-star senior and junior teams at long last. On the senior team he places Charlie (Chuck) Gardiner in goal, Ching Johnson and Moose Goheen on defence, and Dick Irvin, Tommy Philips, and oJhnny Gottselig on the forward line. His juniors he lists as Gardiner in goal again, Bill Mackenzie and Paul Thompson on defence, and forwards Cooney Weiland, Herbie Lewis and Johnny McCreedy.

Incidentally:

Former United States public links champion Scotty Campbell recently made his first Vancouver appearance since 1938. Campbell, twice Canadian titleholder, took time out from his U.S. Navy duties to play an exhibition match for a war charity....The historic Wanderers Grounds in Halifax may be turned into a huge community youth centre after the war. The sport centre now is operated by the Navy League as a recreation field for the services....Lynn Patrick of the Hockey Clan Patrick, is at an Officers' Training School at Fort Custer, Michigan....For the first time in years, Toronto Collegiate Schools this spring are operating a spring training league to get the youngsters in shape for the summer's baseball doings....Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson points out that Leo Dandurand and Joe Cattaranich tried out the uniform color system for horses on Montreal tracks several years ago, but decided to restore the regular system because of sentimental attachments.

St. Louis Browns Tie Record Set By Yankees

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

At the rate those unbeaten St. Louis Browns are going they're liable to finish second in the American League. Nobody's out in front of them or even close behind but old man precedent says they can't win the pennant.

When the Brownies stopped Cleveland, 5-2, yesterday they tied the Yankees' 1933 league record for most consecutive games won at the start of the season with seven. However, the New Yorkers of that year wound up seven games behind Washington in October. Yesterday's triumph was Steve Sundra's second straight victory.

Hank Borowy also joined the ranks of two-time winners as the Yankees squared the series with Philadelphia 6-2. He now has won nine successive League games since last Aug. 10 in addition to one world series and two exhibition triumphs. Hank allowed 11 hits but Nick Etten thumped the A's into submission with a two-run homer, a double and a single.

Early Wynn and Gil Torres took the bows in Washington's 2-1 edge over Boston. Wynn allowed only six hits all singles, in hanging up victory No. 2 and Torres, the Cuban third baseman, rapped out a double and single, driving in both runs scored off Yank Terry.

Buck Walter knows now that Cincinnati can score but he was beginning to doubt it after pitching 21 innings over a two-game stretch during which the Reds had not crossed home plate. Frank McCormick finally broke it up with a 13th-inning home run, giving Cincinnati and Walters a 1-0 nod over rookie Alvin Jursich of St. Louis Cardinals.

Vince DiMaggio collected a home run with two men on and a double in Pittsburg's 6-1 pummeling of Chicago. Preacher Roe coasted in with a seven-hitter after a five-run Pirate spurt in the sixth.

Detroit-Chicago in the American and Brooklyn-Boston in the National were postponed on account if cold and rain. The Giants and Phils were not scheduled.

By HYE BOSSIN

The Thin Man will go on the waterwagon in his next, "The Thin Man Goes Home." Yes, William Powell will return to that popularization, with Myrna Loy taking her place as his wife, and he'll be a teetotaler. This is because a form of prohibition is returning to films, scenes with hard-to-get spirits flowing too easily being considered disturbing to the general public. It wasn't so long ago that steak-eating scenes were cut down and large herds began diminishing in Western films. Keeping pace with present limits makes the film seem more real . . . The war film, recently unsparing in its scenes of actual horror, will be toned down again at the suggestion of Washington. This replaces an earlier request for grim picturization to help overcome complacency . . . Gene Kelly and Fred Astaire, the screen's greatest dancers, will hoof it together in the new film, "Ziegfled Follies" . . . Ann Sothern's "Maisie" series, discontinued a while back, will come back on a more ample scale, since it was discovered Ann in that series was a favorite of troopers.

Much has been made of the early days of motion pictures but little has been said of their predecessor, the magic lantern which projected slides. Edison's Kinetoscope, when first shown fifty years ago, was a peep show gadget which could entertain but one person at a time. It wasn't for two years after another inventor showed how to throw an image on a screen, thus entertaining many.

Screen projection as entertainment is almost ancient. An advertisement in the London England, Observer of January 6, 1805, stated that:

"The Magic Lantern is a pleasing Family amusement well suited to all ages and both sexes . . . a cheerful house should never be without one. Each has twelve sliders, on which are finely painted about sixty grotesque figures, which by reflection are magnified from a miniature, as large as nature, which may entertain twenty persons, or more, at the same time. Prepared and sold by J. Scott, No. 17, Strand, London, which, please to observe, is seven doors from Bedford-street, Strand, as you go towards the City."

The mechanical side of the Magic Lantern is substantially unchanged and, despite the growth and modernization of other forms of entertainment, is still popular with children.

Wrote Harpro Marx to a friend: "I'd change places with Jascha Heifitz any day. It's a lot easier to get on a street car with a fiddle than a harp" . . . Jimmy Durante is writing a book called "Durante: Patron of the Arts" . . . "Mother told me," said young Jackie Jenkins of 'The Human Comedy' after being praised for his work in the forthcoming 'National Velvet,' "that if I acted real well I might get an Oscar to play with" . . . Ann Sheridan's newest title, bestowed by paratroopers is "The girl we would like to make our jumps with" . . . One of the rarest films in years is "The Sullivans," the true story of the family which lost five sons in this war. One critic wrote that it is "as homespun as apple pie, as warm and glowing as a fireplace on a bitter winter evening, yet throught it breathes a description-defying magic." . . Laurel and Hardy will make a film about bullfighting . . . Joel McCrea, off the screen for six months while working for the government, returns in "Fear." Gail Russell, who did so well in "The Uninvited," will play opposite him.

Army Boxers Nearing Class Titles

PETAWAWA CAMP, Ont., April 27 (CP)—Thirteen Canadian Army boxers, victors in the first round of the Eastern Canada tournament here last night, will appear tonight in novice and open finals, the winners to meet the Western Canada winners in grand finals at Ottawa next month.

In last night's open events, two scrappers, Sgt. Robbie Robertson, Toronto, and Pte. Vern Escoe, shifty Toronto heavyweight, knocked out their opponents. Robertson accounted for Pte. Willard McCormack, Saint John, N.B., in a featherweight bout and Escoe flattened Lieut. Louis Roberge, Victoriaville, Que., in the second round of a heavyweight match.

Tr. Len Wadsworth, Timmins, Ont., Canadian middleweight boxing champion, will meet Sgt. Rene Leclerc of Sherbrooke, Que., in the final of the middleweight open class. Wadsworth defeated Cpl. Joe Malinowski, Sydney, N.S., last night. In his corner as a second was Cpl. Norman (Baby) Yack, former Canadian bantamweight champion.

In a light heavyweight open bout, Gnr. Ben Paterno, Toronto, scored a technical knockout over Pte. Don Hanson, Windsor, Ont., in the first round and in a heavweight open match Gnr. Mike Jeles Port Colborne, Ont., knocked out Bdr. Harold Brown, Toronto, also in the opening round.

Despite army boxing rules calling for applause at the end of rounds, a decision given Pte. Gordon McGlynn, Kingston, Ont., over Pte. Louis Fey, Grandmere, Que., was booed lustily by the audience of servicemen. The battlers met in the lightweight open class.

Results:

Sport Continues

CAIRO, April 27 (CP) — Royal Canadian Air Force fellows in the Middle East, orientating themselves without too much trouble, have transplanted successfully all their favorite sports with the exception of hockey. There's a local version of the ice game but it's played on roller skates and hasn't clicked with the ice-minded airmen.

Senator Says Judge Underpaid

OTTAWA, April 27.—(CP).—Senator John T. Haig (PC-Manitoba) said yesterday in the Senate that there might well be only one court of appeal for the three prairie provinces, "and it would not be overworked."

He spoke on second reading of a bill to provide for the salary of a third judge of the Exchequer Court of Canada which already has been approved by the Commons.

Senator Haig said there might be too many Judges in Canada, but he believed the salaries paid Judges in general were insufficient in light of the income tax reductions now being made.

He said $9,000 annually would be sufficient for an Exchequer Court Judge if he received that amount. Actually he would only obtain about $5,000 and when the income tax laws were being amended consideration should be given the Judge's position.

It was not fair to ask men to retire from active business and take offices as Judges at such salaries. A Judge of the Exchequer Court dealt with cases involving very large amounts of money.

The Senate meets again this afnoon.

Meet Again

LONDON, April 27—(CP-Reuters).—The King received Prime Minister Churchill in audience at Buckingham Palace yesterday. This was second time within 24 hours that Mr. Churchill had seen the King. Last night after spending the day inspecting Canadian invasion troops the King dined with the Prime Minister at 10 Downing Street.

SHINNING UP — Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Peterborough War Finance Committee, is here giving W. Pilling, King George Street, a member of the Merchant Marine, a shoe shine just as he promises to do to the highest bidder for his services at the "Odd Jobs Auction" to be held in the Collegiate Auditorium on May 3 under the auspices of Sixth Victory Loan. A shoe shine from the chairman should be worth at least a $1,000 bond. It is reported members of the Coffee Club are going to make the buyer pay dearly for Mr. Matthew's services. (Parks' Studio Photo.)

Pouliot Angry At Press Censorship

OTTAWA, April 26.— (CP).—J. F. Pouliot (L-Temiscouta) askek yesterday in the Commons how "it is that there are members of the Information Board who go around to the press with scissors, telling them not to publish this and that which honorable members have said?"

(Mr. Pouliot later told The Canadian Press that he was referring to the Canadian Wartime Information Board.)

Speaking during discussion of the report of the Committee on Rules and Standing Orders, Mr. Pouliot said he was "not making complaint against the two agencies. The Canadian Press and the British United Press, but there are those who do not want these reports published, and it is these very gentlemen who complain afterwards that members are not doing their duty."

"Let them inform first their readers of what we are doing, and afterwards they will be in a position to criticize what we have done, and their readers will be sufficiently informed to give a fair judgment."

Mr. Pouliot said that the rights of private members were being curtailed "because of the fear that the government and the Opposition have of the yellow press, which has been complaining, not of the Government, nor of the Opposition, but of the role of Parliament."

"I defy the press tycoons of Montreal or anywhere else to discuss that matter wtih a Member of Parliament who knows what the rights of a Member of Parliament are."

Use Round Ring

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27 —(AP).—The "round ring" made its debut in a wrestling match last night and drew approving comments from the gravplers and observers accustomed hitherto to the traditional "squared circle." Ivan Rasputin, Russian wrestler, and Pat Fraley of Boston said the circle speeded their action. There were no corners to hide in, they observed. For those who care who won, Rasputin took two falls, Fraley one.

Three Women Granted Leadership Diplomas

MILLBROOK, April 27—(ENS)——An interesting event of the Sunday School session at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday morning was the dedication service and the presentation of leadership training certificates to Miss Mary L. Widdis, Mrs D. L. Lunn, and Miss Marguerite Powell, who have successfully completed Unit 3 of the Standard Leadership Course. The text studied was "The Teaching Values of the New Testament," by Rev. J. M. Duncan, D.D., and the period completed was the special Lenten course of study under the leadership of Miss E. L. Hetherington, who held the classes at her home on Sunday evenings, and who presented the certificates.

Each class included, besides the period of study, a worship service, a sing-song, and prayers offered by the members of the group, all of whom were interested students, but not all of whom have yet completed the unit. For Mrs. Lunn it was the concluding unit of the entire course, and she received her standard leadership diploma. All members of the class, following the concluding dedicatory prayer, signified their desire and purpose to go on with the work as opportunity offers.

General Canvass Starts To Lag In City

Sale of Victory Bonds by general canvass in the city and county up to Wednesday evening amounted to 11.67 per cent of the Peterborough rural and urban objective as compared with the required 16.66 per cent for the first three days.

Not one of the municipal sections stood level with the percentage requirement. North Monaghan was close to the bull's-eye with 15.75 per cent of its township objective.

City of Peterborough general canvass was second with 13.02 per cent; the united townships of Belmont and Methuen was in third place with 13 per cent; Norwood was in fourth place with 12.84 per cent; Smith was fifth with 10.77 per cent; Otonabee sixth with 9.15 per cent, Havelock seventh with 7.5, and Dummer eighth with 6 per cent of its objective.

The total rural general canvass counted a total of $49,250 of the objective of $600,000, or 8.21 per cent; and the total city and county general canvass turned in subscriptions amounting to $251,050 of the joint objective of $2,150,000; or 11.67 per cent—and to repeat, the required percentage for those first three days was 16.66.

Some of the municipalities seem to be only stirring into action, but each day's percentage moves up mathematically toward the 33.33 per cent at the end of this week, and 100 per cent at the close of the campaign.

"It's A Long Way To Go"

The General Canvass is not the whole story at headquarters, but this division is so important to the success of the Sixth Victory Loan in Peterborough city and county that it should be kept in clear focus. The general canvass from house to house along city and village streets and township concession lines corresponds in a way to the infantry battalions in the front line,—Cassino on the Italian front will do for an example.

And the Home Folks of this integral division have not reached in three days the financial forward posts which were assigned to them. The disparity is measured by those percentage figures: 11.67 as compared with 16.66.

If the citizens and farmers had been asked to advance 16.66 miles and they had been halted at 11.67 miles, or may be they became weary, or they were satisfied to settle with the enemy for 11.67 miles instead of that farther objective of 16.66 miles, —well, that's the illustrative story on the ground maps.

There may be a lot of the Commando spirit on the Home Front in Peterborough city and county, but so far it isn't in there fighting with the spirit that will not be satisfied with anything less than the day to day objective.

C.G.E. Loan Register Has Risen To $374,600

The April sun was beaming this morning on the big register overlooking the front lawn of Canadian General Electric Company and Genelco, Limited.

In big figures that could be plainly seen out at Rubidge Street or even at the Townsend Street plant, fresh figures which had been posted over night, the subscription of the two staffs to the Sixth Victory Loan stood out at $374,600. And the target they are shooting at down there is $450,000.

The canvassing forces are hoping to wind up their campaign by the end of the week, and as in almost every effort they are finding the last $100,000 more difficult to accumulate than the first.

Employees of the two big shops are in exactly the same position as every other Canadian, confronted with the challenge: "Don't weaken at this stage! Take a good look at the Germans and Italians who started this thing to grab big slices of the world. Now they find they've got hold of the tail of a tiger, and they can't let go, at least not the Japs and Huns! And right now they both know they're licked!"

Man Sentenced To 10 Days In Assault Case

"This does not seem to be a case for a fine," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after he had found Alfred Marshall guilty of assaulting Amy Barnes, a visitor in town from Arnprior, Ont.

Marshall was sentenced to ten days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Miss Barnes testified that she had met Marshall on Monday afternoon when she called to see a friend in a Hunter Street apartment. She swore that she had accepted his invitation to visit a beverage room and later to have supper at a restaurant. Later they had driven to a house in town and had had several drinks of liquor.

Finally the two started out in a taxi and witness said that they had got out near some railway tracks.

Fell On Tracks.

"He was very insulting and I started to run away from him," said the Arnprior girl, adding that she had fallen on the railway ties and injured her hands.

At this stage of her evidence the witness started to sob loudly and ran out of the witness-box.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., asked that the balance of her evidence should be heard in camera and Magistrate Langley agreed.

Witness said that Marshall had put his hand over her mouth when she started to scream. "I don't know whether my mouth was cut then or when I fell," she said, adding that eventually she ran to a nearby factory building and sought assistance.

Mabel Barnes, not related to the previous witness, and Shirley Primeau, both employees of the C.G.E. Plastics department, told of the girl's coming to that plant on Monday night. They said that she was very hysterical, her clothing dirty, and her stockings torn.

Saw Cuts.

Mrs. D. M. Maguire, police matron, who saw the Barnes girl shortly afterward corroborated the evidence of the other two witnesses. She said that the girl was bleeding from the corner of her mouth and her knees were scraped. She could smell beer off her breath, she said.

Marshall, who conducted his own defence, called Thomas Hogg, who was with the accused when he met the Arnprior girl in the afternoon. He said that Marshall had had plenty to drink at that time and that accused and the girl had left to visit a beverage room.

The accused did not go into the witness-box, but in his argument said that both he and the girl had been drunk. He denied assaulting her but said that he might have put his hand over her mouth when she tried to scream.

FIVE-ACRE NOSE BAG

On the average it takes five acres of land to raise feed for a single horse for a year.

Farm Auction Is Set For Training Centre

Some persons, probably farmers, are going to get: one pure bred Holstein calf; one pure bred Jersey calf; one ton of Canada Packers fertilizer; 50 pounds of binder twine; one barrel of cement; one horse blanket; and so on down a list of valuable and practical articles that are going to be given for pledges to buy Victory Bonds at the auction Saturday night in the drill hall at the Training Centre.

These premiums,—and no Victory Bond requires any other premium than its purpose and the interest it pays—will be distributed at the Training Centre and not at the Co-Op Hall, as advertised in bills posted in and around the city.

The surprising success of the sale in Lakefield town hall the other night, advised the transfer of the local sale to the larger auditorium at Peterborough's Training Centre. The attendance of 650 at Lakefield packed the hall, and the net results were pledges to buy $10,000 in Victory Bonds.

The program for Saturday night includes musical features by Graydon Sheldon's orchestra, Cowboy Singers, tap dancers and so on; the auction of Victory Bonds; and dancing until midnight.

How It Operates

Gordon Hancock will be auctioneer of the premiums which are allotted on the basis of pledges to buy Bonds.

This is how the selling stunt is operated. For instance one of the premiums is a case of canned peas. Mr. Hancock will open up with "How much am I offered for this case of canned peas, etc.," and some one bids "one $50 Victory Bond."

Some woman in the audience who intends to buy a $100 Bond will raise the ante to a "$100 Bond," and if that is the last bid for the case of peas, this woman signs a pledge to buy the $100 Bond. The pledge is transferred to the canvasser in her district, in the city or in the county, and he presents it to her at her house. And that completes the deal.

This successful bidder gets her $100 Victory Bond, plus the case of peas.

The idea was new at Lakefield, and the man who bid $100 for the ton of Canada Packers fertilizer was probably the most surprised person in the crowd when he realized the additional value that fell into his hands. The Examiner was told today that the ton of C.P.C. fertilizer was worth around $34.

Wide Range of Articles

Farmers know the value of Jersey and Holstein calves, some where around $100, according to sale prices. The articles on the premium list for Saturday represent a wide range of value, and will appeal to both rural and urban buyers.

And when the auction is ended, Sheldon's orchestra will take over for the concluding dance.

The premiums and their donors are as follows: three halters, B. C. Ackerman Company; three clocks, Western Clock Company.

Quaker Oats Company are sending: 5 sacks of Ful-O-Pep Calf Meal; 5 sacks of Quaker Pig Starter; 5 sacks of Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter; 5 sacks of Ful-O-Pep 24% Dairy Ration.

Canada Packers — one ton of fertilizer.

Kingan Hardware—two forks.

J. J. Turner & Sons—one horse blanket.

Pratten Hardware—one pail.

Chown's Hardware—one hammer.

C.D.S.—one smoke stand.

Scarfe Company—one gallon of paint.

Standard Farm Supply—one gallon fly spray.

A. Wander Co.—3 cans Ovaltine.

Peterborough Examiner—one subscription.

J. J. Duffus Company—one automobile battery.

National Grocers — one case of peas.

Dewart Brothers — 5 bags Hog Grower.

Peterborough Fuel & Transfer—one 25-pound can grease.

Peterborough Lumber Company—one barrel cement.

Campbell Dairy—one Jersey heifer calf.

Silverwood's Dairy—one Holstein heifer calf.

Curtis International Harvester—50 pounds binder twine.

Myers Studio—three portrait pictures.

D. Belleghem and Son—one parlor chair.

The purpose of the auction is mainly to inject a note of novelty into this Sixth Victory Loan campaign. No one imagines that "Backing Up The Attack," and those are awesome words, depends on the offering of additional premiums to the public. The Home Front has not failed yet, but some little incidental stimulus of a community gathering will add a touch of variety to the Drive, and will give the sale of Bonds, or rather the personal investment in Victory Bonds, an added feature of publicity.

Two-Month Term Given Man For Purse Theft

Two months imprisonment in the county jail was the sentence imposed on Harold Brooks in police court this morning after he had been convicted of stealing a purse from the Richard Hall store. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., warned the accused that if he appeared in court again he would receive a reformatory sentence.

Ruth Pogue, checker in the store, identified a purse produced as similar to one of several such purses that had been on sale. She swore that when she returned after lunch she had seen the accused go into the store.

Lillias Prouty, clerk at the purse counter, identified the purse as one of two that had been on sale. She had notice that one purse had disappeared and knew that it had not been sold. Miss Prouty said that on that afternoon she had seen Brooks in the store.

Allan Banks swore that Brooks had tried to sell him a similar purse to the one entered as an exhibit, asking 75 cents for the purse.

Constable Ernest Beatty testified to finding the stolen purse in Brooks' possession.

The accused took the witness box but his evidence was largely along the line of argument and when he concluded Magistrate Langley registered a conviction.

Brooks' record showing several convictions for receiving stolen property was presented to the court.

C.G.E. Workers Make $80 For War Victims

All types of new enterprises like to get away to a good start, and in the case of a new industrial work this would apply very much to both the management and the workers themselves, for the success of each is dependent upon the other to a marked degree.

This city and its industrial workers may in the days to come be considered fortunate in having what is practically an entirely new industry located here, and there seems considerable promise that it may prove to be quite an asset in the days of post-war reconstruction, for the new Plastics department of the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., which will commence operations in its new plant this week, is the most extensive of its kind in this country.

As a prelude to its official opening for business purposes, the new building itself was first utilized for the purpose of extending a helping hand to those stricken through enemy air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, by the holding of a social evening for the workers last Friday evening, with a committee composed of Robert Batley, Mesdames E. Rogers, R. Pearce, and R. McLean, the Misses Jean Curtain, B. Stephenson and Jean Foster, and Messrs. Leo Gough, Thomas Stewart, J. Copping and L. Fleetwood in charge.

They Make $80 For Fund.

An initial feature was an address by Works Manager Ian F. McRae, and superintendent of the new department, H. A. Gadd, the former of whom traced the history of the growth of plastics, mentioning the fact that the largest piece of this new commodity ever made in this country was now in process of manufacture in this plant for the rayon industry.

An unusually happy time was had by all concerned due to the splendid work of the committee, the male members of whom became quite enthusiastic over the great help the lady members had been, the entertainment for the evening consisting of euchre games and dancing, which in all raised a splendid sum of $80 credited to their name in today's receipts for the fund.

A special feature was the giving of two door prizes which had been donated for that purpose by the sales staff at Toronto, who were represented at this gathering by A. Bennett and J. Goddard, and then drew the winning tickets to give the prizes to Mrs. R. Lucano and L. Gough.

Prizes were also awarded to Mr. and Mrs. A. Graham, Miss C. Grisdale and Harry Bartlett for the spot dances, while prizes for the euchre games were won by Mrs. Stewart, George Lang, Mrs. G. McDonnell and John Wood. The proceeds of this event to mark the opening of the new building were presented to the secretary of the fund by Robert Batley and the committee in charge on Tuesday, and such a successful outcome of this effort to help others as a forerunner to setting to work on their own behalf, should hold a splendid augury for their success in the future, a wish for which the fund management heartily subscribes to.

Here's Memory Honored.

Life's richest tributes can never be overdone in giving honor to all who have paid the highest sacrifice on behalf of their fellow-citizens, and there is no better way possible to do this than helping to carry on a further good work for humanity's sake in their name. Today a donation of $5 for this purpose is recorded "In loving memory of Sgt.-Pilot Roland Rennie, who paid the supreme sacrifice three years ago today, April 27, ever remembered by Uncle Alf and Minnie Fletcher, Keene, Ontario.

500 Scouts, Cubs Prove To Be Culinary Experts

More than five hundred Peterborough boys have been taking part in the demonstration by Scouts and Cubs in the market hall since Tuesday, according to the estimate of E. J. Wolff, District Commissioner of the Boy Scouts.

The final show will be put on this evening by the boys who have not appeared in the preceding programs. This is an opportunity for citizens who are sincerely interested in the youngsters of the city and their guidance to make a little effort to see what they are doing by looking in at the market hall around eight o'clock tonight.

Mothers of the city ought to find reason for giving the Cubs their special approval, in the demonstration Wednesday night that small boys can be taught to do a great many more things for themselves than they are willing to admit and assume at home. And if anybody thinks it is sissified business, he has only to remember that every man in the front lines of this war has to fall back some time or other on his own ability to get some kind of meal ready in the very worst of circumstances.

Anyway, the Cubs of St. John's, St. Luke's and St. Paul's proved to their elders that they could cook, make beds, wash dishes, polish shoes and windows, peel potatoes, and so on. Cooking is part of the fun of hiking, and the lads are apt with the skillet. These Cub packs made tea, toast and poached eggs, and invited some of the visitors to break bread with them and try a spot of tea.

Scout leaders surely can depend on the sympathy and support of mothers after such proof that young Bill possesses abilities which seem to be undreamed of at home. Perhaps the domestic deficiency is the approach and element of interest, like the painting of Mark Twain's fence.

Scout work last night was displayed by the older boys from St. Andrew's, St. George's, Sacred Heart and All Saints.

Civic Entertainment Plans Discussed For Sailors Manning Corvette Peterborough

Entertainment in Peterborough of the officers and men of the new corvette which is to bear the city's name was discussed by the reception committee of the council Wed. night in conection with planning for the dedication ceremony to take place at Cobourg about June 1.

Definite arrangements are being suspended until announcement is received from the naval authorities of the date of the arrival of the ship at Cobourg, but in the meantime preparations are steadily advancing through the combined plans of council's committee, of which Alderman Sands is chairman and the Citizen's Co-Ordinating Committee.

A resolution by Mayor Hamilton, seconded by Alderman Bradburn, last night asked the council for permission to proceed with the final arrangements. This proposal was chiefly a request an application to the council's authority for whatever financial provision will be required.

G. A. Macdonald, chairman of the corvette committee of the Citizens' Co-Ordinating Committee, informed the reception committee that the crew of H.M.C.S. "Peterborough" would consist of seven officers and eighty-three men. In the present stage of planning it is understood that the formal dedicatory ceremony would be held at Cobourg, and the officers and crew would be conveyed to Peterborough, probably in buses, for a public reception. It was also suggested that their visit might end with a dance at the Kawartha Club.

Britons Applaud Budget; No New Taxes

BY WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 27 — (CP Cable) —Sir John Anderson's invasion year budget, setting a modern precedent by its lack of tax changes, was welcomed yesterday by Britons who will pay out of their pockets during the next financial year 52 per cent of the record £5,937,000,000 (about $26,716,500,00) expenditure.

There was approval of the implication by the chancellor of the exchequer in his speech yesterday that taxation has reached its practical limit and general enthusiasm over his proposals to help industry re-establish itself after the war.

These proposals included a special industrial Income Tax allowance of 20 per cent. for new plant and machinery needed after the war and 10 per cent for new building. To aid 30,000 small business men, the Chancellor proposed to allow a flat increase to £1,000 in the amount of earnings allowed before the 100 per cent Excess Profits Tax.

The Times said the position in which Britain has been placed as a result of the wartime loss of her overseas investments and accumulation of external debt has seldom been outlined with "greater lucidity and discrimination."

The Times agreed with other newspapers that the Chancellor's post-war proposals for industrial taxation were a needed step and described them as a "practical demonstration of the completeness of the revolution in the conception of the budget as an instrument of broad economic policy."

St. Thomas' W.A. Displays Bale

MILLBROOK, April 27—(ENS)— —The W.A. of St. Thomas' Anglican Church met at the home of the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, on Monday evening, with Mrs. J. W. Hilton reading the lesson, and the leader taking the prayers. A special feature was the display of the articles for the annual bale. This will be shipped this month to an Indian School in the West, and to a specified point in a northern mission field in Ontario. The Dorcas secretary, Mrs. H. W. Russell, and her helpers were complimented on the amount and fine quality of the work accomplished.

Mrs. J. E. Allen, treasurer, reported half the W.A. pledge money paid, and read a letter from the Diocesan treasurer, thanking the Auxiliary for the same. The annual Easter letter from the Archdeacon of the Diocese, was read by Mrs. Westmacott, and regularity of church attendance was particularly stressed. In lieu of the study book the secretary, Miss Rose Macnamara, read a synopsis of two outstanding addresses at the annual Dominion Board meeting held at Toronto. Mrs. Massey-Cooke served refreshments.

Would Set Up New Body On Canadian Broadcasting

OTTAWA, April 27 — (CP) — Establishment of "an impartial and judicial body" to regulate all the broadcasting in Canada was recommended in a brief presented to the Commons Radio Committee Wednesday by Joseph Sedgewick, Toronto, counsel for the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, an organization of private station owners.

The new regulating body would take over control powers now in the hands of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. It would have power to cancel or suspend licences or alter frequencies and pass regulations applicable to private stations.

Sedgewick's 80-page brief also urged:

1. The CBC be confined to operation of its own stations and to network broadcasting which would use private stations " by fair affiliation agreements" and "not by compulsion."

2. Private stations should be encouraged to establish "permanent, semi-permanent or occasional networks" among themselves and for this purpose should be permitted to buy lines from the telegraph companies direct.

3. A second national network—already started by the CBC—should be re-established on a station co-operative basis "with a fair division as between it and the CBC network of station outlets and United States network affiliations" and with "fair' line facility arrangement so that the new network "may be truly independent." This network would be mutual, controlled by the stations which made up its formation.

4. Permission be given to all stations to increase their power up to the pratcical limits allowed and the fullest use be made of channels allocated to Canada under international agreements.

5. Frequencies allotted to stations should not be changed.

Mr. Sedgewick said the mutual network envisioned by the C.A.B. would compete with the first network for programs, artists and audience "and that two truly competitive networks will make for better broadcasting than two networks controlled by the same authority."

Mr. Sedgewick added that this brief was presented to "provide the broad basis on which we believe the system can be changed and improved so that all broadcasting interests, public as well as private, can better serve the citizens of Canada."

He said the "basis complaint which the private stations feel compelled to make against the CBC is that its power to regulate them cannot fairly be exercised in conjunction with its own operation of station and networks, and that the method of regulating private stations, is and must be a source of friction."

If the CBC was not to be a monopoly then 'the facilities for competition must be opened and that will at the very least involve some relief from the present control which the CBC exercises over all network affiliations between stations, as there cannot be other than a monopoly if all networks and all line facilities are controlled by one authority."

Overloaded Seaplane Bucks Rough Sea

AT a Bomber Base in England, April 27—(AP)—An R.A.F. Walrus seaplane rescued eight survivors of a Flying Fortress which crashed in the North Sea but the Walrus was so overloaded it had to taxi 70 miles home — an all night job in stormy waters which threatened to sink the plane—it was disclosed today.

At the start of the long journey—just off an enemy-occupied coast—the British plane was under attack by a German JU-88 but a couple of fighters from a Germany-bound air armada swooped down and drove the big Nazi plane away.

During the wet taxiing trip home, the men bailed with hats, boots and bare hands through the night to keep the British plane from sinking. At dawn a British patrol boat came alongside and took the Americans abroad.

Donnybrook Spoils Pioneer Ball Some Fighters Down For Three Days

GORE'S LANDING, April 27—(ENS)—With the sale of the Rice Lake House in this village to W. H. Williams, Toronto, recently, a connection was broken by the Harris family of 100 years in the hotel business.

Sometime during the 1840's, Alfred Harris, his wife and two-year-old son arrived in this country from England. For a time after coming to Gore's Landing, Mr. and Mrs. Harris lived in what was known as the "Storehouse" near the pier, which at that time, was an "L" shaped wharf running out into the bay, directly opposite the present hotel. The piers can still be seen on the bottom of the bay, of this first wharf.

In these pioneer days, Gore's Landing was a busy village, as it was the shipping point for all traffic in lumber and flour, going to Peterborough and points north from Cobourg. In the winter, teams would draw grain across the ice on Rice Lake, from Monaghan to Cobourg, 10 to 12 teams making the trip together. The stables, built near the dock, were large and filled from end to end with horses, stabled here while their owners took the first steamer "Pollywog", a tread-power vessel with paddle wheels, for picnics and business trips up the Otonabee to Peterborough. Capt. Mays was in charge of the Pollywog.

A hotel was also operated around this time by the late John MacAllister in the building now occupied as a store by Clare Harris. It contained a ballroom and had stables back of the house.

Ballroom Attraction

The first Rice Lake Hotel built by the late Alfred Harris was of frame construction and built in three sections, the end sections on a different level from the centre one. It was surrounded with verandahs and besides many bedrooms, contained a ballroom 40 feet square where crowds danced to the music supplied by two fiddlers and a concertina. The balls were preceded by a dinner and the dance lasted until daybreak, all for the price of 25c each.

The hotel was heated by eight stoves all burning wood, which was cut by bucksaw. Sleighs brought happy crowds from the surrounding countryside for entertainments given in the ballroom, or wagons with boards around them seating 15 to 20 people, would jaunt down to the village to enjoy Prof. Crowe and his family, well-known musicians. Punch andd Judy shows with a ventriloquist were also frequent attractions.

Brawl Results

The last Christmas Eve ball staged in the old hotel was the scene of a donnybrook when crowds from Bailieboro and Monaghan lined up against patrons from Coldsprings and Plainville with a few from Harwood. Pickets were torn off the fence across from the hotel and a real fight ensued. Knuckles were out of joint and black eyes in evidence the next day with some staying in the hotel for three days recuperating from the affair.

Amongst many stories told of these pioneer days was that of the three doctors, one of whom performed an operation at the hotel. At this time, country doctors were fairly plentiful and a doctor from Roseneath, another from Harwood and the third from Coldsprings met at the hotel for a visit. A local man had a painful corn on his little toe. Complaining to the doctors about it, one suggested he had better have the toe amputated. Without hesitation, the patient lifted the offending toe for the doctor's inspection. He quickly took out his penknife, circled the toe and jerked it off. The toe is buried under a walnut tree in the village.

Bear Guests

Outside the original hotel, was a tall pole where the first village pole-sitters took turns in occupying this point of vantage—two black bears. The hotel also kept two foxes in the granary of the old stable.

Tourists came to Gore's Landing even in early days and in summer the hotel was always crammed with guests. Waitresses were paid $4 to $4.50 per month.

About 55 years ago the old hotel was burned to the ground. The new brick house was built by the late Capt. Thomas Harris, son of Alfred Harris and opened August 28, 1898. In 1915, Capt. Thomas Harris retired and his son Fred Harris took over the Rice Lake House, operating it as a tourist resort until this spring when he sold it to H. W. Williams, Toronto. The late Capt. Thomas Harris was the well-known captain of the Steamer Beaver, making trips to Peterborough, every week.

Junior WA Addressed On Church Attendance

MILLBROOK, April 27—(ENS)—The Junior W.A. of St. Thomas' Church met in the Parish Hall on Saturday at 3 p.m., with Barbara Harkness taking the chair in the absence of the president Frances Handley. Beginning in youth the habit of regular giving will be established.

Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, president of the Senior W.A., and Miss Rose Macnamara, secretary, were also guests for the gathering, regret being expressed that Mrs. A. Chevis, wife of the rector, was unable to be present.

Games were enjoyed at the close of the business period, and later tea was served, under the directi of the superintendent, Miss Isabella McCorry, assisted by Mrs. G. Raper and officers of the Junior Association.

Sausage Prices Drop Four Cents

OTTAWA, April 27 —(CP)—The Prices Board announced yesterday that effective Thursday retail ceiling prices for fresh sausage will be reduced by about four cents per pound.

Board officials said the reduction in maximum prices will not affect all stores since many retailers now are selling below the ceiling, and in some instances the reduction will be less than four cents per pound.

The announcement said the reduction in prices has been accomplished by lowering wholesale prices by two cents per pound and cutting the maximum retail mark-up from 30 per cent to 25 per cent.

Itching, Burning, Stinging Eczema or Salt Rheum

Eczema, or salt rheum as it is commonly called, is one of the most painful of all skin troubles.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in hot water are most unbearable, and relief is gladly welcomed.

The relief offered by Burdock Blood Bitters is based on the knowledge that such ailments as eczema, and other skin troubles, are caused by an impure blood condition.

Hess Gloomy At 50 Bombers Increase

LONDON, April 27.—(CP).—Rudolph Hess' birthday anniversary yesterday in this invasion year probably was the dreariest in all party deputy leader—who staged his his 50 years of life.

At the "camp" of the former Nazi spectacular flight to Scotland nearly three years ago—the roar of bombers can be heard every day, and as an airman, Hess knows what that means to the Reich.

When he first heard these daily rumbles, Hess is said to have thought them a special, faked "show" staged to impress him. Then when he realized the truth the despondency for which he already was being treated deepened.

OBITUARIES

MISS ANNIE ELIZABETH RUSSELL

MILLBROOK, April 27—(ENS)—The funeral took place recently of Miss Annie Elizabeth Russell, an ardent Salvation Army worker, following her death at Nicholls Hospital, after several months of illness. She was in her 83rd year.

The service was held from her late residence, King street east, Rev. Walter Patterson of Grace Presbyterian Church, assisted by Rev. A. L. Sisco of St. Andrew's United Church, having charge of the service.

Pall bearers were W. W. Kennedy, H. C. Argue, both nephews; M. W. Ball, E. J. Powell, G. E. Burnham and W. H. Coombe. Interment was in the family plot at Gardiner's Cemetery.

Of pioneer stock, she was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Russell, whose family comprised seven children; and though 'Libby' as she was affectionately called, in early life, was delicate outlived all other members of her family with the exception of one brother, Rev. Edgar Russell, who at present is residing in Millbrook.

Four generations of the Russell family have been born and brought up on the homestead, Seventh Line, Cavan, the land having been cleared from the virgin forest by her grandparents who came to this country from England. Miss Russel's mother's maiden name was Annie Elizabeth Petch, who was brought up in Toronto when it was Muddy York, her father owning the land on which Massey Hall was later built. When she married Samuel Russell, they drove by horse and cutter from Muddy York to Cavan, to begin the establishment of their home.

Losing her father when she was fourteen years of age, circumstances compelled Miss Russell to develop a strong, self-reliant character, and when the Salvation Army became established in Millbrook many years ago, she was one of their first converts, and remained connected with them until the time of her death. When the Corps left this village, she joined the one in Port Hope, and frequently attended the large S.A. conventions in Toronto. She took a course at the Army Training School in that city, intending to make its activities her life work. Not being strong enough for its exacting duties through sympathy in her disappointment at having to give up her ambition, Headquarters officials honored her by bestowing the rank of 'major.'

MRS. MARY HILL

LAKEFIELD, April 27 (ENS) — Mary Elizabeth Traynor, 81, wife of the late Robert T. Hill of Buckhorn, died at her home this week following a three weeks' illness. Daughter of George Traynor and Bridget Ann Murphy, who came from Ireland to settle in Harvey, she was born in Napanee. Following her marriage to Robert Hill 58 years ago in Peterborough, she took up residence in Buckhorn where her husband was dockmaster for a number of years, and had lived there all her married life.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. F. R. Edwards and Mrs. T. M. Barr, both of Buckhorn, also one sister Mrs. B. Ayotte of Peterborough and a brother G. Traynor of Rockcroft. There are also nine grandchildren.

The service was conducted Wednesday afternoon by Rev. E. A. G. Spence of Apsley in St. Mathews Anglican Church. Interment was made at Lakefield Cemetery.

Casket bearers were: W. Long, R. Portsmith, W. Shearer, H. Hill, D. Montgomery and C. Herkimer.

Circle Studies Church Influence

MILLBROOK, April 27 (ENS) — The Easter thankoffering featured the April meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle, at the home of Mrs. Edmund Ball on Tuesday evening, with the president, Mrs. Elsie Paulson, in the chair.

The worship theme: "Christ Is Risen; the Church Is Born," was carried through with responsive readings and prayers. For the study period several took part, the topic being: "They found the church there," and the material telling that, though Allied armies have gone to many far places yet everywhere they found Christians, and the church established. Those assisting were: Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, Mrs. D. L. Lunn, Mrs. Ball, Misses Mary Widdis, Betty Lunn, Lillian Foottit and E. L. Hetherington.

Old Member Dies

The message on Christian Stewardship was given by Miss Marjorie Skitch, and the missionary story, "The work goes on," was presented by Miss Jean Burnham. Articles for the annual bale were received, and it is hoped many more will be brought in before May 24, when the whole must be sent to Peterborough for re-packing and shipment. The offering amounted to about $8, but several envelopes have yet to be handed in, and time was given to honor the memory of the late Margaret Luxon, at one time a member of the Circle, and to whom two members have written, in turn, for more than twelve years. Her death occurred last month.

The annual Sunset Service will be held in June, and as a means of adding to the funds, the society will hold a tea in July, if possible on the lawn at the president's home. Some fees were paid, and the secretary, Betty Lunn, reported $3.85 taken in at the March gathering.

Salmon Loaf Fills the Bill When Meat Fails to Arrive

By MARY MOORE

For some mysterious reason the butcher did not include the meat I had intended to use for Sunday in my meat parcel.

When I went to the refrigerator to prepare the roast for the oven it wasn't present. No explanation was forthcoming from anybody, — and just then in walked my favorite aunt here from out of town unexpectedly.

I had to produce.

I opened a pound tin of very pale salmon—I was glad to have it but it was a very anemic salmon; and proceeded to make a loaf. How, follows:

Emem's Salmon Loaf

One 1-lb. can salmon, 3 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 cup thick white sauce, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 or 2 eggs. Drain the salmon and remove skin and bones. Flake it. Add parsley, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and white sauce. Blend well. Put in well buttered baking dish (preferably lined with buttered paper — a butter paper makes a good lining) and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 25 minutes. Since we served this loaf at the same time we served asparagus on toast with cheese sauce it did not require a sauce of its own, but if it were being served when no other sauces were, it requires either a rich white or egg sauce.

Golden Sauce is good for both Salmon Loaf and Asparagus: Mix 2 beaten egg yolks into medium white sauce (2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk and 1 teaspoon salt). Reheat, stirring. Add 1 or 2 teaspoons lemon juice or vinegar just before serving.

Since this didn't make as glamorous a Sunday dinner as one expects I featured asparagus—I had 2 undersized bundles to stretch for six.

While asparagus is a luxury there are ways of making it the star of a meal without throwing your budget out of gear.

Asparagus Toast Rolls and Asparagus on Toast—Cheese Sauce

Two or three bundles of fresh asparagus, 12 very thin or 6 medium slices bread, butter, sauce. Wash asparagus and trim—less of the stalk is wasted if you peel it about 1½ inches up from the bottom instead of chopping off the tough part. Cook in not more than an inch of water, covered, until just barely tender. Now either wrap 2 or 3 pieces of asparagus in each slice of thin bread and roll these up and toast them under the broiler fastened with a toothpick, or serve asparagus on toast, made from the ½-inch slices of bread. Serve either of them with

Cheese Sauce: Make by melting 2 tablespoons butter, stirring in 2 tablespoons flour, then 1 cup milk. Stir till thick. Add 1 cup grated cheese, or ⅛ of a ½-lb. package spready cheese and stir until cheese is melted and sauce is hot. You might like to add salt, pepper and paprika.

One of our more self-effacing readers wrote to me saying she was tired of the way she served chicken on Mondays. They had chicken every Sunday and leftover chicken every Monday. Good the first few times but monotonous forever. The next little offering is a good summer dish.

Chicken Mousse

Three egg yolks, 1¼ cups milk, 2 tablespoons gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup hot chicken stock or water or chicken gravy, 2 cups minced chicken, ⅛ teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, salt, pepper, paprika, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 cup cream that can be whipped (top milk from Jersey milk). Beat egg yolks, add milk and cook in double boiler until a thin custard forms, stirring. Soak the gelatine in the cold water, dissolve in soup stock, and add to the custard with the chicken and seasonings. When cold, fold in the whipped cream. Pour into oiled mould and chill until firm. Serve with mayonnaise colored pink with paprika.

NOTE: If any of our readers would like me to print rhubarb meringue pie, rosy baked rhubarb, or any other rhubarb recipes please write.

SLATED FOR SUMMER—Not too early to be thinking and planning for a summer evening dance frock, certainly not, judging by store interest. The majority of summer evening long skirted dance frocks are variations on the blouse and skirt theme, one long popular with Brownie. This model has a blouse of sheer marquisette lined with flesh-toned silk. The full length shantung skirt has tiers of ruffles on either side and is a button-down-front placket model. A corsage of hydrangeas adds a colorful accent.

MOTHERS NEEDED IN HOMES

Juvenile Delinquency Flourishes When No One There to Greet Children After School.

I AM getting sick and tired of hearing so much about juvenile delinquency and reading articles, written by starry-eyed theorists, about turning young hoodlums into angels by giving them playgrounds, child centres and their own movies and dance halls, when everybody really knows that the one and only solution of the problem is for mothers to stay at home and be on their jobs.

Of course it wouldn't hurt any for fathers to take a hand in rearing their children and go to the mat with Junior when, and if, as the occasion demanded, and show him which was the better man; but the real reformation has to be worked by a mother with a stiff backbone and a good, strong, right arm, who stays on the premises and takes no stock in the theory that youngsters can be managed by remote control.

Now the stork has been in business for a long time. It has delivered millions of bundles from Heaven to all sorts and conditions of people, and the contents of these packages have been much of a muchness, plastic little creatures ready to take any impress. Babies still come the same way. The pattern for them has not been altered. Yet in the past we had no juvenile delinquency problem. An occasional bad boy or a wayward girl was a rare figure in a community, but now we lie awake at night wondering what to do about the bands of youthful criminals who are old in sin before they are in years.

Blame Comes To Our Own Homes

We can't lay the blame for this condition of affairs on society as a whole, or the general unrest of the times, or the shifting of modern ideals. It comes right down to our own individual homes, to our own hearthstones that are cold because there is nobody in them to tend the fires and keep them burning.

It is the absentee mothers who are never at home when their children come from school who send their youngsters out on the street to learn its bitter wisdom, to make its contacts, and to acquire its morals and its manners. Mother has to be in a house to turn it into a home that children want to stay in. And if Mother isn't there and there is no one to welcome them, or listen to their stories of what they have been doing, or to be glad to see them they start out on the road that only too often leads to the jail or the brothel.

Mother has to be always on the spot. Always available. Always ready to comfort, to cheer, to guide her children if she is to have any influence in shaping their lives and making them the sort of men and women she wants them to be. And it is a task she cannot delegate to any hireling, nor can she trust it to luck. The mothers who do not know where their children are when they are out of school, what they are doing, or with whom they are associating are the recruiting agents for the juvenile delinquency bands.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, April 28

THIS MAY be a day of rather routine affairs, with things moving along progressively in customary grooves, although there may be some pleasant change, a journey, or some fresh contact in either a business or social way. It might be a new contract or agreement, with all pertaining to writings or publicity important. Keep alert but poised.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather smooth and regulation year, with affairs moving happily in routine channels, largely literary, business, artistic or professional, with varied aspects and a probable new offer or agreement. All should proceed well but demands a vigilant and discreet eye to subtle deceptions or even business as well as affectional affiliations. Use finesse and social grace rather than high words or anger.

A child born on this day should have many and diversified talents, with practical and also artistic or literary ability. It may be sensitive and high strung, inviting quick and impetuous responses from others.

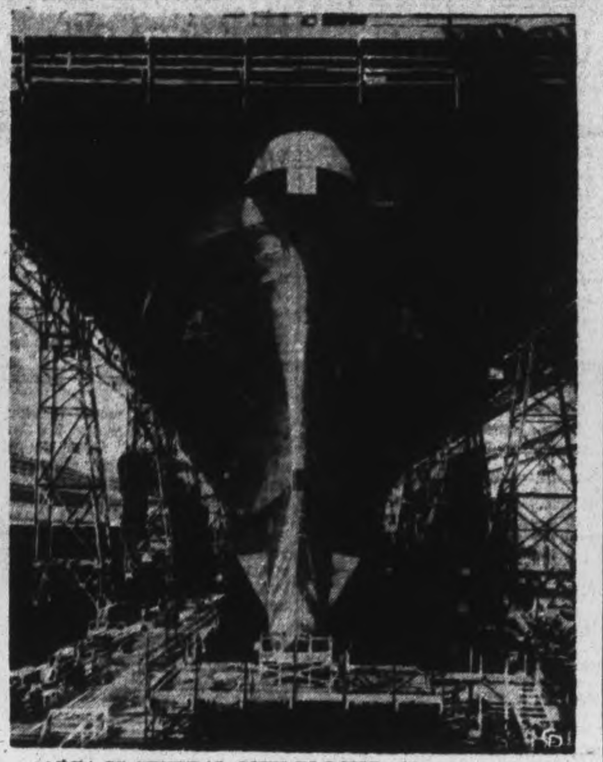
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott



AREA IS SEVERAL CITY BLOCKS—Shown on the ways of the New York Navy yard, where she will be launched April 29, is the U.S.S. Bon Homme Richard, a new aircraft carrier of the 27,100-ton Essex class. The ship is named for the continental Frigate made famous by John Paul Jones. The flight deck of the Bon Homme Richard, which is about four stories from the ground, has an area equal to that of several city blocks. Each of the anchors you see above weighs about 15 tons.

Bill Bennett Softball Head

William Bennett was re-elected president of the Ladies' Softball League at the annual meeting of the organization held in the Duffus Board Room Wednesday night. It was the fourth term in succession.

Five teams were represented at the gathering and the enthusiasm shown in an encouraging augury for the success of the season. Four teams, Westclox, Aircraft, Brintons and Johnson Motors have definitely entered and the Quakers, represented at the meeting by Andy Rutter will in all probability line up before the next meeting. It is also hoped to have a sixth entry from the C.G.E. as neither Generals nor Electrics had representatives present.

Gladys Mortimer, secretary of the league, tendered her resignation because of her duties as president of the Provincial Women's Softball Union, and it was accepted reluctantly.

Albert Watkins was elected vice-president of the league, Isobel Bullock as secretary and Gladys Fountain treasurer.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on May 11 when the schedule will be drawn up and other arrangements made for the opening of the season.

Jim Bagby States Fued Continues

ATLANTA, April 27— (AP). — Jim Bagby, Jr., 17-game winner for the Cleveland Indians last season, declared to-day that his feud with Cleveland's manager, Lou Boudreau, "will never be settled."

"That business about Boudreau and me burying the hatchet was the bunk," said the lanky pitcher as he swung aboard a north-bound train and headed for Maritime Service training at Sheepshead Bay, N.Y.

Bagby's dispute with Boudreau flared last season after the Indians manager benched him for "being out of condition." Bagby denied it.

Bagby said he hoped to return to baseball after the war—but not with Cleveland.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

It doesn't seem so long ago that we were holding our 1943 annual meeting of our Lawn Bowling Club. Tempus fugit And now, here we are getting ready for what we hope will be one of the most successful years in the history of our club.

It is just 15 years since we moved up from the corner of Brock and Aylmer Streets to our present site on the corner of McDonnel Street and Monaghan Road, and it is no secret among the bowlers that we are very proud of our club and our organization. As we have often said before, and we think that it will bear repeating, our outlay as to greens, club house and general surroundings, ranks among the best in the Province of Ontario. It is, indeed, a compliment to be asked to join such a club, and it is a privilege and a pleasure to be a member.

This year we are celebrating our fifteenth anniversary of our new club, and the board of directors and the different committees are going all out to make it a banner year. The committees have already done a great deal of work and are still working hard and all they ask of you, as a member, is to back up their efforts. Give them a little praise, they like to hear it, for after all they are human, and who is there among us who does not like to have someone come up and slap us on the back and say, "Nice going, boys. Stick in then." And so having this in mind, we are reminding all our bowlers, old and new, to be sure to come out on Friday night to the big get-together meeting in our club rooms on McDonnel Street at 8 p.m. Everybody will be glad to see everybody else, and if you have not already signed your card, bring it along with you. Remember the date—Friday night. We hope to see you.

Driver Fined $35 On Two Charges

"It was a case of too much speed and an inexperienced driver," said Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure in police court this morning in giving evidence after Elwood C. Seabrook, North Monaghan, had pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Seabrook, driver of the car which overturned on Highway 28, just outside the city limits a week ago with the result that Able Seaman Norman Brown received a fractured skull and Seabrook sustained a fractured collar-bone, was fined $25 and $1.75 costs on the reckless driving count, and on a second charge of driving without an operator's license, to which he pleaded guilty, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Officer McClure said that Seabrook had got over too far on to the shoulder of the road in making a curve, then turned sharply to his left and finally to the right again, with the result that the car made a three-quarter roll. He said that Seabrook had been very frank in stating what had happened.

"This young man has suffered a broken arm and the car was wrecked," Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., pointed out, before sentence was imposed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

AN UNSOUND TRUMP SUIT

Four trumps in one hand opposite three in the other—that is a situation to avoid if you can possibly do so. It is an unsound trump suit. If the four-card holding is forced to ruff a trick, leaving only three trumps opposite three, you are likely to find one of the defenders with one more trump than you, and hence able to win the last trick in the suit. If that happens, the defenders may peel off several more tricks against you.

North: ♠ K Q J 6 ♥ 9 8 5 ♦ 9 7 6 3 2 ♣ 8

West: ♠ 10 7 4 2 ♥ A J ♦ Q 8 5 ♣ Q J 9 6

East: ♠ 9 3 ♥ K Q 6 ♦ J 10 4 ♣ A K 10 5 2

South: ♠ A 8 5 ♥ 10 7 4 3 2 ♦ A K ♣ 7 4 3

At Table 1 were two players following a bidding method in which an immediate raise of the partner's possible four-card suit would indicate four trumps in support of it. If they do that, they must be prepared, on occasion, to rebid any five-card suit. That course got them to the best contract, if game was going to be tried at all.

At Table 2 were bidders who will support with three cards, but then warn their partners on the next round that their originally named suit is of only four cards by trying to bid something else. They also got into the better suit, as North's secondary raise of hearts showed only three, requiring five from South, which he had.

The Table 3 pair got into trouble, as South supported spades with only three, and North presumed the suit was safe, which it was not. Those in hearts lost three trump tricks and were down one when they also lost a club. The spade contractors got badly beaten, for North had to use a trump on the second club round, next set up diamonds successfully, and then tried to drop the trumps. When West was left with the final trump, he scored it, and the side finished with heart and club tricks for a set of three tricks.

Fascist Centre Boon To Tired Canadians

By DOUG HOW.
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

AN ITALIAN TOWN, April 27—(CP)— The labor, the fine material and the distorted devotion Mussolini put into construction of his Fascist youth centres is proving a boon to those people of the Canadian Army whose job it is to see that the troops have entertainment and recreation.

In this town where Canadian reinforcements are awaiting third call to the front, the auxiliary services have taken over one of these huge elaborate buildings. Renaming it Maple Leaf Gardens, they stripped it of its slogans and signs of dictatorship and cleared it of the filth left behind by Italian soldiers in a week. The cleaning job kept a horde of Italian scrubwomen and soldiers hard at work.

To-day it is the centre of community life for the troops who live in the barracks and billets of the town. The centre has a theatre seating 2,000 persons, an excellent stage eight large writing rooms, a library which loaned 1800 books in a month, movies or a concert every night of the week. There is a canteen where 2,000 cups of tea and 2,000 cakes made by the army's bakeries are sold each day at cost price.

Copies of the various soldier papers published in Italy are available daily, one other reason why the centre has been of considerable importance in maintaining the troops morale.

Streets have been given such Canadian names as King Street, Saskatchewan Road. Now that spring has come, baseball and softball are played in the town.

School Children Sing At Victory Loan Show

OMEMEE, April 27—(ENS)—An entertaining program was presented in Coronation Hall, Omemee, on Monday evening, in the interests of the 6th Victory Loan, including songs by school children, moving pictures, an address by T. Stinson, General Chairman of Victorian and Haliburton district, and a one-act play by Lindsay talent.

Rev. R. M. Patterson, who is joint-chairman for Omemee and Emily with Father V. G. McFadden, was chairman for the evening and he welcomed the people and outlined for them the program to be given. The first number was a song by the pupil of S. S. No. 8 Emily, "The Mermaid". The girls of Omemee High School under the direction of R. B. Harle, sang two choruses in two parts, "Land of My Fathers" and " This Joyful Eastertide". A sextette of girls, namely, Miss Elva Boate, Betty Fee, Beth Magee, Jean Rowan, Barbara Weir, and Elvira Magee, then sang "All Through The Night" in three parts.

Mr. Stinson of Lindsay then addressed the audience, first conveying the thanks of the Committee for the splendid work done by Omemee and Emily in previous Victory Loans, especially to Rev. R. M. Patterson and Father V. G. McFadden, and the canvassers. He named the canvassers for the present loan: David Weir for Omemee, Albert Carroll for the north part of Emily township, and Arthur McQuade for the south part of Emily. Mr. Stinson urged the people of the district to support the present loan emphasizing their responsibility to the young men and women serving overseas.

"Consider the benefits we enjoy as against those enjoyed by our boys in Italy", said Mr. Stenson, "we can't afford to relax — we must go ahead."

Moving pictures included a sing song and a "Canada Carries On" film were presented. The final item of program was a one-act comedy entitled "Frank and Erna" ably presented by a group of talented Lindsay young people, each role being suitably chosen and well acted. The cast was as follows: Miss Hattie Bate; S. R. Pitts; Bert Hick; Miss Stella Graham; Miss Myra Davidson; Mrs. Maxine Wark; and Miss Grace Craighead.

Vice Protected By Police In Montreal

MONTREAL, April 27 — (CP) — Col. P. A. Piuze, former director of the Quebec Provincial Police here, yesterday told commission investigating activities of the police in Montreal district that he was "morally certain" that there was "protection" of vice in Montreal.

Disorderly houses should and could be closed by employing a small number of investigators, he said, but in most cases it was not the actual operator of such a house who was arrested but a "front" man or woman.

Mr. Justice Lucien Cannon, the commissioner, said that the commission had in its records the list of addresses of disorderly houses and that ownership could be traced and superior court action taken to close the houses for one year.

Col. Puize said that "Chicago gangleaders" were the "real" operators of Montreal betting services. He said that during his tenure of office, from October, 1937, to January, 1940, two such operators had been arrested and sentenced to fines of from $500 to $1,000 and jail terms of a week to a month. Another had "jumped" a $4,000 bail bond.

Happy Over Improved Health Cheerful Lady Hopes That Others Will Benefit By Her Experience. Says Syntona Gave Grand Relief From Stomach Disorders, Nervousness, Sleepless Nights.

MISS R. PALMERAL

"I am so happy over my newfound health that I want every one to know how it all happened," enthusiastically declared Miss R. Palmeral, 125 Bold Street, Hamilton, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I had been in poor health for the past three years. My stomach was so weak that I could hardly eat a thing without having attacks of indigestion and belching up of hot, bitter liquids. Gas formed and made me short of breath. Heartburn and a full, heavy bloated feeling followed almost every meal.

"My nerves were very bad. I felt tired and irritable and many nights I would toss and roll unable to get to sleep. When I got up in the morning I would sometimes ache all over. My limbs and muscles were especially sore and painful and everything I tried to do was such an effort.

"I heard so much praise given Syntona that I finally decided to get some. What a lucky day that was! Almost from the first my stomach began to feel better. So, I hopefully continued taking it. Now I am so improved that I eat what I want and don't suffer the slightest distress afterward. My nerves have quieted down nicely, so I sleep restfully at night. The tired, fatigued feeling and aches and pains have gone away—for which I am truly thankful.

"I do hope all those suffering as I did will not put off getting Syntona, for I believe it can do them as much good as it did for me."

Why not heed this grateful lady's advice and let Syntona help you? It is made from 12 herbs and roots that act on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. It aids elimination. Improves assimilation of food. Helps give you more strength and energy. It is very pleasant to take. Contains no harmful drugs.

13,500 Tons Of Bombs Cascade Down In Non-Stop Sweep

LONDON, April 28.—(CP).— The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. hammered Friedrichshafen and rail targets in France and Belgium with probably 3,500 tons of bombs last night, climaxing a record daylight pounding of Europe, and Germany's whole radio network fell silent as new bombers swarmed out to-day

It was the 14th straight day of the non-stop pre-invasion air campaign.

Since April 15 the grinding pre-invasion air offensive has hurled 65,000 tons of explosives on Europe. To-day up to 250 American heavy bombers attacked the Avord airdrome, 130 miles south of Paris, while American mediums hit another field in Northern France and Lightning fighters shot up a third.

In 24 hours alone, more than 6,000 planes have hit the Nazi war machine with some 13,500 tons of explosives—including a double-header punch by 1,500 U.S. heavy bombers Thursday.

Thirty-six bombers, including 11 from the Canadian bomber group, were lost in the assaults "in very great strength" upon Friedrichshaven, home of the Zeppelin work and radio-location equipment plants, an on rail yards at Montzen in Belgium and Aulnoye in France. Bomber gunners knocked down at least four German fighters, Canadians getting one of them.

Canadian Lancasters participated in the raids on the three main targets while Canadian Halifaxes laid mines in enemy waters. The R.C.A.F. also said one Canadian Spitfire fighter-bomber was missing from yesterday's operations.

Mosquito bombers meanwhile ...ded Stuttgart, and other planes laid mines.

Turkish-Nazi Tension Grows

NEW YORK, April 28—(AP). — The Berlin radio bluntly told the Turks last night that a German Foreign Office spokesman considered Turkey's suspension of chrome shipments to the Reich a breach of contract and that Nazi Ambassador Franz von Papen, called home to report, would 'not return to Ankara "for the time being."

"This should remove the slightest doubt about the degree of German-Turkish tension," said the German Transkontinent agency dispatch beamed to the Turkish press.

The suspension of chrome shipments to Germany was announced last week by Turkey.

The Nazi radio quoted Dr. Paul Schmidt, the regular German Foreign Office spokesman, as terming the stoppage a "certain (Allied) success," scored by "Allied sledge-hammer diplomacy."

EVERY SQUADRON IN RAID

Expect Invasion in Two Weeks

Germans Bomb Shipping Concentrations Off England

LONDON, April 28—(CP).—Masses of Allied invasion vessels, assembling in the harbors of western England, were attacked by German bombers last night, Berlin dispatches by way of Stockholm claimed today. Nazis and neutrals, continuing a guessing game that began several weeks ago, said the invasion might be less than two weeks away, and Berlin dispatches to Stockholm said great quantities of Allied shipping were gathered in the Channel ports of southeastern England as well as western England.

German authorities in Holland were reported to be preparing to blast the great dykes which guard the entrance to the Zuider Zee and flood a huge area including Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

Two Swedes, the first to reach Sweden from Denmark since the Germans clamped tight control on travel between the two countries last Monday, said the Danes at first thought the Germans were invading Sweden when the dractic measures were taken.

The restrictions were being gradually relaxed, however, and postal service between Sweden and Denmark was resumed.

Britain's shores were closed tightly today to all except the most urgent outbound civilian travel under new regulations designed to keep invasion plans secret.

The German communique claimed that German motor torpedo boats sank three British ships totalling 9,100 tons, in an attack on a convoy off the south coast of England this morning, and that the German air force's attack against shipping concentrations of the British southwest coast last night were effective.

The new travel restrictions, effective last midnight, supplemented others previously in force. One earlier decree had banned travel between Britain and Eire. Another keeps diplomats of all countries except the United States, Russia and the British Commonwealth within Britain for the time being.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspaper Die Tat said foreign newspapermen in the German capital were betting on the attack to take place between May 6 and June 7. In Ankara a Turkish commentator put in his word, saying: "We can take it for granted the next few days or weeks will witness the most important developments of the war."

A Moscow dispatch said the Russian newspaper Pravda observed that "conditions are favorable now for powerful blows not only from the east but the south and west."

Falkman said it appeared that the exact date of the invasion may be set to hit the time when there is the least difference between high and low tide.

A dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, said the German newspaper Das Reich had admitted that some 15,000,000 foreign workers within Germany are "longing for our (Germany's) defeat." Zurich's Die Tat said some of these workers had been detected building smoking fires in factory chimneys to attract the attention of Allied fliers.

Bevin Says Britain Faced Strikes Involving 3 Million

LONDON, April 28—(CP).—Britain had been in danger of work stoppages involving nearly 3,000,000 men in gas, shipbuilding, engineering and mining industries, Labor Minister Bevin told the House of Commons today.

Explaining that the Government's emergency powers order banning strike-fomenting was necessary to avert disaster, the Minister declared that "during that week-end when the regulation was made we were in danger of stoppages involving nearly 3 000,000 men in gas, shipbuilding, engineering and coal."

That was the Government's blunt answer to the "prayer" by Aneurin Bevan, Welsh Labor member, for annulment of the defence regulation which the Labor Minister produced a fortnight ago as a big stick to deal with strike agitation other than by unions.

The Government, under its war-time powers, instituted the regulation without legislation. However, it could be annulled by parliament within 28 days and Aneurin Bevan's move was based on parliament's right to "address a respectful prayer to the Crown" to annul the Government's action.

Aneurin Bevan accused the Minister of "reducing parliamentary procedure to a farce" and of having "started a campaign of calumny against the miners."

Act Was Justified.

He described the regulation as an "affront to parliament which had never failed to produce emergency legislation speedily when necessary."

The Minister replied, "We had been living on an industrial volcano" during the weeks before the order was announced. He said he made no speech then "in the hope and belief we could ride the industrial storm as we have ridden so many

Reds Driving Toward City Of Iasi

Germans Lose 7 Small Ships Near Sevastopol

LONDON, April 28 —(CP)—The Russian Army is pressing a determined offensive with powerful tank-supported forces north of the Romanian city of Iasi and fierce battles are raging in that area for the second successive day, a Romanian communique said today.

The bulletin, broadcast from Bucharest, said local Russian penetrations were "sealed off or reduced by counter-attacks." Moscow made no mention of such an offensive, although a Soviet communique announced that some 400 Germans were killed as Red Army troops repulsed an enemy thrust southeast of Stanislawow in the Carpathian foothills.

The Russian communique said no important changes had occurred on any of the fronts.

The communique declared however, that Russian torpedo launches and Red Army aircraft still were making steady attacks on German water craft in the area of Sevastopol, apparently seeking to prevent evacuation of Nazi forces from the besieged Crimean port.

Four German barges, two torpedo launches and a patrol vessel were reported sunk there by Russian air and naval action yesterday.

The Moscow bulletin said a regiment of Germans was wiped out by Russian artillery fire when large enemy forces were observed deploying for an attack on one sector of the second Ukraine front.

"Making use of the panic that followed among the Germans," the communique added, "our warriors gained possession of strongly fortified positions."

Both the Germans and Romanian communiques said Russian attempts to break through on the Lower Dnestr were repulsed.

From Stockholm came a report that the Germans were awaiting a new Soviet drive on the Salla sector in Finland on the far northern front. The Swedish paper Aftonbladet in a dispatch from Helsinki said the Germans had repulsed a Soviet attempt to break through there.

Col. Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, who served under Theodore Roosevelt with the Rough Riders in Cuba back in 1898, died today at his Washington home. He was 70.

Navy Secretary Frank Knox Dies At Age 70

WASHINGTON, April 28 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, 70, died at 1.08 p.m. E.D.T. today at his Washington home from a heart attack.

The Navy Secretary became ill last week.

Knox was stricken with "a gastro-intestinal upset" while attending the funeral in Manchester, N.H., last week of J. A. Muehling, his business partner for the last 40 years. He returned to his office Tuesday morning but about two hours later became ill and went to his home. The Secretary suffered a severe heart attack as he prepared to go to bed Tuesday afternoon.

Knox had been in the cabinet since July 11, 1940. President Roosevelt summoned him to serve, as France fell, in the critical month of June, 1940, at the same time he asked Henry L. Stimson to become Secretary of War. Both men were Republican leaders, Knox having been his party's vice-presidential nominee in 1936.

His death on the eve of the European invasion prevented the rounding out of an official career that began with the defeated Allied forces of the world falling back across the Channel into England, spanned four years of slow recovery made possible by America's entrance into the war and came finally to the apparent verge of the last great phase before victory.

War was an old and bitter story for Frank Knox. As a rough rider he was in Cuba with Theodore Roosevelt in 1898. During the first Great War he became an artillery officer in France, there earning under fire the title "Colonel" by which most of his long-time friends knew him. Few knew his full name—William Franklin Knox.

Chinese Blunt Japanese Attack

CHUNGKING, April 28 —(CP)—Considerable improvement in the Chinese situation in Northern Honan Province was reported today by a Chinese army spokesman, who said Japanese forces driving on Loyang from the southeast had been hurled back about 10 miles.

Another enemy column which for a time menaced Loyang from the east has been halted in strategic Hulao Pass, the spokesman said, and a Japanese drive down the Peiping-Hankow railway has been blunted 40 miles south of Chenghsien, a strategic junction now is Japanese hands.

Chinese military authorities announced earlier in the day that enemy troops entered Chenghsien the morning of April 22, confirming front dispatches that had indicated several days ago the city had fallen.

Loyang was a major objective of the Japanese offensive launched 10 days ago in the wheat-producing section of Central China below the Yellow River. The enemy has been trying to wipe out a salient the Chinese hold across the north-south Peiping-Hankow railway line.

Minister Says Factory Deferments Will Be Curtailed To Fill Army Manpower Requirements

By JACK WILLIAMS—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 28—(CP).—Labor Minister Mitchell reported to the Commons that the number of Canadi... work and in the armed forces has increased 35 per c... the war period. Mr. Mitchell reviewed the Canadian power situation in introducing his Departmental wa... mates.

At Dec. 1, 1943, of the Canadian population of 8,820,000 persons, 14 years or older, 5,057,000 or 57 per cent. were in the armed forces or at work.

"At the end of 1943 we had more men and women in our forces than at any previous time in our history," Mr. Mitchell said. "Despite this, production for war was on an unprecedented scale."

The peak of labor demand came in September, 1943, when 219,000 workers were needed. This now had dropped to 92,300, excluding logging, with 35,000 persons available for work but not yet referred to jobs.

Fewer Deferments.

Looking to the future, he said increasing difficulty was being experienced in filling army requirements for men under the mobilization regulations and the time was approaching when it would be necessary to rely largely on men now on deferment and those coming of age. Draft deferments for industrial workers would have to be curtailed.

Although small "pockets" of unemployment were to be expected as a result of changing conditions it was anticipated the general shortage of manpower would continue in the next year.

He reported wage increases totalling $150,000,000 a year have been approved within the terms of the wage control regulations and the Canadian wage level now is at an all-time high and beyond the cost-of-living peak of the First Great War.

Dealing with all-up regulations Mr. Mitchell said difficulty was still being experienced in locating some men to whom notices were sent but in a table, which accompanied his speech, he showed that of the 1,665,504 men in designated age classes 49,001, or approximately three per cent. were not accounted for.

2 Million Placed.

"Instructions are issued to the registrar in each division to call as many men as possible to meet the requirements of the army" Mr. Mitchell said.

During 1943 employment offices made 1,944,026 placements and under compulsory employment transfer regulations 99,453 cases had been considered and 15,359 transfers ordered to March 15. Few prosecutions were found necessary to enforce Selective Service regulations.

Mr. Mitchell said response of women to calls to take jobs and release men for the forces and essential work was "spectacular" and at October 1, 1943, there were 1,075,000 women employed as compared with 638,000 in August, 1939.

"We shall avail ourselves of every possible source of help for farm work during the coming season," Mr. Mitchell said.

"Extensive plans are under discussion with the Department of National Defence."

Special farm leave orders were already resulting in a large number of men being granted temporary leave from the Army and Air Force to assist in seeding. Selective Service officers were interviewing men, rejected or discharged by the forces and laid off in industrial plants, to find farm workers.

Jap Gains in China Present New Menace

Chenghsien Rail Junction Falls As Japs Drive To Dominate Railroad

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Chungking's announcement that the Japanese have captured the important railway junction of Chengsien, in their new offensive in the Yellow River region, emphasizes the menace of this drive. It is a serious threat to an already terribly hard hit China.

While the ultimate aim of this fresh assault isn't wholly clear, since there are several prime objectives possible, it has the appearance of being a defensive measure calculated to remedy bad weaknesses in the Japanese coninental fortress.

Teh underlying strategy probably is a leaf from Hitler's notebook—the idea that if Japan can hang onto this fortress she may be able to tire the United Nations out and achieve a stalemate. Indeed we know from reliable sources that the Japanese militarists recognize they can't win. They're going to salvage what they can, and already are planning another war against the western world 25 years hence.

Chungking believes that one Japanese objective is to obtain full control of the Great Trunk Railway which runs from Peiping in the north clear down to Canton and Hong on the south coast. Their purpose is to strengthen their interior communications in China and so try to offest the Allied ravages on Niponese Sea communications.

The Japanese occupy the territory through which this strategic railway runs north of the Yellow River—the Hoang-Ho, often referred to as "China's Sorrow" because of the untold millions of lives lost through generations as the result of annual floods. However, between the Yellow River and the Yangtse, some 500 miles south, the invaders don't hold the railroad. They occupy a considerable strip of territory south of the Yangtse, but between there and the south coast the Chinese are still in possession, barring the Canton-Hong Kong area. The Japanese hold China's coastal ports all around.

There are two other objectives which the invaders likely have. The 1,800 square miles or more which they already have overrun along the Yellow River is a vast wheat growing area that is expected to produce a record crop this season. The Japanese need this grain for their armies and home consumption, and aren't concerned with the fact that millions of Chinese are dependent on it keep them from starvation.

Of further importance is the fact that the American air force in China has established strategic bases in the southeast. A successful Japanese drive southward along the railway might force abandonment of these bases and so vastly strengthen the Japanese position.

Post-War Flying Problems Are Solved

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP).—United States officials have advised the British Government that the United States does not intend to use its superior resources in long-range airplanes to squeeze Britain out of competition in commercial aviation after the war.

The British, in response, have recognized American claims based on huge investments in military air-...ses in British territories and have promised that their Empire-wide network of airbases will be available to the commercial planes of all nations.

The exchange of view of these two points was made informally by Adolf Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, and Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Privy Seal, during Berle's aviation talks in London recently. The fact of the agreement, just now coming out, is regarded in official quarters here as a high point of practical good-will in Anglo-American relationships.

On the British part it is said to reflect a broad willingness to compromise pressing problems in the interest of swift and friendly settlement which both sides desire. On the part of the United States it indicates a basic principle in dealing with allied nations which, because of the war, have been put in an unfavorable position to compete after the war.

Americans Rescue 40 Nuns

100 Foreign Missionaries Escape Japs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, April 28.—(AP).—One hundred foreign missionaries, including 40 nuns, have been rescued at Hollandia, Netherlands New Guinea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied Southwest Pacific commander announced to-day.

"These include 13 Americans, seven Dutch, three Poles, one Australian, one Czechoslovakian and the remainder Germans," he said. "They were originally stationed at mission stations along the north coast of New Guinea."

The first group of missionaries filtered into American army headquarters at Hollandia Tuesday night, three days after American forces invaded the former Japanese air base.

Twenty-three had to be brought out of the hills on stretchers. All 100 were suffering from privations of 25 months in the jungle mountains where all—Allies and Germans alike—had grouped.

Meagre details available here failed to explain why the Germans sought refuge with the missionaries from enemy countries instead of their own Japanese allies. Disposition of the Germans was not stated but it seems probable they will be interned.

15 Workmen Die In Ship Fire

PORTSMOUTH, Va., April 28 — (AP)—Fifteen civilian workmen died from suffocation and 20 others were injured last night at the Norfolk Navy Yard when fire broke out in the hold of a naval ship undergoing repairs. The cause of the fire was not disclosed.

The fire was reported about 6:20 p.m. and within two hours 30 workmen had been carried from the vessel, unconscious from smoke and fumes.

Damage to the ship was believed small.

All the dead, whose families were notified by chaplains at the navy base, were from Portsmouth and Norfolk.

Navy yard officials said none of the 20 injured was in serious condition.

One navy man who was on the scene early said that when he reached the hold of the ship "he saw at least 25 men lying around, all unconscious."

The sailor, Edgar B. Johnson, 21, pharmacist's mate, third class, U.S.N.R., of Buzzards Bay, Mass., was put to bed suffering from exhaustion after applying artificial respiration to victims for more than two hours.

Union Workers To Meet In City

Eighty or more delegates and official observers to the quarterly council meeting of District Five United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America will be given a civic welcome by His Worship Mayor Hamilton when they meet on Sunday at the Champlain Hotel.

These delegates, many of whom are women, represent over 55,000 workers in the machine, radio and electric industry, mostly engaged on war work. They came to Peterborough from all over Ontario and from Quebec to the first convention of organized labor ever to be held in this city and have chosen Sunday as their meeting time so that any interference with their war effort will be minimized.

Arrangements for their entertainmnt on Saturday night have been made by the joint social committees of Locals 527 and 524 of this city and the Peterborough Ladies' Auxiliary of the U.E.

This entertainment will consist of a dance at the Paragon Hall, with music by the Red River Ramblers, and a concert of songs by the U.E. choir under the supervision of Max Adler.

Mr. Adler, a refugee from Europe, at present engaged in war industry in Toronto and now a member of the U.E. has had wide experience both in opera and concert work in Europe and the choir under his direction has promised a number of interesting and entertaining selections.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will serve a light supper at the close of dancing.

Arrangements have been made for the convention meeting to get away to an early start on Sunday in order to provide the fullest time for discussion on the many important issues facing the organization.

The policy of the organization is decided on a democratic basis by the delegates at these conventions and action on such problems as war and post war problems, social security, servicemen's rehabilitation, housing for the people, women in industry and political action will be considered.

The meeting is expected to adjourn at about six o'clock p.m. in order that the delegates can get back to their jobs on Monday.

Ralston Wants Voluntary Army

OTTAWA, April 28 — (CP). — Defence Minister Ralston, in a brief but fiery address to the Commons yesterday, said that members of Canada's call-up troops are not being "coerced" to enlist for active service overseas.

"I have indicated repeatedly that I prefer a voluntary army. And I think most Canadians will agree with me," said Col. Ralston in replying to questions of J. G. Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre).

Amid applause from Government supporters, the Defence Minister said he had "no apology" to make for asking men to enlist, and he did not see anything wrong with an army program to persuade call-up most 50 per cent. of the ground lost in the first three days of the Loan recovered in one good day of canvassing," an official said.

General sales and payroll savings sales were reported going well; Ontario, for instance, reporting 77 manufacturing plants already awarded three star Victory Flags.

The Armed Forces continue to surge ahead, with a combined total now well in excess of $22,000,000, or nearly two-third of their final standing at the end of 18 days in the last Loan.

The Navy's Pacific Command became the first service of the west coast to pass its objective, when it announced $490,000 on a $320,000 quota.

Having already purchased $13,180,350, the Canadian Army announced it would more than obtain by today the four per cent. required to put it over its $13,500,000 objective.

Approximately $3,250,000 short of its $10,500,000 objective, the R.C.A.F. is gaining mementum.

No. 3 Training Command, Montreal, reports seven stations over the top and 10 more well past the halfway mark. No. 13 E.F.T.S., St. Eugene, Ont., topped its objective by $23,600.

Pte. L. M. Goldenburg, London, Ont., stationed at Cornwall, Ont., bought a $1,000 Victory Bond and a few minutes later volunteered to serve in Canada's active army. Goldenburg was drafted less than four weeks ago. Within five minutes of his "going active," six other privates followed his example.

The second anniversary of W.O. Gordon S. Black's internment in a German prisoner-of-war camp was marked by his mother in Halifax with the purchase of a $500 Victory Bond. Through his mother, Black, serving with the R. C. A. F. has bought bonds in all loans.

Large subscriptions reported earlier included Confederation Life Association, Toronto, $6,500,000 Proctor and Gamble of Canada, Ltd., Toronto and Hamilton, $750,000; Spruce Falls power and paper mill Co. Ltd., Toronto, $1,000,000; Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co., Ltd., Toronto, $1,000,000. John Inglis Co. Ltd., Toronto, $500,000; Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., Toronto, $3,000,000; Page-Hersey Tubes Ltd., Toronto $2,000,000; Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Canada, Ltd., New Toronto, $1,000,000; Inernational Harvester Company of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton, $2,500,000; Bell Telephone Co., of Canada, Montreal $3,500,000; Bronfman Interests and B. Aaron, Montreal, $2,000,000; Distillers Corporation and Affiliated Companies, Montreal $1,000,000; Consolidated Paper Corporation Ltd., Montreal, $3,225,000 and Montreal Trust Co., Montreal, $1,000,000; Fleet Aircraft Fort Erie, Ont., $461,000 on an original quota of $396,000; Cockshutt Moulded Aircraft, Brantford, Ont., $15,700 over the $50,000 quota; Central Aircraft, London, Ont., $200,000 on an objective of $184,500.

IN DESTROYER FIGHT TOO—Able Seaman Anthony Bianco, son of Mr. Nicholas Bianco, Park Hill Road, is serving on the destroyer Athabaskan. He is the second Peterborough boy. AB. Muskrat Catches Show Drop From Year Ago

The muskrat trapping season which comes to an end in the part of Peterborough county south of Highway 7 on May 1 and north of the highway on May 5 has been only fair compared to last season some of the trappers report. Some good catches have been made but on the whole the season is falling short of the 1943 yield.

One trapper who had 160 pelts at this stage a year ago said this morning that he had taken around 100 this year. "The price is not so good either," he added. "We got $3.25 for good pelts last season, while $2.75 seems to be about the prevailing price now."

The Minister said he had considered the same regulation "a long time ago."

"I thought it would become inevitable," he added. "That was when this war was an 'Imperialist war' and I was getting strikes all up and down the country without provocation and by design."

"Were they Trotskyists?" a member asked.

"No," the Labor Minister replied. "They were the majority that suddenly decided that this was not an Imperialist war...."

Mr. Bevin said no further steps were taken "until this development took place when the second front was really in danger.,..We cannot afford to have our industrial machinery upset by changes in diplomacy or anything else that is going on between governments."

Peterborough Buyers Attend Lakefield Sale

"Half Peterborough was there," was the exaggerated estimate by J. H. Miles of the attendance at the sale of furniture at the home of Mrs. Dora McMillan, Lakefield, Wednesday afternoon.

"More than a thousand, any way," Mr. Miles amended.

Some of the individual prices in the total that was close to $3,000, were: electric range $280; electric refrigerator $330; dining room suit $230; bed room suit suite $235; sofa $95, and so on down the list of household effects.

"I noticed a lot of folks from the west end," Mr. Miles added. "In fact it was such a Peterborough crowd that I felt as if I were right back at home, may be on Charlotte street. It really was an outstanding sale."

(A Tokyo broadcast last night asserted the Japanese had launched a general offensive against Allied positions at Kohima.)

To-day's communique from Admiral Mountbatten's Headquarters said Japanese bombers and fighters had made a sweep over the Kohima and Tulihal areas Wednesday—the first recent report of enemy aerial action in support of the invading ground forces.

The bulletin declared one of the raiders was shot down, four probably were destroyed and eight were damaged.

British fighter bombers and dive bombers struck back at the Japanese around Kohima and Imphal, 65 miles to the south, while American bombers penetrated into Burma, blasting Japanese railway communications at Shwebo and Ywataung, the communique added.

In Northern Burma meanwhile, the Chinese 38th Division was reported continuing its steady southward advance despite bitter Japanese resistance.

This advance placed the Chinese less than 10 miles from Kamaing after the capture of Manpin.

Propose Scholarship For Peterboro Nurses

For the purpose of encouraging nurses to qualify for public health service, the finance committee recommended to the council Thursday night the providing of a scholarship of $500, available to graduates of Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals, on conditions to be determined by the Board of Health. The motion by Alderman Swanston, who introduced the idea, was seconded by Alderman Glover.

The essential condition in the proposed award is that the city of Peterborough may have first call on the services of the nurse winning the scholarship.

The Board of Health has been experiencing difficulty in obtaining nurses qualified for public health work. The military requirements have drawn heavily upon Canadian nurses, and a scarcity affecting hospitals and the public health service.

If the council endorses the idea, a by-law would be passed to authorize the provision of the $500 annually for the city's scholarship. It is understood that the offer could be suspended at any time, but that will probably be a detail to be decided by the Board of Health.

Alderman Dutton expressed the conviction that nurses trained at both Peterborough hospitals will compare favorably with the graduates of any other similar institution in the province.

Grass Fire Spreads Destroys Frame House

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28. — (ENS).— Flames that are believed to have spread from a grass fire destroyed a one-storey frame dwelling at the west end of Canrobert street at five o'clock Thursday afternoon. The building which had been unoccupied for several months was owned by Marshal Keir and contained little of value at the time of the blaze. Firemen had been called twice previously during the afternoon to put out grass fires in that vicinity. Both chemicals and water were used to combat flames which for a short time threatened nearby houses.

No Cheese Sold As Board Opens

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28. — (ENS.)— Though their opening meeting was held barely two days earlier than it was a year ago, not a single box of cheese was sold on the Campbellford Board Thursday night. Nine buyers, all eager to share in the season's first offerings, were present and Vice-President Harry Sauva expressed regret that they had made the trip in vain. A motion was passed setting May 11 as the date when the Board would hold its next meeting and at that time officers for the season will be elected. On motion of A. J. Meyers the secretary was instructed to write a letter to President F. W. Barnum expressing regret at his unfortunate accident of several weeks ago.

Need Education To Improve Health Of The Nation

That popular education alone can bring forth the sick for early treatment of illnesses and change the preoccupation of medicine from that of cure to that of prevention was one of the keynotes of an address by Dr. Gordon Bates, general director of the Health League of Canada, speaking before the first meeting of the newly organized League branch in the Y. W. C. A. Thursday night.

"The greatness of a country depends on the health of its people," Dr. Bates stated, "and experience has shown that this is only to be attained by a wholehearted campaign of education. The results of science are already evident, it has made its contributions; but education has not done enough yet.

"Who is to do this educating? It is up to ourselves. We must inform ourselves so we can inform others In the Health League we have the vision of a future where people will band together and fight, if necessary, for the accomplishment of that end."

"I suggest," Dr. Bates said, "that the progress and civilization of a nation are directly dependent on the number of people who assume unimposed obligations and think and act for themselves. As members of the Anglo-Saxon race, we have a great respect for what voluntary associations of citizens can do."

Officers Chosen

At the meeting the first officers to head the branch of the Health League here in the city were chosen. Geo. Gillespie was elected president Ronald McGrath vice-president, Mrs. H. T. Rehill secretary, John E. Keyes treasurer. Dr. G. S. Cameron was chosen honorary president with Mayor Hamilton. Senator Duffus and Senator Fallis as honorary vice-presidents.

A number of aspects of general and specific importance were taken up by Dr. Bates in his address. He felt that a co-operative scheme for after the war whereby the aims of legislation in matters of social security and better health would be integrated was a foremost necessity. "Surely the time has come when we must realize that we must have these two things," he said, "and I don't see how they can be separated."

Statistics showed, the doctor explained that the greater percentage of illness and the greater percentage of deaths occurred among people in the poorer income classes, and that these groups, despite the work in public health care, were still receiving far less medical attention and bedside nursing that the proportion of the population with incomes in excess of $3,000. "There are 2,750,000 people in Canada today who cannot afford medical care," Dr. Bates stated, "and in a recent year 10,500 deaths out of 107,000 across the Dominion were cases that received no medical care."

Pointing out that the cost of illness, direct and indirect, in Canada amounted to nearly a billion dollars a year, the Health League's director emphasized that the recognition of the Health question as a national problem was an imperative measure. "The venereal disease grant is the only one made by the Dominion Government to the provinces," he staid, "but if the principle is admitted here, then it is equally true of all sickness." He held, n addition, that the increase and improvement of public health services in the communities was also a very great need.

Watch Nutrition

Illustrations of the necessity of popular education in fields of preventive medicine and the results achieved by such education where it had been consistently applied were given by Dr. Bates in treating of the menaces of various diseases and the importance of nutritional instruction. In every case he made it clear that despite all the progress that science had brought about there still remained a great deal to be done through popular instruction.

"The war revealed the shocking fact that 44 per cent of Army recruits are unacceptable for frontline duty and the percentage is even higher in the United States," Dr. Bates stated. "Every day there are 50,000 who are unable to work in industry because of sickness; and at one time there are close on to 200,000 in this country who are lying in hospital beds."

Speaking of venereal disease, the Health League director termed it "perhaps the most sinister and difficult of all public health problems. It is, in fact, more than a medical problem. Since the start of the war we have noted an increase of 167 per cent in Toronto, and it is undeniable that venereal disease exists to some extent in every locality, in all communities whether large or small. Because people may have syphilis for years without knowing it, it is necessary to publicize the facts about it and to educate towards the universal acceptance of the Wassermann test and periodic check-ups of all sick persons, employees, couples before marriage, and pregnant women."

Contagious Diseases

Progress in dealing with the old scourge of diphtheria, once extremely serious and the cause of more deaths among children than any other disease, was detailed by Dr. Bates, who pointed out that though the adolescent terror has been almost completely stamped out in Toronto, there were still 3,000 cases a year across Canada. The obstacles and indifference that preventive medicine often runs up against were clearly pictured in the fight to have pasteurization of milk made a legal necessity, which it now is in the province of Ontairo alone. "Here is a problem that we have been working on for years, and though it is simple to understand and its benefits quite obvious, Dr. Bates said, "it is a problem that is not beaten yet."

G. N. Gordon, K. C., rose to move the vote of thanks to Dr. Bates and spoke of him as "a great statesman, though as far as I know he has never held public office. He is a crusader in the interests of better health, and he has presented us with an eloquent and striking argument," Mr. Gordon said.

Along with the officers elected at the meeting, an Executive consisted of the following was also chosen: Ian McRae, H. Steggles, Mrs. W. J. Gordon, Miss Olga Johnston, J. C. Lewis, Dr. R. A. Kelly, Miss Madonna Hurtubise, George Moore, Rev. H. L. Roberts, D. C. M. Scott and Mrs. J. R. Marshall.

The General Canvass Lags

This is only the fifth day of the Victory Loan campaign, and already the General Canvass, both in city and county, is lagging in this district. Let us not deceive ourselves that this is of no importance, and that the slack will be taken up in the next two weeks. In every Victory Loan campaign the General Canvass is the one which lags, and experience has shown that it does not recover lost ground by a last-minute spurt.

It is easy to understand why the General Canvass is the one which is hardest to keep up to schedule. The Special Names canvass is comparatively easy to deal with, and can be counted on to realize its objective. The Payroll and Employees' canvass is also fairly simple in its operation. The people to be canvassed are all readily at hand in their factories and offices; they have a feeling of pride in realizing the objective of the firm in which they work; they are in the habit of buying Bonds, and of having a certain amount of their pay deducted for that purpose every week. But the General Canvass is the one which takes in all the people who are sporadic buyers, or who are hard to sell, or who frankly do not want to face their responsibility in the matter of the Victory Loan.

There is also a tendency for the people who come under the General Canvass to feel that it does not make much difference whether their particular objective is reached or not, as the other canvasses will pull them through and put the Loan over the top. That is not true. The other canvasses have objectives which are as high as they can hope to reach, and if they exceed their objectives by a few thousand dollars the surplus will certainly not be enough to make up for a deficient General Canvass. The General Canvass buyers must not rely on any other group to do their work for them.

If the General Canvass lags behind its daily objective for a few more days it will never make up the lost ground.

Mr. Punch's Historian

The name of Charles Larcom Graves will not be familiar to many Canadian readers, although at least two of his works have been widely read in this country, and much of his incidental writing circulated here. He was a member of the staff of Punch from 1902 until 1936, and for the last eight years of that period he was assistant editor of the great comic weekly.

Although he was never widely known by name, Graves was a humourist and wit of rare quality. The two books referred to above, which are well known here, are Mr. Punch's History of the Great War and Punch's History of Modern England. In both books he showed us history as it was reflected in the magazine which he served; the illustrations were held together with a minimum of letterpress which was, however, full of penetrating judgements.

Graves knew thoroughly something which many people never know at all—that is, that the jokes of a nation reveal its mind and its temper in a way which vital historical documents do not. In the Great War the statesmen and the readers of the Times and Telegraph knew what the great issues at stake were, but millions of ordinary men and women were simply fighting Kaiser Bill; and because they were fighting him they make a joke of him, just as their sons and daughters have made a joke of Hitler. Through those jokes the mind of a nation revealed itself.

And through its jokes a nation traces the history of its fads and its serious aspirations. For a century Punch has held the mirror up to British nature, and C. L. Graves was one of Mr. Punch's most devoted and talented servants.

An Unreasonable Demand

Several eminent physicians who appeared before the Commons Social Security Committee on Wednesday were vigorous in their condemnation of Christian Science practitioners, and were eager that they should not be given any consideration in the scheme for national health insurance which is under discussion. The Hon. H. A. Bruce is quoted as saying that a physician who sent a patient to a Christian Science healer whom he was able to treat himself was guilty of criminal negligence; Dr. J. J. Heagerty, the director of Federal public health services, was also scathing on this subject.

Now we have no desire to take up the cudgel for Christian Scientists, but we think that this matter calls for some comment. The physicians and surgeons of Canada are an honoured and honourable group; but they adhere to one philosophy of healing, and they have the bitterest enmity for any sort of healing which does not agree with it. For years they have wrangled with osteopaths and chiropractors and faith healers, and the proposed health insurance plan has added fuel to their flame. Now they want the government to set them up as the only reputable healers in the country. They want their philosophy of healing ratified as the Established Faith of the Canadian people in all matters relating to health and sickness; they want us to embrace them uncritically, with all their great knowledge and all their errors.

For doctors do make mistakes, and sometimes these mistakes are fatal to their patients. Doctors are of very uneven ability; they range from brilliant healers of the Osler type to habitually inept fumblers. Every honest doctor admits that he makes mistakes and that he and his colleagues are not omniscient. But doctors do not extend this charity to other healers. Dr. Bruce, for instance, appears to insist that Christian Science healers should be successful in every case, or else be dismissed as quacks. We know nothing about the matter, but we think it likely that there is as great a difference in skill among faith healers as there is among doctors. The doctors are not very charitable toward their rivals.

Medicine is an evolutionary science; during the last century things have happened in it which no physician of 1844 could have forseen. Perhaps in another century the doctors will have adopted some forms of faith healing themselves. Meanwhile their claim to be the only valid healing priesthood is still unproven.

Keep The Home Fires Burning

Ivor Novello, one of Britain's matinee idols, will spend the coming eight weeks in the quiet retirement of a jail; he was caught chiselling gasoline for his car, and his sentence was a jail term and a fine of £25. Doubtless when he comes out of jail his popularity will be as great as ever; after all, his offence was not a particularly desperate one, and many people have been caught at it. But Novello, because of his conspicuous position, has been used as an example.

Novello is not well known in this country, but in England his name is a synonym for romance; for years he has appeared in elaborate musical shows which he writes and composes himself, and which run for several months of every year. Novello has not had a single failure in recent years, with the exception of a production of Henry V which came to grief in 1938. During the last war, when he was not yet twenty, he wrote Keep The Home Fires Burning, one of the most popular songs of the period. Novello has been a good artist, according to his lights, and he has given pleasure and colour to the lives of millions of theatre-goers; they will not hold his jail term against him. But they will know that the law reaches out for the rich and the famous and the wealthy, just as it does for the most obscure offender against wartime regulations.

For instance, we read recently of a clerk in a food administration office in Montgomeryshire who was discovered to be stealing food for his own use. Probably he received £3 or £4 a week in his job; his fine was £40. It will take him a very long time to pay it. But he was found breaking a law which is designed to give a fair share of existing food supplies to everybody, and he was given the maximum penalty.

Compared with the fines imposed in Britain for offences of this kind, our fines here in similar cases are trifling. The British are in the front line, and they will not tolerate any evasion of wartime regulations. Popular actor or obscure clerk—the punishment is heavy.

The Loan is on. Cut the cackle and produce your nest-egg.

John Bracken has bought a farm 15 miles out of Ottawa. He's sneaking up on the capital inch by inch.

A new chemical is reported to make ordinary wood as hard as ivory. Just the headrub for a wrestler.

Back To Baker Street

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
(In the Winnipeg Free Press)

YOU would have thought that everything possible to say about the late Sherlock Holmes, of Baker Street, had been said long ago; but, like that other famous detective, Hamlet, of Denmark, Holmes attracts in every generation another set of admirers and interpreters who are continually finding out something new about him. Thus during the last few weeks no less than three definitive and ponderous books of research have appeared to clear up the remaining mysteries in the life of Holmes, and doubtless many more will yet appear to clear up mysteries so far unsuspected. Holmes is now established as an immortal figure in English letters.

Why is it that an obscure detective, in a mean street, dealing with second-rate crimes in a stuffy Victorian world, should be more popular than any fo the great modern detectives, who use streamlined methods and fairly glisten with glamour? Why is it that the rather primitive and obvious manhunts of Baker Street are more esteemed by connoisseurs of murder than all the fancier and slicker detective tales of our time?

THE reason, I fancy, will not be found in Conan Doyle's superior writing, though that is obvious enough. It certainly will not be found in Holmes' superior powers as a criminologist, since many of the modern practitioners of fiction could easily beat him at his own game. No; the continual popularity of Holmes stems from another and deeper source in the mind of the reader.

Consider the world of Baker Street. It was a comfortable, cosy little world of hansom cabs, gaslights, tobacco smoke, whiskers and rustling petticoats. It was a world apparently settled forever, secure behind the defence of the British navy, ruled for its own good by British gentlemen. It was a fine time to live—no world revolution, no world war, no irritating economists about.

In such a world crime was disreputable, unusual, shocking. Therefore, when Holmes discovered a single corpse it was a world-wide sensation. Even a petty theft was good enough for an exciting tale. In "The Red-Headed League" a stupid attempt to burrow a tunnel into a bank vault, without any violence or shooting, became a thriller. A corpse was a special treat which Holmes provided sparingly.

The crimes studied by Holmes appeared exciting and horrible because goodness, honesty and a settled society were accepted as the normal state of man. Whereas today, in a horrible world like ours, the hard-driven writer of detective tales must turn up something more horrible in every book, providing his readers with an increasing dose of the drug; until today, with Presidents, Prime Ministers, economists, churchmen and scientists all reading detective stories voraciously, only the most violent drug will satisfy this universal addiction, and no one can produce a drug strong enough. The current doses no longer suffice and presently the addict, unable to find any relief in the modern dispensaries, flees in desperation back to Baker Street, to the gaslight, tobacco smell, petticoats and Victorianism.

HOLMES then emerges as a giant among the pygmies of crime, and his villains loom up monstrous and unique simply because everyone around them is entirely respectable in the best of all possible worlds. But put Holmes into our world, import his villains into our genre of crime, and they would be pitiful and ridiculous. Who would bother today about a Red-Headed League boring a tunnel into a bank? Under the influence of monetary reformers, many people would secretly consider it a very sound social reform. Who would believe in the Hound of the Baskervilles in a modern sky-scraper civilization? Such creatures could live only on the English moors in the latter days of the Good Queen. What publisher today would think of printing "A Study in Scarlet"? Such a story would pale into a sickly pink against the really scarlet backdrop of our times. And beside the tough school of modern detectives Holmes himself would be a pathetic cockney from Baker Street.

THE present flight of readers to Holmes is pure nostalgia, a longing for a day when crime was rare, before crime had been organized into vast political systems which overwhelmed a large part of the world; when people believed in the inevitable triumph of virtue; before all manners and morals had been corroded with scepticism and cynicism; before it was considered a mark of wisdom to be pessimistic and contemptuous; before a hateful sophistication had become the accepted proof of intelligence.

Modern people fly to Baker Street, into the arms of Holmes and Watson and into the crimes of the Nineties simply to get away from crime, the universal crime which lives about them today. Beside their present surroundings Holmes' mild murderers and piddling pickpockets are pleasant, attractive folk and good relaxation. It is a strange commentary on the success of our civilization of gadgets, machines and progress that so many of its inhabitants still make their spiritual home in Baker Street.

Hoarding Gold

There is such a demand for gold in India for hoarding purposes that official action is necessary to protect use and price. It all goes to show that gold is regarded by people everywhere as the one desirable expression, medium and token of wealth and exchange. While people believe that, and they have believed it for ages, there is no use telling them it has no value.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Speaking of Hirohito

The British Broadcasting Corporation has banned from its network criticism of and attacks upon Emperor Hirohito of Japan. This may seem to some a superfluous courtesy to a ruler, whose army and navy are slaughtering British and Americans in the Orient and grasping at world domination.

Yet there is logic in the order. The Emperor of Japan has about as much to say in what his country's militarists do as he has in determining the weather in the Southwest Pacific. They—Tojo especially—are the men we are after. Verbal ammunition used on an impotent signer on the dotted line, a figurehead, is ammunition wasted.—Detroit Free Press.

THE WISER MISER HOARDS VICTORY BONDS

Where We Must Trust the Experts

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

IN the ablest of his books, "Public Opinion," Walter Lippmann argued that in modern government, with all its national and international complexities, it was impossible for the average voter to know what was going on all the time or at any given time, and that, therefore, the most "public opinion" could do was to create a "pattern of public thought," trusting to the experts for the details of policies.

Strikingly in support of this claim is the situation created by that agreement among monetary experts of 34 nations on an international monetary stabilization plan in the post-war. This plan, made public in Allied capitals on Friday (it was laid on the table of Parliament here in Ottawa) is merely an agreement among experts, with no Government anywhere committed to it. But the point is: When our Canadian Government and Parliament do come to deal with it, what contribution can public opinion make with respect to it? In other words, how many men in Parliament, or how many newspaper editors, or how many business men—not to mention the general public—are competent to say that it is a good plan or a bad one, or to suggest ways or means of improving it?

All of us, of course, can reason for ourselves that some such plan is desirable. We can understand that Canada, the third or fourth largest trading country in the world, and with about a third of its national income derived from sales of goods or services abroad, has a heavy per capita stake in a healthy functioning world trade. We know also, in a general way, at any rate, that because of the peculiar structure of our international balance of payments—our interests are about equally divided between the United States and the United Kingdom—some means must be found of converting our surpluses of sterling into American dollars; that when pounds sterling cease to be freely convertible into United States dollars, as happened during this war, our position becomes difficult. But how much more do we know? Know about the respective merits of (1) the Keynes "Bancor" plan; (2) the American or White of "Unitas" plans; (3) the Canadian "International Exchange Union" plan, and (4) the compromise plan the experts have now agreed on?

Fundamentally, all these plans have a common objective: The restoration and development of healthy international trade after the war as an essential to world prosperity and peace. To that end, and in principle, we can support them all. But what we are talking about here is this: That when the Canadian Parliament or Government comes to decide whether it should agree to the particular plan now before it—the compromise plan—what help can any public opinion give to it? We can say that we like this plan because it gives gold, in which Canada is interested, a bigger place; but can we say that it is a better plan than the "Bancor" or Clearing House plan, or better (or worse) than the "White" or Unitas plan, or as good as the Canadian plan?

We doubt whether there are twenty men in the whole of Canada who could say, authoritatively, anything of the sort. Probably not more than that number in the whole country have studied all or even one of these plans, or who, if they have studied them, can claim to understand them.

Here, surely, is a case where we must trust the experts; where the most that "public opinion" can do is to support a good principle, leaving the details to men who understand them. And that sort of trust, more and more as time goes on, will be called for in democratic government. Men can cry to high heaven for what they call an "educated democracy" or an "intelligent electorate," but no measure of democratic education will ever bring us to the point where, under the vast intricacies of modern government, it will not be necessary for the majority of us to put our trust in the experts; the technicians.

The real problem, therefore—the real task of modern democracy—is to see to it that the experts are available; that having created right principles, what Walter Lippman calls a "pattern of public thought," and with a mind always to the final mastery of the people and Parliament, we see to it that our public service is manned by men of the highest ability and integrity, that they are worthy of our trust. That objective, not a precise knowledge by all of us of all the problems or instruments of government—a false notion of public opinion—is the real challenge of democratic government in the future.

Anthony Hlynka Speaks

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

IN the House of Commons last Thursday during the debate on civil aviation Mr. Anthony Hlynka, member for Vegreville, Alberta, who was born in the Ukraine, rose in his place and spoke the following words:

"My view is that at this point of history we should refuse to support any policy which may reduce the power of the British Commonwealth of Nations to that of a secondary position. Canada, in my opinion, should assist in the shaping of the commonwealth policies and should not engage herself in any wild goose chasing on her own. I believe that Canada's international foreign policy should commence with a common denominator suitable to every member of the commonwealth; then a complete agreement should be sought with the United States, and finally with the rest of the world. It has been said that control of the world's air routes will be the richest economic prize of the war. Let us then make sure not to commit a blunder of giving away our rights to some strange international power, which owes no allegiance to any flag and which is not committed to any set of Christian principles".

The debate on civil aviation rumbled on its way. It was not until after the recess that anyone thought to mention Mr. Hlynka's speech. Then the Rev. Ernest Hansell, member of Macleod, Alberta, commended Mr. Hlynka.

"When he was trying to point out to the committee", said Mr. Hansell, "the danger of any policy that would tend toward the disintegration of the British Empire, the feeling came over me how strange it was that here was a man born in the Ukraine who came here with his family at two or three years of age and was brought up and educated in Canada, and now in his youth was standing here in the House of Commons and calling for the safeguarding of the sovereign rights of the Canadian people under British democracy, while all around us and by the minister's own policy we are attempting to take away some of the sovereign rights of our people and hand them over to some outside authority.... I say that in this matter I will bet on the hon. member for Vegreville as being the truly British Canadian. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. I want a government in Canada that will safeguard the rights of our Canadian people".

A Hard Life

Queen Victoria was brought up under a regime of remarkable strictness; it is possible, indeed, that this austere routine in early days gave rise to her later zest for simple social pleasures. For as long as possible the knowledge of her position was kept from her, lest pride or vanity should make her unmanageable. Little Victoria was actually twelve years old before she knew that she was to wear the crown, and until she became Queen she never slept a night away from her mother's room. Nor was she allowed to converse with grown-ups, friends, tutor or servant, without consent.—Leeds Yorkshire Post.

Innocent Recreation

Perhaps too often we think of fishing in this part of the world merely as tourist attraction. As such it is great value. But in the stress of modern civilization, angling has not only its charm but its value for the man who may not be able to spare the time to go "touring" but who can take a few hours off to dip a line in a stream and contemplate for a time.

"God never did make," said old Izaak Walton, a "more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling."

And much can be done not merely by fish planting but by stream improvement to make conditions more favourable even in waters adjacent to settled communit[illegible] Sault Ste. Marie Star.

A Bible Message

And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and that they which see might be made blind. And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

Jesus said unto them, If ye were blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see; therefore your sin remaineth. (John 9: 39-41.)

And he spake this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others:

Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican. The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I possess.

And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner. I tell you, this man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted. (Luke 18: 9-14.)

He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy. (Prov. 28: 13.)

"Good heavens!" exclaimed an English listener. "You can't do that — that's poaching. You'll get fined or jailed for that in England".

The patient was describing his symptoms to his doctor.

"I feel as if I've got steel bands round my chest", he moaned; "my head's like a sieve; my heart beats like a steam-engine; my eyes are like balls of fire; my throat's like a rasp; my feet are like lumps of lead."

The doctor suppressed a smile.

"H'm", he said. "Well my dear sir, you'd better go straight along to your salvage depot".

Ah, Relaxation

Mr. Bracken has purchased a farm in Carleton County near Ottawa. He says this purchase has no relationship to his political plans for the future, which apparently means that he is not thinking of running for Parliament in the Conservative seat of Carleton. At one point this plan was considered by the party brain trust, but rejected on the ground that Mr. Bracken's flight from the West, where he was supposed to be strong, would be more humiliating and damaging than his flight from Parliament altogether.

Mr. Bracken remains out of Parliament and intends to remain out, evidently, until the next election, thus avoiding any participation in the urgent public business now under way, and also the necessity of stating any policy or answering any questions. The long history of Canadian politics holds no spectacle more ironic than that of Mr. Bracken refusing to enter the House of Commons to discuss foreign policy, yet asking the voters to send him to a peace conference to settle the future of their nation in the world.

The Canadian Press despatch says Mr. Bracken desires his new farm in Carleton as a place in which to relax. From what?—Winnipeg Free Press.

C.B.C. Outlines Policy On Air Programs

TORONTO, April 28 — (CP) — In a statement of program policy issued yesterday the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation detailed its policy with regard to news commentaries, quiz programs, commercial continuities, and program priorities.

The statement shows there are two approaches to the preparation of news commentaries—the short, interpretative comment linked with the news of the day and the "frankly personal" approach.

In the first case the CBC policy is for the commentator to provide background information and avoid expression of opinion. This type of commentator may be carried daily, the statement says, but should be replaced "if he shows a tendency to swing from the informative to the opinionative type of commentary."

In the second case, in which personal opinion is permitted, the commentator should be part of a balanced panel of commentators of contrasting views, not necessarily on the same program.

The CBC statement says that in neither "would it seem desirable to read or review scripts in advance" although commentators may be invited to check with the CBC on censorship directives.

On quiz programs, the statement says that those which "depend for their attraction on a money or lottery allure (as oposed to information or entertainment) will not be considered acceptable in future."

The commercial content of sponsored programs should be limited to the promotion or sale of goods, the statement says, "and comments on or opinions promoting economic theories should be forbidden."

While previously preferences for choice periods on the air have been mainly based on prior occupation, the statement says that in future "those sponsors showing the greatest and most consistent improvement in the standard of their programs shall take precedence."

STOCKHOLM, April 28.— (CP-Reuters)—The Danish press service said last night planes with faked British markings flew over Copenhagen yesterday, dropping faked leaflets which said "the hour of liberation" is near but asked the Danes to accept occupation by Russian or American negro troops. Hundred Bowlers Enjoy League Banquet

Climaxing one of the most successful seasons in the history of the organization the Men's City Five Pin League wound up its activities until next fall with a very enjoyable banquet held in the Canadian Legion Hall Thursday night One hundred bowlers gathered for the event which was featured by the presentation of prizes to the winning teams and individual scorers.

The team first prize went to Jay's for the seventh year in a row, Doug. Abraham took the high average award, Bud Weese the high three, Tick Caccavella the high single, Jay's the high three team record and the Ramblers the high team single.

A most enjoyable dinner was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion who through their president, Mrs. Downer, received a vote of thanks from the bowlers for the excellent repast and service.

An orchestra arranged by Walter Farr supplied plenty of music and in addition there were vocal solos by Mr. Farr, a violin solo by J. Murphy, an indescribable number by the Cleanrite quartette, with Jack Wade as a stowaway, and a blind-folded marshmellow eating contest that provided many a laugh.

President Harold Freeman was chairman and in his opening address thanked the teams for their splendid co-operation throughout the season, Fred Scates for publicity, Secretary Vince Fitzgerald for the efficient manner in which the work of that office had been discharged and everybody else who had assisted in the success of the season. The speaker extended congratulations to Jay's team for winning the team prize and to the individual bowlers who had won awards.

Guest speaker was J. D. Fitzpatrick, who was introduced by Fire Chief George Gimblett as one of the old guard of bowlers who still took a keen interest in the game, in spite of the fact that he had retired from active participation.

Mr. Fitzpatrick congratulated the league upon its successful season, high scores and fine attendance records that had been reported.

Then he took his hearers on a retrospective trip back to the days when Jake Solomon arrived in Peterborough in 1916 and revived not only bowling but baseball in this city. The speaker told how Solomon's alleys on Water street, beginning with two alleys and gradually expanding into five had been the headquarters for sport in those days. "The revival of baseball was planned there" Mr. Fitzpatrick said, "and even the coming of Al Heckman, who is here with us tonight was also planned in the same place. And what a find he was."

M. J. Duffus and Tom Curvin were called on for short speeches before the affair was brought to a close. It was a fitting windup to a season that has been out of the ordinary.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Jockey Eddie Arcaro aims to be the third rider to win the Kentucky Derby for the third time, expressing the view at New York last night that he stood a good chance of repeating next week at Churchill Downs with J. H. Whitney's Stir Up, a favored candidate for the classic. Arcaro won with Lawrin in 1938 and Whirlaway in 1941. Previous three-time winners were Earl Sande, who counted in 1923, 1925 and 1930, and Isaac Murphy, in 1884, 1890 and 1891. Stir Up now stands the 8-5 favorite for the Derby.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Tired of seeing his class wrestlers pushed around by the rough-and-ready Strangler Bob Wagner, Promoter Frank Tunney is trying something new for his Peterborough show at the Brock St. Arena next Tuesday night. He has matched the back-alley Oregon fighter against none other than Karl Krippler Davis of Texas which means that the two toughest battlers to be seen in action here this season are to be tossed in against each other and that should produce a new high excitement. "I have got to do something about this stormy petrel, Bob Wagner," said Tunney yesterday in announcing the match. "It looks to be as if he doesn't want to wrestle but merely to turn ever bout into a brawl. Putting scientific mat artists in against a bird like that strikes me as a sheer waste of time. So I have decided that if Wagner wants to play rough he might as well try out his rowdy tactics against an opponent of his own style. Davis should be the man. He has met all and sundry and nobody can say that he isn't tough, durable and unscrupulous in his methods. I don't know what will happen when these two ornery customers meet but at all events it should be interesting."

* * * * * *

That seems an understatement, Mr. Tunney. From what this column has seen of the tactics followed by both Davis and Wagner we would say that the customers in the front seats Tuesday night won't rate highly as insurance risks. There is nothing that either of these birds won't try in the way of skulduggery and when they cut loose on each other the fur should fly. Wagner hasn't anything in his repertoire, unless he has been holding out on us, to match the effectiveness of the Texan's favorite step-over toe hold which earned his name of Krippler because of the number of mat stars it has put out of action. But on the other hand the Oregon grappler has a ferocious attack that may bother even as sturdy a mat star as the big Davis and from what we have seen of Wagner he will start punching from the first tinkle of the bell and keep right on doing it until his hand is raised as the winner or else his shoulders pinned to the mat. There will be no quarter asked or given so far as either of the battlers is concerned and whether Maxwell or Powers referees the engagement the third man in the ring will be lucky if he escapes unscathed from the clash of the two public enemies.

We Salute Jim Tobin

The chief figure in baseball right now is Jim Tobin, big right-handed pitcher of the Boston Braves who yesterday walked into the hall of fame and earned a permaent niche for himself by pitching the first no-hit no-run game since Lon Warneke turned the trick for the Cardinals in 1941. Tobin was pitted against the Brooklyn Dodgers and his no-hit game was a genuine performance, free of any taint of lenient scoring to help him. As a matter of fact the Braves did not make an error, so there were no doubtful scoring plays. Tobin pitched to but 29 men, issuing two walks and the recipient of these passes was the only Bum to get on the bases. The big rightrander has turned in three beautifully pitched games so far this season. On opening day he allowed only three hits but was beaten 2 to 1. Last Sunday he came back with a one-hitter to earn a shutout and now he has achieved the dream of every pitcher, a no-hit no-run game. In other words Mr. Tobin has allowed but four hits and two runs in the 27 innings he has worked and if that isn't pitching, chum, it will do until some pitching comes along. And just to make his day complete yesterday the Boston pitching star slammed out a homer to score one of his team's two runs.

The other item of note in connection with Wednesday's baseball program was that the St. Louis Browns knocked a former Yank record of seven straight wins to open a season into the discard by downing Cleveland Indians 5 to 1 and thus setting up an eight-game winning streak. The Brownies were only able to put together four hits but used them to advantage behind steady pitching by Potter to keep their season's unbeaten record intact. Detroit and Chicago had a hectic game which the Tigers finally won by scoring two runs in the 12th frame to win 2 to 0 after the two clubs had battled eleven innings without putting a spike into the home plate. In the National League the St. Louis Cards after dropping a pair of close one to the Cincinnati Reds got back into their winning ways and came home in front with a 3 to 2 win. Munger started on the hilltop for the winners but gave way to Wilkes who got credit for the victory.

A Boost For Southworth

"One of the reasons for the successes of recent years enjoyed by the St. Louis Cardinals has been their manager, Billy Southworth—despite the carping of critics who would try to make you believe that it is the other way around and that the Cards have made Southworth," says Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star. "Southworth is a solid baseball man and his astuteness is never more clearly evidenced than in the manner in which he handles his pitchers. When he hits upon a system he clings to it, carrying the winning method from one season into the next. An important part of Southworth's mound strategy calls for the selection of certain pitchers to operate as frequently as possible against certain rival teams. In winning pennants in 1942 and '43 Billy had considerable success employing Southpaw Max Lanier in spot assignments. He always had Max ready to handle a starting job whenever the Cardinals moved in for a series with the Dodgers, Pirates or Braves. How well the strategy worked out is reflected in the record Max compiled against those three teams. He piled up 11 victories and lost only three times. In his appearances against the four other teams in the league over that two-year period Lanier won only four games and lost a like number."

The City Five Pin League put the finishing touch on a great season last night with a banquet at the Legion Hall. The loop has developed into one of the city's major sporting organizations and it has provided a lot of fun and entertainment for scores of city bowlers during the past season. The campaign has been notable for keen competition, high scoring and fine attendance on the part of the players of the various teams and judging by the total pinnage rolled up during the season it would be difficult to convince the pin boys that there was any scarcity of wood. They must have handled cords since the bowlers first started their trundling last fall. The number of players who finished the campaign with a percentage of 200 or better was above the average and altogether it has been a memorable season with the annual banquet a fitting end.

NEW YORK, April 28 (AP)—Wendell Lalime, who used to have trouble making folks believe his tall but true tales of Salmon fishing at Newport, Vt., now is complaining about too much credulity. In a recent business men's Red Cross basketball game, Howard Davis ended the show by kicking the ball the length of the gym and out of the window . . . To make the story better, Laline reported the ball landed in a freight car and was carried to Montreal. Now he and Davis are hiding up alleys to avoid questions such as "how did you know it was the same ball?"

Jim Tobin Hurls No-Hit Game As Braves Win

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The secretary is hereby instructed to cast on unanimous ballot for Jim (nothin' ball) Tobin as a member of the 1944 National League All-Star team.

Even if Tobe doesn't get anybody out from now until the Pittsburg classic in July, his feat of hurling the first no-hit, no-run game since 1941 and hitting a home run to help Boston Braves trim Brooklyn 2-0 yesterday rates him the job. If he hadn't walked Paul Waner in the first and ninth he would have tossed the first perfect game in the league since 1880.

In three appearances Tobin has yielded a grand total of four hits, has blanked the opposition for 26 innings and pitched 12 successive hitless frames. He is the first Brave to throw a no-hitter since Tommy Hughes did the trick in 1916.

While history was being made in Boston, St. Louis Cards were getting back into the winning column in the only other National League game. Walker Cooper's pinch-hit double in the ninth gave the Red Birds a 3-2 nod over Cincinnati.

Meanwhile St. Louis Browns were setting a new American League record with their eighth straight victory since the season opened. When the Brownies trimmed Cleveland, 5-1, behind Nelson Potter they collected only four safeties but made them good for five scores with the help of seven walks from three Cleveland hurlers.

Another St. Louis triumph today would tie the modern big league mark for most consecutive games won at the start of a season, held jointly by the 1918 Giants and the 1940 Dodgers.

Hal Newhouser gave a brilliant four-hit performance as Detroit shaded Chicago, 2-0, in 12 innings. Newhouser hooked up with Thornton Lee in a 0-0 southpaw battle until Catcher Bob Swift doubled with two on in the third overtime heat.

Other games were postponed.

Merritton Wins Basketball Title

ST. CATHARINES, April 28 — (CP)—Merritton Hayes Steel last night won Canadian Basketball title, replacing R.C.A.F. Gremlins of Patricia Bay, B.C., by downing United States Army Engineers 47-31 to take the best-of-five final 3-1.

Merritton, the Eastern Canadian titleholders, won the first game 63-61 in overtime, lost the second encounter 51-43 and came back to win the third game 52-35.

"Both teams appeared a little weary for the contest, their fourth successive in the same number of nights.

Top man of the series was Jack Gullekson, Edmonton forward, who scored 17 points in last night's encounter to bring his total points for the series to 72, for an average of 18 a game. He was top scorer for both teams in three of the games.

Captain Sal Maglie, with 13 points, and Joe Rodriquez, smallest man on the floor, with 16, paced Merritton to the national crown.

Eastern Canada Names Army Finalists

PETAWAWA CAMP, Ont., April 28 (CP)—Eastern Canada representatives in the Dominion finals of the Canadian Army's Boxing tournament were named here last night after an action-packed card in which competitors showed great willingness to mix it.

Of the 14 bouts scheduled, 10 were by decision, three by default and one by a technical knockout.

In the novice featherweight final between Gnr. John Joudrey of Stellarton, N.S., and Tr. Ernie White of London, Ont., Referee Jerry Goodman threatened to call off all matches unless the audience of about 4,000 yelling servicemen kept quiet during rounds. Army boxing rules call for no applause during rounds.

Joudrey put White down twice in the first round, once in the second and again in the third during a free-swinging battle which earned Joudrey the decision.

Tr. Tom Walsh of Toronto, shifty bantamweight, made good use of his left and landed four blows to win a decision over Pte. Joe Iacurto of Montreal in their novice bantamweight match.

Pte. Henry Demassiamo of Montreal decisioned Tr. Blaine Haydon of Springhill, N.S., in the novice lightweight finals after a set-to during which both were warned about hitting while holding.

Pte. Tom Klynik, Port Credit, Ont., novice middleweight, a polished fighter and heavy hitter, took the offensive to decision Pte. Edward Wildeman of Vancouver.

Paterno Loses

Gnr. Ben Paterno's good right uppercut failed to prevail against the lefts and right crosses delivered by Pte. Gerard Laforest of Montreal, who won the novice lightweight title by decision. Paterno comes from Toronto.

Gnr. Mike Jeles of Port Colborne, Ont., defaulted the novice heavyweight final to Pte. Aldon Cassidy of Islington, Ont., Jeles suffered a broken nose in the first round of the Eastern Canada finals here last night when he knocked out Bdr. Harold Brown of Toronto in the first round.

Pte. Melvin Smith of London, Ont., prevented from competing by a badly-sprained thumb, defaulted the open bantamweight final to Lieut. Joe Gagnon of Montreal.

In the open featherweight class, the cool work of Sgt. Robbie Robertson of Toronto earned him a decision over Pte. Yvon Leblanc of Montreal.

Pte. Gordon McGlynn of Kingston, Ont., was disqualified for holding in his open lightweight tilt with Pte. Patsy Bradino of Toronto and in the open welterweight Pte. Alex Boguski of Lethbridge, Alta., overcame the handicap of his opponent's greater height and reach to decision Pte. Mark Small of Glace Bay, N.S.

The open middleweight Eastern Canada final went to Len Wadsworth of Timmins, Ont., Canadian middleweight champion, when his shorter opponent, Sgt. Rene Leclerc of Sherbrooke, Que., was disqualified for holding.

Only technical knockout of the evening was scored by Pte. Archie Sparrow of Burlington, Ont., who opened a bad cut over Pte. Charles Lapierre's eye, ending the bout before the end of the third round.

Pte. Vern Escoe of Toronto, a fast and clever heavyweight, earned a decision by default over Sgt. Harold Higgins of Denmark, N.S., prevented by illness from competing.

TORONTO, April 28 — (CP). — Although no announcement has been made yet, it is understood the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at its annual meeting devoted much discussion to the matter of selecting players for places in hockey's Hall of Fame at Kingston, Ont.

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith says that he has it on good authority the following players are nearly certain of nomination when the final selecting comes about: Georges Vezina, Montreal Canadiens; Hod Stuart, Montreal Wanderers; Howie Morenz, Montreal Canadiens; Tommy Phillips, Kenora Thistles; Cyclone Taylor, Renfrew Millionaires; Russell Bowie, Montreal Victorias; Dan Bain, Winnipeg Victorias; Frank McGee, Ottawa Silver Seven.

Besides that, Smitty adds, there is a possibility Newsy Lalonde and several other early-day stars also will be added to the first slate.

Grab bag:

The C.A.H.A. replacement rule as applied this past season put Alan (Brantford Expositor) Rose in a whimsical mood. With unlimited replacements the rule, Alan advances the possibility baseball might adopt a similar plan. And you might see one World Series contestant selecting an ace batter from some other club when the going got tough.

Pesimists assailed:

The Cassandras who prognosticated much woe, grief and travail for hockey before the season opened last fall were criticized in a recent column by Ralph (North Bay Nugget) Adams. Pointing out the excellent crowd appeal the game enjoyed last winter despite many obstacles, he says: "Sports of all kinds have a hard time to keep moving in the right direction during wartime, so keep the monkey wrenches for the Axis machine and put the editorial shoulder to the wheel in Canadian sports to preserve them for our returning athletes."

Cross country:

Lloyd 'Bingo" Ernst and Jimmy Pineo who pastimed in Halifax puck circles last winter likely will get an invitation to try out with Boston Bruins come autumn....Campaign to raise money for a community rink in Welland, Ont., already has realized $112,500 in cash and pledges, with more to come. All that is needed now is authority for wartime erection of the sport arena ....Sport and social amenities were joined in St. Catharines, Ont., when relatives of the Dominion basketball title-seeking Edmonton U.S. Army Engineers tripped all the way from Wisconsin to see the boys in action....Eddie Shore is campaigning race horses this summer. He has four thoroughbreds which will be seen in action on the Western circuits come the racing season.....As part of a five-year plan to develop hockey talent in Calgary, the Buffalo Athletic Association has organized a successful Pee-Wee League and now are promoting an athletic association to provide an up-to-date athletic park in the Western city....George "Twinkletoes" Selkirk, ex-New York Yankee now in the U. House Debates Committee On Citizenship

BY JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 28 — (CP) — With sharp words and brisk exchanges, the Commons yesterday debated an appropriation of $46,367 for a War Services Department Committee in co-operation in Canadian citizenship.

Two members—J. Francois Pouliot (L—Temiscouata) and T. L. Church (PC—Toronto Broadview) —called the committee "a waste of money."

Fred Rose (Lab. Prog. Montreal Cartier) and Mrs. Dorise W. Nielson (Unity—North Battleford) approved the work of the committee in seeking co-operation between Canadian groups, but said Prof. Watson Kirkconnell of Toronto, an adviser to the War Services Department, did not aid the cause of the United Nations by his writings.

War Services Minister LaFleche said the committee helped newcomers to Canadian citizenship to become better Canadian citizens. It kept in touch with new Canadians and he said he believed it had a useful work to do.

Resources Minister Crerar told of visits to new Canadians in the West, their adoption of English as their language, their enlistments in the present war and their general service to Canada.

"I have some personal knowledge of the benefits that have flowed from the work done under this vote and I would be very sorry indeed if the judgment of the committee was adverse to it," said Mr. Crerar.

The item was approved without a division.

Today the House will proceed to discussion of Labor Department estimates of $24,000,000 under the War Appropriation Bill.

Trade Minister MacKinnon said the volume of wheat marketable by producers in the crop year 1944-45, which starts August 1, "will be considerably higher" than in the preceding two years. This year permitted deliveries of 280,000,000 bushels are provided for in a policy announced last year, but the minister said the 1944-45 delivery quotas or total to be accepted could not be announced as yet.

Hon. Dr. H. A. Bruce (PC-Toronto Parkdale) said that "the habit" of M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader, and others in "besmirching the character and integrity of our leading citizens tends to discourage such men from giving public service and is therefore much to be regretted."

Births Up

LONDON, April 28—(CP). — The birth-rate for England and Wales in 1943 was the highest since 1928, said the Registrar-General in a provisional report last night. Live births totalled 662,654, a rate of 16.5 a thousand. The 1928 rate was 16.7.

YOU CAN BUY THIS SERVICE—There is hardly a young couple in Peterborough with a family who not some time or other are forced to cancel a party because they cannot get someone to look after the family. Miss Margaret Wood, a very capable 'sitter', offers her services to the highest bidder at the "Odd Jobs Auction" to be held in the Collegiate Auditorium next Wednesday evening. For the purchase of a Victory Bond Miss Wood will look after the children some evening. (Parks' Studio Photo.)

struck Friedrichshafen and was "well-concentrated," said the Air Ministry. Montzen, never bombed before, is only a few miles from the German border on a branch of the Liege-Aachen Railway and Aulnoye near the Franco-Belgian frontier on a main route between France and Germany, has been bombed repeatedly.

Nazi planes flew over southern and eastern England during the night, but an authorative announcement said no bombs were dropped. Berlin, however, declared channel shipping and naval installations on the southwest coast were bombed.

The R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. hit into Germany again just 24 hours after its 4,500-ton assault early Thursday upon Essen, Schweinfurt and railyards near Paris.

Four-engined planes struck by morning and late afternoon yesterday against German fortifications and prime targets in France. Nine were lost. Hundreds of other planes joined the day-long parade, composed of every type of British and American light and medium bombers and fighters flown by airmen of every European Allied country as well as by Americans.

Three medium bombers and six fighters of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force were lost yesterday, besides nine heavies. The fighters bagged three German planes.

troops to become general service soldiers.

Col. Ralston said that about 3,000 call-up troops were volunteering monthly for general service.

Mr. Diefenbaker had asked if Defence Headquarters had authorized a questionnaire that was being circulated among various home defence units.

Deny Authority

The questionnaire, said Mr. Diefenbaker, asked call-up troops to sign active. It also asked "whether their family has been affected adversely or advantageously by the war, whether a civil job is held open for them after the war, whether they would consider signing active if service was guaranteed under French-speaking officers and N.C.O.s and whether they have any other reason for not signing active?"

"Have instructions gone forth from the National Defence Headquarters that officers of the various units are to interview their personnel with a view to inducing or coercing them to enlist for overseas service?" asked Mr. Diefenbaker.

The circular may have developed out of a recent meeting of officers commanding the various military districts, said Col. Ralston.

"No such questionnaire was authorized in expressed terms, but I do not repudiate it nor do I see anything whatever wrong with it," he said. "The same sort of questionnaire might well be circulated to anyone who was beng asked to subscribe for Victory Bonds.

"Persuasion is being used in Canada at the present time by way of meetings by bringing prominent people here, by ways generally of asking people to subscribe their money for a good three per cent security. It seems to me that the army is not only entitled, but that it is the duty of the army to see to it that the needs of th volunteer army are put before the people of Canada in exactly the same way.

"That is being done and will be done; and when my honorable friend uses the word 'coerce' he used a word which is not only unauthorized but is totally unjustified in any shape or form."

The recruiting discussions arose before the House began study of war estimates of the War Services department.

Col. Ralston said he deprecated "more than I can say the attempt which has been made to disparage recruiting activities in Canada."

Lake Ship Sinks After Collision

By PAUL S. UNDERWOOD
Associated Press Staff Writer

ASHTABULA, O., April 28—(AP) — The ore carrier James H. Reed went down in fog-shrouded Lake Erie five minutes after its head-on collision with the steamship Ashcroft 25 miles north of here early yesterday, the Reed's captain, Bert Brightstone, and Wheelsman Fred L. Preston related last night.

Brightstone and Preston were among the 23 survivors of the Reed's crew who arrived here last night aboard the Ashcroft.

The collision took the lives of 10 seamen and at least two others are unaccounted for.

T. F. Zealand, marine superintendent for the Interlake Steamship Company of Cleveland, said Brightstone and Preston gave this account of their experiences:

A mate standing watch on the Reed aroused Brightstone a few minutes before the collision, saying he thought another ship was in the area.

The captain ordered the engines stopped and fog signals blown. As soon as the Reed signalled, other signals were heard close by from another vessel. Brightstone ordered sounding of the alarm bells on the Reed and told the mate to get crew members out of the forward end of the ship when he saw lights of another ship on the starboard side toward the bow.

The captain and his wheelsman grabbed life preservers and stepped from the pilot house to the Texas deck when the ships collided. The forward end started to sink immediately and the rush of water as the Texas deck went under swept them against the pilot house.

The two men kicked themselves free and floated together until they found a white-painted life raft on the water. They attempted to row the raft but were so numb they gave up.

A life boat from the Ashcroft picked them up and they were taken with 10 other survivors to the engineroom of the Ashcroft, where they were given coffee and dry clothes.

Poultry Scarce Demand Draggy

TORONTO, April 28—The dressed poultry market remains practically unchanged the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. Receipts of fresh dressed chicken are practically nil, with arrivals of fowl about the same as last week. The local demand is holding good. Out-of-town movement consists of shipment of small lots to near-by points with the exception of one carlot of chicken, frozen, going forward to Newfoundland.

There is great activity in assembling carlot of poultry for inspection for shipment to Great Britain and the United States in the next few days.

German Claim

LONDON, April 28.—(AP).— The Berlin radio claimed to-day that Nazi speedboats had attacked a British convoy along the English south coast last night, sinking three ships totalling 6,400 tons and torpedoing a British destroyer.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said the destroyer was "believed sunk."

There was no report of any such clash from British sources.

Cattle Prices Lower; Hogs Unchanged

TORONTO, April 28—(CP)—Cattle prices opened 15 cents cwt. higher but closed lower with a loss of 25 cents cwt. for the week in trade on the livestock market here today. Veal calves were from 50 cents to $1 cwt. lower. Hogs were unchanged as were sheep and lambs.

Shortage of labor in packing plants, due chiefly to regulations returning men to the farm, slowed up processing of all classes of meats, the Dominion marketing service reported. After Tuesday, cattle were hard to move on the market at lower prices and there were still some 300 head unsold at the close of trade. Top for weighty steers was $12.75 on Monday with nothing better than $12.50 later in the week. Butcher steers closed at $10.50 to $11.75 and heifers were $11.50 down. Butcher cows opened at $9 to $9.50 for tops and closed with most sales from $7.50 to $9. Canners and cutters were $5 to $7.25. Bulls closed at $7 to $9 after making $9.50 tops. Fed yearlings closed at $11.75 to $13.25. Stockers slowly at $9 to $10.50 with stock calves at $11. Good milkers and springers sold slowly at $120 to $140 each.

Veal calves offered were mostly common to medium grades, selling $1 cwt. lower at $6 to $12. The few good to choice calves offered sold at 50 cents cwt. lower at $14 to $15.

Hogs were unchanged at $17.25 for grade B1 and $17.65 for grade A. Off-truck deliveries at packing plants were $17.55-$17.65 grade A and $17.15-$17.25 grade B1. Sows were $13 dressed.

Good western lambs sold at $14.25 cwt. with other westerns at $10.50 to $13.50. Local sheep moved slowly at $2 to $5 cwt. with best western ewes at $6 cwt.

De Laval Plant Over Top In Record Time

Women recruits for the canvassing job in the Pay-Roll Savings division of the Sixth Victory Loan are injecting an effectual note of appeal and persuasion into shop campaigns that is getting results, according to W. A. Reid of headquarters, who is general supervisor of that fast moving section of the Loan forces in Peterborough.

Employees of DeLaval Company were reported "over the top" this morning, and according to W. S. Hill of the big dairy implements factory the total of subscriptions was still climbing.

"Excellent organization and cooperation on the part of all employees has boosted DeLaval returns," Mr. Reid said. "Every department was given a quota to aim at, and everyone has taken a keen interest in the progress of the drive.

Much credit is to be given to Miss Margaret Smart and Miss Mildred McIntyre of the DeLaval staff. They are the first canvassers of the "weaker sex," and they have done a bang-up job in a he-man manner, according to the information from Mr. Hill. We are expecting that more will be heard from De Laval before they have wound up their subscriptions."

Quaker Women, Too

Encouraging reports were also coming today from the Quaker Oats Company. Fred Ash said the shop canvassers were turning in a steady flow of subscriptions, and official figures would soon be compiled.

Specially mentioned in the Quaker Oats staff are: Miss Rose White (Package Department) with one hundred per cent of the objective for that group; Miss Agnes Barrett, also of Package Department, another one hundred percenter; and Mrs. Helen White of the Bag Factory ninety-three per cent.

Raybestos 90 Per Cent

More Victory Loan support was reflected from Canadian Raybestos who have reached their objective of $17,000, with 90 per cent of participation by the employees, and still on the march.

Card and Paper

Employees of Card and Paper Works Limited, Sherbrooke street, were asked to raise $1,300, and they have already done so, joining the 100 per cent company with 90 per cent participation by the staff.

The J. E. A. Fitzgerald Fuel Office at 253 Hunter street will be closed Saturday, April 29th; the old Proprietors will be moving out to enable the new Proprietors to take over on Monday, May 1, 1944.

Have You Ever Considered These Points?

We are as responsible as German bullets for our soldier's death if we do not do our share for their protection.

We are too busy? Where would we be if our men overseas were too busy to bother fighting for us?

We are afraid? Afraid of the prick of a needle, when men face death, every minute, without fear!

We get tired of the war, and wish it were over? How tired would we be, knee-deep in Italian mud?

Do we want this war over soon? What are we doing to end it?

What can we do? We can give our blood, if we cannot give ourselves, and our blood is of little use, if we wait too long to give it. Men, dying of wounds, need the serum NOW.

Too busy! How can we be too busy when men are dying for lack of what we can give? It costs us nothing but a few minutes of our time. It is life itself to them.

LET US CONSIDER WELL BEFORE WE IGNORE THIS OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE

North Monaghan Leads Units In Loan Canvass

Along the general canvass front in Peterborough (county and city) of the Sixth Victory Loan drive, the shining mark this morning was the gleam from North Monaghan 26 per cent of the set quota for four days.

The neighbors on the city's west side, including the suburbanites who will be under the urban tent after annexation on January 1, wound up four days of Lending for Victory just about ten points ahead of their next rival. In fact there wasn't much evidence of serious rivalry for Monaghan's position at the top.

The required percentage for the fourth day was 22.22 and against that level Monaghan's 26 per cent stood four points on the excess side. All the others were "down under" showing some gains for the fourth day, but generally failing to manifest much enthusiasm about the whole business of getting this Loan job done quickly.

Going Up

(The big register at C.G.E.-Genelco, and it seems to have been fashioned for big results and big people, showed this morning a total of $402,000, compared with the $450,000 objective for the two separate plants.)

But that is getting away from the general canvass along the Tenth Concessions throughout the townships, and among the folks on the village streets, Regent in Lakefield, Queen in Norwood, Ontario in Havelock, and here in Peterborough on Rubidge, Burnham, Bolivar and all the other streets.

City at 17.13 Level

The general canvass in the city reported subscriptions totalling 17.13 per cent of the quota, or in actual figures, $265,550 loaned in four days within the city as compared with the $1,550,000 that is expected at the end of the three weeks.

The general canvass in the county is lagging at 11.2 per cent, and city and county together were showing 15.47 per cent last night, or $332,750 of their combined quota of $2,150,000.

Corresponding action along the battle lines would be dismissed in the communiques with the familiar "All Quiet." Of course there was something doing, but nothing to get excited about.

Glancing over the municipal standing again: North Monaghan on top, City of Peterborough second; Norwood clinging to a top spot in third place with 16.29 per cent.

Belmont-Methuen is fourth with 13 per cent; Smith is fifth with 12.83; Otonabee, 12.15, sixth; Havelock, 10.83, seventh.

World Forgets Baden-Powell Army General But His Influence Continues In Boy Scouts

"Baden-Powell left a wonderful monument to his memory," Alex Kay remarked Thursday night to a reporter at the Scout-Cub show in the market hall.

"We've almost forgotten that he was a British General, and most of the details of his defense of Mafeking have faded from our minds, but he lives on in the grand work of the Boy Scouts, all around the world. It was a wonderful memorial, and I feel that it is growing all the time. Just think of what an influence the name of Baden-Powell has been since the Boy Scouts were organized, and we are certain that it will go on expanding from year to year."

General Robert Stevenson Smith Baden-Powell, the famous British officer, is rather elbowed about in the company of his native peers, if not superiors, but as the man Baden-Powell, destined to a great inspiration, he holds an increasing salient in the enduring achievements of mankind.

Put Victory First

The team of A. J. McClellan, Art Cauley and Stan Darling is still topping the list of salesmen, in fact, is starting to pull away according to results of the fourth day of campaign in connection with the sixth Victory Loan. This team's sales now total $33,900 with Mr. Cauley in the lead with $18,050, Mr. McClellan $11,900 and Mr. Darling $3,950. The bonds these boys have sold will buy two Bofors Anti-Aircraft guns.

Team "C" of W. E. Metheral, James Juby and Vic Tully are in second place with $23,100. Mr. Metheral has sold $10,400 in 23 sales for top man, Mr. Juby $7,750 and Mr. Tully $4,950.

Money for an anti-aircraft searchlight has been provided by sales of team "B" consisting of Jack Curtis, Bruce Sargent and Jim Harkness. Their total is $17,900 with Mr. Curtis leading with $10,500 for 23 sales. Fred Revoy, J. D. Anderson and R. Irwin have turned in $20,100 with Mr. Revoy $7,300. Mr. Anderson, $6,150 and Mr. Irwin $6,600.

The other teams have reported "D" of C. A. McFadgen, C. A. Gallagher and A. Smith $11,650; "G" of S. G. Cole, John Lee and W. P. Kinlin $13,800; "E" of J. Mackness, G. Heron and W. S. Rose $9,900; and "A" of Rufus Payne, Lou Brooks and W. Roberts $9,950.

Some teams have more lucrative districts than others so the above figures are not given for a comparison. It often has been the man with the lowest sales is often working the hardest. Lou Brooks while on the low team topped the salesmen on sales on the fourth day, making 15 with A. J. McClellan second with ten.

Art Cauley led on the daily sales total with $4,300 and Jim Juby was second with $3,200.

The North Monaghan team of Mrs. E. C. Moore, Henry Batten and J. Arnott is leading the rural field and Monaghan is the only township above the per cent necessary on the fourth day. Fifty-four sales in this township have yielded $10,400.

J. S. Henderson working in Otonabee has already reported 32 sales for $9,750 and Peter Maher, 18 sales for $6,050.

In Smith, Gordon Hancock has reported 23 sales for $6,100 and C. H. Hunter 13 sales for $2,200.

Henry Batten, canvasser in North Monaghan, reports to headquarters this morning that he is selling more bonds than ever However, the amounts are not so high. Many of the people in this district have to buy feed and just can't buy for their former amounts. Mr. Batten also said that he found more patriotism than ever when calling on his customers, and more young men were investing their savings.

An interesting broadcast will be presented over Station CHEX Saturday at 10 a.m., when Mrs. Nugent, who has a son a prisoner of war in Hong Kong, another son a prisoner of war in Germany and a third son in the army in England will be on the air. Mrs. Wark, a young girl teaching in Lindsay whose husband is flying a bomber out of India will also speak. Mrs. Thorpe, a daughter of Cecil Smith of Woodville, will speak, and last, but not least, a little boy from Omemee whose father is in the Navy. A choir directed by Percy Boles, a music supervisor in Victoria county, will also be heard.

J. H. Vernor Addresses Club

Teh simplicity of the machinery as compared with the complexity of American political forms was the subject of a brief and instructive address delivered by J. H. Vernor, vice-president and general manager of the Western Clock Co., before the Thursday evening dinner meeting of the Y's Men's Club last night.

"When I came to Canada 20 years ago," Mr. Vernor said, "I found the processes of Canadian politics difficult to grasp. It was only after some time that I realised this was so because of their essential simplicity and, in that respect, their great difference from the American set-up."

The speaker devoted the greater portion of his talk to an elucidation of the laws, practices and traditions which are commonplace to the observers of the American political scene, but which are often misinterpreted and misunderstood by Canadian citizens. He spoke of the anomaly which makes the president of the United States commander-in-chief, of the country's entire armed forces while still remaining a civilian himself; of the paradox of the Electoral College which enables a candidate to win a national election without receiving a majority of the total popular vote; and of the set-up of Congress and the significance of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Mr. Vernor's speech was listened to with much interest by the members of the club, and he was thanked for his kindness in coming.

Board Of Works Suggests Salary Reward

In compassional recognition of the long service of two of its veteran members, one of them deceased, the Board of Works recommended to the council Thursday night that the widow of Adam Cox receive $1,200 during a period to be extended over eighteen months, and that Fred Board be paid his regular wage during a present illness, from January 20 until his return to work.

Mr. Board became ill about the middle of January and his wages were suspended on January 20. Municipal employment in Peterborough lacks provision for retirement pensions and sickness indemnity. City Engineer Parsons reported both these cases to the Board Thursday night. Mr. Board has been working for the city twenty-seven years, and "has been a capable, faithful employee."

'Some recognition should be made of his long service," Mr. Parsons suggested. He said he had learned that an operation cost Mr. Board $495.70, but he was now able to be around again, and was expecting to be able to resume work in the near future, especially with the coming of warm weather.

Deserve Reward

"I believe we should give recognition to our old employees," Alderman Bradburn said, seconding Alderman Glover's motion that Mr. Board's wages be retroactively continuous from January 20. The motion carried unanimously.

The late Adam Cox, who died several months ago, was an employee of the city for thirty-seven years, Mr. Parsons informed the Board, relating instances in which Mr. Cox, as with other employees of that department responded to call at any time during the day and night, in the face of adverse weather emergencies.

Alderman Swanston moved that the council make an allowance to Mrs. Cox of an amount equivalent to one year's pay that would have been earned by her husband. Alderman Sands seconded the motion, and the amount was adjusted in the round sum of $1,200.

Sale Of Seeds At Market For War Victims

Last Saturday the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund resumed the facilities afforded by the City Council to help along this local and district effort on behalf of the sufferers from air raids over Britain, by making use of the stall at which two senior students at Queen Mary School, Barbara Laurie and Joan Smith, acted as sales clerks, offering garden seeds in packagea form, and a few potted plants grown by the secretary of the fund.

Donations for this purpose had been given by Loblaw Groceterias, Higgins Hardware, and the Metropolitan Stores, to which were added some 60 packets grown and put up locally expressly for this purpose, all selling at just 5 cents a packet, from which the young ladies raised a total of $3.70 which is credited in to-day's receipts for the fund.

This will be continued on this Saturday's market, with two senior students from Queen Alexandra School, through the kind arranging of J. E. R. Mnuro, their principal, acting as sales clerks, and the fund management will be glad to receive any donations in kind to help along the good work.

This week's offerings will include a large variety of vegetable and flower seeds, among which will be found a few Godetia seeds from England, some mock orange, and a few Montbretia bulbs which originated in Norwich, England, the entire proceeds of which will help to swell the money so far raised for the fund.

Further Memorial Gift.

Last Monday, the employees of the J. J. Turner Co. Ltd. paid tribute and honor to the memory of a former president on St. George's Day, choosing it particularly for his well-known associations with former celebrations by adopting the particular means of helping others in distress for which the patron saint of England was renowned.

A further affirmation of the esteem with which the late J. J. Turner was held is evidenced by another $11 being turned over by Robert Hendry on their behalf to make a total of $25.00 given to help others in his name one of the finest monuments any mortal can raise by the life he leads on this earth.

All during the life of this fund, the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church has kept up a continuous stream of gifts to help the sufferers from air raids over Britain, applying the principles of one of the greatest of Christian precepts to succor those in distress in a manner worthy of their calling.

To-day, another contribution of $2.50 is credited to the Tuesday Afternoon South-end Group, one of those within the inner circle of this class, whose friendliness is once again thus exhibited in one of the best manners possible.

Stimson Backs River Project

WASHINGTON, April 28 — (AP) — War Secretary Henry Stimson joined government supporters of the proposed $420,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway development Thursday but it appeared to be heading into a controversy over whether the joint United States-Canadian project will ultimately require treaty ratification by the Senate.

Stimson wrote the Senate Commerce committee that Army engineers have prepared preliminary surveys and plans so work on the huge channeling and hydroelectric project could be started "promptly after authorization and appropriation of funds" by Congress.

While Stimson went on record as favoring passage of the joint resolution of Senator George Aiken (Rep., Vt.) authorizing the development as a postwar project, chairman J. W. Bailey (Dem., N.C.) of the Senate commerce committee, before which the Aiken bill is pending, said it was "clearly a matter for ratifying by treaty."

A treaty would require two-thirds approval of the Senate, while the Aiken resolution merely would need a simple majority in the two houses. A similar St. Lawrence treaty failed for ratification in the Senate in 1934.

Bailey's view was disputed yesterday by State Secretary Cordell Hull, who said he thought the project could be built by international agreement sanctioned by Congress and the Candian parliament, as in the case of past construction of bridges linking the two countries.

H.M.C.S. "SIOUX," the most recent acquisition to the Royal Canadian Navy, is shown here. One of the fastest destroyers in the world, "Sioux" was transferred to Canada while still building. At the commissioning ceremony, she was renamed by Mrs. J. A. Milne, wife of the managing director of the shipyard that built her.

Two Fast Canadian Destroyers Now Out At Sea

A BRITISH PORT—Having done everything asked of her in trials, H. M. C. S. Algonquin is now stalking the grey Northern sea routes along with her sister ship Sioux.

Algonquin and Sioux are two of the world's fastest destroyers and, as recent acquisitions to the Royal Canadian Navy, they are Canadian in everything that their names imply.

But their names weren't always Algonquin and Sioux, even although they are brand new ships and possess every modern sea warfare device that the human mind can contrive.

They were christened other than Algonquin and Sioux when launched, but when Canada took them over it was decided that their rebaptism should carry names redolent of the Dominion.

Algonquin was the first to commission. Now it is Sioux' turn.

H. M. C. S. Sioux was transferred to Canada while still building and at the commissioning ceremony she was renamed by Mrs. J. A. Milne, wife of the managing director of the shipyard that spawned her.

"I herewith rename you Sioux. and may God speed you," said her sponsor as the distinctive Canadian blue ensign broke out on the jackstaff.

With his officers lined up behind him, the youthful Captain met the guests at the gangway. They included Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, C.B., R.C.N., Senior Canadian Flag Officer (Overseas): Mr. and Mrs. Milne and the officials of the shipyard whose skill had moulded ths fine fleet destroyer.

The dedication ceremony took place from a White Ensign draped lectern set in the waist of the ship. There the ship's company mustered to hear the padre, Lawrence J. Reading of the Royal Navy, intone: "In the faith of Jesus Christ we dedicate this ship and all her company to the service of the King in our country's cause within the sheltering care of God. May the Lord safeguard you in all your going forth and coming in, in perils of battle and of storm, and bring you to the haven where you should be—in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit."

Addressing the ship's company, Vice-Admiral Nelles said: "Here you have a fine ship and I am sure that, as men of the Royal Canadian Navy you will be a credit to her. I do not know what part you will be called upon to play in future operations, but I will follow your fortunes with the keenest interest and confidence, knowing that the Royal Canadian Navy has a good ship and in good hands."

Get Mug Set

All spic and span for the commissioning ceremony, the new Canadian destroyer looked as if she would be ready to put to sea and engage the enemy on the shortest notice, but there was a hundred and one things yet to be accomplished before she could leave the jetty to go through her trials. Workmen, who enjoyed a temporary lull during her commissioning, swarmed all over her again, once the "alert" had been sounded and the bo'sum of the shipyard had lowered the form's flag in conjunction with the yeomen hoisting the White Ensign.

Officers and guests thereafter repaired to the wardroom where Mrs. Milne in another neat little speech presented the wardroom with a set of pewter mugs.

"The motto of the Sioux tribe I am told is: 'The enemy, I laugh!'" she said. "What could be more appropriate? I hope and pray that this ship will emerge from any action in which she may engage with her men laughing—laughing at the enemy. That would be in keeping with this fine Indian motto."

Shortly afterwards a luncheon was held in the directors' room at the shipyard at which the Captain spoke, expressing confidence in the officers and men who sail with him, assuring Vice-Admiral Nelles and the directors that, in whatever sphere of action he might be engaged, he would endeavour to have Sioux to the fore. "I fervently hope that when that day comes, well might we say, 'The enemy? We laugh," said the commanding officer.

Keen rivalry may now be anticipated between the two new destroyers. Identical in lines they are built to operate with the largest warships, their long operational range making them particularly suitable also for independent cruises, while their armament, exceeds that of any other warship of equal tonnage.

Old Soldier Describes Trip To Fighting Front

By DOUG HOW,
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIAN TROOPS IN ITALY, April 28—(CP)—They were going to put an experimental platoon of army service corps troops into the infantry's most forward positions for the first time. They had the list of men nearly compiled but it didn't bear the name of Roland Barton.

Barton, they figured was too old. His papers said he was 45 but there was some belief the farmer from Hellihar, Sask., was older.

Nobody thought to tell Barton about the show and nobody associated him with it until he presented an irate face to his company commander.

His arguments successful, he laid aside the jacket he wears working around officers mess. Went in at night in the platoon formation they had made up at their base several miles back.

They stayed in seven days, learning the hard way the lessons every infantryman comes to know by heart.

Barton was back in his officers' mess when the correspondents came around to see him. He had come out of the line the night before.

They asked him how this war compared with the other one and Barton said the thing that struck him was the way the enemy would leave you alone if you left him alone.

"You start something," he said, "and he'll come right back hard. But you mind your business and he will mind his."

To a man who knew the trench warfare of the First Great War it came as a surprise to see men moving about within view and easy range of German weapon pits. The fire he found little changed with the exception that mortars had become a greater factor.

Senator Objects To Being Rushed

OTTAWA, April 28 — (CP). — The Senate, where things generally run along at a smooth clip, got into a hot debate on Thursday during which Senator James Murdock (L-Ontario) said some persons thought Senators were a "lot of fussy old men" and the Senate a "rubber stamp."

The debate was started by Senator Murdock who objected that divorce proceedings were being rushed through the Chamber. He was supported by Senator W. D Euler (L-Ontario).

The Senate had before it a report of the Divorce Committee recommending certain divorces be granted and Senator A. B. Copp (L-New Brunswick) asked the report be adopted before the records of the cases were available. He said it was a matter of procedure. The Bills granting the divorces would be up later.

Senator Murdock objected to adopting the report before he examined the records.

The Senate sat for 45 minutes yesterday, he continued, and 45 minutes the day before and now it was being rushed again.

Senator J. T. Haig (PC-Manitoba) and Senator J. E. Sinclair (L-Prince Edward Island) insisted adoption of the report did not commit the Senate to passing the actual Bills. The Senate agreed and finally adopted the report.

The status of the Senate was discussed further by Senator Haig when he resumed debate on a motion to set up a committee to study Dominion-Provincial relations. He opposed such a committee.

The Senate, Senator Haig said, as the body to which small provinces looked for protection and it should not jeopardize its position by starting investigating the relations. He proposed the Senate wait until the legislation came before it and then it could act as a court of appeal in seeing that justice was done as between the provinces.

The Senate could do more than the Commons to bring about unity in Canada, he said. In the Commons Ontario and Quebec had a preponderance of members as against the smaller provinces, but in the Senate Ontario and Quebec had 48 members and the smaller provinces 48 members. That was done so the Senate could protect the smaller provinces. The Senate adjourned to May 2

Canadians Say Great Fires Set In Essen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 28—(CP Cable)—Canadian heavy bombers helped the R.A.F. batter and burn industrial Essen Thursday in a smashing offensive that also included a strike at the railway bottleneck of Villeneuve St. George's, near Paris.

Airmen reported great fires in the German arms centre, raided by a force that included Canadian Halifaxes and Lancasters. PO. Charles Gray of Vancouver said the city looked like a huge bonfire and 100 miles away as we were coming out an immense glow and smoke billowing up 18,000 feet could be seen."

Flt.-Lt. Eric Mulligan, D.F.C., Sudbury, Ont., and Sgt. Les Tarpley, Willowdale, Ont., also commented on the big fires.

Most squadrons of the Canadian bomber group were on the Essen raid while a smaller force bombed railway yards at Villeneuve St. Georges and other aircraft laid mines. The night operations cost one Canadian bomber.

Sqdn. Ldr. A. L. Avant, D.F.C., Hughton, Sask., a veteran Thunderbird Squadron pilot, made his 39th trip doing a Cook's tour of the Ruhr Valley when his compass went wrong.

"We knew something went wrong when we saw a lane of searchlights far to one side of us so he tried to spot the river in a country we know as well as home," he said. "We flew over Duisburg and then cut across to Essen. We dropped our bombs squarely by crossing the main stream of bombers."

The Thunderbird Squadron's 1,000th sortie was flown by a Lancaster pilot, WO. Leonard Thompson of Nassau, Bahamas.

Group Capt. J. G. Bryans, Saskatoon, flew to Essen in a Bison squadron plane captained by Sqdn. Ldr. Del. Kenney, D.F.C., A.F.C. Fredericton, N.B.

Sgt. George Urzada of Esterhazy, Sask., celebrated his 20th birthday over Essen and reported "the boys were shouting 'happy birthday' over the intercom as we road the searchlight beams."

PO. Don Berry of Trail, B.C., Thunderbird pilot, completed his first tour of operations by going in over the target on three engines.

Canadians who went to Villeneuve St. Georges reported no serious opposition.

"The nearest flak we saw was five miles away and nobody saw a fighter," added Flt. Sgt. Ronald McClelland, 21-year-old bomb-aimer from Pembroke, Ont.

"There was one big explosion while we were over the target," reported Flt. Sgt. Eddie Quinn, Montreal, a Moose squadron bomb-aimer. "It went up in orange flame and then thick black smoke followed. It rose about 5,000 feet."

FO. Hank Hammond, Windsor, Ont., a navigator, also reported a big explosion.

The Bluenose squadron, led by Wing Cmdr. Chris Bartlett, D.F.C., of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., was another formation in the Villeneuve St. Georges raid.

Champlain Defeats the Iroquois

. . . while his King welcomes the inventor of the Knitting Machine to France

In the same year that Champlain defeated the powerful Iroquois, who were at war with French settlers in Canada, Henry IV of France was opening his purse to William Lee whose knitting machine had received little encouragement in England.

The democratic Henry unfortunately was assassinated before Lee could establish himself; and the latter was thrown into prison. Yet machine knitting flourished—a good 200 years ahead of its normal time.

Penmans, established in 1868 during the first phase of power machinery, immediately saw the importance of maintaining a very high quality in materials, style, tailoring, comfort and health protection. Holding steadily to this viewpoint over a period of 76 years, Penmans have won an enviable reputation for quality Knitted Products in Canada.

Japanese Using Manchuria Units

BY CLYDE FARNSWORTH
Associated Press Staff Writer

KUNMING, April 28 — (AP) — The Japanese have drawn 18 Divisions, largely from Manchuria, to the Chenghsien front in northern Honan Province and are embarked upon a grandiose plan to link their conquests in north and south China by rail with 60,000 troops already in action, Chinese sources here said.

Other intelligence reports agreed with the Chinese that at least some of Japan's offensive forces have come from Manchuria although not necessarily with the report of the number of divisions employed.

The fact that Japan has seen fit to draw some of her crack outfits from Manchuria was taken as an indication she is not jittery over Russia's intentions.

The Japanese also were reported concentrating forces in the Hankow area for a drive northward in conjunction with the Chenghsien offensive—twin drives which might make contact along the Peiping-Hankow Railway—and may also be preparing for an offensive move northward from Canton toward Hankow.

The unfolding of Japanese strategy is being watched carefully since a successful drive along the Canton-Hankow Railway would endanger and perhaps wipe out the footholds United States Air Forces have established in southeastern China and might add years to the war.

Income Tax

I paid my income tax to-day,
A stiffish bit I'm bound to say,
It took some pinching here and there,
My purse is pretty thin and meek,
I don't know how I'll eat next week.

But other women just like me,
Paid theirs in different currency,
One gave a son not yet nineteen,
A young Canadian fine and clean.
Shot down along the road to Rome,
Dying ten thousand leagues from home.

And someone paid a costly price,
A whole lifetime of sacrifice,
Never to hear the skylarks sing,
Above the tender fields of Spring:
And someone lost his precious eyes,
Somewhere amid the flak-filled skies.

He pays a coinage bleak and cold,
Who only pays for war with gold.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, April 29

DARING TO BE original, to bring to bear upon workaday and practical things the force of fresh ideas and concepts, even rampant idealism and radicalism, may be the mainspring to surprising success and startling experience, even though such may be subtle and intriguing. But do not expect support from ordinary superiors, employers, or public or fraternal associates, but seek it from sympathetic and fond relatives or elders imbued with real understanding and affection.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather strange experience especially if they endeavor to put over on a practical and workaday world some new ideas and concepts of a startling or advanced nature, lacking realism or the conventional ways and means of doing things. Subtle, unique, perhaps altruistic inspirations or tactics may invite the enthusiasm and support of elders, thinkers, idealists or just fond relatives, and not those in power and place. But move slowly, prudently and faithfully for future progress.

A child born on this day may have much idealism, creative ability and long range vision of unique or altruistic purpose. It may be sustained by its kind but vetoed by those in authority.

V.O.N. Officer To Give Talk In Aid of Nurses

Miss Elizabeth Smellie, C.B.E., R.R.C., chief superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses will be guest speaker at the evening meeting of the local Chapter of the Registered Nurses' Association, Tuesday in the Empress Hotel. The talk is in connection with the "War Service Through Nursing" display, being shown in the Y.W.C.A. Tuesday afternoon. The object of this demonstration, which will feature a playlet, a moving picture, and displays of various phases of nursing, is the recruitment of student nurses, to supply an urgent need.

Miss Smellie was with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps in the last war, and received the Royal Red Cross medal, first, class, for her excellent work. She trained at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore and took a post-graduate course in public health nursing. In 1932 the Rockerfeller Foundation awarded her a fellowship, and she studied maternal welfare in several European countries. In 1924 she was named chief superintendent of the V.O.N., the position which she now holds. She is also a consultant in public health nursing for the Department of Health on Ontario, and of the welfare department of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in New York.

Other positions she has held are vice-chairman of the nurses' section of the American Public Health Association, and first vice-president of the same Association. In 1934 she was awarded the C.B.E. In addition to Miss Smellie's address, Miss Margret Dulmage, chief recruiting officer for the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, will give an account of her work as a recruiting officer.

The afternoon at the Y.W. will feature a playlet from the Department, of Health of Toronto and Peterborough, entitled "The Public Health Aspect of the Tuberculosis Case." Miss Clara Vale and Miss C. McGinnes, of the Toronto Department of Health, will take part. If possible, the film "Registered Nurses—Serving All Mankind," will be shown. Ten qualified people will be on hand to answer any question about nursing.

Margretta Peel Weds Sailor Overseas

A wedding of interest took place recently in the church of Saint Martin's in the Field, London, England, when Margretta Peel became the bride of Patrick J. Murphy, of the Royal Navy. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Peel, Belfast, and she lived in Canada with her sister, Mrs. A. Cummings, 639 Gilchrist Street, Peterborough, before enlisting with the C.W.A.C. She was employed in the office of A. Wander, Limited. The groom's home is in Ulster.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Stuart Hull, of the Royal Navy, the bride wore a pale blue dress, black accessories and carried a white prayer book threaded with red roses. Her only ornament was a string of pearls. She was attended by Kay Torrance of the C.W.A.C., in navy blue, with navy and white accessories, and carrying a white prayer book threaded with pink roses. Mr. W. Caughey, of the R.A.F., was groomsman.

Major Boulden, R.C.A., officiated, and Major Barton, C.M.H.A., provided the music. C.W.A.C.'s formed a guard of honor for the couple as they left the church. Miss Louise Peel, sister of the bride, was hostess at the reception, held in the Canadian Girls' Club. After a short honeymoon the young couple returned to their stations. They are planning to live in Canada when the war is over.

WCTU Re-elects Officers At Annual Meeting

Of special interest was the program given Thursday afternoon by the local W.C.T.U. at their annual meeting and election of officers at the Y.W.C.A. Green Room.

The worship service conducted by Mrs. H. Alton, included the Scripture lesson from Psalm 91:9-16 and the devotional reading, "The Life of Susannah Wesley." Prayer by Mrs. A. J. Throop closed this period.

The chief speaker, Mrs. W. H. Morton, gave a comprehensive report of the recent national convention of the Council of Women held in Montreal. She explained the steps of the organization beginning at the Local Council, next the Provincial Council, third the National and the International Council of Women.

Their aim throughout is to do good for the people of the community, and in proof of this the speaker listed some of their accomplishments: Franchise of women, minimum wage rates for women, mothers' allowance, supervised playgrounds, juvenile courts, Home and School Council and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

There are three million women and girls over fourteen years of age working to-day, she said.

Women must be ready to plan for rehabilitation and reconstruction after the war.

A very pleasing solo by Mrs. Wilfred Boorman varied the program and she was accompanied by Mrs. E. W. Glover. Mrs. G. Cole in reporting for the local council announced their immediate activities. Reports for the year's work were given by the various secretaries and superintendents, showing that steady progress is being made in all branches of the Society.

At the election of officers, the following members of the executive were returned by acclamation: President, Miss E. Might; vice-president Mrs. E. Wand; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. H. Alton; recording secretary, Mrs. V. Whittington; treasurer, Mrs. H. T. Rehill; pianist, Mrs. E. W. Glover. The removal from the city of Mrs. A. F. Lane, Mrs. Aitchison was elected in her stead as corresponding secretary. The superintendents of the various departments of the local W.C.T.U. were also unanimously returned to office.

Plans were made for the Peterborough - Northumberland county convention to be held in Cobourg, early in May, when Miss Edna Grant, national organizer will be present and address the convention.

400 PCVS Students Present Smart Gym Demonstration

Twenty-four white clad girls, with white caps and blue tassels, wheeling in a solid straight line in a precision marching drill, climaxed the splendid gymnasium review of P.C.V.S. Thursday evening in the Collegiate gym. The girls were chosen from Grade 12 classes, and made an excellent showing. The drill called for accuracy and precision, as they wheeled in fours and eights. They were joined by groups of threes and sixes to make four lines, turning shoulder to shoulder on an invisible central point, making radiating lines of marching figures The presentation was letter-perfect, and brought rounds of applause from the capacity crowd.

Another highlight of the evening was a volleyball game, played by two teams selected from several classes. The audience entered into the spirit of the contest, and loudly cheered for their favorites. Presented with the same number, was a review of routines and exercises given to members of the school basketball teams. The girls were striving for perfection in rhythm and timing, and often missed in their throws for the basket. Consequently, the first basket drew a round of applause, and subsequent attempts received either groans or cheers, according to their success. In their passing plays the girls were excellent, with fine timing in receiving and throwing the balls. The senior and junior teams took part in this number.

There were two presentations of mass gymnastics. The first, by members of Grades 12 and 13, covered a variety of routines, featuring in turn, army and body, head and leg exercises, from standing, sitting and kneeling positions. About 90 girls were massed on the floor, and they turned in an excellent performace. Three Grade 10 classes, numbering about 50, presented a series of expression gymnastics, which also included exercises for all muscles. Rhythmic dance steps were worked into this number, and were particularly effective. Here again the girls knew their work, and gave a polished performance.

Dance Work Popular

The only variation from the basic gym costume of blue tunics, was given in the dances. There were three groups, junior, intermediate and senior, varying from the ever-popular Virginia Reel to a modern routine dance. Grade Nine pupils, numbering about 120, gave a series of three dance numbers. The massed effect of the blue tunics in the intricate steps of the folk dances was particularly smart, and thorough knowledge of the steps lent assurance and poise.

Intermediate dances were presented by Grade 10 pupils. In the old fashioned polka, the girls wore bright paper aprons, and their partners, representing boys, wore bright paper sashes and colored beanies, with a costume of a white blouse and blue gym bloomers.

Grade 11 pupils danced the "Rye Waltz With Variations," the first of the two senior dances. It featured quick steps of the "heel and toe" variety, interspersed with the slow smooth waltz step. Another colorful effect was obtained in the modern routine dance of students of Grades 12 and 13. They wore snoods and bows made of Victory red crepe paper, with their blue gym tunics, and cuffs of the same color, as they presented rhythmic routines to popular mus[illegible] against a background of Union Ja[illegible]. The seniors were exceptionally good as they executed the intricate precision steps, which required co-ordination and concentration.

Specialty Number

A specialty number on the program was presented by a voluntary class of girls interested in advanced gymnastics. Their work on the benches and the horse, and in tumbling, showed the results of long hours of practice and training. The smooth execution of this part of the evening was greatly aided by a group of girls who set up the equipment and made the changes required.

The review opened with a grand march through of all taking part in the display. They came down in lines of eight, passing through markers holding United Nations' flags, and the big garnet and gray P.C.V.S. banner. The girls again joined for the finale, when over 400 young voices sang the school song.

The entire demonstration was under the direction of Miss Mildred Bailey and Miss Elizabeth Stuart, and was designed as a display of the yearly program in the gymnasium. These teachers are to be congratulated on the fine showing of their pupils, which was due in no small part to their untiring efforts and skillful direction. The polished effect of the whole review relected long hours of training to give the girls poise and assurance in their numbers.

Accompanists were Miss Elva Throop at the piano; Mrs. Eveline Foster and her violin; and Miss Mickey Foster with her saxophone.

Women Told Of Role In Peace Plan

A comprehensive study and review of the part women can play in the postwar period, was given by Mrs. John Cridland, when she addressed the regular meeting of the Active Army Auxiliary on the topic "Rehabilitation and Reconstruction after the War," Thursday. She dealt with three important questions: what part can women play; what do women know about the problems; and how can they have a part in the program.

The speaker pointed out that a challenge was before all Canadian women, since they had fifty per cent of the votes in Canada. She explained that they could wield great power, but that they had to be willing to learn more of what was going on, and take actual part in the practical workings of democracy. "The best place to learn these funamental facts," said Mrs. Cridland, "is in small local groups."

She also dealt with international cartels, and their damaging work, and mentioned the results of a recent poll conducted among soldiers overseas which showed that they too were thinking a great deal about post-war rehabilitation.

"In Canada, we are very well advanced," she said, "with a definite program already laid and in operation." She enumerated the benefits to be given to returning men and women, and of the different programs which would be open to them. Mrs. R. Allin moved the vote of thanks to Mrs. Cridland.

Write to Soldiers

Members voted $25 to assist in the medical expenses of a soldier's family in Lakefield. The quilt, made by the members, and quilted for them by the Victory Workers, was voted to the corvette Peterborough. Mrs. R. T. F. Brain reported she had sent five airgraphs to wounded Peterborough soldiers overseas, and that cigarettes would be forwarded shortly. She said that she had already received two letters from soldiers in hospital who had received airgraphs, and that they were very grateful.

Mrs. J. Duncan agreed to carry on Mrs. Brain's work for the summer months, and $50 was voted for this purpose. The treasurer reported a balance of $572.75. Miss Margaret Stevenson gave a detailed account of the regular meeting of the Local Council of Women, and Mrs. H. G. Mason, for the knitting committee, reported a total of 115 knitted articles ready for shipment overseas. Mrs. B. D. Hall spoke of the visits her committee had made to families of soldiers wounded overseas.

Mrs. H. A. Mitchell was soloist, and was accompanied by Mrs. W. Philp. Refreshments were served by the social committee. Mrs. J. A. Dewart presided at this meeting.

New Chaplain Discusses Parish

Capt. W. I. D. Smith, newly appointed chaplain at the local Training Centre was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Church Women's Year of All Saints' Anglican Church. Introduced by Rev. W. A. Filer, Capt. Smith gave an account of his work in his former parish in the deanery of Haliburton. He described the highlands of Haliburton in some detail, and said that it was one of the most beautiful spots in Canada.

He explained that there were five missions in the deanery, and paid tribute to the faithfulness of the parishioners, some of whom walked several miles to church. He urged the women to keep the church strong and active, thus helping to build a better world for servicemen on their return.

In her report on the Navy League, Mrs. R. N. Jones said that 26 articles had been knitted for the month, and explained that the number was not as large as usual because of the shortage of wool. Twenty-five cards were sent to sick and shut-in members during April. The offering amounted to $186 for the month.

There were several articles on display, including two quilts for the British War Victims. One of the latter was donated by Miss Muriel Wallace. Mrs. A. Watkins was guest soloist, and was accompanied by Mrs. P. Hooper. Mrs. J. Adams presided, leading the opening prayers, with Mrs. G. S. Shaw reading the Bible lesson.

Of Interest to Women

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

Desserts containing milk, eggs or fruit, not only help to round out meals attractively but help one to make sure that these protective foods are included in the day's meals to the full amounts required by Canada's official food rules, your best guide to health. Serve each sweet hot, warm or with the delicious chill which may be needed to dramatize its attractiveness most fully.

Apple-Oatmeal Betty

One group of foods we seem to be sure of maintaining in copious supply is the cereal group of which Canadian harvest is so ample. Here we use the much valued rolled oats in making a fruit Betty of delicious flavor. Other fruits may be used in place of apples.

3 cups sliced, pared, raw apples, 1-3 cup corn syrup, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon butter (optional) ½ cup once sifted flour, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, pinch of salt, 4 tablespoons soft butter, 1-3 cup brown sugar, ½ cup rolled oats.

Spread apples in a greased baking dish, drizzle with syrup, and sift the one teaspoon cinnamon over the top; dot with one tablespoon butter. Heat in the oven while preparing topping. Combine flour, spice and salt. Cream 4 tablespoons butter and blend in brown sugar and rolled oats Sift in flour mixture and combine thoroughly. Spread the crumbly oat mixture over the fruit in the baking dish. Cover dish and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 25 minutes. Uncover and bake until fruit is tender and top is crisply browned, about 25 minutes longer. Serve hot with custard sauce or cold with cream.

Delicate Chocolate Cream

Cornstarch desserts are greatly valued because of their milk base. This is a particularly delicate mixture in its serving glasses, it would never unmould.

3 tablespoons granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons cocoa, 3½ tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup cold milk, 2½ cups scalded milk, 1-3 cup corn syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Combine sugar, cocoa, cornstarch and salt very thoroughly. Smoothly blend in cold milk. Gradually stir in part of the scalded milk, then stir mixture back into double boiler until mixture thickens smoothly Then cover and cook until no raw flavor of starch remains. Cool slightly then add the corn syrup and flavoring. Turn mixture into dessert glasses, chill and serve with cream.

Carrot Cookies.

¼ cup shortening, ½ cup brown sugar, 1 egg, well beaten, ½ cup raw grated carrot, ½ cup finely chopped raisins, 1 cup rolled oats, 1 cup pastry flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ⅛ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Cream together the shortening, brown sugar, add the well beaten egg and beat till fluffy. Add the grated carrots, the chopped raisins and oatmeal. Add the sifted dry ingredients in three additions. Chill the batter, drop by spoonfuls on oiled cookie sheet. Flatten the cookies with the tines of a fork. Bake in moderate oven. Do not store in cookie box until cold.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

SWEATER CARE

Even though winter is on the wane, it's still not time to put sweaters in mothballs for the summer months. Spring brings radical changes in weather, and it's always wise to be prepared, by having a freshly laundered sweater handy, to slip on over a blouse when the temperature suddenly drops.

With wool at a premium, women nowadays must be more careful than ever to protect and preserve their precious sweaters. Particular care should be taken in washing and drying the wool. Always be sure that the sweater is eased back into its original lines while it is still damp, and that it is dried away from the heat.

One novel idea to get them back into pre-washing shape, is to put a piece of folded tissue paper into the sleeves of the wet sweater, and to pinch the seam so that it has quite a distinct line. In this way, the tailored look of the shoulder is preserved. Also, when washing a bright peasant sweater with colored embroidery, if there is any danger of the color running, a sheet of plain paper should be placed inside the sweater, to keep the color from running through to the other side.

CULINARY AIDS

To keep canned milk fresh, always remove it from the tin and keep it in glass jars in the refrigerator.

Cereals have long been Canada's most popular breakfast food, and wartime scarcities have brought about the discovery that they are just as delicious and nourishing at any other time of the day. Whether they are served with milk and sugar, or used as an ingredient or filler in hot breads, pastries, and dishes requiring little meat, they are an ideal choice for wartime eating.

To cut hot cakes and shortcake without crumbling, make a slight start across the top with a sharp knife, and finish the cut by working a thread back and forth in a see-saw manner.

Strong cheese odor is usually penetrating, so it is wise to store eggs, milk, butter and other mild-flavored foods as far away as possible.

HAIR CONDITIONER

Now's the time for milady to get her hair in condition for the spring or early summer permanent. A good brushing always starts the day out right. It really doesn't matter what time the hair is brushed, but about 100 strokes a day will insure a healthy and exciting gleam. Brushing is good for either oily or dry hair, and in time helps to remedy either condition.

Regular treatments with a good hair tonic are also necessary for healthy hair. Hairdressers can usually recommend a reliable one for every type of hair, and can give detailed directions as to its use. Several weeks of careful treatment can make amazing improvements, and the new permanent will be soft and natural, and will last longer.

JEWELRY ARTS

A new idea in the art of quick changing is now being used in the United States. Business girls, who have five o'clock dates, make no change in their practical tailored suits, but, for glamor, add pairs of immense glittering earings, or put two sequin hat pins in a beret, to add a sparkle to their ensemble. They can be easily carried in the handbag, and, with a new face-do, will enable the business girl to present an entirely different appearance.

Speaking of jewelry, the summer fashions along that line will feature strands and strands of beads around the neck, and rows and rows of glittering gems around each wrist. The effect is striking, especially against a white dress.

CONSERVATION TIPS

If washable pigskin gloves have lost their color through frequent washings, add enough cold coffee or tea to the water, to renew their brown tint.

Don't wear the same garment day after day. This is especially good advice in the case of wool, which is a "live" elastic fabric Wrinkles will disappear if the garment is hung properly and given a rest. Garments should be cleaned often, since accumulated dirt injures the fabric.

To prevent the bristles of a new paint brush from "shredding" place the handle in warm water up to the bristles, before using.

Wise woman! She always uses Blue in the final rinse. She knows that this is the one sure way to prevent towels, table linens, bed linens—all white things—from turning yellow. Linens are precious now so take special care to keep them white—really white. That swish or two of Blue in the last rinse will do it.

DOROTHY DIX.....

DIVORCE OFTEN UNFAIR TO MAN

Wives Flare Up In Temper and Ruin Homes Without Sufficient Cause.

DEAR MISS DIX—One wearies a little of hearing that a man does not suffer in a divorce as does a woman, because he can forget his troubles by engrossing himself in his business; but marital disaster frequently takes away all ambition from a man. I think the woman has quite as much chance to forget by going into business, or by any other means as a man.

Women make more fuss over their broken-up homes because they are more given to complaining. The man learns in business that no one wants to hear his troubles, whereas the woman pipes her story to eager listeners. When the alimony business is taken out of divorce and a woman required to support herself when she leaves her husband, there will be fewer smash-ups in married life.

Women Break Up Homes Without Cause

ANSWER—I think you are right, Jack T., and that men are unjustly treated very often in being made to pay alimony to their divorced wives, for only too frequently women break up their homes and leave their husbands for no just cause.

A flare up of temper; the husband not being able to take as much money as the wife wants to spend; just getting tired and bored with housework and wanting a change; morbid introspection that makes a woman think that a man to whom she is married is not her real soul-mate, all these and a hundred other trivial reasons cause many a woman to break her marriage vows as if they were so much packthread.

Many a man who is guiltless of any wrong against his wife has these misfortunes befall him and, in addition, is condemned by the courts to a lifelong slavery to support the tyrant who has done him such a cruel wrong. In every community there are many cases in which the husband is the victim of divorce, in which men who love their homes and love their children have been ruthlessly deprived of them by lazy and selfish women who find it easier to live on alimony than they did on housework.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have worked so hard to give my three girls a good education and put them through college, and now they have fine positions. But they live at home and refuse to give me a penny of board, or pay me for doing their washing and sewing. They say that it is my duty and that they owe me nothing.

I am old and I have to go out to work to earn the money to run our little home. I have no decent clothes and I cannot wear their old ones because they are too short. Won't you please write something that will touch their hearts?

DISTRESSED MOTHER

Cultivating Selfishness Brings Bitterness

ANSWER—No one can write anything that will touch their hearts because they are as hard as steel. But the fault is yours. Your daughters are what you made them. Their lack of consideration for you is the fruit of your teaching. You can't cultivate selfishness in a girl for twenty years and then expect her to be willing to sacrifice herself for anyone else.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Several years ago my sister died, leaving a small child. Her husband and I have fallen in love with each other and want to marry, and I feel sure that my sister would rather have me take her place and take care of her husband and child than anyone else in the world. But both our parents are very much against our getting married. What do you think?

ANSWER—I think it would be a splendid arrangement. Nobody else would be as good to the child as you will be. No one else will come as near to rearing it the way your sister wanted it reared as you will.

There is no reason why your parents should object, since the church has recognized that such unions are desirable by getting the law against the marriage of the deceased wife's sister repealed.

Go on and marry your man and be happy.

Today's Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY

BEETS ARE "TOPS" FOR VICTORY GARDENS

Beets are grown not only for the roots below soil level but for the tops or "greens" above the ground. The greens are highly nutritious and a continuous supply should be provided by planned planting in the Victory garden. When ordering beet seeds plan for a succesion of plantings every two weeks. One ounce of seeds is ample for a 100-foot row.

Crosby's Egyptian, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, is the earliest of the beets. It matures in 50 days. It is good for table and canning purposes, being exceptionally tender and sweet. The roots are a flattened, globe shape, as illustrated.

Detroit Dark Red is another favorite beet variety. It matures in 55 to 60 days. The roots, as illustrated, are globe-shaped and a deep oxblood red in color.

A beet not so well known but especially valuable for its long keeping qualities is the Blood Turnip. This variety is grown only for winter use, although the two varieties previously mentioned are also good for storing. The Blood Turnip, as illustrated, is a large beet and the root is turnip-shaped. It takes about 68 days to mature.

Frank Roszel Dies Suddenly

A familiar figure on the streets of Peterborough, Frank Roszel, 431 Chambers street, died early this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital at the age of 63. He had been ill only a few days.

Widely known throughout the city during the past ten years as a seller of draw tickets for service clubs and other organizations, Mr. Roszel was the younger son of the late Chief of Police, George Ira Roszel, and the late Phoebe Hunstman Lounsbury. He was born in the township of Gainsborough, just outside of Smithville, and came to Peterborough as a young boy.

For many years he was employed by B. F. Ackerman's, where he worked as a harness maker, before he took up the job of selling tickets in the business district which made him well-known to a great number of people. For years a resident at the Y.M.C.A., he was living at 431 Chambers street, the home of Mrs. E. Pammett, at the time of his death. Mr. Roszel was a member of Murray Street Baptist church. Surviving is one brother, George of Toronto.

The funeral service will be held on Monday at 2 p.m. from the Belleghem Funeral Home, and interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery.

9-Year-Old Boy Loses Finger

GORE'S LANDING, April 28 — (ENS) — Murray Eagleson, 9-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eagleson is recovering from the amputation of the middle finger of his left hand after colliding with an automobile on his bicycle Thursday afternoon.

The accident occurred when the boy was on his way home from school. A car driven by Mrs. Lyle Ball of Gore's Landing overtook the young bicyclist as he was riding along the road. As Mrs. Ball came alongside of Murray, he turned directly in front of the car and the motorist ran into the ditch in an effort to avoid hitting him. But the handlebar of the bicycle made contact with the headlight of the car, and the boy's finger was smashed and mangled against the breaking glass. Otherwise he received no injuries and was not even bruised in the fall.

Mrs. Fred Harris, mother of Mrs. Ball, was in the car at the time, as also were the driver's two small children and Nigel Drayton.

The boy was taken to Port Hope Hospital where the amputation was performed. His bicycle was badly damaged.

Horticulturists Plan Special Meeting

J. R. Bickerstaff, Toronto, will be the next speaker on the interesting list of the Horticultural Society, whose winter series has been notably helpful to citizens and is probably approaching its seasonal end.

The meeting will be Wednesday, May 3, in the Department of Agriculture office Hunter street, and the subject will be rock gardens and lily pools, illustrated with color pictures.

"Mr. Bickerstaff is a prime favorite in Toronto," said W. C. Wilks, secretary of the society, "and those who have heard him before are sure to be out again for this visit. The public is invited and we will give away three collections of rock garden plants as door prizes. There will be a silver collection to help defray expenses. We are trying to make arrangements with the owners of some gardens to permit the public to see them on specified dates. They will include lily pools, rock gardens and mixed gardens so that those interested can view at first hand the various steps necessary in similar projects for their own homes."

Obituary

MRS. ALICE BAGNALL.

The death of Mrs. Alice Bagnall, 458 Aylmer Street, occurred at her residence on Wednesday after a long illness. She was in her 60th year.

Widow of Thomas Frederick Bagnall, who passed away March 16 last, she was born in Birmingham, England, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gardner, and came to Peterborough from her birthplace over 33 years ago. She was a member of St. John's Anglican Church.

Left to mourn her loss are two daughters, Mrs. R. Lesurf and Mrs. A. Hargrove, and one son, Thomas, all of this city. There are seven grandchildren: Dorothy, Shirley, Barbara and Margaret Bagnall, and Tommy, Sally Ann and Bonita Lesurf. Five sisters and four brothers of Mrs. Bagnall are living in Birmingham, England, while another brother died here in Peterborough two years ago.

The funeral will be held on Saturday at 3.30 p.m., from the Nisbett Funeral Home, 347 Charlotte Street, with Canon W. P. Robertson of St. John's Church officiating. Interment will take place in Little Lake Cemetery.

MOVIES OUT OF BOUNDS

BASINGSTOKE, England—(CP)—Twelve of 16 boys who pleaded guilty to theft were ordered by the court not to go to movies for the next six months after the father of one of the boys suggested his son had come under the influence of "lurid" films.

WINS D.F.C.—PO. R. H. Watt of Winnipeg has been awarded the D.F.C. while serving overseas. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Huycke of Hastings. His citation stated that he had flown in many major operations since January, 1943, and his leadership was largely responsible for the efficiency and unerring operational record of the crew.

Six Stores Awarded Three-Star Flags

Three-star V flags have already been awarded to local stores in the group payroll section of the Victory Loan as emblems of merit earned by the employees.

These V flags signify that with at least 90 per cent of the staff participating, the employees have subscribed a minimum of 15 per cent of their salaries for 6 months.

Of every $100 of their incomes, these employees are lending $15.00 to Canada for its war effort, and when their wages amount to $500, they know that $75 of that sum has been invested in Victory Bonds.

Canadian Department Stores Limited were first to receive the V flag, three-star award. And others in that starry company are: S. S. Kresge employees, Canadian Flag Company (H. E. Dunford), Cherney Brothers, A. Comstock & Sons, and Zeller's Limited.

Farm Products Board Sets Asparagus Price

TORONTO, April 28 — (CP) — The Ontario Farm Products Control Board today announced approval of minimum prices for the 1944 asparagus crop purchased for processing. The prices were set Tuesday at a Hamilton meeting of the negotiating committee of growers and canners appointed under the Provincial asparagus marketing scheme.

The prices per pound with 1943 prices in brackets, are: Grade one, 13¼ cents (12¼ cents); Utility grade B, 8¼ cents (eight cents); grade two, 5¼ cents (5¼ cents).

The Board's order has been forwarded to the Prices Board for approval.

About 1,200 tons of asparagus are canned annually in Ontario, the value to growers being estimated at about $225,000.

70 Delegates Coming For Labor Meeting

Seventy delegates, representing 45,000 factory employees, mostly in Ontario and Quebec, are expected to attend the quarterly meeting of District Council No. 5 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Operators Union of America here on Sunday.

"The majority of our members are engaged in war work, and circumstances required them to hold this convention on Sunday," Melville Hamblin, Peterborough and district business representative, said today. "I understand this is the largest labor convention ever held in Peterborough, at least in many years."

Morning and afternoon sessions will be held at the Champlain Hotel. C. S. Jackson, Toronto, president of District No. 5, and vice-president of the International Union, will be chairman.

Greek Unity

CAIRO, April 28.— (AP).—Premier George Papandreou announced yesterday he would seek to complete a Greek "Government of National Union" embracing all political parties and liberation groups and, if successful, his regime would function inside Greece, conducting unified military operations as well as governing liberated areas.

A Rush Order

CHICAGO, April 27—(AP).—Patrice Munsel, scheduled to play the leading role in 'The Tales of Hoffman,' was ill and Josephine Antoine, the only other Metropolitan Opera singer who could take her place, was en route to New York. Miss Antoine was stopped at Toledo by telegrams instructing her to return immediately to sing Miss Munsel's part. She returned in time by taking the next west-bound train and the only available seat—in a coach smoking car. Passengers refrained from smoking in deference to the prima donna's throat.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

MINIMIZE THE DAMAGE

IF CERTAIN defeat of your contract impends, your job is to keep the damage as low as possible. Especially if defensive ruffs are in sight, you should generally try to limit them by leading trumps at your earliest opportunity. This may mean passing up a chance to take a finesse in the suit which is led, in order to give yourself an earlier opportunity to fire a trump at the defenders.

2♠	Pass	3♠	Pass

Much sounder bidding would have entailed a rebid of hearts by South, which would have resulted in getting the side into game in that suit. That contract could not be made either, however.

The spade game was a positive loser from the start, but should not have gone down more than one trick. East led the club 6, and South tried the costly finesse of the Q, which West won with the K. East ruffed the returned club, cashed his diamond A and led a diamond to South's K. Now South put forth a spade. West used his A and sent another club forth for East to ruff with his spade J. That was down two.

South should have used his club A on the first trick, then led a spade. West could have scored his A and then could have taken in his club K and sent another club to East to ruff. The diamond A would have set the contract, but it would have been down only one. By failing to use his A on the first club trick, South managed to keep from ever taking a trick with it.

Farmers Hear Hon. T. Kennedy

LINDSAY, April 28—(ENS)—Officers and members of the Kiwanis Club, accompanied by a number of representative citizens and members of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club gathered at Bobcaygeon Tuesday night to hold the club's annual rural night. Business men and farmers living in an adjacent to Bobcaygeon were guests of the Kiwanians, over one hundred sitting down to dinner.

The meeting was in charge of Wesley Mason, chairman of the agricultural committee and the music and stunts, as well as distribution of booster prizes were in charge of Glad Telford, Norman Bissette and W. Mansfield.

The guest speaker for the occasion was Hon. T. L. Kennedy, provincial Minister of Agriculture, who was introduced by Hon. L. M. Frost, provincial treasurer. The speaker referred to plans for the betterment of farmers and farming conditions which the Department will start putting into practice this year.

During the evening the guests were welcomed by President Roy Smith and T. H. Stinson, K.C., general chairman of the Victory Loan, made a short appeal for support. The Kiwanis Quartette and the Bobcaygeon Male Quartette rendered selections.

Four new members were introduced and initiated by past president W. R. Allely. They were Bert Wainman, Sam Endicott, Norman Brown and William Piercy.

Mr. Kennedy spoke of the beef cattle situation, the English market situation regarding bacon, the butter situation, conditions on the farms and other matters. He promised that the department will make every effort possible to better conditions for the farmers and open up wider markers. The speaker's address was full of hope and encouragement for farmers and his remarks were enthusiastically received.

The vote of thanks to the speaker was expressed by A. M. Fulton, while T. Martin expressed the thanks of the guests of the Kiwanis Club.

Australia Wants More Settlers

WASHINGTON, April 28—(AP)—Mrs. John Curtin, wife of Australia's Prime Minister, thinks there's nothing to the notion that her country may resent American service men's marrying Australian girls and bringing them here to live.

The war produces such marriages and "it can't be helped," Mrs. Curtin told her first press conference, held at Blair House where she and her husband are guests of the Government.

Australian brides of servicemen are likely to have movieland notions of life in America, Mrs. Curtin said, and girls reared in cities who find themselves pledged to live a rural existence in America may have a hard time adjusting themselves.

Herself a housewife who spends all but about 10 weeks of the year in her home in Western Australia, the Prime Minister's wife said she hopes the Australian brides brought to America "will try to settle down and make the best of it" in a strange land.

"Quite a lot of the American boys, I've been told, want to settle in Australia," Mrs. Curtin said.

A spokesman for the Prime Minister interjected that Australia would welcome as many as 200,000 Americans who might want to settle in the south-western continent after the war.

Australian women do all their own baking, canning and preserving, cooking, cleaning, laundry and still have time for volunteer war work and social affairs in the rural regions, Mrs. Curtin said. Almost no domestic help is to be had and no store delivers purchases.

ALVINSTON, Ont., April 28—(CP).—This town was treated yesterday to the sight of a flying house. The house, being moved through Alvinston on a large truck, caught against ropes holding a Victory Bond banner which stretched across the street. The ropes became caught, finally snapped and catapulted the house against a store on Main street. After its brief flight, the house was reloaded and the truck continued its trip.

RAF SMASHES NORWAY PLANE PLANT

Planes Raid 3 Cities Across Italy

4,000 Prisoners Taken So Far Along Anzio Front

NAPLES, April 29 — (AP). — Allied heavy bombers struck at the Italian west coast ports of Piombino, Orbetello and Santo Stefano yesterday, and other planes raided Genoa and other harbors by night, Allied Headquarters announced today.

All land sectors were quiet during the day, a communique said.

"Medium forces" of heavy bombers raided Orbetello and Santo Stefano, 75 miles north-west of Rome, and Piombino 120 miles north-west of the Italian capital.

Lose 11 Planes

Medium bombers, joining in a day of 1,700 sorties, attacked rail communications and bridges, and lighter planes struck supply dumps and gun positions. Eleven Allied planes were lost during the day, and five enemy aircraft were destroyed.

Summarizing three months of operations on the Anzio beachhead the Allied Command announced the total of prisoners taken there now exceeds 4,000.

The summary credited beachhead gunners with 186 of a total of 426 enemy planes destroyed by the 5th Army anti-aircraft guns since the beginning of the Italian campaign as well as 125 probables. Dawn air raids on the beachhead have almost been abandoned by the Germans because of the severe losses, the official report said.

Heavy bombers attacking the west coast ports yesterday had the largest fighter escort ever sent over enemy territory by the 15th Air Force, it was announced. Three Messerschmitt 109's were bagged of a group of eight encountered near Piombino.

R.A.F. Mosquitoes darted over the Narbonne area of Southern France at dusk last night, shooting up three trains and strafing sidings south-west of Beziers and striking at a rail station and gun post west of Bages.

Conboy Wants Action Now

TORONTO, April 29.— (CP). — Mayor Fred J. Conboy last night said he welcomed an Ottawa announcement that homes will be built for service men's families here but "such a program must be speeded to be effective."

The Mayor said that besides the 1,000 families ordered to vacate their homes here May 1, another housing crisis is expected in October when large numbers of "notices to vacate" fall due.

Homes for service men's families should be erected before then, he said.

"It is high time the government took action to assist in the housing situation," he stated. "We have not had any government-sponsored housing in Toronto."

The Mayor warned that the housing crisis here would not be averted but merely postponed, by avoiding evictions May 1.

200 Divisions to Raid Europe

Invasion Started For Airforce A Week Ago

LONDON, April 29—(CP).—Berlin dispatches to Stockholm claimed today the invasion of Western Europe, practically speaking, began a week ago when the R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and United States Air Forces threw great numbers of reserve air crews and aircraft into the continuing continental air assault. The Stockholm Tidningen's Berlin correspondent quoted captured Allied fliers as saying they regarded themselves "as invasion troops and the invasion began for them when they went into action."

The dispatch added:

"German military circles interpret the fliers' statements as meaning the invasion air force now is actually in the fight."

The Germans reported that anti-invasion command was ready to go into action and simultaneously Nazi occupation authorities in Denmark suspended telephone communication between Copenhagen and Stockholm for the second time in a week.

A Berlin broadcast gave no details concerning the Nazi anti-invasion command, but the Russian news agency Tass, quoted Stockholm sources as saying rumors persisted in the German capital that Field Marshall Erwin Rommel has replaced 70-year-old Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rundstedt as commander of the Continent's western defences.

Away from a welter of fable and fancy dealing with when, where and the strength with which the Allies will attack, there were these overnight developments:

1. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, making a quick tour of air fields in England from which the Allied pre-invasion blows are being delivered, told the fliers that "as much as you have done in the past, more is going to be required of you."

2. Marshal Petain, in a broadcast from Vichy, tense with an 11th hour expectancy, urged Frenchmen to "keep a loyal and correct attitude to the occupation troops." He asked particularly that Frenchmen ignore calls to revolt.

Phone Calls Cut.

3. Stockholm advices said not even official calls were being accepted this morning as the German occupying forces in Denmark suspended telephone communications between Stockholm and Copenhagen for the second time in a week.

Danes who reached Sweden after the Nazis isolated Denmark Monday at the beginning of a campaign to stamp out underground activities were quoted by the newspaper Dagens Nyheter as saying 40,000 Danes were armed and ready to help Allied invasion forces.

There was no satisfactory explanation as to why telephone service had been interrupted again.

A Swedish army strategist fixed the probable strength of British-American assault forces at 200 divisions against a German land force of about 40 divisions.

Stalin Sees Catholic Priest Talk Polish Russ Relations

By HENRY C. CASSIDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, April 29—(AP).—Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski, Polish-American priest, had an unprecedented conference with Premier Stalin yesterday. He declared today the results were "excellent" and announced a plan to campaign for a democratic Poland friendly to the Soviet Union.

Father Orlemanski, pastor of the Holy Rosary Church of Springfield, Mass., said that after a brief trip to the Polish army in Russia he would return immediately to the United States for the dampaign, the details of which he declined to disclose.

Evidently he intends to work among Poles in America and attempt to gain their support.

(Some Polish-American leaders in the United States have protested against Father Orlemanski's visit to Moscow. He is the first Catholic priest to go there from the United States since 1934.)

His meeting with Stalin was announced on the front pages of today's Moscow newspapers under a two-column headline together with two official photographs covering the entire bottom of the page.

No Official Status.

Father Orlemanski said, "I am here as a private American citizen and am no official representative."

The American priest said the State Department gave him permission to make the trip as a private citizen of no official standing.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was also present at the interview with Stalin. Father Orlemanski received original prints of the official photographs of himself with the two Russian leaders, and commented:

"This will make a rumpus in America, eh?"

Press coverage of his visit was the same accorded to visits of the most prominent world leaders

Stalin, in previous public utterances, has favored a "free, independent, democratic Poland,' an aim which it is assumed he reiterated in his interview with the priest.

Partisans Wipe Out Nazi Groups

LONDON, April 29 — (CP — Yugoslav Partisans have killed and captured 176 Germans and seized a quantity of booty on the Adriatic islands of Mljet and Korcula on which they landed earlier this week. Headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) said today.

The Germans claimed that "communist bands" had been eliminated from both islands.

The broadcast Yugoslav communique said many German troops were killed during fierce fighting in Slovenia and that liberation troops had wrecked rail lines in several places including western Bosnia, where two Nazi trains were reported destroyed.

Axis Attacks Repulsed By Russians

Red Army Planes Stage Mass Raid On Lwow

LONDON, April 29.—(CP).—Fresh Axis attacks south-east of Stanislawow in pre-war Poland have been broken with 800 Germans and Hungarians killed, Moscow announced to-day, but again reported "no substantial changes" on the eastern front.

The Soviets still were silent concerning the Romanian front, where the Germans declared Russian attempts to break through north of Iasi had been repulsed.

Red army planes struck in massed raids on the big rail junction of Lwow, 65 miles northwest of Stanislawow, Thursday night, bombing concentrations of enemy trains, the broadcast Soviet war bulletin declared.

Other planes at the same time blockaded an airdrome near Lwow and shot up German trucks on roads around the city, the bulletin added.

Parked planes, and other targets were reported fired in another raid on a German airdrome at Orsha in White Russia the same night.

On the Crimean front, the brief bulletin said Soviet naval planes sank a 1,000-ton tanker and a landing barge near Sevastopol. A smaller tanker and a minesweeper were declared sent to the bottom far to the north in the Gulf of Finland.

Chinese Control Hulao Pass

CHUNGKING, April 29 (AP) — Japanese troops who penetrated ito Hulao Pass in a drive toward Loyang have been thrown back with heavy casualties, and the Pass again is entirely in Chinese hands, a high command communique said tody.

Hulao Pass is west of Chenghsien, captured by the invaders.

The bulletin said other Chinese successes southeast of Loyang further have reduced the danger to that northern Honan province city. The Japanese in this sector were pushed back 10 miles toward Mihsien, it added.

A Japanese column driving southward from Chenghsien and east of the Peiping-Hankow railroad has been halted and forced back after advancing 30 miles, the high command said, describing the general situation as improved.

Invasion?

STOCKHOLM, April 29.—(AP). — The Helsinki newspaper Sanomat said today without disclosing the source of its information that the Allied invasion of Europe is already under way, according to a dispatch to the Stockholm Aftonbladet.

"Landings probably are in progress at several places now," the Helsinki newspaper said it had "learned."

There was no information from any Allied source substantiating this rumor.

Loan Purchases Now Total $348,398,850

OTTAWA, April 29.—(CP).—The National War Finance committee announced to-day that yesterday's purchases of the $1,200,000,000 Sixth Victory Loan totalled $77,018,850, bringing the loan total at the end of the fifth day of the three-week drive to $348,398,850—approximately $13,000,000 ahead of the Fifth Victory Loan total in the same period.

Yesterday's take was $18,000,000 greater than the fifth day's take of the last loan with business and other organizations buying $45,977,050 worth of bonds and individual buying $31,041,800.

The business contribution to yesterday's total was about $3,500,000 above the daily average which must be maintained to reach the total purchases in this category in the Fifth Loan.

Individual purchases reported yesterday were below the daily average which must be reached to equal the total of $803,000,000 which they purchased in the Fifth Loan. To equal that figure individual buyers must pay out a daily average of $33,500,000.

Today's cumulative total means that exactly 28 per cent. of the minimum objective has been reached with 27.78 per cent. of the canvassing time elapsed. However, only 25.2 per cent of the $1,383,000,000 purchased in the last loan has so far been reported. From Ontario, came reports of an excellent response in industry. A total of 33 Ontario plants hoisted "V" Loan flags yesterday bringing that province's figure to 110 companies officially listed as winners of the three-star honor flags. This means that more than 90 per cent of the employees in these industries have purchased over 15 per cent of their total payroll. One of the firms winning a "V" flag yesterday was Research Enterprises, the Toronto Crown company making vital precision optical equipment for the United Nations. They reported 6,850 of the workers buying an average of $120 worth of bonds each to reach a grand total of $840,000. The original objective was $715,000.

The armed services are now within $10,000,000 of their Fifth Victory Loan total, having combined to raise a grand total of $25,615,000. The Navy has $2,496,100, for better than 60 per cent of a $3,500,000 quota; the Army $14,540,000, for 106 per cent of $13,750,000; and the Air Force $8,568,900, for 81 per cent of $10,500,000.

Reported missing about two months ago and only quite recently interned in neutral territory, P. R. B. Charters, D.F.M. Brampton, Ont., has cabled home asking that his usual Victory Bond purchase of $100 be raised in the present campaign to $200.

2,000 U.S. Planes Hit Berlin To Climax 15th Day Of All-out Aerial Pounding

Mosquitoes Bomb Hamburg Port While Heavier Craft Rain Fire On Oslo Without Loss

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 29—(AP).—A force approaching 1,000 American bombers dealt Berlin its seventh daylight blow today to climax the 15th straight day of the all-out Allied air offensive building up to the invasion of Europe. A powerful fighter escort brought the total strength of the American sky fleet to around 2,000 planes.

"Industrial and military targets" were singled out for the daylight assault which hit the capital city about noon, the U.S. headquarters announcement said. The Berlin radio acknowledged "serious damage."

The great air fleet was the second such armada the American command has sent into Europe's skies this week. Munich and Friedrichshafen were hit by a similar force Monday.

Today's assault was the second long-range blow at Hitler's air force in a little more than 12 hours. Last night a small fleet of R.A.F. Lancasters thundered a similar distance —more than 1,200 miles—across the North Sea and hit a major German airbase repair depot at Kjeller, 11 miles outside Oslo.

The Berlin radio said other fleets of American bombers were over northwest and southwest Germany today, and claimed they were met by "strong forces" of German fighters.

Residential quarters of the battered capital city were severely damaged and fires were left raging by the daylight attackers, the broadcast continued. It said air battles developed "all over Berlin and were continued when the enemy left."

Germany's capital was last raided by American sky fleets on April 18, when large formations of heavy bombers and fighters hit the city, downing at least 34 German planes and destroying some 21 others on the ground to the loss of 19 bombers and six fighters.

The continuing daylight raids opened the third straight week of an invasion-eve air offensive that has drubbed Europe with more than 70,000 tons of explosives.

R.A.F. Mosquitoes ran a diversionary feint to the battered North Sea port of Hamburg last night while Lancaster formations, in a sudden shift of blows on Nazi air strength, struck the Kjeller airframe factory 11 miles northeast of Oslo in a 1,500-mile round-trip. All the planes returned.

Target Clear.

The R.A.F. said "the target was clearly identified and first reports indicate the bombing was well concentrated."

The heavy bomber force probably was one of the small, specialized night precision groups which have been hitting a number of key German installations in France recently.

The Kjeller factory, repairing German fighter and troop-carrying planes, was bombed in daylight by United States heavy bombers last Nov. 18.

Three waves of heavy bombers, staging the first triple-header attack by the United States 8th Air Force, hammered French objectives Friday during a day of 2,600 sorties from Britain in the grinding campaign.

Yesterday's attacks cost the U.S. Strategic Air Forces four bombers and three fighters and poured some 4,800 tons of bombs on prime targets.

The U.S. 9th Tactical Air Force disclosed that P-38 Lightnings now had been converted into fighter-bombers and had joined the aerial armada carrying out this "eve of invasion" offensive "designed to neutralize German air power, disrupt traffic and troops and supplies, and quash Nazi defence points in France and Belgium."

Burma Picture Not Gloomy Officials Claim

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

KANDY, Ceylon, April 29—(AP)—Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Southeast Asia headquarters, replying to a series of questions submitted by The Associated Press, declared today the Japanese drive in India had not dislocated the Allies strategic schedule or delayed completion of the Ledo Road to China and that there was no justification for uneasiness.

The statement said, however, the Japanese have "strong land forces in Burma—stronger than the general public probably thinks—and since they have the advantage of interior lines of communication we must always expect some offensive action on their part on one or other sectors of the front. Hard fighting lies ahead of us in Burma."

The statement follows:

Japanese Troops Faring Badly

KANDY, Ceylon, April 29 (AP)—Allied troops smashing against the Japanese in the Kohima sector of Eastern India are liquidating remaining enemy strong points, Allied headquarters announced today.

A communique yesterday said the Allies had captured a number of strongpoints west of the mile-high town.

The bulletin today reported British and Indian troops were continuing to advance into the hills southeast of Kohima and indicated that the Japanese showdown attempt for a Monsoon base was going badly.

Allied planes struck hard at the Japanese in the Kohima area as well as in the Imphal sector to the south, the bulletin said, and Allied patrols ambushed several enemy parties. Southeast of Imphal, a Gurkha battalion recaptured a position and staved off counter-attacks, it was announced.

Allied Chindits blew up a railway north of Indaw in North Burma where, the bulletin added, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's forces occupied two more villages in their drive on Kamaing.

This placed Chinese spearheads only eight to 10 miles north of Kamaing.

Gen. Stilwell's drive was supported on an increased scale by United States bombers and fighters which attacked Myitkyina, major Japanese base, in strength and also hit at Mogaung, Kamaing and Mohnyn.

Large fires were reported in Myitkyina and Mohnyin.

British Subs Score Heavily

One Ship Sunk, Six Damaged Recently

LONDON, April 29 — (CP) — British submarines scored heavily, sinking one ship, probably sinking two and damaging six others in recent tightening of the pre-invasion Naval squeeze in European waters, the Admiralty disclosed today.

Beaching of the German catapult ship Schwabendland after a torpedo hit also was reported in an Admiralty communique covering recent actions in northern waters.

The announcement, coming soon after news of carrier-borne plane attacks on German commerce, sinking of a German destroyer by an Anglo-Canadian Naval force and frequent clashes between light surface forces underscored the increasing tension under, on and above the seas.

The communique said a medium-size tanker was sunk and a large tanker and large supply ship so severely damaged that they probably sank. In addition the 8,000-ton Schwabendland was severely damaged by a torpedo.

Four supply ships of large size, one large tanker and one medium-size supply ship also were damaged.

Gasoline Thief Sabotaging War Effort

Nearness Of Final Battle May Make People Relax Their Efforts

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

This represents one of the most trying and dangerous moments of the war for the home front, which not only provides the fighting forces but equips them with all the sinews of war.

It's trying because of the terrible strain of waiting for D-day—of waiting for word that the Allies finally have battled their way up the beaches of Western Europe and established secure positions.

It's dangerous because we know (perhaps unfortunately) that Hitler's ultimate defeat is certain and that the great invasion represents the coup de grace. That knowledge might easily cause us to slacken in our war effort—something which mustn't happen at this crucial juncture.

Would Prolong War

Any slowing up means unnecessary protraction of the conflict. It means additional bloodshed and suffering.

True, in some few categories we have reached a point of production where there can be tapering off. But the day and night rush to provide the mountains of other material for the Armed Forces must go on.

Take just one item to illustrate —aviation gasoline. Here are involved not only the production and the various operations necessary to land it on the home fronts, but conservation of gas by the home front The Black Market operator in gasoline is a traitor to his country.

In the first fortnight of this invasion onslaught Allied planes unleashed 65,000 tons of explosives on Europe. In 24 hours of Wednesday and Thursday of this week, some 5,000 Allied warplanes unloaded 12,000 tons of bombs.

Some of the big bombers burns 200 gallons an hour at average speed, and since that is 200 miles and upward, their gas consumption is in the neighborhood of a gallon per mile.

It can be said that all the oil and gasoline which the home front has given up to rationing in the war effort has been absorbed by the fighting forces. That shows how necessary conservation has been. It would be a sad day if we ran short of gasoline on the fighting fronts.

Daring Escape

STOCKHOLM, April 29 — (AP). — Two 23-year-old Poles with pre-war pilot training escaped from Germany in a Nazi training plane and landed in Sweden today. The youths said they dressed in stolen German uniforms and presented themselves at the Breslau flying school, claiming they had orders to make a test flight. The Germans, they said, fuelled the plane for them and 3½ hours later they landed in Sweden.

Labor Welcomes Russians

Support Of All Nations Need For Success

PHILADELPHIA, April 29—(CP) — The door was open today for Soviet Union delegates to the International Labor Conference.

"If a cable came from Russia tomorrow, I would reply: 'Yes—come along,' " said Walter Nash, conference president who told a press conference last night that "the I. L. O. cannot work without Russia."

Mr. Nash, New Zealand's minister to the United States, added: "In the long run the I. L. O. can't work effectively without all nations."

Officials said the U. S. S. R. was invited to send delegates long before the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia urged organization of I. L. O. with membership limited to the United Nations, but no reply was received.

Mr. Nash's statement came in the midst of contention among British Empire delegates over proposals to limit slave trading and traffic in opium and other drugs.

A feeling of "alarm at what appears to be an attempt to limit the functions" of the committee on employment was expressed meanwhile by Sir Walter Citrine, General Secretary of the British Trades Union congress and adviser to the British Labor delegate.

Women To Keep Democracy On Home Front

ROSENEATH, April 29.—(ENS). —Speaking on "Administrative Leadership," Mrs. Clarence Hayes of Georgetown, a representative from the provincial department of Women's Institutes, Toronto, addressed a gathering of women in the town hall on Friday afternoon. The local W.I. sponsored the meeting.

Mrs. Hayes emphasized the definite need to-day for leadership in all women's organizations. She said a great deal is heard about democracy these days all subscribe wholeheartedly to it, many there are who would die for it. The plain fact is, Canadian women will never be called on to die for democracy, but they are asked to live for democracy. Democracy could be won overseas and lost on the home front because of apathy, indifference and sluggishness. "Giving leadership as it pertains to serving as officers in democratic institutions, on school boards, in churches and in all welfare organizations can exert a powerful influence in perpetuating our democracy, in building up community and national life. The W.I. has made and will continue to make a necessary contribution to war, just as important as Red Cross or other war organizations."

Concluding this part of her address Mrs. Hayes declared that W.I.'s can do much to preserve and maintain a normal way of life, when at the end of war, conditions may be most chaotic.

The president, Mrs. Earl Waldie, presided and introduced the speaker, and at the conclusion of the address, on behalf of the audience, thanked Mrs. Hayes for her talk. The society members served afternoon tea at the close.

Typing Classes Open For Women

Canada's Government, in constant need of a large number of typists and stenographers to assist in war work in the War Departments at Ottawa, is sponsoring special classes at the Cobourg Collegiate Institute starting May 8 to train interested women in the skill necessary to undertake this sort of work.

The Civil Service Commission, which is particularly desirous of attracting wives without children whose husbands are overseas, women who have had office experience and those who, though untrained, are ambitious to serve the war effort, announces that this training will be theirs for the asking and at no cost. Indeed, subsistence allowances for board will be paid students while they are in training.

For heads of families from outside Cobourg $18 per week will be paid in subsistence allowances, and $13 per week for heads of families in Cobourg; while single women boarding away from home will get $8 per week and single women boarding at home $7 per week.

The course is of four months duration but the actual training time will vary depending on the degree of training the candidates may already have. Women with previous office experience will be ready for employment in a few weeks' time.

Those interested in taking the course should apply to the local Employment and Selective Service Office or to R. N. McKenzie, Director of War Emergency Classes, Collegiate Institute, Cobourg. Applications may be made either in person or by letter.

Admiral Lauds Secretary Knox

WASHINGTON, April 29—(AP). —Admiral Ernest J. King, United States Navy Commander-in-Chief, spoke the words which stand today as an epitaph for Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, who died yesterday from recurrent heart attacks.

In the cold, terse language of naval communications, they are the highest tribute that can be paid a Navy man: "Well done, Frank Knox."

Admiral King paid the tribute shortly after word of the Secretary's death early yesterday afternoon was flashed by radio to all naval vessels and shore stations by James V Forrestal, Under-Secretary, who automatically became the Acting Secretary of the Navy.

Admiral King added:

"We dedicate ourselves, one and all, to what would surely have been his last order—carry on."

Death of the 70-year-old newspaper publisher who became Secretary of the Navy in July, 1940, came after six days' illness.

To-day, strong Congressional backing was developing for the appointment of Mr. Forrestal to the vacant Cabinet post but none in Congress professed to know the President's intention.

Strong Breeze Spreads Flames To Three Homes

Fire that struck suddenly around 3 o'clock Friday afternoon north of Kirk street on Rubidge, gutted the residence of Harry M. Ferguson, 471 Rubidge street, did considerable damage to the rear of No. 467, the adjoining residence on the south which belongs to Fred Riley, and for a short time threatened also to get a hold on No. 475, the home of Mrs. J. W. Griffin, and 4 Kirk street, the residence of A. W. Archibald.

Fanned by a strong breeze that blew across the threatened houses, the flames almost defied the valiant efforts of firemen working desperately at their job of saving as much as possible. The fire got its start in a shed to the rear of the Ferguson house, and within two or three minutes of its discovery by an employee of the Canadian Ventilating Shades Co., was a mass of flames that shot up and quickly spread out in tongues of fire. Vast billows of smoke rose above the threatened area at the height of the conflagration, and these attracted passers-by from blocks away.

The Ferguson house, of clapboard construction covered over in most of its outside surface with imitation brick, was very badly damaged and the family was forced to spend the night elsewhere. When the fire started Mrs. Ferguson and one of her three daughters were at home. The shingled roof of the structure was burnt through in several places and along the ridge of the roof were great gaping holes.

Voluntary efforts of the public-spirited women employees of the Ventilating Shades Company was chiefly responsible for the removal without loss of the Fergusons' furniture and all their household goods. When the fire was first noticed underway from the plant premises the alarm was phoned into the Fire Department, and from 25 to 30 girls, with the permission of the company's production manager, P. Taylor, rushed over to the threatened house and toiled vigorously for over 15 minutes in a successful effort to get out all the family's property.

Four of the girls exhibited particular courage in mounting the stairs to the second story and pushing the furniture out from the upstairs rooms. They were Joyce Tenecyke, Mrs. Hazel Hawkins, Margaret Doyle and Jerry Varty, and Miss Tenecyke had a fairly badly burned hand as a result of her part in the valuable aid given to the Ferguson family. She was not able to report to work this morning.

The damage at the Riley residence, to which the fire swept sometime after its beginning, comprised a small section of the northwest corner at the level of the second story, nearly complete demolishment of a shed in the rear and charring to a considerable depth of a nice stack of firewood. Of stucco construction, the home was probably for this reason saved much more serious damage and the fire halted from spreading further up the street.

Battled Flames

Firemen worked frantically, fully aware of the danger that existed in the steady wind that blew down the street, and nearly all the men and equipment of the Department were on hand. At 6 o'clock, three hours after the fire started, there was still a smoldering about the charred ruins of the wooden sheds, and watchful firemen on guard to see there would be no further outbreaks of flames. As late as this morning the smell of burnt materials still prevaded the immediate section of the block.

amage $2,500

Fire Chief Gimblett this morning placed damage in the neighborhood of $2,500, most of which was caused, he said, to the Ferguson residence. He also revealed that sparks from the main fire had reached over to 464 Reid street, the home of K. D. Sisson, but damage there, as at the Archibald and Griffin residences, was very slight.

The cause, Chief Gimblett said, was for official purposes undetermined, but he agreed with the general feeling of most persons who witnessed the fire that it was probably the result of children playing with matches.

A long list of alarms, in addition to the big fire of the day, was reported by the Department for the period from early Friday morning to late Friday night. Most of these calls were for grass and rubbish fires, and Chief Gimblett said this morning that this problem had become so aggravated that henceforth any person who started a grass fire without his permission, a measure which is called for under a City By-law, would be prosecuted.

RCAMC Soldier Held By Police

Arrested on George street Friday after 14-year-old Air Cadet Billy Duignan had been knocked unconscious by a blow on his jaw, Pte. Louis Jackson Davis, R.C.A.M.C. stationed at the local Military Training Centre pleaded guilty in police court this morning to assaulting the young cadet.

"This charge should have been assault occasioning actual bodily harm," declared Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., after Officer C. J. McGillen had been called to give evidence. The soldier had been charged with common assault.

Officer McGillen stated that he and Constable Gordon Trennum had been called to investigate the affair and on their arrival had found young Duignan unconscious. "He had a large lump on the side of his jaw and four teeth were broken," declared the witness. Davis and another soldier Pte. Derocher, also of the R.C.A.M.C. who was with him had been arrested. Both were very drunk, the constable stated. So far as he knew there had been no provocation for the assault on the boy.

Magistrate Langley said that the case had taken such a serious accident that he thought there should be some direct evidence as to the assault. Accordingly he remanded Davis until Monday morning on the assault charge.

Davis had previously pleaded guilty to being drunk and on that count was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Derocher who was also charged with being drunk pleaded guilty and he received a similar fine which was paid.

Duignan's father is serving with the Canadian Army.

He said he became "the only Roman Catholic priest in America who supported a move for friendship between Russia and Poland, and a real democratic government for Poland, by the people and for the people."

He indicated he did not consider the past or present Polish governments democratic.

"When the people here," he said, meaning the Russians, "organized the First Polish Division they named it the Kosciuszko Division. Kosciuszko being an American patriot, I thought it proper for me as an American citizen of Polish descent to support this move."

A special train was arranged to take Father Orlemanski to-day to visit the Polish Army in the Soviet Union to inspect the troops.

It is unusual for Stalin to receive any private citizen. It is also unusual for him to meet a clergyman, although he previously had received a delegation of the Russian Orthodox Church, headed by Patriarch Sergei.

Only Monaghan Exceeds Bond Objective

North Monaghan Township is the only section of the city and county exceeding its quota of the Sixth Victory Loan at the end of the first five days of the campaign. In that respect Reeve Melville Johnston's constituents are isolationist, and so far without any wresting rivalry.

Smith Township is in second place and Peterborough city third in the tabulation of returns in the general canvass for the Loan.

The general canvass, on the whole, is struggling along with only occasionally reported bright spots and with a sort of routine response that has left the net result up to Friday night seven points behind the day's percentage objective. And that statistical summary is not mentioned in any sense as reflection on the canvassing forces in the city and county.

(One of the canvassers encountered a man who said he was refusing to buy a bond for a country that could not supply him with the tire he needs and so far has been unable to buy. Another canvasser reported the incident of a man who said "No" because the quota of beer wasn't copious enough to ensure him getting a case when he wanted it.)

In a quick glance over the city and county general canvass, with its required percentage 27.71 for five days, the leading municipalities and their percentages of objective are:

North Monaghan 32.62 per cent, the only section rating a plus sign—that is, they are 4.85 points above par for five days.

Smith Township is in second place with 22.37 per cent.

City of Peterborough general canvass is third at 21.12 per cent.

Otonabee Township is fourth with 20.08 per cent, and Norwood fifth with 18.71.

Dummer Township is sixth with 18.16 per cent; Ennismore seventh at 17.5 per cent; and Belmont-Methuen eighth with 16.8 per cent.

The others are in the ruck, trailing all the way back of the procession to 3.94 per cent reported for one township in five days of canvassing. And that's not even peanuts.

Tnd the totals again are:

City and county general canvass 20.01 per cent (as against 27.177 required); rural canvass 17.08 per cent, and city general 21.12 per cent.

292,108 Men For Army On Deferment

OTTAWA, April 29 — (CP). — Men on postponements, in the age groups subject to call for military service, form Canada's largest manpower reserve, it was disclosed in figures made public to-day by Labor Minister Mitchell in speech in the Commons.

Of the 1,665,504 in the eligible age groups—single men 18½ to 40 and married men 18½ to 30 — 682,232 now are in the armed forces, 292,108 are on postponement and 456,165 have been rejected as unfit.

Only 67,172 have not yet been sent notices to report for medical examination or training. There are 20,057 who have received notices which have not yet expired.

Those born in 1925 but not yet 18½—the youngest age at which men are called—total 26,733, and 8,227 are more than 38—top age at which men are being called.

Statutory exemptions, such as clergymen, policemen and enemy aliens, number 24,463 and 37,226 are not available for such reasons as being outside Caanda, imprisoned or deceased.

Another table showed that of 503,283 applications for postponement, 437,103 or 86 per cent have been granted and 66,183 refused. In the period May 15, 1942, to March 31, 1944, 93 per cent of the applications for postponement by agricultural workers were granted.

People Should Go to Church Prepared to Worship Christ

REV. E. R. JAMES.

After eight days, again His disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst, and said: Peace be unto you.—St. John 20, 26.

The events are fixed in that most retentive of memories, that of a Jew, trained from boyhood to memorize large portions of the Old Testament Scriptures.

A famous scholar tells us that the vitality of the Holy Scriptures, especially the Gospels, are only discovered by a prayerful and a thoughtful study of every word.

After Eight Days. Eight days had passed since the resurrection of Our Lord from the dead. On that day He comforted the mourner—Mary Magdalene; forgave the penitent Simon Peter; helped two plain men to understand His sufferings and revealed Himself to the ten in that Upper Room. Then followed eight days of quiet and silence during which the Apostles had time to meditate upon the wonderful event. Many of His words were brought to their minds by the Spirit of Truth, words which were hidden from them. As devout Jews they had kept the Sabbath, beginning from Fridays evening and ending Saturday evening. Then came the first day of the week Will He appear on that day?

His disciples were within, and Thomas with them. During those past days over and over again they had repeated the words: "We have seen the Lord." This is implied by the Greek tense, "we have seen." Very probably Thomas repeated his denial: "Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails and thrust my hand in to His side, I will not believe." This denial has not broken up the fellowship. What a lesson for dissenting Christians. Those Apostles had been bound together in their personal love for their Master. He had revealed Himself to them as being the purest of men and the most wonderful of teachers. That bond of love for Him kept them together.

Then came Jesus, the doors being shut, and stood in the midst. Why? "Jesus, having loved His own, which were in the world, He loved them until the end." He knew their thoughts; He understood their loneliness; He is truly Man in all His compassionate Manhood as well as truly God. "If any man will love Me I will manifest Myself unto him" is His own promise.

The doors being shut. He is now the risen Lord and able to pass through the closed doors. He is teaching them and us that His resurrection Body is a spiritual body.

Jesus stood in their midst. "Where two or three are gathered together in My Name there am I in the midst of them." The disciples are realizing the truth of this claim. Do you?

Jesus said: Peace be unto you. At this time of Jewish persecution we must not forget that the Lord Jesus is a Jew His disciples were Jews. Therefore they understand the greeting. It speaks the inward desire of every Jew for peace. He knows they are startled and amazed. His words bring peace to their hearts and minds. "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to-day and for ever." He has no desire to bring dismay or fear into their hearts. It is the key note of the Christian religion to bring peace into heart and mind. "My peace give I unto you." "Thanks be unto Thee, O Lord."

Why do you go to Church? Multitudes will tell you they go to Church to hear the preacher, to listen to the sermon. Yet the primary reason should be to worship God and His Christ in His appointed place. What a difference it would make to the preaching if the people discovered the Real Presence of the Lord in their midst. The sermon is important. But the preacher is a man with human infirmities. "We have this treasure in earthen vessels." On the Lord's Day we have a tryst to meet the Lord. When you realize this how careful you must be in your approach to Him. Do you strive to discover Him in your midst?

And Thomas with them. Surely in these terrible days you know someone who is in deep spiritual doubt. Try to bring him to church—into the Presence of the Lord—and while there pray for him. You do not know how some word from the Scripture or from the preacher will be as the arrow drawn at venture and will pierce the points of the harness.

PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER—Rev. John Davey, D.D., of Toronto has accepted the charge which includes the Presbyterian churches in Norwood, Havelock, and Hastings. He was inducted by Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart of Peterborough early in April.

Charge Race Prejudice Up

TORONTO, April 29 — Charging a Toronto club with "un-Christian and un-British behavior" in allegedly having "declined to extend hospitality and the usual privileges accorded guests" to Miss Marion Anderson, Negro singer, the Toronto Centre Presbytery, United Church, yesterday passed a resolution tendering Miss Anderson its "sincere apologies in behalf of the community," for "such racial discrimination and discourtesy."

The alleged incident occurred during Mis Anderson's recent visit when a group of members of the Medical Arts and Letters Club sought to entertain her at the Granite Club as their dinner guest.

J. M. Bullen, K. C., president of the Granite Club, last night made the following statement: "The Granite Club is a private club, operating solely for the benefit of its members and will cater to no outside organizations or individuals whatsoever."

J. H. Toogood, medical student at the Toronto General Hospital, said the arrangements for the dinner were made by Dr. R. Gordon T. Miller, Toronto General Hospital Staff, past president of the Medical Arts and Letters Club. When Granite Club officials learned that their guest was colored, they expressed regret that it was the policy of the club to exclude colored people and, while willing to make an exception in the case of Miss Anderson, they were unable to do so because of the rules.

It worked out all right, however, said Mr. Toogood as another place for the dinner was found without difficulty.

The resolution criticizing the Granite Club was presented by Rev. David A. MacLennan, pastor of Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, seconded by Rev. F. W. L. Brailey, Glebe Rd. Church.

Opposition to the passing of the motion was voiced by Dr. J. A. C. Evans, a layman, on the ground of lack of information. Dr. Evans said he had no objection to any race or any color, red, white or black, but he wanted the facts produced. The Granite Club might have had good ground for the refusal, he said. It was a private club, not like a hotel, open to the public. There might have been one, or a dozen or 50 other Negroes wishing to attend, Dr. Evan said.

Mr. Bailey said it was the business of the Church to condemn such action. It was the responsibility of the Church to be the conscience of the community. It was the responsibility of the churches to give expression to their consciences on such a matter.

Paul's Disputing Wins Recognition for Gentiles

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 30 is Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 2:1-21, the Golden Text being Romans 5:1, "Being therefore justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.")

◆ ◆ ◆

TWENTY YEARS after Jesus was crucified, a dispute arose in the church. The argument was whether Gentiles who were converted to the Christian faith should be compelled to obey the Jewish laws, even to be circumcised as were all Jews.

This was taught by "certain men that came down from Judea," and they said, "Unless ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved."

Paul and Barnabas disputed the point, and it was finally decided that these two should go to Jerusalem, the headquarters of the church, and settle the question once and for all.

They passed through Phenice and Samaria, "declaring the conversion of the Gentiles, and they caused great joy unto all the brethren."

They were received at Jerusalem by the apostles and elders, and they told of the work that they had been doing. Then a "certain sect of Pharisees which believed," rose and proclaimed their belief that Gentile Christians should be compelled to virtually become Jews in order to be saved. A good deal of discussion went on, and finally Peter rose and said that God had told him to preach to the Gentiles; and that He had given the Holy Ghost to them, "even as He did to us." To make a difference between Jew and Gentile now was "tempting God to put a yoke upon the neck of the deciples, which neither our father nor we were able to bear."

Paul and Barnabas Speak

Paul and Barnabas were the next speakers, and all kept silence to hear them testify, "declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them."

Next, James, brother of Jesus, rose and said that what had happened in Peter's experience was predicted. The truth was that the Lord Jesus would return and rebuild the tabernacle of David that had fallen down, and that all the Gentiles might seek the Lord.

"Wherefore my sentence is," continued James, "that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God." In other words, that the Gentiles would not be compelled to submit to the legalistic practices of the Jews. If they accepted Christ, it was enough.

James suggested that they write to their people at Antioch and tell them that they at Jerusalem had agreed that if the Gentile members of the church refrained from partaking of food offered to idols, from uncleanliness of living, from eating animals that were strangled, and from blood, they were safe.

So the letter was written and Paul, Barnabas, Silas and Judas were chosen to carry it to Antioch and to help straighten out the tangle. Part of the letter said, "Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, ye must be circumcised, and keep the law: to whom we gave no such commandment:

"It seemed good unto us, being assembled with one accord, to send chosen men unto you with men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Recited the Law

The letter then recited the law as they had decided it: "That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from uncleanliness: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well."

So the four were dismissed and when they reached Antioch they gathered together a multitude and delivered the letter, the reading of which brought rejoicing and relief.

Judas and Silas, being prophets themselves, exhorted the brethren and confirmed them. They stayed for a time and then went back to Jerusalem. Paul and Barnabas stayed in Antioch preaching the word of the Lord.

The rest of the lesson is in Paul's letter to the Galatians written some years later and sent to Antioch, where this same matter is mentioned. He writes how he and Barnabas went to Jerusalem "by revelation." It was the Lord's will that he go to help settle this dispute. Then he refers to an episode of which we know nothing more than is told here. Peter was in the habit of eating with Gentile Christians, which orthodox Jews were not supposed to do. But when this dispute arose he stopped, which was like Peter, in a way. He had plenty of courage in some cases, but not much in others, according to the occasion. Paul says he publicly chided Peter at this time. Paul had moral courage at all times. He stood firm and spoke out publicly, even rebuking such a marked man as the Apostle Peter.

Paul Wins Recognition for Gentiles

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 2:1-21

A discussion arose among the Christians as to how the Gentile converts should be treated, and Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem to discuss it with the apostles and elders.

Paul and Barnabas passed through certain cities and were received with joy by the brethren, and finally came to the church at Jerusalem, and told of all that had happened to them.

Certain Jews said that Gentile converts should be circumcised. Peter and James spoke against it, and a letter was written and Paul, Barnabas, Judas and Silas carried it to Antioch.

At Antioch they gathered a multitude together and delivered the epistle, which was read. Judas and Silas stayed awhile, then they went back to Jerusalem.

The Need For Nurses

The need for nurses at the present time is very great; it would not be an exaggeration to say that it is desperate. Nurses are needed abroad, with the fighting forces, and at home, for hospital work and for private nursing. The demand far outstrips the supply, the nurses who are training or who are already trained are seriously overworked, and the health of the nation is suffering.

If ever there was a time for girls to think seriously about entering the nursing profession, this is it. If they are looking for ways of making themselves useful to Canada in a time of national emergency, nursing must head the list. If they are looking for a profession which will always support them, and which provides an excellent training and discipline, they need not look beyond the nursing profession. At no time in the history of nursing has the need been so great, and at no time have the inducements offered to student nurses been so tempting.

Peterborough has two hospitals, both of which are able to give excellent training for the nursing profession. They are recruiting their classes for training now. Any girl who feels drawn toward the nursing profession should make her enquiries now, and should lose no time in deciding for herself whether or not she wants to be a nurse.

For the girl who is eager to help the war effort this argument should outweigh all others: while training to be a nurse, you are actually doing work which relieves the nursing shortage, and you are helping Canada in a field where she is seriously handicapped at present. You can serve while you learn. There are not many professions of which that may be said.

A Word For Queen Anne

When Princess Elizabeth came of age several American newspapers and magazines wrote about the occasion in a most friendly way. Quite a number of them, however, said that Elizabeth, if she should come to the throne, would be the second Queen of England since the great Elizabeth, King Henry's daughter. They remembered Queen Victoria — as who would not—but they forgot Queen Mary, who ruled jointly with King William III, and they forgot Queen Anne.

Some of our contemporaries have commented on this matter, and in our opinion they have been needlessly scathing about Queen Anne, who was a much better queen than they seem to think.

Anne had a difficult childhood, and her life before she became Queen was filled with perplexities. She was a devout woman, at a time when devotion involved continual quarreling, plotting and treachery. She was handicapped by a deceptive appearance of stupidity, and certainly she was slow and awkward in expressing herself. She was happy in her marriage with George of Denmark, but her husband was not popular with the English, and their marriage was shadowed by the death in infancy of their many children. It was Anne's bad luck that she came to the throne at a time when English letters and English society was in a brilliant period; her lack of intellectual graces was thrown into cruel relief by the lustre of society in her time. But it cannot be said that Anne mishandled one critical situation among all those which came under her influence. She had an iron will, and even when racked with the pains of gout, and fuddled with the brandy which she drank to numb her pain, she could lay down the law as well as Elizabeth or Victoria. The glory of her time was the Marlborough Wars, and let no one forget that Queen Anne picked Marlborough herself, and backed him up when his enemies sought to destroy him.

Anne was not heroic; she was not great; she had no 'glamour'—that quality without which no ruler can hope for a good place in the history books and the historical movies. But she was very far from being a fool, and she made a remarkably good job of her reign in spite of many difficulties and the opposition of people far cleverer than she. Let's not be too patronizing about Queen Anne.

Corsets Reconsidered

Some time ago we wrote in defence of corsets. We said that we approved of them, and did not believe that the rubber shortage would kill the demand for them. We recalled that corsets used to be made of steel, canvas, whalebone and leather, and we predicted that they might be made from these materials again.

With gentle courtesy the editor of the St. Thomas Times Journal disagrees with us. Flattering us grossly in his first few lines, he says:

"The Peterborough editor exhibits an expert knowledge pertaining to these matters to which we cannot lay claim, and he evidently casts an appraising eye upon the figures of the feminine population of his city. We greatly doubt, however, that he can persuade womankind to return to the era of the whalebone and steel corset. It went into the discard decades ago with red flannel petticoats and skirts that trailed on the ground gathering up dust and mud unless the wearers were shameless enough to gather up the dress and immodestly reveal an ankle. The 21-inch waist was an ideal aspired to by the Victorian woman and long before that Marie de Medici was even proud of her 13-inch waist. Happily, common sense has overcome fashion and the wasp-waist, or hourglass shape, is gone for ever.

"The style of that bygone period was responsible for a tremendous amount of ill-health among women. It pushed the organs out of position, caused an untold number of still-born children and deaths among mothers. It restricted woman's capacity for recreation to no more active effort than croquet and tiddley-winks, and was as much a silly fashion as bound feet among Chinese women. Moreover, it was provocative of chronic indigestion and red noses.

"We think our womenfolk very nice as they are".

That is one side of the argument. We might say that Nature never intended mankind to walk on its hind legs, and that when mankind insists on doing so, a corset is a great comfort. The evils of tight-lacing have been fully exploited in the medical press of half a century ago; the evils of no lacing at all may be just as great.

And, as we said in our previous editorial, we think that women look better with corsets than without them. It may be said that a corset is an unnatural restraint. Yes, but so is a shoe. People who go barefoot get large, splayed feet. People who go without corsets become large and splayed in a variety of places. After all, our civilization may be measured, to some extent, by the degree in which we have overcome the excesses and follies of Mother Nature. If we had been content to abide by the old lady's decision, we should still be living in trees. Having come as far from tree-life as we have, perhaps the restraining and moulding corset may be allowed its place in civilized life.

We think that womenfolk are very nice, too. But, being an incorrigible perfectionist, we want them to be even nicer. Corsets will help.

The Governor-General's Awards

The Governor-General's Awards for literature in Canada have been made public. E. K. Brown's book On Canadian Poetry won the prize for non-fiction and no one will deny that this excellent study deserved such conspicuous recognition. The literary award goes to Thomas H. Raddall of Nova Scotia for The Pied Piper of Dipper Creek. A. J. M. Smith receives the award for poetry and John D. Robins the prize for creative non-fiction.

It will be seen that three awards out of four go to university professors. This is a symptom of the state of literature in Canada. A man cannot hope to earn a living by writing; the Income Tax regulation which classes author's royalties as "unearned income" successfully takes care of that. He must have a job which brings him his bread and butter, and write in any spare time he can claim from it. The academic life gives more spare time than most pursuits, and thus it is not strange to find so many of our important writers attached to the universities.

But although we have no wish to disparage these gentlemen, who have written excellent books, we should like to point out that no nation has ever built up a great literature out of the writings of university professors. Great literatures spring from the people, and they are written to please the people. The books which the four prize-winning professors have written spring from the scholar's study, and that is where they will find their readers.

Canada, apparently, is content to import its literature from England and from the U.S. It does not care to develop a popular and vigorous literature of its own. If it had any intentions along that line it would not drive its writers abroad to earn a living.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The time draws near when men will discover that nothing feels better and looks worse than last year's straw hat.

Warmer weather is reported in Germany, but so far the Allies haven't taken off their "heavies".

Diary Of Minority Opinion

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: This afternoon talked about city planning with a gentleman who told me that a good plan, carefully and conscientiously carried out, paid excellent dividends. I was well able to believe this; we are all attracted by beautiful cities, want to live in them, and find happiness in them. Town planning is what makes the difference between a really ghastly city, like Birmingham for instance, and Paris; Paris is just as much industrial in its nature as Birmingham, but it is one of the most beautiful cities of the world. Here in Canada we have nothing as grossly ugly as Birmingham, but we have dozens of hodge-podge, grubby towns, full of ugly buildings. We need somebody like Osbert Lancaster to draw them for us, and show us what they really look like. He would doubtless be lynched if he drew what he saw, but he would die in a good cause.

MONDAY: Received a letter today from a lady who says, "I always read your diary, though I hardly ever agree with you." Well, madam, that is what my diary is for—to provoke disagreement. When you disagree with me, you see, your emotion sets up a physiological reaction which makes you secrete adrenalin in increased quantity; this is good for your health. There is nothing like a minority opinion to keep a nation healthy....Of course, no one is compelled to read my diary. I prefer to keep it entirely to myself. A whim prompts me to write my diary on the editorial page of this newspaper, and if snoopy people pry into it there is nothing that I can do to stop them....That's the kind of people you are! Untrustworthy! Can't be left alone in a room with a newspaper without rooting into a fellow's diary! Paul Prys! Nosey Parkers! Yah-Boo....Another lady writes, "Was your French chef merely a figment of the imagination?" No, but he is now. Euthanase was preparing a fig pudding some weeks ago and it suddenly rose up and engulfed him. In spite of this the pudding was very good. "Have another fragment of this delicious figment," I would say to my guests, wiping away a tear for Euthanase.

TUESDAY: I am now burning wood in my furnace, and it works very well, and keeps me very warm in this mild weather. There is just one thing about it which disturbs me: my woodpile contains a good deal of pine, and odd pieces of other gummy woods, and when a few of them are put on the fire they fill the house with a delicious, faintly perceptable balsamic ozone. But if I misjudge, and get too much on the fire at one time the place begins to smell like an Indian tepee on a windy day; even the food takes on a flavour of pemmican. Worse, the furnace gets hiccoughs, and belches a thick black resinous smoke out of its front door every five minutes or so....This wood fire provides the ideal temperature and place for baking beans. Fill the beanpot, and stand it on the shelf just inside the furnace door, and leave it there for ten hours or so, turning it now and again to apply the heat evenly. Thus the beans are baked without that expense of fuel in either electricity or gas which makes the home-baked bean an expensive luxury.

WEDNESDAY: I see by the papers that Cecile Chaminade died yesterday at the age of 86. When I was a mere stripling, striving to gain some proficiency in the art of piano-playing, the mere mention of Mme. Chaminade's name was enough to put my music-master (an irascible Scott with a cult for Bach) into a furious passion. Pushing me off the piano bench he would proceed to play some of Madame's compositions with sarcasm, scorn and black hatred in his touch; "La Lisonjera" was the piece which he especially liked to guy in this manner; the title, he would inform me, meant "The Flatterer," and he would then proceed to play it with a mincing, roguish touch which was funnier than Alec Templeton at his best. Chaminade, he told me repeatedly, was an old maid, and wrote music which gave admirable expression to her unblessed state. "Tea-room music!" he would snort, when this performance was over, and then would wash his hands, so to speak, by playing a snatch from The Well-Tempered Clavichord....I was surprised, therefore, to read in her obituary notice that Chaminade married a music publisher named C. Carbonel, who died very soon afterward. There is a type of female spider, I believe, which devours the male immediately after mating.

THURSDAY: Had a dispute with a man today about the best way to ripen green bananas. He said that they should be put in the sun; I said they should be kept in a dark, warm place. I was merely quoting a fruit-store man from whom I bought them! I do not really know anything about the subject. But when it came to an argument I found that I could argue as well on one side as the other....Thoughts of bananas put me in mind of the Oxford Group, one of whose pregnant apothegms was "It's the banana that leaves the bunch that gets skinned." The war seems to have dealt a death-blow to the Group and Moral Rearmament. I say 'seems' advisedly, for the craving for cheery, doctrineless religions never dies, and the Group, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, will crop up again as soon as the fighting is over. It is some time, also, since anything has been heard of Buchman, the Big Banana around whom all the other bananas bunched themselves. Sic transit gloria bananae.

FRIDAY: In spite of the hullabaloo about shortage of paper, I continue to receive a morning mail grossly swollen with stuff which I will not read and which I stoutly maintain that nobody else will read. Somehow the custom has grown up of sending copies of speeches delivered by the heads of financial and industrial concerns to all the papers; these generally run to twenty foolscap pages of typed platitude. Included with the full text is an abridged text for busy readers, giving what hopeful publicity men call the "highlights" of the speech. I throw such stuff away automatically; I also throw away all communications which are unsealed, or which have less than a four-cent stamp on them. By following this arbitrary custom I have never yet missed anything of the slightest importance.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Did not listen to the opera this afternoon, but worked on my lawn with good effect. The fight with leaves, however, is a hopeless one. No sooner had I cleared a patch of grass than leaves would blow over it from my neighbour's garden; these leaves had come to him from farther up the road, and had come in the first place, I think, from the Mongolian Plain, or some other untidy locality....This evening listened to a discussion about Income Tax; the topic is one to make the heart bleed. But as one lady asked, which is the worse fate; to be a Canadian soldier in England, who has been training for four years, or a Canadian citizen at home, who has struggled with rising costs and taxes and voluntary work for four years? There can be no satisfactory answer for the struggle of the soldier is primarily physical, while that of the citizen is primarily mental....I am putting in a hedge soon, and am reading about hedges as a preparation. They appear to be fickle, treacherous things.

POST-WAR WORLD No. 7 —By Rube Goldberg

Wealth and Work

(By R. J. DEACHMAN)

SOMETIME ago I wrote a brief story, telling of one, Harkness of New York, financier and philanthropist who died, leaving an estate of over $93 million, after distributing, during his lifetime, $117 million, in gifts, to different institutions.

The question I raised was this: Is the world poorer or richer because of this man's accumulation of wealth? In the answers, I wanted the writers to assume that Harkness made his money in legitimate business, that it grew out of industry just as the fortune of Henry Ford grew. I wanted it to be discussed from the standpoint of an earned fortune, not as one inherited or made in speculation.

Many of the comments received ignored, or failed to understand, that particular point. They approached the question from the standpoint of one who had got much and gave little or nothing. They left, unanswered, the real question; is the world poorer or richer because of this man's accumulation of wealth?

From a woman, Mrs. Blanche Palmiter of Riding Mountain, Manitoba, writing in the Neepawa Press, came this statement:

"One of my former pupils, Mr. Henry Morley, of Riding Mountain, expressed it this way in Thurston's Store not long ago: "Oh why don't we quit our grousing and do something for ourselves?" Until we are all imbued with the same spirit there will be cause for grumbling and discontent in spite of prayers, or tears. The change must come from within ourselves.

Now, Mr. Harkness, who accumulated such a vast fortune, giving largely of his wealth, the while, may have preferred some other type of service, but his gift was for finance. Assuming that he gained his wealth honestly, it should be no concern of ours how much he accumulated; and we could then be free to admire the man for all the benefits he was able to bestow upon mankind; for certainly no man could accumulate so much money honestly without benefitting the community, even the nation, consequently every person in it—including me. That being true, my conclusion is that the world is richer because of this man's accumulated wealth."

That, in my judgment, is the real answer to the question. The world is richer and the burden of life is lighter because someone invented a binder, a combine, a tractor or a milking machine. It is better that we should have electric lights, radios, aluminum pans, motor cars, steamships and trains, even though some man, out of these things, may have made great fortunes.

Fortunes are ephemeral. They pass away. Men have accumulated wealth in almost every age and many of them have contributed, in so doing, incalculable benefits to mankind. We must not let envy, of the success of others, darken our minds to real facts The real wealth of the world comes from intelligence, from the minds of men and women, from those who have found better, simpler methods of doing things.

Toys of Wood and Cardboard

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

MUCH has been heard of the ravages of war on the home front, of the nylon stockings and French kid gloves which are no longer procurable, of the tire and gasoline situation and the shortage of pipe cleaners, of the Norwegian sardines and Australian pineapple which once graced the shelves of the corner grocery, of the queues before candy shops, wine shops and at eating places. But there is one sufferer whose plight has been largely overlooked, who has no champion to plead his cause. He is the small boy with his toys of wood and cardboard.

Pity the youngster to whom the joy of ownership of a mechanical truck is unknown. Pity the young lad who has not experienced the pleasure of winding up a toy engine and watching it drag its string of cars round and round on miniature rails. Streamlined, rubber-tired, coaster wagons and tricycles, scooters, a myriad of mechanical toys and those ingenious mechanical building sets are all unknown to him unless he is fortunate enough to acquire a second-hand one of pre-war vintage. Even the few rubber balls which are still in existence have lost much of their bounce and altogether it is enough to sadden the heart of a small boy.

Of course he has trains and trucks and tanks of wood and cardboard, but they are at best a poor substitute. Lifeless things which must be pushed or pulled about, they are dull and clumsy in comparison to the streamlined mechanical toys of the pre-war days. He has wooden-wheeled scooters, too, but they are a sluggish travesty on the sleek, darting, ball-bearing mounted creation of another day.

There is but one gleam of brightness to the youngster in the temporary passing of metal toys for with their going has disappeared one of childhood's sweet sorrows. Christmas and birthdays are now entirely his own, for his father no longer takes possession of the toy train a soon as it is freed from its wrappings. To him the line from Shakespeare no longer applies: "Oh, how bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

THREE STRONG ARGUMENTS FOR PROVINCIAL PARK

Sir,—A great deal has been written in the past few weeks dealing with the merits and demerits of a proposed Provincial Park, comprising approximately 250 square miles in the northern section of Peterborough county.

This area to my knowledge was once a heavily wooded country. In the past this area was the scene of heavy lumbering industry, and in more recent years was subject to uncontrolled cutting in woodlots until today it is little short of a barren waste. No provision has been made for restoration of the forests. The need of far-reaching measures of restoration and conservation is acute; without them conditions will get progressively worse.

The prosperity of Peterborough county, of Ontario, and for that matter of all Canada, depends upon natural resources. So much so that a complete representative crusade on behalf of all the people in the perpetuation of nature's gifts, should be immediately undertaken, especially the nursing of all beneficial species of wildlife, in close collaboration with the safeguarding of several related resources; in fact, not only the conserving of wildlife but water salvaging, soil replenishing, woodland planning and planting, and enlightened handling of every renewable natural resource, all along the line.

The establishment of a Provincial Park, operated by planned management, brings these elements into full force and effect, to the end that man's needs are preserved and replenished. What are these needs? I would like to describe them as follows:

1. Biological Needs: Wildlife is part of "total machinery of nature" upon which man's existence depends; wildlife contributes to fertility of soils in many ways; fishes, and mammals help by contributing to pest control; wildlife contributes to the balance of a forest; wildlife is the source of all domestic animal life.

2. Economic Needs: Wildlife furnishes food, hides, furs, material for many of man's needs, and when coupled with soil conservation and reforestation furnishes forestry hydro, agricultural chemistry, entomology, agriculture, medicine, fish and game. Many industries are built around them, many men find employment by them.

3. Aesthetic and Social Needs: Birds, fishes, and animals add to the color and beauty of nature; wildlife makes the healthful sports of fishing, hunting and wildlife photography possible; the urge to see wildlife strengthens man's contact with all nature, helping him to renew his sprit; the study of wildlife adds greatly to man's knowledge.

I would ask you all to give this question of a park your serious consideration. To those of you who oppose the park, whatever your reasons may be, I am satisfied that if they prevail a great opportunity will be lost to this city and county.

Bear this in mind. None of these natural resources will restore themselves under present conditions. What nature takes away, aided by man's lack of foresight, no man can restore. The choice should not be difficult to make. Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

WILLIAM ADDYMAN,
88 Lansdowne Street, Peterborough.

A Bible Message

And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment, and stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

Now when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.

And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on. There was a certain crediter which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most?

Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged. And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.... Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little. And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven. (Luke 7: 36-44, 47, 48.)

"Very Different"

One of the common articles of modern American mythology is a belief that air transport operates the world around because the United States provided the aircraft and built and paid for the airports to which they ply. It has been the basis of much fine talk about America's right to rule the air routes of the world after the war. If it continues to circulate unchecked, the consequences can only be harmful to our British-American partnership, for the truth, of course, is very different. It may have surprised even some citizens in this country to learn that the American contribution to the full program of airfield construction in Britain amounts to no more than 1.6 per cent of the total expenditure, but the facts as they concern ferrying an air-freight services are historic. The event which promoted the transport and ferrying bases to their high place in military strategy was not the passing of the Lease-Lend Act or America's entry into the war, but the fall of France. Thus Prestwick became a trans-Atlantic terminal in 1940, thanks to Lord Beaverbrook, who was then Minister of Aircraft Production and is now charged, as Lord Privy Seal, with the development of commercial air transport.—Glasgow Herald.

Canadians Reach Condition Peak Ready To Strike

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN ARMY INVASION FORCES, April 29—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops are ready for their second front job. They have reached the peak of conditioning and now await only the invasion signal.

They have been drilled in landing technique, assault tactics, co-ordination of weapons and street fighting and have polished up on general training and use of weapons.

The Canadians have been concentrated in an area alive with the activity of second front preparation. The Dominion's troops are in a spot Somewhere in England, the location of which the enemy would like to know. But it is just one part of the arsenal into which the country has been converted by large-scale preparations.

The Canadian area, where everybody is living under canvas, is well-hidden from enemy air observation and ringed with armed sentries who will admit no stranger. There, troops have overhauled their kit, checking every item so they can go into action knowing all of the equipment is sound.

The schedule of getting ready has filled their days. Rations have been issued according to the generous field scale and at the end of a busy day the latest movies have been shown in large tents.

Still Get Mail

Among the men there is not a great deal of talk about the forthcoming operation. Mail still is delivered regularly to the second front troops and they have been permitted to keep up their correspondence. They also have taken part in Canada's Sixth Victory Loan campaign.

The troops are keen and serious about every aspect of the final preparations and their long background of training all over this country has given them the appearance and assurance of professional soldiers.

One or two features of their special training have been designed to equip them with surprises for the enemy.

Wearing battledress, the Canadians have done route marches in their second front gear, listened to lectures about the fighting they can expect and sharpened up their shooting eyes.

Roads through the camp are lined with vehicles all freshly overhauled and displaying such evidence of prime condition as brand new tires. Guns, tanks and carriers have the same spic-and-span appearance.

Infantrymen have performed such drill as advancing under live artillery fire and anti-tank gunners keep themselves in form by regular visits to the ranges which are equipped with moving targets. Sniping sections also have visited their ranges regularly.

Troops marching in and out of camp in complete kit are tanned and healthy looking. All have been looked over by dental and medical officers and received inoculations against such diseases as tetanus and typhus. They will go into battle in the best physical form.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The two toughest battlers to be seen here this winter are to be tossed in against each other next Tuesday night at Brock St. Arena when Karl Krippler Davis, the Texan bad man will clash with Strangler Bob Wagner, the bashing mat villain from the Pacific Coast. After his sensational battle with Whipper Watson in Toronto the other night the Queen City sport writers described Davis as the roughest wrestler who had been seen at Maple Leaf Gardens all season and Peterborough fans have seen the Texan often enough to know that that description was not ovedrawing the picture. Davis is big, ruthless, savage. He snaps a punch in as if he were trying to knock his opponent's head off his shoulders and when he gets a chance to apply that stepover toe hold of his he seems to take a sadistic enjoyment in putting on every ounce of pressure. But rough as he is and big as he is local followers of the game are not prepared to say yet that he is any tougher than the hard-boiled baby he meets here Tuesday night. The long-haired Wagner is perpetual motion. He never stops and usually his activities are designed to knock his opposition for a loop.

* * * * * *

The Strangler, too, goes berserk without the slightest warning and when he cuts loose with one of his wild attacks something has to give. What will happen when he opens fire on the Texan with one of those typical Wagner outbursts is hard to predict. And if Wagner cuts loose with a characteristic attack about the same time as the Krippler brings his biggest guns into action the result is likely to be a duel to the death between two tremendously powerful men, neither of whom has any notion of yielding an inch of ground once the battle is on. This bout will have the fans completely stymied. They have been booing every move made by both men in their previous appearances here and with the two rowdies of the ring pitted against each other the crowd will not have an easy time deciding which should be installed as favorite for the night. "This is something new," Promoter Tunney admits, "usually the ideal setup is to match a hero with a bad man. But Wagner has been kicking all my popular favorites around and it is about time somebody took him in hand. I figure Davis has the stuff to do it and so I have matched the Texan with Wagner. It may not work out the way I have been figuring but at any event there shouldn't be any dull moments when those two tough eggs start tossing each other around."

Rolling Right Along

Like Old Man River those St. Louis Browns are rolling right along and so far the American League has not been able to come up with a club capable of stopping their victory march. Friday the Brownies equalled the big league start-of-the-season consecutive win record by beating the Chicago White Sox 3 to 1 and thus annexing their ninth win in a row. That equals the record held jointly by the Giants who won nine straight to start the 1918 season and the Dodgers who did the same thing four seasons ago. Strangely enough everybody is interested in the brilliant start of the Browns except the St. Louis fans who have been staying away from the ball orchard in droves while the home team has been piling up win after win. Great pitching is the explanation for the fine showing of the Brownies. Prior to yesterday's game the unbeaten American League leaders had been hitting a mere .238 as a club and in short would not have been winning if their pitchers had not at the same time been holding their opposition to a .215 average. The St. Louis pitch. has been de luxe tossing. For instance yesterday Kramer who thus became the first American League pitcher to win three games this season held the White Sox to four scattered hits. The Brownies didn't hammer the offerings of Bill Dietrich and Maltzberger very hard but they didn't need to with Kramer working like a well-oiled machine.

* * * * * *

Another pitcher picked up his third win of the season yesterday as against no defeats. Bill Voiselle, an International League contribution to the New York Giants won the decision against the Brooklyn Dodgers 6 to 4, although he didn't go the route but had to be relieved by Feldman. The Giants were outhit 2 to 1, the Bums making 12 hits as against half a dozen for the Ott outfit but in the run column it was something else again. Scoring runs on the Boston Braves' pitching is not an easy matter these days. Tobin tossed a no-hitter for the Boston club in pitching a shutout on Thursday and yesterday Andrews came back with a fine effort against the Phillies holding them to seven scattered hits and one run in 12 innings. His teammates finally pushed over the winning run after three extra frames to take the decision 2 to 1. Another club which is getting fine pitching is Cincinnati. The Reds' artillery brigade are going great guns and yesterday Heusser came through with a neat seven hitter to blank the Pittsburg Pirates 2 to 0.

The Longest Game

Bill Westwick in the Ottawa Journal thus describes the longest game in the major league annals: "Noting that 13-inning 1-0 victory for Cincinnati Reds over the Cardinals yesterday recalls another occasion about this time of year when a pair of National League teams unexpectedly chalked up an all-time record that still stands. It's just 24 years ago almost to the day that two teams started out on one of those early season games and didn't stop until they had produced the longest game in the history of the major leagues. Baseball's marathon record has been the subject of more than one sports argument, yet recourse to the files will show the longest baseball game of them all to have been played one afternoon at Boston in 1920. It was at the Braves' field with Boston and Brooklyn in action. It went 26 innings and there were a few remarkable features of that bitter duel, not the least of which was the role played by the pitchers. Two hurlers started and went as long as visibility lasted. For three hours and 50 minutes Joe Oeschger of the Braves and Leon Cadore of Brooklyn matched pitching ability and stamina in the longest of all endurance tests. And when 26 innings had been completed the score was still 1-1 and the umpires called it off because of darkness. It was an era when the double play, the sacrifice and the daring stolen base led to smaller scores. All the scoring that afternoon came before the sixth inning, the Robins grabbing one run in the fifth and the Braves matching that with a single marker in the sixth. Then came 20 scoreless innings crammed with scoring chances and possibilities, but not a runner crossed the plate."

* * * * * *

Behind the scenes City Softball League teams are already beginning to lineup their players for the coming campaign and several of the clubs are figuring on beginning spring workouts at once. With Genelcos not functioning this year it is expected there will be a battle for some of the stars of that club. Rumor has it that most of them may gravitate to Manager Murph Chambers' Switchgear outfit and other stories have several of them drifting in the direction of the Planes. The U.E. team, new entry in the loop, have an organization meeting called for Tuesday night and a better line on the strength of the union outfit will be afforded after that gathering is over. DeLaval have not made any announcements as yet in regard to their prospective lineup and the Military Training Centre is also maintaining silence. It is known of course that the Soldiers have lost their entire pitching staff of last season, Tommy Parsons, Johnny Walker and Wilson and that two star infielders of last year's team, Third Baseman Dalten and Second Baseman Sandulak are both gone. However they expect to fill the gaps and hope to uncover some new talent that will provide plenty of opposition. The Military Training Centre team has always had a big following and their supporters are counting on them coming up with a strong club.

TORONTO, April 29 — (CP). — Crushing of the West in this year's Allan and Memorial Cup hunts caused considerable speculation on the theme: "What is wrong with Western hockey?"

General concensus of opinion is that the whole thing boils down to one fact, the West can't produce hockey players as fast as the East can absorb them. As soon as a lad shows even the faintest trace of talent, he is grabbed by the wealthy Eastern teams and given a cushy job and a nice playing salary. Most of the big industries and war plants are in the East, so there is far more opportunity for promising youngsters who excel on skates.

With the war on, a young fellow now is just as apt to wind up in the N.H.L. where he may not get any more money but stands to collect much more glory.

It isn't new thing by any means, only the process has speeded up in the last few years. Records of cup play show the West has outscored the East 14-12 in Memorial Cup wins, while the Easterners hald a 21-16 edge in Allan Cup victories. In the past, there weren't so many junior teams able to import players, so the Westerners usually stayed home long enough to win the junior title before coming East as seniors.

Whoever made that remark about a young man going West had his compass set in the wrong century.

Retreat from Broda?

Bill (Kingston Whig Standard) Walshe predicts that senior hockey next winter will be confined to the services, and that the Army will embark on its own hockey program This would be patterned on the boxing eliminations held this winter, and would bring zone and district winners together in a final series, Bill says.

If that happened, it would be a complete reversal of the Army's attitude toward sport adopted after the Broda bean-spilling incident, and other happenings. Our guess is the Army really will be too busy next winter to bother much with sports, even though hockey could have been carried on last season, as it turned out.

Incidentally:

That new round ring, lacking corners for seconds and managers of fighters to lurk in, "may do away with these characters entirely, which would not be a bad thing," quips Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson.....Andy Seminick of Philadelphia Blue Jays and-or Phillies of the National League played with London (Ont.) Bucs four years ago....Revival of boxing in Winnipeg, once one of the Dominion's greatest Queensbury centres, is foreseen by Maurice Smith of the Winnipeg Free Press. The Canadian Army Western fight finals there might help bring the game back to its old-time level when Sam Langford, Mike Gibbons, Abe Atell, Jack Dillon, and Fred Welsh appeared in Winnipeg.

Jimmy Keith Coach Back From Wars

By BOBBIE ROSENFELD.

The boys in the Beach and Argo back rooms are warmed up for special chin-wagging sessions. Little Julius, the pocket Hercules, is back from the wars. Every football fan and gridiron gaffer knows who Little Julius is. That's right. Little Julius is Jimmy Keith, one-time explosive outside winger for Balmy Beach and Argo football teams. The little round man is a company sergeant major now with the 48th Highlanders. He enlisted in 1939 and constituted Hitler's first official warning from the Balmy Beach gang.

France and Sicily

Jimmy was in France when that country capitulated, stationed within 30 miles of Paris. He missed the hell of Dunkirk, got his innings in against the Hun when he was in the first wave to assault Sicily.

The stubby, brick-red, bandy-legged, 42-year-old sergeant-major looks good and admits modestly he even feels better than he looks. He is even talking about a postwar comeback with Balmy Beach or the Argos, who shared the benefits of his 10-year dynamic career on the Toronto gridiron.

As coy as a spinster about her age, Jimmy was loath to talk about himself. But you can depend upon it, he rightly earned his promotions and a place of honor on the 48th growing list of honored names.

Jimmy got his C.S.M.'s crown in August of 1943. His explanation of the promotion: "Hell, there weren't any other sergeants around, so it had to be me."

Another "First Down"

That isn't the real reason of course. It was after a long, bloody night in one of the regiment's toughest Sicilian battles. The objective was a steep ridge overlooking Nissoria. Keith rallied his platoon time and time again, regrouped them in the inky confusion and led them over the next terrace as cooly as though all they were after was another first down.

"You can say for me that the boys over there eat up every bit of sports news. It's a scramble when The Canadian Press News arrives about once a week. They mull over every item and are most anxious to know about hockey, baseball and racing.

"We spent weeks and used tons of explosives blasting a softball diamond. After most of the rough going was over, we hustled to the diamond every night for inter-company games."

Do we have to tell you that Jimmy is glad to be back?

Don't Believe Postcards

"It's a relief to breath in gobs of this good Canadian air. Sicily and Italy may look good on picture postcards, but you can't smell it. Gad, what a filthy hole. And am I glad to get away from those Sicilian hills! I never knew how easy football was until I tried this fighting business. The shootin' is the softest part of it. But, boy, those hills, they were tough for a fat little sergeant," sighed Little Julius as he relaxed on a cushioned rocker.

Only one thing spoiled Keith's home-coming—the liquor rations.

CIRCUS STUFF AT PIMLICO STEEPLECHASE JUMP—A bad landing at the Liverpool jump threw Jockey W. Owen out of Sir Bluesteel's saddle at Pimlico, Md., but amazingly enough the rider hung on and brought the jumper—a 3 to 1 shot—in fifth. Incident occurred the second time around the course in the two-mile Warlock steeplechase, which was won by Winged Hoofs.

Jersey City Newark Show Weakness

By the Associated Press.

If past performances are any basis for judgment, Newark and Jersey City, New York's farm clubs, face a rocky road unless help is forthcoming from the parent Yanks and Giants.

The Bears and the Little Giants are occupying the last two positions in the International League.

Both were beaten again yesterday, Newark for the third time in four games and Jersey City for the fourth time in five games.

Prince Hank Oana of Buffalo Bisons blanked the Bears with four hits, striking out eight, for a 6-0 decision. Newark has scored only seven runs in the four games, and has made but 23 hits. Added to their woes Jack Phillips, their third baseman, has been accepted for the Navy and will leave on Tuesday.

The Jerseys have fared little better, losing to the Rochester Red Wings 6-5. It was their third setback by one run. They have also suffered two shutouts. Outfielder Tom Astbury and Pitcher Lefty Kuipers, two freshmen, were the Red Bird heroes. Astbury made three hits, his triple driving in two runners. He also batted in two others and scored one himself to account for five of Rochester's runs. Kuipers relieved Bill Trotter in the ninth inning and halted a Giants' rally with a man on second base.

The Toronto-Syracuse and Montreal-Baltimore games were postponed because of cold weather and wet grounds.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

Bing Crosby protested to Gov. Earl Warren and the State Racing Board of California against the failure of the commission to grant dates for a meeting next fall at the crooner's Del Mar Turf Club, but Robert Young, as acting deputy director of the War Manpower Commission at Los Angeles, issued a statement yesterday to the effect horse racing was not wanted in Southern California. Young said military, government and civic leaders opposed horse racing because it would bring new problems in manpower, absenteeism, transportation and housing.

With a crowd of 13,395 fans, St. Paul won the President's Cup for the largest opening-day attendance, it was announced yesterday at the American Association headquarters, Columbus, O. Openers in all eight cities of the loop attracted 64,647 paid admissions, 7,479 greater than last year. Milwaukee stood second with 13,341.

A number of former professionals will battle to-night at Winnipeg in the Western finals for the Army boxing championships and the right to meet Eastern contenders for the titles at Ottawa on May 4. Ex-pros in to-night's card include Gnr. Hi Berry, Toronto middleweight; Pte. Gordon Thompson of Turner Valley, and Pte. Al Di Salvo of Toronto, who meet in the welterweight final, and Rfm. Honey Waithe of Toronto, former stable-mate of Sammy Angott and Beau Jack.

Browns Defeat Chicago For 9th Win

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's up to Chicago White Sox today to stop St. Louis Browns' bid for a new modern big league record of 10 consecutive games won at the start of a season.

Since opening day, Luke Sewell has been getting a superior grade of pitching in nine successive victories with seven complete games credited to his Brownie staff. Only Cincinnati with seven finishers in eight starters can top that mark.

Jack Kramer, who turned back the Sox with four hits yesterday in the Browns' 3-1 victory, had to be relieved on opening day after pitching 8 2-3 innings.

Ed Huesser of Cincinnati Reds is the latest addition to the "nine-inning pitchers" club. He joined yesterday by springling seven Pittsburgh hits along the route in a 2-0 triumph.

Rookie Bill Voiselle of New York Giants failed to go all the way for the first time yesterday but got credit for his third victory as the Giants topped Brooklyn, 6-4. Homers by Pitcher Les Webber and Howie Schultz of the Dodgers were included in the losers' 12-hit total.

Taking inspiration from Jim Tobin's heroic deed, Nate Andrews tok charge of the Phillies in tossing Boston Braves to a 2-1 edge in 11 innings. Andrews had a shutout ruined in the ninth on Ford Mullen's single but came up with his decision in the second overtime inning when Connie Ryan singled, moved up on two sacrifices and scored on Butch Nieman's fly.

While the Brown's were stealing the big type away from the rest of the American League, Philadelphia and Boston were playing the year's longest game, a 16-inning affair, won by the A's 7-5. Woody Wheaton went hitless in seven at bats until he drove home the decisive scores with a single. Frankie Hayes bashed two homers to assume the individual lead with a total of three.

Mel Harder is within two victories of his goal of 200 major league victories after springling 10 Detroit hits along the trail of a 2-1 Cleveland victory.

Canadian Girls To Serve Near Front Line

OTTAWA, April 29— (CP)— Canada's Women's Army Corps—the CWACS—will see service in "rear areas" of active theatres of operation, defence headquarters announced today.

A hint of this news was contained in an announcement yesterday which said CWACS in Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom would serve "even farther afield." Yesterday's announcement told of the appointment of Lt.-Col. Margaret Eaton of Toronto, assistant Adjutant-General, as Director-General with the rank of Colonel and presumably over Lt.-Col. Joan Kennedy of Vancouver who is now general staff officer in charge of training.

In making public the news of this extension of C.W.A.C. activity, defence headquarters revealed that the first members of the Corps to be utilized in this move will be clerks, stenographers and cypher operators. Other trades will follow as arrangements are completed to put them into service.

It was emphasized that only limited numbers of those tradeswomen required to fill the demand for this new service are immediately available in Canada and the United Kingdom, since most of the CWACS so trained are filling important key positions here and overseas. Consequently the recently-announced requirement for 5,000 recruits for the C.W.A.C. by the middle of June, it was said, is more urgent than ever.

In being posted to theatres of active operation, CWACS will follow in the footsteps of their sisters in the Nursing Services and their cousins in the United States Women's Services.

"It had always been anticipated" said a military spokesman "that the women of the service would play an increasingly important part in this war, wherever they were afforded an opportunity of serving either at home or abroad, in safety or in danger, in dull jobs as well as those which are exciting."

Waterway Plan Coming To The Front

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 29—(CP)—Dust-laden and forgotten for nearly three years, the 1941 Canada-United States agreement for development of power in the St. Lawrence river is expected to be taken from the Congressional shelf for early study by a Senate committee.

Cordell Hull, State Secretary, and Henry Stimson, War Secretary have written the Senate Commerce Committee, asking for early action on the power project.

More recently Senator Robert Wagner (Dem.-N.Y.), who once voted against the combined power and navigation scheme, declared there was "overwhelming sentiment for the earliest possible use of power resources in the St. Lawrence river."

Now it is reported that the ratifying bill, introduced long ago by Senator G. D. Aiken (Rep.-Vt.) is about to be taken up by a subcommittee, headed by Senator John H. Overton (Dem.-La.).

The latest agreement is that signed at Ottawa March 19, 1941, calling for committee action on construction of power dams in the vicinity of Barnhart Island, designed to produce some 2,200,000 horsepower of Hydro Electric energy costing around $280,000,000.

Original proposals for his development—debated on and off in Congress here and in Parliament at Ottawa for more than 25 years—involve not only the development of power but deepening of river channels to provide ocean navigation from the Great Lakes to the sea.

It is expected any action that may be taken now will concentrate on the power aspect of the development.

The 1941 agreement is not a treaty and may be approved in the Senate with a majority. A previous agreement in the form of a treaty requiring a two-thirds majority was defeated in the Senate. When the 1941 agreement was signed it was announced that Canada would not deal with it in Parliament until Congress had acted.

Needed In China Medical Missions

HAVELOCK, April 29 — (ENS) — "The great need for medical missionaries in China" was the theme studied at the Young Ladies' Evening Auxiliary, which met at the home of Mrs. Fred Gibson.

In reviewing this interesting study Miss McCorvie told of the great need to overcome poverty and disease, which are the two greatest contributing factors to the high death rate. She also mentioned the methods of reconstruction being provided by Missionary Clinics and church training centres. One story "Lepers Are Cleansed" told of the physical and spiritual training given to the outcast lepers in the Mission Camps, enabling them to return to an almost normal life.

The president, Miss Edna Rogers, presided and Mrs. A. Holland read the scripture lesson. Miss Verna Buchanan read a letter she had received from two people who had just returned to Africa after a furlough, and she told some facts about the Sudan Interior Mission where they are working.

The auxiliary decided to make a layette, to be packed with the bale from the W.M.S. in May. Mrs. George Chiles was appointed Honorary President of the Auxiliary. A lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Visiting brethren attended from Keene, Brooklin, Gananoque, Arden, Indian River and Norwood. A banquet was served in the dining hall by members of Prosperity Chapter No. 63, Order of the Eastern Star. The I.P.M. Ross Barrons acted as toastmaster for the following toasts: "The King," responded to by singing the National Anthem: to the Visitors by W.B. A. C. Denike and responded to by several visiting brethren; to Grand Lodge by W.B. E. D. Chiles and responded to by R.W.B. D. D. Brown, of Keene, who delivered an interesting address of the symbolism in Masonry.

When he's wet and homesick and cold, think how it will help him to know that the people at home are still back of him with every fighting dollar they can spare. Remember the more we do for our fighting men now, the sooner they will return, and the more of them will come home safely. Lend willingly and liberally.

BULLETS TO GO!

● It takes 750 bullets to destroy one of the enemy. Hitler's remaining fighting forces are estimated at five million men. Therefore . . . to wipe out the ruthless Hun will take 3,750,000,000 bullets.

It has taken almost five years and nine-tenths of the world to force the criminal into the corner. Every week of this war costs humanity two billion, six hundred million dollars. Its real cost, however, can be measured only in human suffering. The time to finish this is at hand.

Busy helping to pile up the production of weapons, dreaming about peacetime reconstruction, we and our fellow-workers feel that every dollar lent now is ten times more valuable than in ten months from now.

The hour of reckoning is at hand—invest in your share of bullets for the final blow.

C.G.E.-Genelco Exceed $450,000

Employees of Canadian General Electric Company and Genelco Limited undertook to subscribe $450,000 of the Sixth Victory Loan in one week. That was their assignment, as announced and collectively accepted at the initiating of their joint shop campaign on Friday April 21.

On Friday April 28 the big Loan register recorded total subscriptions of $456,000; and at noon today the total was $465,000.

The big twin plants had pushed their Loan salient $15,000 beyond the line that had been drawn for them, and another Investment in Victory job was done.

"I think our folks have done a fine job," said Tom Glover, works accountant, this morning. "We have not wound up everything yet. We shall likely have a few stragglers come along in the next few days, but we have scraped the bottom pretty well, and I think everybody is happy about the results and the way they were accomplished within the week."

Incidentally, Mr. Glover remarked to the Examiner that he had been reading about the inclusion of girls in the canvassing ranks of some of the other plants in the city.

"We've had girls helping in the canvass since our first Victory Loan, and we think pretty well of them, too", Mr. Glover said.

Live Trapping Methods Preserve Animal Life

Quoting a recent newspaper article reporting a request by the fedesral Department of Mines to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for permission to live-trap thirty beaver in Algonquin Park for the restocking of the Kesagami Preserve, Fred Marshall remarked today that similar assistance to nature could be expected in time from the extension of game protection in Peterborough county.

Mr. Marshall was referring to the proposed park and game preserve for the central-north section of the county, and quoted the interdepartmental arrangement as evidence of the potential results of such natural sanctuaries for the wild life of the area.

Thirty pairs of beaver are to be live-trapped in Algonquin Park annually and tranferred to Kesagami Beaver and Fur Preserve in the James Bay district. This restocking is to continue until 1945. Forty-two beaver were caught in Algonquin Park in 1943, but six died before they could be moved to Kesagami and two more failed to survive the trip.

The newspaper article mentions Algonquin Park as one of the best known game sanctuaries on the continent.

Council Faces Issue In Election Dates

Mayor Hamilton intends to call a special meeting of the committee of the whole council in the near future to discuss two perennial proposals which have been sketchily mentioned from time to time without decision.

One of them is the changing of the date of the municipal nominations and elections to avoid the voting on New Year's Day, and the other is the question of pensions for municipal employees.

Information has been obtained from some of the other cities in Ontario which have advanced their municipal nominations to the last week of November or thereabouts, with balloting early in December. The council already knows that Peterborough is one of the last of the cities to break from the old custom of New Year's elections, and the data on file indicates the general effect of the advanced date on the response of the public in claiming their ballots.

The necessity of some pensions plan has been knocking at the municipal door for the last ten years or more, but successive councils have evaded the problem with its intricacies of setting up a satisfactory financing arrangement.

CourtFinesMan$12.50 On Driving Charge

"He nearly ran me down" said Constable Bruce Menzies in police court this morning in giving evidence in a case in which Cyril Girster, Lindsay truck-driver had pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Constable Menzies said that Girster had his truck parked near Rye's Pavilion Friday night and when he drove off witness noticed there was only one light burning on the truck. He said he tried to flash the driver down with his flashlight but the truck failed to stop. "If I hadn't jumped out of the way he would have struck me" said the witness. Afterward he found that the brakes on the Girster truck were useless.

Magistrate Langley fined the accused $12.50 and $2.50 costs. He advised him to have his brakes fixed immediately and that otherwise it would be the duty of the police to lay another charge against him.

Canadian Legion Passes $2,000 For War Victims

Most everybody likes to see a good thing grow, and when the good thing happens to be of such importance as the relieving of the wants and necessities of other people on whom very hard luck has descended in the shape of death dealing blows from the skies, then the growth is all the more acceptable in the widest sense possible.

What commenced with a token of their sympathy for the sufferers from enemy air raids over Britain in the practical form of a donation of $25 in December, 1940, the veterans of world war No. 1 banded together in Branch No. 52 of the Canadian Legion, presided over by George Gimblett as president, have by steady work on a basis comparable to the good work they performed on behalf of their country some 25 years ago, now carried this one particular effort on their part to help in the present conflict past the $2,000 mark, with the amount of total assistance they have given for this one effort today standing at $2,042.71.

Week in and week out, followed by month in and month out until it has extended to year in and year out, a number of these veterans have given freely of their time in characteristic steadiness of purpose, in conducting a Wednesday night Bingo games, from which a share of the net proceeds have been given to the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund, from out of what ordinarily went towards their own welfare work, this latest month's contribution of $68.40 being credited in their name today.

Still Work for the Cause

To Messrs. Robert Mitchell, Robert Hotrum, Percy Golds, James Mitchell, Lorne Northey, Arthur Moscrop, Andy Wilson, Tom Chapman, Pete Wallace, Herv. Williamson, William Williamson and William Whitworth goes credit for the part they have played in giving their services for this purpose, and it could well be classed as welfare work of a high order, when it has extended itself to such proportions as it has now reached.

When the fund first commenced operations on behalf of the sufferers from air raids over Britain, a pledge was made by these veterans through their president that they would support the fund on a monthly basis, and in true British fashion, this word has been as good as ther bond, no one ever dreaming that it would reach such heights as today's records show, and their assistance ranks as the third in total gifts made from any one particular source to the fund, being only surpassed by the total donations from C.G.E. and Genelco plants, and the penny box collections.

Army Over Goal By 112 Per Cent

Col. Walter Bapty, Officer Commanding at the Training Centre located on the former Exhibition Grounds, reports to-day with pride that the Training Centre boys are "over the top." They are still going on and will not stop their canvass until the last day. It is hoped they will have one hundred and fifty per cent by the end of the Loan.

Col. Bapty continued: "The majority of the men are contributing but a man is not allowed to contribute if we know he is not financially able to make payments. From the last Loan we know that more than 99 per cent. kept up their payments and did not dispose of their bonds. We feel this is a record and we feel, too, that it will be the same way this time."

The objective was $40,850 and the amount secured to date is $45,650 or 112 per cent. of objective.

AVERY EJECTED FROM HIS OFFICE—On orders from U.S. Attorney-General Francis Biddle, two soldiers carry 69-year-old Sewell Avery, bodily, from his office at the Montgomery Ward plant in Chicago after he had refused to turn over the company's books to the government.

Wood Contracts Not Submitted

Only one of the fuel dealers of the city has complied with the government requirement that wood contracts must be priorly submitted to the local representative of the fuel wood controller.

At meetings of the trade during the year since last summer, criticisms of the government for one thing and another were frequent and usually barbed; comments by the way from a business that was prostrate as a result of adverse weather conditions, scarcity of labor and incerasing wage levels. It is not suggested that the learn supply of wood in the yards of trade was their fault. Some one else can assess that factor, but it has been a matter of interest to hear the dealers rimming the government and its agents at a time when the only wood on hand was in the municipal yards, with government urging and subsidy.

Since winter began to lift, the dealers have been reviving their wood yards in a market that is still under government control and subsidy. It was learned that one local firm had observed the letter of the government's regulations in submitting their wood supply contracts to the local official; and it was further learned that some of those contracts were held up and turned back.

But the most interesting and conspicuous aspect of the present business is the statement that only one dealer has presented contract details to the local official,—and so far the government has not said anything about this oversight on the part of the majority of the trade in a subsidized market.

North End Bus Service Nearer

Prospects of a bus service to the Wolsley street section of the north end of the city are developing, according to Alderman Dutton's report to the Board of Works Thursday night.

The management of the bus lines have laid out a loop route which was first proposed six months ago or more, by some residents of the area who asked the council of Smith township to intervene on their behalf. Reeve Gilbert McIlmoyl became interested in the present need of many of the people residing in that area, and both the bus management and the city council were interviewed.

Alderman Dutton said some improvement of Barnardo avenue would be required, and authority to have work done on that street was recommended to the council in a motion by Alderman Bradburn and Curtis. It is understood that Wolsley street has been transferred to county road status, qualifying it for acceptance as part of the Suburban Area Commission's system.

The city council is not disposed to question the course which may be adopted by the county and the Commission, if they decide on the proposed transfer of the road to the Suburban Area triumvirs, but some of the members smiled rather broadly the other night at a comment that whatever cost might be involved in the improvement of Wolsley street would be shared by the city as a contributor to the Commission's funds.

"There are other roads in the county we would like to see them spend money on," one of the members remarked, "but it will only be a small item any way, and there will be no objection if they go about it that way."

The bus management is skeptical about continuance of patronage in the proposed loop when rubber tires return to their normal supply, but they are reported willing to provide the service in the near future, and continue it as long as the north end residents manifest that they want it. The cash and ticket boxes will be the index.

Put Victory First

With the exception of one team the fifth daily report of the Sixth Victory Loan in Peterborough City's general canvass shows very little progress made. Resting on their laurels after leading all week the team of A. E. Cauley, A. J. McClellan and Stan Darling nearly lost first place in the amount sold when Fred Revoy, J. D. Anderson and R. Irwin piled in $15,750 for the day's high and a total of $35,850. Mr. Irwin on this team had sold $20,000 being the leading salesman in the city.

R. Irwin

J. S. Henderson of Otonabee, reported a $9,800 day, bringing the township total up to $25,600 for the two salesmen. Smith has a total of $14,600 with Gordon Hancock reported a $10,250 day.

Jack Curtis, Bruce Sargent and Jim Harkness had only a fair day turning in $4,000 for a total of $21,950 and the three hard working Ashburnham canvassers, Rufus Payne, Lou Brooks and L. Roberts cashed in with $3,300, bringing their total up to $13,250.

Dummer's two salesmen, Dave Miller and W. Darling reported $2,600 for a total of $4,950 while W. H. Stabler in Lakefield increased his sales $2,500 to $3,500.

In Douro, J. Healey has reported $3,900; in Havelock, H. T. Mathison has sold $4,500 and E. J. Leeson in Belmont and Methuen has $3,500.

S. G. Cole, oJhn Lee and W. P. Kinlin added $5,200 to their total, bringing it up to $19,000 and W. E. Metheral, James Juby and Vic Tully added $4,800 and they now have a total of $27,900.

The three North Monaghan salesmen are still up on top in the county race with their district being the only one over the required 27.77 per cent. Here the lady member of the team, Mrs. C. E. Moore is leading with sales totalling $5,750; J. Arnott has sold $4,350 and Henry Batten $2,850, for a team total of $12,950.

Mrs. C. E. Moore

The canvass is reported as going slowly among the teachers of the city with the Queen Alexandra school the only one to so far go over the top.

David Miller from Warsaw, came into headquarters Friday and said he was selling more bonds to date than he sold for the same time period last loan drive. People, he said, are co-operating splendidly and buying all they can.

Newcomers to Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. George Hamblin, 423 Downie street, were persuaded to invest their profits from the sale of their home out west in a Victory Bond. Mr. Hamblin is an invalid and both Mr. and Mrs. Hamblin felt they should keep their savings in the bank just in case of an emergency, but when Mr. Roy Irwin, their canvasser explained to them that their bonds could be used for just that emergency, and that they were loaning their money to the Government and helping the war effort at the same time, they agreed.

Sea Cadet Work Reduces Delinquency

The work that the Kiwanis Club has done in sponsoring the Sea Cadet movement in Peterborough was the object of high praise from the chairman of the Ontario Sea Cadet Committee, Ralph C. Ripley, speaking before a large gathering of Kiwanis members and Sea Cadets in the Empress Hotel Friday night.

Eighty-seven cadets, chosen for their record in attendance at parades since the beginning of the year, were guests of the club at dinner. They came dressed in uniform, as also did their officers, and following adjournment of the meeting proceeded with their drill parade.

"You have done a marvellous job, I don't know how you have done it," Mr. Ripley said. "I think that what you have done here is perhaps a bigger thing than you have any right to do."

Introduced by Milf Hardill, the speaker went on to describe the Sea Cadet movement as the greatest youth movement in the Dominion, and added, "If you don't see that now, I can promise you will be convinced of it later on."

Prevents Delinquency

Organization of the Sea Cadets, Mr. Ripley asserted, had had a very telling effect upon the urgent problem of juvenile delinquency. As an example, he pointed to the experience of a particular city where a corps had been formed as a direct result of a plea made by the chief of police. "In that city juvenile delinquency was down 23 per cent in the first month of the Sea Cadet Corps' existence, 38 per cent after the second month, and thereafter was practically negligible," Mr. Ripley said.

He referred to the misunderstanding that frequently exists in the minds of parents regarding the objects of the Sea Cadet movement. It was erroneous to believe that its primary purpose was one of preparing boys for enlistment in the Navy; rather it endeavored to teach them discipline, deportment, right thinking and the spirit of fair play.

He spoke to the boys on the opportunity afforded them by their membership in a Sea Cadet corps and assured them this was a bigger chance than any that ever came the way of young men in other days. He urged them to think about it, to ask themselves continually, "Where am I going? What am I going to do when I get there?"

Invaluable Training

The value of Cadet training to the Navy in the cases of boys who later enlisted for active service was emphasized also by the speaker. "The first decoration won by a Canadian in this war was won by a Sea Cadet," Mr. Ripley told his large audience. "The first decoration in the Merchant Marine was also the prize of a Sea Cadet. It costs $90 to train a Sea Cadet, but the Navy—which first looked askance at the movement and is now its firmest supporter—figures it saves $700 in the training of a recruit who has been a Sea Cadet."

Advantages that accrued to the young members of the Sea Cadets were further enlarged on by Mr. Ripley when he spoke of the summer camps. Last year, he said, 3,200 cadets attended camps in Ontario alone and it was expected the number would reach 4,500 this summer. Moreover, the Navy League, whose monies finance the Sea Cadets, was preparing to supply the camps with the finest equipment and to see the lads trained in boats ranging all the way from cutters to Diesel-powered ships. They would be available this year, Mr. Ripley added, six scholarships entitling their holders to three years of training free of expense at an officer's school.

The thanks of the club were expressed to the speaker by T. T. Rodger, and on behalf of the young guests, Cadet Jimmy Conlon spoke a few words in appreciation. Part of the program included a sing-song directed by Dr. Cliff McKee, and draws for three booklets of War Savings stamps of the Stop-Hitler Club were also made. The winners of these were Cadets Harry Russelle, Harry Botnik and Harry Webster.

Pte. S. McIntosh Back From Italy Wants To Forget

After several months of tough fighting in Italy, taking all the Germans could hand out, along with other rufged Canadian warriors, Pte. Stewart McIntosh who was wounded in December, has been invalided home and arrived Friday night.

PTE. STEWART McINTOSH

The bloody battle for survival has been deeply etched in this soldier's memory. He saw his comrades cut down by whizzing machine gun bullets, saw others killed by exploding shells, and he hopes now that he is home to discover peace, to forget the grisly scenes he has witnessed for so many months.

"We boys fighting in Italy certainly appreciate all that the folks back home are doing for us," he said this morning. "Make no mistake about that. You can have no conception of what your letters, parcels, and most of all your war contributions, mean to the men overseas.

Forget War.

"But now that I'm home I want to forget the terrible things I saw. I want to spend every available minute with my wife and kiddies. I was in two or three pretty grim dos over there, was wounded and my nerves shot, and now I'm back in a country where death is not a companion, twenty-four hours of the day."

Pte. McIntosh and his family live at 40 Lafayette avenue. He went overseas in 1941 and in a few months transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, with which unit he was fighting in the Mediterranean area. Before enlisting he worked at Stock's Bakery.

This soldier was wounded by the same shell which killed his friend, Pte. Victor Peters. The two were part of a gorup which had been sent out for a short rest period behind the lines to the mobile shower. While they were in a little Italian village, German artillery lobbed over a heavy shell which struck the shower.

$27,817 Credit With Hydro For 1943 Power

Peterborough's "13th bill" from the Hydro-Electric Commission for 1943 is a credit of $27,817.23 as reported at the meeting of the Utilities Commission Friday.

This credit is the difference between the total amount paid by the Utilities and the actual cost of the power delivered to Peterborough from the Hydro for the latter's fiscal year ending, October 31 last.

Payments on the basis of interim rates, according to the monthly peak of power consumed, totalled for the year $303,483.59; and the actual cost of that delivered power, as determined in the Hydro accounting, was $275,666.36.

The "13th bill" in this instance that the Hydro owes the Utilities Commission $27,817.23 on the basis of the 1943 consumption.

Sometimes Deficit

The thirteenth bill has sometimes been a deficit against the Utilities Commission, but last year the balance was on the credit side in the amount of $5,084.18.

A reduction in electrical rates was announced by the Utilities Commission a few days ago, and incidentally it should be understood that the Commission's statement applied only to consumers resident in the city.

It was also pointed out by G. S. Matthews, Commission chairman, Friday, that the Hydro's charge to the Commission has been cut from $26 to $25.50 a horsepower.

The reductions reported Wednesday were: 10 per cent. in domestic lighting (home consumers); 5 per cent. for commercial lighting, stores, etc., and 5 per cent. power in the quantities required by industries.

It was also mentioned in that statement to the public that domestic consumers will begin to receive the benefit of the reduction in the billing which begins May 1 and subsequently.

CITY EMERGENCY ICE SUPPLY
The Corporation stored about 2,500 tons of ice for this season to take care of a similar quantity of ice used last year that the Allin Ice Company announced they would not be cutting for the current season. There was a shortage of ice last season and had the quantity not been stored many homes, it was felt, would have suffered. The City does not intend to go into the retail distribution of ice but is wholesaling to those who will deliver it. At the present time there are two distributors of the City ice:
Roland Hill, 487 Chamberlain St. .... Phone 3711
M. Coughlin, 512 College St. .... Phone 8815
These men will deliver to the full extent of their facilities. If it is possible the City will wholesale to any others who will retail it. No matter what further distribution can be arranged it will take all the ice that can be produced and is stored to serve the homes of the city. Those requiring ice are advised to make contracts with whatever ice company they can as soon as possible so that they may be sure of ice supply.

346,000 Fewer People Work On Farms

OTTAWA, April 29 — (CP). — The number of men and women working on farms fell 346,000 between August 31, 1939, and December 1, 1943, said a statement tabled in the Commons yesterday by Labor Minister Mitchell.

Males engaged in agriculture in 1939 numbered 1,266,000, and in 1943 935,000. Farm women, between the ages of 14 and 64 years numbered 775,000 in 1939 and 760,000 in 1943.

The statement showed the total of Canadians in the armed forces or gainfully occupied August 31, 1939, totalled 3,740,000 out of a population of 8,315,000 of 14 years or over. On December 1, 1949, 5,057,000 were in the forces or gainfully occupied out of a total population of 8,820,000.

There were 10,000 men in the forces in 1939 and 769,000 men and women in 1943.

The total of men and women engaged in non-agricultural industry in 1939 was 2,464,000 and in 1943, 3,353,000.

On June 2, 1941, the number of unemployed was 261,000 and on December 1, 1943, 50,000, but the statement said the number shown in 1943 was almost entirely accounted for by persons temporarily out of work while moving from one job to another.

In a report on employment operations of employment and Selective Service officers, Mr. Mitchell said jobs available during 1943 numbered 2,091,916 and placements effected were 1,944,026. Of the placements, 1,239,000 were men and 704,126 women.

Typhoon Brings Death To Far East Captives

OTTAWA, April 29 — (CP) — Eight Canadian soldiers, believed to be members of the Hong Kong Garrison which surrendered to the Japanese Christmas Day, 1941, have been killed in a typhoon while prisoners of war, the Canadian (active) Army reported today in its 453rd casualty list of the war, containing 153 names.

Defence headquarters declined to comment on the prisoner casualties but the assumption they were part of the Hong Kong Garrison was drawn from the fact they were listed in the casualty list as members of a Quebec Regiment, a Manitoba Regiment and forces headquarters—Units which were at Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong Units were the Royal Rifles of Canada, the Winnipeg Grenadiers and Force Headquarters.

None were from the Peterborough district.

1793

What they achieved ...we must hold

WHEN ALEXANDER MACKENZIE pushed the borders of Canada to the Arctic and Pacific Oceans, he brought to a climax the work done by Champlain, de la Vérendrye and many others.

These intrepid explorers were inspired by that restless urge which drives men on to new discoveries and achievements. After them came other pioneers glad to endure hardships so long as they could secure for themselves and their children freedom to live as they wished and to advance their own interests through their own efforts.

That is the heritage they have handed down to us. That is what we are defending in this second world war.

Victory Bonds are a means by which each Canadian can share in the war effort of his own free will. That is why Canadians have given their whole-hearted support to each Victory Loan. That is why we will all support the Sixth Victory Loan to the limit of our ability.

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE PAST IS THE PROMISE OF THE FUTURE

Mrs. S. D. Carver President Of Grenfell Mission

At the annual meeting of the local Grenfell Mission held recently at the home of the president, Mrs. G. R. Langley, the following slate of officers was elected:

Honorary president, Mrs. W. R. Morris; president, Mrs. S. D. Carver; 1st vice-president, Mrs. D. Diplock; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. G. R. Langley; treasurer, Mrs. F. M. Somerville; secretary, Miss M. R. Rannie; conveners of handicraft, Miss B. Runnett, Miss L. Hall; convener of bale, Miss M. Ross; convener of sewing, Mrs. F. M. Somerville; conveners of Christmas cards, Mrs. D. V. Canning, Mrs. F. C. Anderson.

The society will hold its annual garden part on June 8 at the home of Mrs. G. R. Langley. Through the kindness of C. Hughes it has been possible to store the goods for the bale at his store, and in a short time the packing will begin. Many friends had responded to the call for money, used clothing and old silk stockings and the members expressed their appreciation.

The local society received a letter of thanks from Mrs. Laura Thompson, nurse in charge at the Grenfell Mission at Harrington Harbour, for the bale of clothing received annually from Peterborough.

In the letter she spoke of the shortage of staff because summer help was not available. She said that the bales were always most acceptable, and they were needed more than ever now, since clothing stores could not always fill their orders, and paid tribute to the mothers living near the mission. She explained that they were expert needlewomen and made over a great deal of the clothing sent to them. Mrs. Thompson also gave a special word of thanks for the children's clothing sent, since it was very hard to get. Although the fish hauls were not especially good, Mrs. Thompson explained that the price was much better, and that she did not anticipate any intense poverty among the people.

WPTB Conference Reviewed By Branch Group

An account of a recent conference of district chairmen of the consumer branch, Wartime Prices and Trades Board, was given by Mrs. C. W. Laing, president, at the regular meeting of the local Consumer Branch, Friday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Laing explained that Mrs. H. H. Graham, district chairman, had been unable to go, and that she had asked Mrs. Laing to represent her.

The speaker said that reports given by various chairmen during the morning session showed that their difficulties were similar to those being experienced by the local board. Miss J. Love, of the Public Relations Office told of a test display which had been set up in the Hamilton Public Library. It consisted of several exhibits demonstrating the working of price control, and the danger of inflation. A comparison between prices during the last war and at the present time, showed that with price control the Canadian dollar has a great deal more buying power than during the last war.

Mrs. Laing also discussed the problem of deterioration in quality in materials, and said that labelling should effectively curtail any lessening of quality. She also explained that there were two kinds of rayon, acitate and viscose, with the former being easily destroyed by heat. Since viscose rayon is used in making synthetic rubber, manufacturers began using the acitate rayons for either the warp or woof of their materials, thus causing the frequent spoiling during laundering.

Better Foot-wear

Speaking of rubber foot-wear, Mrs Laing explained that it had been announced that it would be of better quality in the future, since manufacturers were being allowed to use a mixture of synthetic and reclaimed rubber, instead of entirely reclaimed materials. She also read a letter from G. Holden, in reference to a question about the use of the "D" coupon for sugar, raised at the last meeting. The latter explained that a canning sugar coupon could be exchanged for a preserve coupon; that a preserve coupon could not be exchanged for a sugar coupon; and that a "D" coupon could be exchanged for one half pound of sugar.

Mrs. H H. Graham, district chairmon of the Consumer Branch, read a short survey of recent accomplishments of the Board. She said that the labelling of materials would prove of inestimable value and aid to Canadian women. The critical situation which resulted from an inadequate supply of underwear should be relieved, since a greater supply is now available. She also spoke briefly about the work of housing registries, and said that 6,560 persons had been placed during the month of February.

Another topic of interest brought out at this meeting was the "Mrs. Consumer" week, which is to be observed May 20 to 29. It is hoped that groups affiliated with the consumer branch will remember this week, and honor the work of the women of Canada. Mrs. Laing announced that special kits had been prepared, containing posters, short skits, displays, a list of moving pictures which might be shown during the week, and said that these groups were welcome to any or all parts of this kit. Arrangements for the material should be made through her.

The question was brought up by one of the members about the trouble caused the people in Smith township, who had to go to Lakefield to receive their transient labor coupons. This question was referred to Mrs. Laing, and she promised to look into the matter, and see what steps could be taken to remedy the situation.

Y.W.C.A. Club Doings

With the newness of Spring comes new things in the Club Department. A group of British War Brides were entertained last week by members of the Education Committee and Girls' Work Committee. Several have been in our City only a few weeks while others have had a year or two to make themselves at home. After a tour of the "Y" the group decided they would like to meet every Friday afternoon, some for recreation such as table tennis and swimming and others for a get-acquainted social time. Babies are welcome too and kindergarten facilities will keep them happy as well as their mothers.

The War Services Committee has been meeting with representatives of the Army, Navy and Airforce Auxiliaries to explore the possibilities of a Servicemen's Wives' Club. Perhaps there are lonely war brides, members of our community who find time heavy on their hands or who are tied with small children. A tea is being planned for May 12 when they will meet with the British War Brides for a get-together and exchange of mutual problems. Babies are welcome too and will be cared for with the same supervised kindergarten facilities.

The Friday Supper Club held its first meeting since Easter last Friday. Jean Ferguson presided. Shirley Prophet outlined the work of the Youth Commission and Agnes Weddell and Elinore Shirley were appointed delegates to the local committee. The Council report was given by Lenore Edwards. The Maytime Dance for May 19 was announced. The program was in charge of Agnes Weddell, convener. This week's meeting with cancelled because of the Collegiate Gym Demonstration but the regular meeting will be held next week.

The Saturday Juniors have not taken to the great outdoors yet but use up their surplus energy in dramatizing stories which are proving popular. So, come each Saturday children and show what you can do.

Club members will be attending the community program "Of Things to Come", being planned by the Education Committee under Miss Grace Sargent for Tuesday, May 2, in the Recreation Room, at 8 p.m. This is an attempt to bring together all the Citizens' Forum groups of the city for the purpose of listening together to the last broadcast "Action Now" which will be followed by an Open Forum discussion. The Canada Club will attend this meeting instead of their regular club meeting.

The Girls' Council Executive held a supper meeting on Tuesday and great plans are underway. All council members are urged to be present at the meeting on Wednesday, May 3rd, so that their voice may be heard and we may benefit from the "weighty" decisions.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

As the spring becomes farther advanced and the weather gets warmer, we rather turn from the heavier foods of the winter and think about a nice fresh salad once in a while. So I am going to give you a few recipes for some salads that are really different.

Peach Salad

Star Salad

4 oranges, 2 grapefruit, lettuce, raspberry jam, fruit salad dressing.

Arrange 5 sections of grapefruit in the shape of a star on crisp lettuce. Line each grapefruit section with a section of orange. Fill the centre with raspberry jam.

Fruit Salad Dressing

2 eggs beaten light, 2 tablespoons flour, 2-3 cup of sugar, juice of one lemon and one orange, ½ cup of cream whipped, 1 cup canned pineapple juice. Combine the eggs which have been beaten until light, the flour and sugar. Add the fruit juices and cook in a double boiler stirring constantly until thick. Cool and fold in whipped cream.

Raw Vegetable Salad

1 cup finely chopped green pepper, 1 cup grated raw carrot, 1 cup finely chopped cabbage, ¼ pound of American cheese (grated). Sour cream dressing.

Mix each chopped vegetable separately with enough dressing to bind. On a leaf of lettuce place a mound of carrots. Place a mound of cabbage on top of the carrots and top with a mound of green peppers, sprinkled with grated cheese. Top with dressing.

Sour Cream Dressing

1 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, speck of pepper, 1 tablespoon flour, ½ cup milk, 1½ teaspoons butter, 1 egg, 1-3 cup hot vinegar, ½ cup sour cream.

Combine the dry ingredients in the top of a double boiler. Beat the egg, add the milk, and stir into the dry ingredients gradually. Cook, stirring constantly until the mixture coats the spoon (do not let the water boil in the bottom of the double boiler). Add the hot vinegar and butter and remove from the heat. Cool and add the sour cream.

Cabbage, Apple and Raisin Salad

1 small cabbage, 3 red apples, ½ cup French dressing, 1 cup of seedless raisins.

Shred the cabbage very fine. Core the apples and dice without peeling. Drop them into the dressing at once to prevent discoloration. Combine with the cabbage and raisins. Toss with a fork until thoroughly mixed, drain and serve.

French Dressing

Rub a mixing bowl or salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic, held on the tines of a fork, Pour in salad oil, measuring same. Add 1-3 as much vinegar or lemon juice as oil. Add salt and pepper to taste and enough paprika to make the dressing pink. Add a dash of dry mustard or a few drops of Worchestershire sauce. You may wish to add a trace of sugar too. Beat with an egg beater until the oil and acid form a smooth mixture.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, April 30

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguries of expansive and extravagant impulses, and as long as these urges are restricted to charities, church and fraternal good will, all may be well. But in the realm of business or excessive over indulgences of a purely personal cast there may be real dangers and regrets with various complications. Sign all writings with an eye to fraud, duplicity and refrain from snap judgments and any sort of lustudied speculation.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a pleasant and prosperous year with opportunities for fair success, as the energies are quickened and the inclinations expansive and toward large ambitions. However there may be danger of over-doing in this latter direction, and also speculation, taking long chances and too swift grasp of alluring gambles may be unprofitable. Read documents with caution. There are romantic angles to prove compensatory.

A child born on this day may be good natured, expansive and have fine ambitions, but its tendency to speculate or gamble may be its undoing.

For Monday, May 1

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a particularly active, progressive and pleasant day, with much stirring in both business and personal interests. Although the accent seems to be on the romantic, sentimental, social or domestic vocations or avocations, yet there is a solidifying and stabilizing force making for endurance and security in whatever direction the objectives may lie.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the affairs may be happily placed upon a firm, enduring and secure basis, with accumulations and investments sound and sensible, with little risk. The emphasis however, is on domestic, social and affectional affairs and functions, with romance, good luck and long promise of happiness.

A child born on this day may have many abilities, social and domestic abilities and graces, and should enjoy a life of happiness and usefulness as well, with sound and deep-rooted thoughts and feelings.

Western Clock 100 Per Cent In War Effort

As the employees of Western Clock Company assumed their $55,200 quota of the Sixth Victory Loan, J. H. Vernor, general manager, thought of various phases of the job they have already done in the lofty plant over on Armour Hill.

The Vernor review is compressed into a statement of facts, letting impressive figures to the qualifying work of adjectives. It is another fine chapter of accomplishment by industrial Peterborough, and in its summation it reminds the staff that what they have done before they can do again.

Loan Headquarters supplied the Examiner with the following text of Mr. Vernor's statement:

"Did you read about the rockets which defend ships against dive bombers? You made hundreds of thousands of fuses for them right here.

Did you see the Piat gun pictures? You are making millions of fuses for them.

Have you seen pictures of depth charges blowing up? You made tens of thousands of fuses for them.

Did you see the naval guns firing? Over a million shots can be fired by the parts you made.

Artillery? You made tens of hundreds of thousands of firing doodas.

Also ten of thousands of telegraph keys for the Signal Corps, thousands of signal lamps—and millions of parts for others—ranging all the way from filter plates for airplane gas to keys for tank treads.

You may well be proud of this record on the home front, and of the quality of your work.

Westcloxers have already bought over $157,850 in Victory Bonds, and $87,164 in War Savings Certificates. That, too, is a fine record showing you want also to put your money right in the front line. You have never yet failed to reach your objective.

This time its $55,200.

We can do it—we want to do it. Pitch in. It's time to shorten the war."

"FEMININE TOUCH" AT O.T.C. — The "feminine touch" has been added to the Officers' Training Centre at Brockville, previously exclusively male, by a detachment of the Canadian Women's Army Corps who are releasing physically fit fighting men for more active duty overseas. Upper Left: Auburn-haired 19-year-old Pte. Helen Fluke, of Thomasburg, awakens as the alarm jangles at 6.15 a.m. to start her day as a motor transport driver with the Canadian Women's Army Corps. Upper Right: It's on parade for Helen and her associates after breakfast as the detachment is inspected before duty. Lower Left: Ken Jackson, of Brockville, gives the attractive young private her daily transport orders. Lower Right: Helen receives her after-duty pass from Cpl. Doris Lloyd, of Cape Breton, N.S., and is all set to visit friends in the hospitable city of Brockville.

IF YOUR CHILD IS THIN and NERVOUS

Try New, Improved Ovaltine

Children who are thin, nervous and under par, science has discovered, are often found to be eating foods which do not give them enough of the essential food elements everyone needs for health.

As a "protecting" food-drink, New, Improved Ovaltine adds to a child's meals the essential food elements most likely to be deficient in the diet.

Three servings of New, Improved Ovaltine furnish a child with a significant portion of his daily requirement of Vitamins A, B_1, and D, and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron—also quick food-energy elements and high quality proteins — all for building sturdy bodies.

So—if your child is thin, nervous, under par, or eats poorly, why not start giving New, Improved Ovaltine regularly? Get Ovaltine at your drug or food store.

SAVE NOW TO AVOID CHARITY
Cinderellas of War Plants Should Buy Bonds Instead of Mink Coats As Big Pay Wanes

The other day a middle-aged woman, wearing a sloppy housedress and bearing upon her lined face and work-knotted hands the signs of a hard struggle with life, walked into a swanky hat shop and purchased three beflowered and beribboned confections at $45 each. So pleased was she at her bargain that she returned the next day with her daughter and bought her three fancy hats at the same price.

This story, which I know to be absolutely true, can be duplicated in every luxury shop in the whole country, for the women who wogk in the war plants and who are getting fantastic wages have gone on an orgy of extravagant buying that makes the merchants think that the millennium has arrived.

Lady Welders Buy Luxuries

It is not the millionairesses now who are buying mink coats and ermine capes and evening gowns that run up into the hundreds of dollars. It is the lady welders and riveters who are throwing their money around and loading themselves down with the incongruous finery for which they have no possible use. And there is something pathetic, as well as grotesque and appalling in this spending spree that these women have gone on, because it represents so much wishful thinking, so many longings that they had never really hoped to have gratified.

They had never drawn their shabby coats around them without envydoing the women bedecked with furs They had never put on their dime store jewelry without thinking how marvelous it would be to flash real diamonds in the faces of the other girls. They had never donned their plain little hats without yearning after sweeping plumes and imported flowers. And so when the time of fat pay checks came they could not resist getting the things they had craved all of their lives.

I wish that there were some way of making these Cinderellas of the war plants realize that their hour of prosperity is nearly up. Soon the clock will strike twelve for them. The factory doors will clang shut behind them. There will be no more highly paid jobs. There will be no folding money in their expensive bags. And they will have to go back to the poverty from which they came.

War Workers Must Save for Future

Unless they have the prudence and the common sense to save most of the money they are making. UNLESS they buy Government Bonds or gilt-edged stocks or a modest home, instead of square-cut emeralds and sables. UNLESS they live moderately today in order that they will not have to live on charity tomorrow.

For it is folly for women to believe that they will always be big money earners. After the war there will not be so many large salaries, and what there are, the men will have. The only women who will not be down-and-out are those who have saved their money and have a bank account, instead of a few boxes of gewgaws in their closets.

So I beg the women war workers and all women who are earning big wages now, to invest their earnings in a stout umbrella against the rainy day that is sure to come, instead of buying lace parasols.

NAZI OIL SOURCES IN PERIL — Approach of D-Day finds Hitler desperately trying to rush oil supplies from Nazi occupied or dominated European areas while Allied bombers from Italian bases crack at transportation centres and supply stations; Russian forces smash closer to the rich Romanian fields to the south and the Polish and Czecho-Slovakian fields to the north. Using the most recent obtainable information, this map illustrates the European sources of oil for the German war machine. A mere glance will indicate why the Romanian situation brings gooseflesh to the Nazis whose air strength has been greatly crippled by the continuous blasts of Allied bombers. The demands of a "second front" defensive will be terrific and, whatever may be the Axis oil reserves, continuous looping off of fresh supplies are likely to be soon felt.

"I'VE DONE IT!"

Mr. Picobac burst into the kitchen where his wife was nursing her knitting.

"I've done it," cried he.

"Done what? Mercy sakes!"

"I've arranged to buy a thousand dollar Victory Bond as an investment for your old age."

"Where on earth do we get a thousand dollars?"

"At the bank," replied Mr. Picobac calmly. "It's a loan raised on the reputation of the name Picobac. They'll hold the bond—and it's backed by all the resources of the third richest country in the world."

"Well," sighed Mrs. Picobac; "if I thought it would bring Pete home any sooner . . ."

"It will," declared Mr. Picobac confidently. "Every little bit helps." He struck a match.

Presently through the peaceful Picobac kitchen the delicious fragrance of prime Canadian burley indicated that somebody had settled down for a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke."

New Regulations Protect YOUR COAL SUPPLY
. . . for next winter

If every household practises conservation, and if supplies are distributed fairly, enough coal will be available to ensure adequate warmth in every home next winter. To this end, a new order has been issued by the Coal Controller, affecting both consumers and dealers in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

The new order does not apply to users of coal for industrial purposes, ship bunkerage, hospitals, or poultry brooders; other orders affect such users. The order sets up three classes of fuels, "A", "B" and "C". Below you will see what each of these three classes represents, and how much of each you will be allowed to buy.

1. You, as a consumer, may buy for use in your premises during the season from April 1, 1944, to March 31, 1945, the same total quantity of coal or coke that you consumed in the same premises in the same period of the 1943-44 heating season.

2. If you burn Class "A" fuel, you must not buy more of it than four-fifths of the total coal you used last season. For the remaining one-fifth you may buy Class "C" fuel. If you use a blower, or any magazine type heater, or any other type of burner in which you cannot satisfactorily burn another class of fuel, you will be allowed to buy your full permitted requirement in Class "B" fuel, if available.

3. You must give your dealer the following information:
   (a) The quantity of coal (or coke) you used on your premises between April 1, 1943, and March 31, 1944.
   (b) A statement as to whether or not you have ordered coal or coke from another dealer.

4. If you purchase from more than one dealer, you must not accept in any period from all coal dealers a greater amount of coal or coke than you are entitled to receive under the scheduled rates of delivery shown under "What the Dealer Must Do."

What the Dealer must do:

1. The dealer is responsible for delivering supplies on a fair basis. He will receive most of his coal in monthly instalments. In terms of percentages of the total amount of fuel of all types his customer is allowed to buy, he will not be permitted to deliver at rates in excess of the following:

PERIOD	CLASS "A"	CLASS "B"
Apr. 1 - Sept. 30/44	40%	50%
Oct. 1 - Dec. 31/44	20%	25%
Jan. 1 - Mar. 31/45	20%	25%

The dealer may deliver Class "C" fuel at any time, but he must remember that the amount of this fuel, when added to the amount of Class "A" fuel, must not exceed his customer's permitted allotment for the season.

2. He must keep accurate records of all deliveries. These records will be subject to Government inspection.

3 CLASSES OF COAL

Class "A" fuel comprises U.S. anthracite larger than No. 1 buckwheat, Welsh anthracite larger than blower size, low volatile coal in screened sizes larger than pea, coke in sizes larger than pea, briquettes and petroleum coke in household sizes. The consumer of such fuels will be entitled to buy 80 per cent of his requirements in this class of fuel, if available. He may make up the balance of his requirements with Class "C" fuel.

Class "B" fuel comprises U.S. No. 1 buckwheat anthracite, U.S. chestnut anthracite (when used in the Maritime provinces only), Welsh anthracite in all blower sizes, and range size coke (when used in Quebec only). A consumer who depends on blower or magazine-type equipment is entitled to purchase 100 per cent of his permitted requirement in Class "B" fuels, if available.

Class "C" fuels comprise all other coals not in Classes "A" or "B", including U.S. Anthracite (red or white ash) No. 2 buckwheat (rice), No. 3 buckwheat (barley), No. 4 buckwheat and anthrafines and screenings; Welsh anthracite screenings only; coke in pea, buckwheat, blower and breeze sizes and reclaimed beehive coke of any size; and low volatile coal unscreened; and any screened sizes smaller than nut.

Consult your dealer as to the type of coal to use—and how best to use it. So that he may make full use of his delivery equipment, co-operate with him by accepting your coal when he is able to deliver it.

Your efforts to conserve coal, and your co-operation with your dealer, will assure you and every other householder, sufficient coal for adequate warmth next winter.

IN MEMORIAM

JAMES — In loving memory of a dear wife and Mother, Mrs. John James, who departed this life April 29, 1931.

Thirteen years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon her grave,
May wither and decay
But the love for her who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
There is one comfort
That lives in our hearts
When we meet again
We shall never more part.
—Lovingly remembered by her Husband, daughter, Mrs. W. Wilson, Sons and Family.

DAVEY—In loving memory of Mr. Ed. Davey who passed away May 3, 1943.

Father as I look around the world
And cannot find you there,
I look back upon our homestead
Where you adjusted all trouble and care.
Then as I stop to ponder
Over all the good you've done
My thoughts of you are in Heaven now
And the crown that you have won.
—Ever remembered by his daughter, Helen

Leafs are having a lot of trouble getting in games....Stories of big league ball games this season indicate that the sacrifice is coming back into the picture....In other words the clubs, minus the power-houses are satisfied to play for a run at a time....Henry Oana of Buffalo promises to be one of the ace pitchers of the International League this season....Bert Gardiner, goaler of the Boston Bruins was slated to join the United States army today....Several members of the Memorial Cup winning Oshawa Generals have already reported to the Navy for training and others will follow soon....Philadelphia A's won the longest game of the season yesterday when they beat the Boston Red Sox 7 to 5 in 16 innings....Red Sox tied the score at 5-5 by pushing over a run in the ninth and the teams went seven more innings before Woody Wheaton's single drove in two Philadelphia runs to take the decision.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

BRITISH HERO RECEIVES DECORATION — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied invasion commander, is pictured as he awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, second highest U.S. award, to CSM. Reginald Allen, British Army. Allen directed his men against an enemy machine-gun installation which was captured and 30 Germans killed. Later, when Allen found himself alone, he killed several of the enemy and stopped their advance.

Invasion Troops Expect People At Home To Furnish Plasma

When the invasion day arrives, huge landing barges will dash up to enemy beaches disgorging their loads of soldiers, fit and ready for anything the enemy has in store. Canadians spearheading this attack will expect that those on the civilian front to be back them up by blood donations, so that there will be enough plasma to give the wounded a second chance.

KIND TO THE DOG — "We're sure," Joyce said, "that any dog lover will agree with us that kindness should be extended to animals every week of the year — that we should concentrate on this kindness every week, not just during one out of the 52." Shown with Joyce is her own dog, Princess Janie.

Locate Evaders

OTTAWA, April 29 — (CP) — About 22,000 men have been located by Bureaus employed by the government to trace draft evaders, Labor Minister Mitchell announced yesterday in the Commons. The Bureaus are paid $2.50 for locating a man, and if they fail to trace him, the case is turned over to the R. C. M. P.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ONLY THE NAME FANCY

A RELATIVELY simple play, and one which is usually clearly marked as necessary, bears the fanciest name of all the devices a declarer uses. It is the "Grand Coup." Actually, it is nothing more or less than ruffing an otherwise good card, so that later on the lead can be in the opposite hand to go through guarded trumps in the hand of a particular defender. It does not come up frequently, however.

North: ♠ J; ♥ J 8 7; ♦ A K 6; ♣ K Q J 10 8 4

West: ♠ A K 10 9 8 6 4; ♥ 6; ♦ Q 10 7 4; ♣ 9

East: ♠ 3 2; ♥ Q 9 3 2; ♦ J 9 3 2; ♣ A 6 2

South: ♠ Q 7 5; ♥ A K 10 5 4; ♦ 8 5; ♣ 7 5 3

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	1 ♠
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	2 ♠
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

Order of the first three tricks here was the spade K, the club A and a club ruff, which put the weight on South, obliging him to win the rest of the tricks after West returned the spade A. Dummy's heart 7 ruffed that, and the 8 to the A disclosed East's bunched trumps. South did not have two trumps left in the dummy to go through East, so required a grand coup.

He led to the clubs, brought through another club on which East put a diamond and South the spade Q, then led the dummy's heart J. The Q covered and the K won. This left East with the heart 9-3 and South with the 10-5-4. He had to get rid of one of those, or else wind up leading hearts to East for the setting trick. So he reached dummy with the diamond K, led another club and, when East discarded a diamond, ruffed it with the heart 4. Now he went to dummy with the diamond A and led a club to the twelfth trick.

East had nothing but the heart 9-3, and had to play before South's 10-5, so South got the last two tricks. The "Grand Coup" consisted of ruffing the good club on the tenth trick instead of discarding a diamond.

Rosy Picture Unjustified Denton Massey States

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 29.—(CP).—The House of Commons yesterday heard itself called "unrealistic," responsible for a "fatuous performance" and apparently lacking in full appreciation that finest of Canadian manhood is daily dying that those at home may live in peace.

Having heard, the House applauded vigorously.

Group Capt. Denton Massey (PC-Toronto Greenwood) took the House floor after members had listened to a detailed examination of the manpower situation by Labor Minister Mitchell, speaking on his department's estimates under the War Appropriation Bill.

Group Capt. Massey, honorary leader of the York Bible class in Toronto and in the R.C.A.F. since the beginning of the war, said he was home in Canada on temporary duty and would return almost immediately to his duties overseas.

After a year overseas, and the strict English rationing and blackouts, he looked on Canada at the moment not so much motivated by a full-out war effort but as a nation "enjoying the greatest prosperity in its history."

There was "unreality" about the House of Commons. Visitors might listen to a debate and hardly realize there was a war on. There appeared to be "almost a carnival spirit" in the country.

On Tuesday the House had debated suggested amendments to its rules, a debate far removed from the war, and "it was a shocking experience, particularly at the beginning of the Sixth Victory Loan, to have such a fatuous performance."

Victory Far Off

Canadian conversations made it appear victory was at hand, and that the Allies need only step ashore in Europe and walk to Berlin through a Germany flattened by the Air Force. But the landing on Europe would demand a "ghastly price," and Canada "is all keyed up for a sickening shock" when the casualties begin to come in.

Group Capt. Massey said that Canadian fighting men overseas had merited and won admiration for their deeds. The government would be remiss in its duty if it did not plan for the days of demobilization.

The men did not ask to be milk-fed when they came back, but they did want an "even break" to rehabilitate themselves, with something more done for them while actually in the service in addition to their pay.

In its planning, the House must never for a moment relax from its main duty of seeking to win the war. It must discourage "private bickerings and quibblings" and set a standard for Canada so that by its actions it might provide the leadership Canada so sorely needed.

Group. Capt. Massey said that men overseas disliked thought that a man seeking a pension had the responsibility of proving his case, but Pensions Minister Mackenzie said later that the responsibility at a first hearing was definitely on the pensions commission to show why an award of pension should not be made.

On second hearing, the commission had to set out reasons why a pension was not granted.

At the evening session, Hon. Grote Stirling (P.C.-Yale) said that he believed the National Resources Mobilization Act Law was not being properly enforced against Doukhobors in British Columbia.

Not Registered

Mr. Mitchell said that "not a great many" of the Doukhobors had registered, and Justice Minister St. Laurent said the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were not at present in a position to detail a force of men to check all Doukhobors' registration cards.

Many Doukhobors now were engaged in work similar to that they would have to do if they were called to perform alternative service in lieu of military duty.

J. R. MacNicol (P.C.—Toronto Davenport) said Labor should have certainty of employment, healthy working conditions, adequate compensation, compensation for unemployment, sick benefits, a large share in plant management, pleasant employer-employee co-operation and a share of excess profits. There should be no lockouts.

Clarence Gillis (C.C.F.—Cape Breton South) said Labor representation was needed on government policy-making boards. Representatives of industry and business "behind the scenes are taking good care of their own interests."

T. L. Church (P. C.—Toronto Broadview) said returned men should not have to travel all over cities looking for employment, and work should be provided for them.

ficial statement on the military situation in Burma and specific answers to six questions.

"The agency adds: "Lack of an authoritative statement on the Assam situation is creating in America uneasiness and a feeling that the true picture is being withheld."

"There is no justification for uneasiness and, as far as military security permits, here are the answers to the questions.

"1. Has the Allied strategic schedule been seriously dislocated by the Japanese Manipur advance?

"Answer. The Allied strategic schedule has not been dislocated by the Japanese offensive. The question however raises many points which are dealt with more fully in a general statement which follows these answers.

Road Work Continues

"2. Has completion of the China road been delayed?"

"Answer. No. The Japanese thrust to Imphal caused no delay whatever in the progress of the Ledo Road. Up to date, in fact, the reverse has taken place. Had the Japanese concentrated against the Chinese army on the Ledo front instead of the British 4th Corps on the Imphal front the Chinese advance toward Mytikyina (major Japanese base in North Burma) could not have progressed as far as it has done.

"3 Is the threat greater to the Allies than the threat to the Japanese of the Allied drive toward Myitkyina?

"Answer. To compare the threat exerted by the Japanese in their offensive with the Allies' threat against Myitkyina would be misleading. It is impossible to compare the relative degree of a threat based on operational strategy with one based on long-range strategy.

"4. Will this force postponement of large scale land operations beyond next Autumn?

"Answer: Obviously for security reasons a direct reply cannot be given to this question.

"5. About the Allied forces now behind the Japanese lines—will their supply be hampered?

"Answer. No. The airfields from which the aircraft fly to supply the Allied forces now behind the Japanese lines are firmly in our hands and we have air superiority.

"6. Supposing the Assam lines of communication were cut — would that compel withdrawal of these troops?

"Answer. No."

New Bank Bill Evokes Keen Interest

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, April 29.—(CP).—Finance Minister Ilsley announced he intends to bring the new bank bill into the Commons on Monday. This will be one of the most important pieces of legislation introduced this session.

The bill will have 165 sections in addition to schedules and when it becomes law it will be the framework under which commercial banks in Canada will operate.

The present Bank Act becomes non-effective June 30, and if the new Act is not passed by that time the charters of all banks would be extended to July 1. It is the practice to have a new Act every 10 years.

Most speculation as to the contents of the bill centre around what changes the government will propose to Section 88 of the present Act. This section fixes the basis for loans by chartered banks to their customers. It was designed to protect banks from losses by limiting the type of loans and the type of security a borrower must provide before a loan is granted. The object of the government restrictions is to keep loans in a liquid position so that bank depositors are protected.

Under the present Act, the most a bank may charge as interest on a loan is seven per cent, but banking sources here say this maximum is seldom charged. Most banks charge five or six per cent. It may be that the government will decide to reduce the maximum rate.

Don't beg 'em, Mr. Ilsley...

Thoughts of a Canuck in Muddy Cassino on the Sixth Victory Loan

WELL, the radio said there's going to be another War Bond Drive on back home in Canada. They're asking the folks to buy more bonds. That's fine.

You won't get mad, will you, if I give out with a buck private's gripe?

Honest, I can't get the whole business.

My pal got kissed by a bouncing Betty—that's a land mine—and he's supposed to clap hands because a guy back home won a kiss from a pin-up girl for putting some money into War Bonds.

That fellow gets a dividend of three bucks for every century note he invests now. I get forty a month . . . and no interest!

Yeah, I got a kiss, too. From the wife. At the station when I pulled out. Had to kiss the kid at home. Marge figured he was too young to take along.

So look, pal—if a lot of razzle-dazzle, hoopla and drum-beatin' are needed to sell the finest investment in the world—a Victory Bond—then try and soft pedal it to the boys out here.

It doesn't set so good hearing that you got to hit guys over the head to get 'em in the ten per cent payroll plan . . . when across a ridge a Heinie "88" is trying to take 100 per cent of your life!

Not when you know we Joes slap a good hunk of our forty a month into bonds . . . when 95% of the CWACS step up to the bond wagon every month.

'Course, some of the hotheads in my outfit think maybe if a piece of the war (just a little piece, mind you) was put on for a couple of days at home, some people would get the real idea about buying bonds.

If they'd lay in a muddy hole for 72 hours, eating, drinking and sleeping and everything — that's what I said, brother, everything; if they ate dirt waiting for the Nazi to move first . . . maybe they wouldn't be slow in digging down deep for those extra bonds.

If they walked through a field hospital right after a bomb hit it, if they saw what many guys out here have seen, they'd run like hell for those bonds.

If they could get a peep at their own sons, for whom a two-inch thick Porterhouse had to be broiled just so, eating K rations for seven straight days—they wouldn't need Bing Crosby singing "Any Bonds Today?" to lay that cash on the line.

Well, maybe it isn't the people's fault. Maybe this begging and ballyhoo has been overdone. It's sort of given folks the idea they're the ones who are doing the favor!

Don't they know it's just as much their job to buy for Victory as it is for some of us to die for it?

So how about laying off with the ballyhoo? How about just saying that this is IT! . . . that we're going to crack Adolf and Tojo this year . . . and that the more dough we get up now, the more Canadian boys will be standing up when the shooting is over!

Don't beg 'em, Mr. Ilsley!

Don't put patriotism on the auction block!

All-American Tank Brigade Hurled Against Japs In Battle For North Burma

Japanese Suffer 1,500 Casualties In 2 Weeks Of Fighting Near British-Held Kohima Village

KANDY, Ceylon, May 1—(AP). — The first all-American tank unit to see action on the Asiatic continent has been flung into the fighting in Northern Burma, where it has attacked strong enemy positions north and west of Inkangahhawng, 44 miles northwest of Mogaung, it was announced today.

News that the American unit, employing medium tanks, had gone into action came on the second anniversary of the beginning of Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's retreat from Burma.

Stilwell's forces now are threatening not only the enemy base at Mogaung but also the companion stronghold of Myitkyina, some 40 miles to the east. Advices from the front yesterday said his troops east of the Mogaung Valley were only 45 road miles due north of Myitkyina.

From the battlefront in Northern India, meanwhile, came reports that the Japanese are massing for an all-out assault on Imphal, main Allied base on the Manipur plain.

Sixty miles north of Imphal, in the Kohima area, Allied troops were reported making further progress to complete the reduction of enemy points of resistance in the vicinity of the village.

Announcement that medium tanks are spearheading Stilwell's drive down the Mogaung Valley, which his forces have half recaptured, increased hope that Stilwell could reach Mogaung before the monsoon rains begin in about two weeks. His Chinese spearheads are reported at Manpin, 32 miles northwest of Mogaung.

A communique disclosed that Warazup, five miles above Inkangahtawny, on the valley's only road good for trucks, had been in Allied hands 10 days.

Having suffered 1,500 casualties around Kohima alone in the fortnight ending April 27, and suffering from deteriorating supplies, the Japanese must either attack or withdraw, said an Allied review of operations. The review indicated the invasion has been too loudly ballyhooed to be readily abandoned.

Another Allied announcement reported a British force driving down from the north had cut the Japanese northern exit from Kohima and wiped out a Japanese column bound south with food for the hard-pressed Japanese garrison at Kohima.

Kohima Situation Obscure

The situation in and around Kohima was obscure. The Japanese claimed on April 6 they had captured the town 60 miles north of Imphal, but this was not confirmed by the Allies.

The British attackers around Kohima split the Japanese forces guarding the enemy's right flank and pushed within 1½ miles of the Village of Kohima. This village, the strongest Japanese bastion in the area, is about a mile west of the main town of Kohima. Tanks supported the British troops.

In the Imphal area the Allies reported capture of a Japanese position overlooking the Bishenpur trail and holding of it against two enemy counter-attacks.

"Japanese manpower is being steadily reduced," said an Allied review of operations for the week ending April 28. "His supply situation, as stocks looted from neighboring villages are consumed, may be expected to worsen steadily. Unless in the near future he is able to stage some form of operation which will improve the situation, he eventually will be forced to make a different position.

Allied Bombers Edge Closer To Philippines

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, May 1—(AP) — Edging persistently westward, Allied heavy bombers based on newly-captured New Guinea airdromes have begun full-scale assaults on Japanese bases to the northwest, hitting one target only 700 miles from the Philippines.

A headquarters communique today told of a destructive raid on the Schouten Islands, a long-range assault on Sorong at the Western tip of New Guinea, and air and sea hammering of the Wakde Island area, closest enemy stronghold northwest of Hollandia.

Striking to the east also, airmen hurled 85 tons of bombs on Wewak, the enemy's largest remaining air and supply base in northeast New Guinea, sprayed 26 tons of bombs on Hansa Bay to the southeast, and hit crippled Rabaul on New Britain Island with 30 tons.

The heaviest of these Saturday's assaults was the bombing of two airstrips on Biak Island of the Schouten Group at the wide mouth of Geelvink Bay, some 250 statute miles northwest of Hollandia, whose Paour airfields are in Allied hands after the big April 22 invasion.

This mid-day assault on an air and supply base only 120 miles from the enemy's stronghold of Manokwari sent 77 tons of demolition and fragmentary bombs into fuel dumps and parked aircraft at Mokmer and Sorido airstrips.

Dutch-flown Mitchell bombers escorted by Australian planes bombed Dili on Portuguese Timor immediately northwest of Darwin, Australia.

Weather Decides Invasion Date

LONDON, May 1.—(AP).—At the beginning of the month of May, statistically most favorable for invasion from a weather standpoint, only one thing seemed certain about the forthcoming great venture — the approximate date was decided long ago and the time-table worked out in minutes, even seconds.

Records covering a number of years show the weather in the English channel ordinarily gets better each month from January through May.

The time for the lunge against the continent—which Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said Saturday he knew, but wasn't telling—presumably was agreed on by Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin at Teheran.

GERMANS EVACUATE LUBLIN

CPO. KEN WILLIAMS

GOES DOWN FIGHTING—Two Peterborough boys, Chief Petty Officer Kenneth Williams and AB. Anthony Bianco, were serving aboard H.M.C.S. Athabaskan, as she battled German destroyers on Saturday. In spite of a gallant fight, she was torpedoed, and went down off the coast of France with every gun blazing. This 1,900-ton vessel is one of Canada's fatest Tribal destroyers. Her captain, Lt.-Cmdr. J. H. Stubbs, D.S.O., who is now reported missing, visited Peterborough about two years ago.

Athabaskan Lost In Night Battle 131 Saved Out Of 200 In Crew

By FRANK LOWE—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 1—(CP).—Flaming, pre-invasion English Channel naval warfare has claimed H.M.C.S. Athabaskan, a new 1,900-ton destroyer of the Tribal class, but her loss early Saturday was quickly avenged by her sister ship, the Haida. The two Canadian destroyers, which only last Wednesday figured in destruction of a German destroyer at the western end of the Channel, were on patrol when they sighted two German destroyers of the Elbing class and the Haida drove one ashore in flames after the Athabaskan sank.

Meanwhile the story of the last minutes of the gallant Athabaskan was made public today. It was written by Royal Canadian Navy public relations officer, Lt.-Cmdr. William Sclater, who was aboard the Haida and close by when the Athabaskan, hit fore and aft by enemy shellfire, went down quickly after being split in two by an enemy torpedo.

The Athabaskan spent her last minutes firing at the enemy even after she had been hit and slowed down. The Haida rushed in, firing at the two German destroyers of the light, fast Elbing class. She drove one ashore in flames.

Then Cmdr. H. G. de Wolfe, R.C.N., daringly eased the Haida among the survivors of the Atha-

2 Peterborough Men

The fate of two Peterborough boys, AB. Anthony Bianco and Chief Petty Officer Kenneth Williams, who were part of the gallant 260 serving aboard H.M.C.S. Athabaskan, remains unknown today.

Chief Petty Officer Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Williams, 263 Engleburn avenue, was formerly employed at J. K. Hughes. AB. Anthony Bianco is the son of Nicholas Bianco, Park Hill Road. Formerly employed at Genelco, he enlisted three years ago, and joined the crew of the Athabaskan last fall. They are believed to be the only two Peterborough boys in the crew.

Two other brothers of CPO Williams are serving with the Army overseas. Sgt. R. Williams, who went overseas with the First Division at the beginning of the war, is still stationed in England. A second brother, Cpl. Hector Williams, who enlisted the same day, and went overseas the same time, is fighting in Italy with the Signal Corps.

Houses Scarce In Many Cities

By The Canadian Press

To-day is moving day for thousands of persons in towns and cities across the Dominion—and many of them are likely to wind up in emergency shelter to-night.

The situation resulting from expiry of leases and legal notices to vacate on behalf of new home-purchasers is particularly acute in Montreal and Toronto, but it also is felt in many other communities.

A survey by The Canadian Press last night showed that in Montreal roughly 1,000 out of 10,000 moving families have no new premises and in Toronto somewhat more than 1,000 have no place to go. About 30 or 35 families in Quebec are in the same boat along with 35 or so in Brantford, 150 in Winnipeg, 50 in Edmonton and 150 in Vancouver.

Not all of these families will actually be evicted and for most of those that are evicted emergency quarters will be available in cases where they cannot find shelter with friends or relatives.

In Toronto, Controller Robert H. Saunders announced last night that in case citizens find themselves "on the street" without hope of securing other accommodation, the city has made arrangements to store 250 sets of furniture in warehouses and house families in hotels. He stated, however, that tenants whose notice expires to-morrow cannot be evicted until the landlord obtains

Hulao Pass Falls To Jap Army

CHUNGKING, May 1.—(AP). — Chinese field reports admitted today the fall of historic Hulao Pass, ancient battleground guarding the way to Loyang in Honan Province. An eight-day battle preceded loss of the pass.

The invaders were reported to have begun fortification of the pass, rushing preparations for a possible drive on Loyang which experienced a heavy Japanese air attack.

Heavy fighting is continuing around Mihsien, southwest of Chenghsien with the Chinese asserting they have walled off the invaders on three sides and inflicted heavy casualties.

The Japanese continued an advance down the trackless Peiping-Hankow railway and were threatening the important town of Hsuchang, 50 miles south of Chenghsien.

The Chinese also said Japanese troops had launched a new drive from Northern Anhwei province in support of efforts to clear the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

Reds Preparing Giant Offensive

LONDON, May 1 — (CP) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia suggested today that the lull on the Russian Front, attributed to weather and Red Army regroupings, would end soon and that a new offensive would burst on the Germans "with the force of a hurricane."

The Germans are now "trying to guess where the next blow will fall," the newspaper declared as a Soviet communique reported that the land front lull had entered its second week without any important changes.

The bulletin said local Nazi attacks were thrown back southeast of Stanislawow in the Carpathian foothills and north of Iasi on the Romanian front. It added that Soviet Naval units in the Black Sea sank two of three German transports attempting to leave beseiged Sevastopol.

The Soviet communique said Soviet bombers touched off big fires and explosions in an attack on the Idritsa Rail junction near the Latvian border and a nearby airdrome Saturday night.

1,500 Planes Cascade Loads On Railways, Yards Across France And Belgium

Pre-Invasion Air Offensive In 17th Day R.A.F. Takes Over During Night In Record Breaking Blows On Europe

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 1—(AP).—Fifteen hundred or more Allied planes struck at Nazi installations and rail lines in France and Belgium today in the 17th day of the pre-invasion air offensive, spearheaded by a heavy bomber assault upon secret targets in northern France. Up to 500 heavy bombers and as many escorting fighters delivered the main blow without losing a single plane, and then American mediums followed up with raids on railyards in both France and Belgium feeding the German Atlantic wall defences.

Separate fleets of R.A.F. mediums bombed railway objectives in France, and Mustangs and Thunderbolts hit the yards at Namur and Haine St. Pierre in Belgium.

The daylight attacks followed an R.A.F. heavy bomber night raid exploding an ammunition dump at Maintenon, 37 miles southwest of Paris, and attacks on two more rail points in France.

The main R.C.A.F. participation in the Sunday night raids was in the attack on Somain, which cost one of the Canadian Halifaxes sent against the town.

Canadians also were among R.A.F. Lancaster crews which hit Maintenon where, the Air Ministry said, explosions were so great that the bombers were tossed violently about. Long after the operation was completed explosions still were occurring and crews saw flames from them when half-way across the Channel. The bombing was carried out in bright moonlight.

American pilots found the weather none too good and some formations brought their bombs home rather than drop them uncertainly and endanger French civilians. Other groups found holes in the overcast and reported satisfactory bombing.

Somain also was hit yesterday by American planes during dawn-to-dusk assaults on a variety of targets vital to the Germans' anti-invasion preparations, including at least eight railyards in northern and central France.

The night blows brought to 60 the number of attacks made by day and night throughout March and April by British and American raiders against at least 39 different rail junctions, most of them in France.

The campaign to knock out rail lines carrying anti-invasion supplies to the west began March 2 with a daylight attack on Amiens by American Marauders.

The American planes began streaming across the southeast English coast soon after dawn and the Channel skies were filled throughout the forenoon. Both heavy and medium bombers were in the forma-

Ralston Warns Inflation Worst Enemy

OTTAWA, May 1.—(CP).— Canvassers for Canada's Sixth Victory Loan to-day began their rounds to start the second week of the three-week campaign for $1,200,000,000 with word from Loan Headquarters that purchases in the first week of the drive amounted to $419,332,550, a little more than one-third of the objective.

In a Victory Loan address at Renfrew, Ont., yesterday Defence Minister Ralston asked Canadians to save and to invest their earnings weekly and monthly in "the best securities on earth, bonds of the Dominion of Canada." He spoke before an audience of more than 2,000 in Renfrew armories.

Col. Ralston said inflation was the "worst enemy" which the people of Canada on the home front must fight.

Of the total subscribed to the Sixth Victory Loan in the first week of the drive individuals have invested $165,289,850 while business organizations and other large buyers have so far purchased $254,042,700 in bonds.

The National War Finance committee said sales for Saturday were down as compared with the sixth day of last autumn's Fifth Victory Loan, when sales of $82,000,000 were recorded. Subscriptions for Saturday totalled $70,933,700.

Loan headquarters said that on a percentage basis just a little less than 35 per cent. of the objective has been attained, but individual Canadians have so far subscribed only 27.3 per cent. of the total they raised in the Fifth Victory Loan, with 33⅓ of the canvassing time elapsed.

Purchasers of Sixth Victory Loan Bonds so far number 669,402, against 533,575 at the same period in the Fifth Victory Loan.

Huge Factories Pile Of Rubble

ZURICH, May 1.—(CP-Reuters)—Huge factories in Friedrichshafen formerily visible from the Swiss side of Lake Constance have quite disappeared from the scene after fires set in recent Allied air raids, the Basle newspapers Nachrichten and National Zeitung reported to-day.

Other factories are still smoking after Thursday night's R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. attack. The main works in Friedrichshafen are reduced to rubble heaps, while the single Zeppelin hall still standing is badly damaged.

Fatal casualties were said to be extremely high, though no official figures are available. Several ambulance trains have been observed taking wounded from Friedrichshafen.

Catholics Skeptical On Russian Visit

WASHINGTON, May 1 — (AP). —Rt. Rev. Michael J. Ready, general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said on Sunday the visit of an American priest to Russia is "a political burlesque, staged and directed by capable Soviet agents."

He was referring to the visit of Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski of Springfield, Mass., who went to Russia as a private citizen and at the invitation of the Soviet Government. He conferred with Premier Stalin on Friday in Moscow.

Mrgs. Ready said Father Orlemanski's trip "has no religious significance."

Greatest Allied Air Raids Yet To Come

Lull On Russian Front Due To Adverse Weather And Regrouping

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

One of the most significant developments of a week-end of terrific Allied bombing of Hitlerdom was the re-appearance of German fighter planes in force to defend Berlin against another devastating attack by American heavy bombers.

For a long time the Luftwaffe's fighter defence has been comparatively weak, giving rise to the belief among observers that the Nazis were conserving their waning strength against the day of invasion. We now seem to have confirmation of this.

One of our main objectives in the round-the-clock bombing of the continent has been to render Hitler's air force impotent, and certainly it has suffered terrible wounds. Still, it's clear that the Luftwaffe isn't yet knocked out.

Just what Hitler has been able to save up for D-day is speculation. The point is, however, that he may have sufficient reserve so that we shall see some of the greatest air battles yet fought when the show-down comes.

Draws On Reserve.

The fact that the Fuehrer is beginning to draw on his precious reserve is recognition that the invasion is imminent. He can't afford to depend entirely on anti-aircraft guns to defend his vital communications which now are being ripped to shreds.

One of Hitler's tough problems is to guess when the full fury of the storm will break, so as to make most of his defences in all categories. Probably the only thing he is sure of is that it can come at any time and that he has got to stand at alert from now on.

When bombers and fighters flew across the English Channel this morning, they were starting the 17th straight day of the intensified Allied attack. In the month which has just closed the Anglo-American forces have unleashed 100,000 tons of bombs on Hitlerian territory.

Despite this frightful weight of bombing, it surely hasn't reached its full intensity. I believe we yet are to see a display of Allied aerial striking power which will stagger the world.

While the western Allies are thus busy with their spade-work. Performing the welcome task of digging Hitler's grave, Marshal Stalin signals from Moscow an indication that the Red armies will put the Nazi gangster between two mighty mill-stones.

"There can be no doubt," says Stalin, "that only a combined blow such as this will be able finally to crush Hitlerite Germany."

The recent lull in some sectors of the Russian front is explained by the Moscow newspaper Isvestia as due to the weather and to regrouping of the Red forces.

Hundreds Reach Canada

Large Contingent Includes Wounded

By The Canadian Press

Hundred of Canadian fighting men have returned to the Dominion in a movement that included a large contingent of R.A.F. personnel who will train in Canada, as well as Canadian fire-fighters back from duty in Britain and a group of British girls who married Canadian soldiers overseas.

Seamen of Britain's Merchant Navy, who came over to man new ships, a small party of members of the Norwegian Air Force — all of whom escaped from their Nazi occupied homeland — and fliers from Australia and New Zealand also were included in the movement.

Bulk of the Canadians consisted of army and R.C.A.F. men. Some of the fliers had been wounded in the mounting aerial battle over Europe; others had completed their operational tours of duty and were returning home to act as instructors.

Most of the army contingent had been sent home because of lowered category, ill-health or age regulations, but there was a number of Sicily and Italy veterans among them, some wounded.

Says Censor Made Mistake

Federal Court Probes Charges

SYDNEY, May 1 — (CP) — Australia's chief censor, E. G. Bonney, told a federal court today he is convinced a censor's deletion from a Sydney newspaper, of criticism of Information Minister Arthur Calwell was a result of misunderstanding.

Testifying at a hearing on government charges that the Sydney Daily Telegraph violated cersorship regulations, Bonney identified the particular deletion as "Calwell had abused his ministerial privilege" and added that he had never had instructions from cabinet ministers on censorship matters.

He testified, however, that in regard to a story concerning the wheat market, the cabinet through Mr. Calwell had asked him to withhold political comment because the government desired to prevent unjust and improper speculation.

Mr. Bonny said he had not kept records of conversations with cabinet members regarding censorship. When the Defence Counsel said such records would be a valuable check on whether ministers had influenced censors, Mr. Bonny agreed.

Sicilian Warrior Warns Citizens Must Back Soldiers With Bonds

COBOURG, May 1—(ENS)—Citizens of Cobourg and out-of-town were told in no uncertain terms their duty in regard to the present Victory Loan at a rally Sunday afternoon in Victoria Park. Headed by the band of A-2 R.C.A.M.C., Camp Borden, a parade of local military units, Legion, sea cadets and air cadets paraded through the town to Victoria Park and drew up in front of the shell bandstand. The weather was mild and a very large crowd turned out where they heard impressive addresses by Rev. C. E. Silcox, member of the executive of the League of Nations Society of Canada, and Major G. A. Welsh, D.S.O., back from the Mediterranean. Mayor Jack Burnet was chairman.

Neither of the speakers minced words. Rev. Silcox told his listeners that he hoped that anyone who would hoard money when the Victory Loan ended it, would lose it all. Major Welsh declared bluntly that anyone who thought the war would be over in 1944 and that the Germans had lost morale, were crazy.

One of the best features of the rally was the firing of two 4.5 howitzers by members of the 14-22nd Battery. The detonations of the guns blasting the air, was an effective reminder that a war was going on. During the program a Lancaster plane from Trenton, on a test flight, roared low over the trees.

Lucky People

"We who live in the Dominion of Canada and the western hemisphere are in a position for which we should be thankful, untouched as we are directly by the war. No bombs are falling on us and we should seize this opportunity of freedom from direct war, to put everything we have into Victory Bonds," declared Rev. Silcox in his opening remarks.

Old cities in Europe, treasures of art and history, lay in ruins. Africa also had known the horrors of war as was also the case in the romantic South Sea islands, Asia; the whole world except the western hemisphere, had directly experienced the war, the speaker said. Here at home in comparative safety lay the opportunity to provide the means to wage war and to provide for the post-war future. On this continent, because there had been time to send men and materials overseas, there was peace and the war was still across the oceans.

Pay and Fight

"War costs a great deal of money and you can't expect our armed forces to fight the war and pay for it too. That is what they are doing overseas, buying bonds and doing the fighting too. Your support of this Victory Loan is the indication of your confidence in the cause for which we are fighting and your trust in the future. Canada's part in the war is well-known and appreciated throughout the Allied world. Canada has a tremendous capacity for winning the war and the post-war," he said.

The speaker went on to explain inflation and to point out that there were three roads to take. One was to increase the cost of living, the second was more taxation and the third was the purchase of bonds which would take care of the excess buying power and thus ward off inflation.

"If we neglect our duty in buying bonds when our men are dying overseas, then those who have money lying idle in the banks—well they deserve to lose their money," declared the speaker.

Major Welsh was introduced by Mayor Burnet as a man who had come straight from the hell of modern war into "our midst of semi-complacency."

Fine Morale

Major Welsh declared that it was good to be home. He said that he wanted to thank the various organizations of the town who had been sending boxes to the boys overseas and he particularly wanted to thank the blood donors. It was different to see people here, well-dressed and healthy-looking, the soldier declared. In England, children who have been born since the war started, had never seen an orange, a banana or a town lighted up at night. He said that he could assure his listeners that their boys overseas were in excellent morale and that in England they awaited eagerly the moment which would launch the greatest military operation the world had known. Germany awaited it with five million men.

Soldier Tragedies

Major Welsh spoke of Ortona with its mud and water-filled slit trenches, the incessant shelling with never a word of complaint from the men. It was there that he had seen men do some of the bravest acts of the war. There was tragedy in many of the cases, the speaker said, in telling of one instance in which a sergeant and a captain were being brought out of an engagement in stretchers which had been mounted on a jeep. The captain asked the sergeant if he could see and the latter said that he could.

"I can't see," said the captain. "You will be all right, captain. They will look after you in Canada," replied the sergeant.

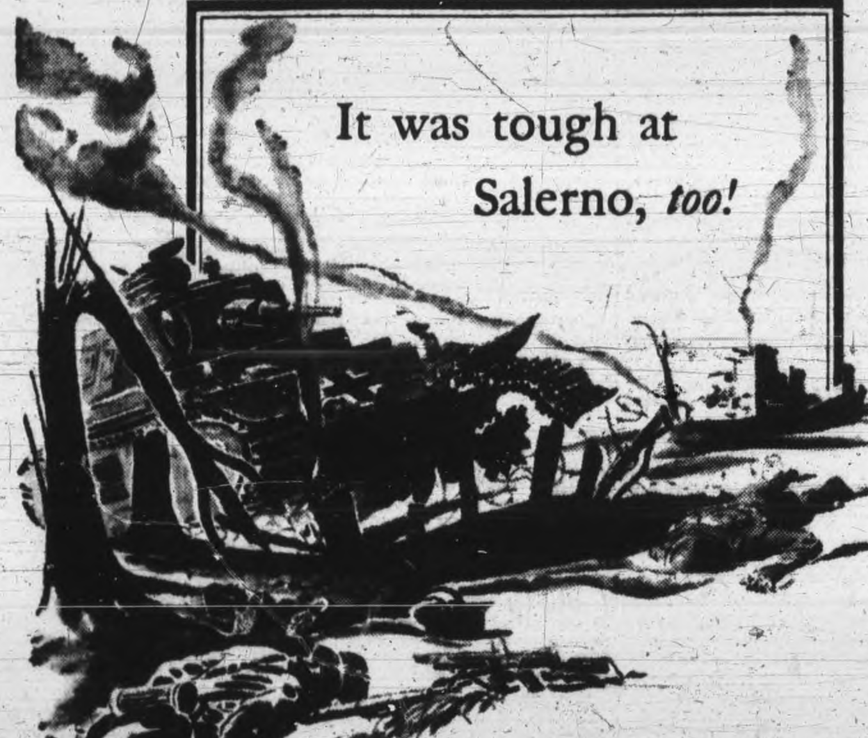
"I know they will look after me, but you see, I was married not long before I left for overseas. I now have a son whom I have never seen and, Oh God, I'll never be able to see that son."

Forget Pain

Major Welsh told of a man, mortally wounded in the abdomen, who continued to dress the wounds of others until he died in his tracks. Montgomery had said that the Canadians were the best troops he had in the Eighth Army and among those troops were men of Cobourg and the county. Canadian girls overseas, with never anything which could raise the slightest reproach, were the best advertisement which Canada could have overseas, Major Welsh declared. He went on the laud the bravery of Canadian nurses who carried out their duties in the field while undergoing the same hardships and dangers as the men.

"This is a total war in which everyone has a share. The armed forces are the cutting edge of the wedge. You are the power behind the wedge which will drive it to Victory. We will lose much equipment and we cannot wait until it is gone before we start to replace it. You hear some say that the German morale is bad and that the war will be over in 1944 or 1945. Such people are crazy. We will be fortunate if it is over in 1946. The Germany army is still a powerful one with the finest equipment in the world and the German is a magnificent soldier. Don't forget that.

"I am going back," he continued, "and I want to be able to tell your boys over there that the people of Cobourg and Northumberland County are doing their part and not expecting the boys overseas to do it all. If you don't let them down, they will not let you down. Put your money into battledress by putting it into bonds."



Do YOU think the going is tough because you have to pay taxes, because you are asked twice a year to invest in Victory Bonds . . .

It was tough at Salerno—too. It's tough at Cassino, and on the Anzio beach-head—

It is tough dodging flak over smouldering Berlin—

It is tough herding convoys on the raging North Atlantic—

It is tough to be away from home for two, three, four long years . . . or more.

Let's be realistic. We still have this war to win, and the part we are asked to play is to "Put Victory First"—to invest in Victory Bonds and keep on investing to the limit of our resources until Victory is won.

A Message to Our Customers

We urge all our customers to buy Victory Bonds. There is no better investment. Victory Bonds are as good as cash—the best security you can have for a bank loan when needed—and they earn interest. We have no hesitation in suggesting that our customers withdraw money from their savings accounts to invest still more in Victory Bonds.

Firemen Busy At Grass Fires

Continued activity of the Fire Department in fighting grass fires over the week-end has prompted Chief Gimblett to issue a second warning to householders who may contemplate burning grass and rubbish on their properties. Unauthorized setting of grass fires in the past week or so has resulted in some loss and considerable threats of loss which have kept firemen on the go from morning to night, with alarms coming in several times simultaneously and at widely separated parts of the city.

"The Department will take action henceforth," Chief Gimblett said this morning, "in the cases of persons who start grass fires without my permission. Such persons will be summoned in front of the magistrate and prosecuted under the City bylaw if they have not obtained permission first."

There were eight alarms Saturday between 10:40 a.m. and 8:45 p.m. and all but one were the result of burning grass and rubbish. The exception occurred at 10:59 a.m. when a call came from 6 Wallace street, home of P. Webster, for a chimney fire. The first of the lot caused by burning rubbish, was between 104-106 Lock street. Two alarms came in for a grass fire on City property at Park Hill Road and Auburn street, at 12:50 and 12:54 p.m. There was a grass fire at 152 King George Street, followed shortly by another at 470 Bonaccord, the home of J. Hall, at 2.25 p.m. At 4:18 an alarm came in from 105 Aylmer street, residence of E. Taylor; and still another at 5:47 p.m. from the CNR right-of-way at Park and McDonnel streets At 8:45 p.m. a report came in that a big grass fire had taken hold near Downer's Corners. The Fire Department went out but finding the blaze a mile or so further out, was obliged to go back.

Sunday began with a grass fire at 11:03 a.m. at George and Argyle streets. There were alarms between 1:14 and 1:28 p.m. for a large grass fire out on No. 7 Highway, but this was beyond the Department's jurisdiction and no firemen were sent out. In the afternoon at 2:22 p.m., the familiar cause brought in another call, this time from 190 Brock street, the home of Mrs. C. Perry.

An alarm from Box 39 came into the Fire Hall at 4:45 a.m. this morning, and as a result of some careless passer-by flicking away his cigarette, a hole some three feet square was burnt in the awning of Buehler Bros. Meat Store, 326 George street. At 9:31 a.m. burning rubbish took firemen to 302 Margaret avenue, the home of J. A. Danforth.

Lights Ordered Dimmed On River

OTTAWA, May 1 — (CP). — Navy Minister Macdonald appealed to-day for the dimming out of all lights which shine directly on the waters of the St Lawrence River which might possibly be penetrated by enemy submarines, and said the fact Canada lost no ships in that area last year "should not be taken to mean that no attempts were made to penetrate our defences."

The area embraces a strip of land five miles deep on the north shore of the St. Lawrence and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, beginning at the south shore of the Saguenay River and extending to the boundary of Labrador.

On the south shoreline of the St. Lawrence River and the Gulf of St. Lawrence the area, also five miles deep, begins at L'Ile Verte village in Temiscouata County and extends to the village of Douglastown, in Gaspe County.

"It would be folly to assume that the enemy, whose submarine strength is still considerable, will necessarily disregard this area in the future, as there is inevitably a considerable traffic in shipping through the St. Lawrence in the summer time, and this fact alone renders it an attractive proposition from the point of view of the U-boat," the minister said.

"The U-boat menace has certainly been checked, but it is only by the continuance of all those methods which have helped to check it that it can be held in check."

an appointment with a Judge and obtains an eviction order.

In Hamilton officials have heard of only five families who have no place to go.

The few families without accommodation at Kitchener have been given assurance they will receive help. In Guelph, civic officials have also promised that any families evicted from their present quarters will be looked after.

The problem is aggraveted by the fact that in many centres the furniture moving firms have more orders than they can handle in one day. The shortage of manpower is the chief obstacle facing the moving firms. Montreal movers are booked up until Wednesday at least and in London, Ont., moving firms said they are able to handle only about a third of the orders to-day.

Rotarians Told Loan Drive Slow

"The campaign in Peterborough is not too hot on the whole," Rotarian Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Victory Loan committee told the Rotary Club at Monday's luncheon. "Up to Saturday we had subscriptions to the total amount of $1,300,000 out of our objective of $4,500,000. However there are some bright spots. The bigger industries have gone over the top with a total of $900,000. But the general canvass, with an objective of $2,100,000, is going to be difficult.

Rotarian Matthews urged Rotarians to attend the auction sale in the Collegiate Auditorium when the services of many well-known citizens would be auctioned of. It promised to be a lot of fun, he told the members.

Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, officer commanding the Trenton R.C.A.F. was to have been the guest speaker but failed to arrive in time. The band of the local squadron of Air Cadets, sponsored by the Rotary, was on hand and played a number of stirring marches at the beginning and close of the program.

Wilbert Alex. Davidson, manager of the Peterborough Co-Op was introduced as a new member by Rotarian C. S. Cummer and was welcomed to the club by President George A. Gillespie.

Rotarian Max Brandon, acting secretary of the Fenelon Falls club wrote thanking Peterborough Rotarians for their fine attendance at the charter night of the new club, the Air Cadet contingent for its part in the program and Rotarian Fred L. Roy for his contribution.

War Bride Hears Husband Wounded

Mrs. Samuel Calladine, 496 Elm Street, a war bride who has been in Canada less than six months, received a telegram Sunday, informing her that her husband, Sgt. Calladine, had been seriously injured overseas. The nature of his wounds was not available.

Enlisting in 1939, Sgt. Calladine went overseas in February, 1940, and he remained in England until the end of 1943. His wife received word that he was stationed in Italy in February, attached to a unit with the 8th Army. Sgt. Calladine is a motor mechanic, and before enlisting he was employed at the Capitol Taxi.

Mrs. Calladine comes from Dagenham, Essex, and she was married in March of 1941. She has a young son, who will soon be 13 months old, and her husband has two other sons, one who enlisted for active service with the Army in January at the age of 16, and another, who is still in school.

Union Members Want President Representative

Representation of District Five of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America by their president, J. S. Jackson, Toronto, as an observer at the International Labor Conference in London, England, in June, was proposed to the Canadian Congress of Labor at the union's quarterly convention here Sunday.

A recommendation by the district executive that the Congress of Labor facilitate Mr. Jackson's attendance as an observer at the London conference, or that he be named as an alternate if one of the three Congress delegates be unable to go, was unanimously approved by the convention.

Discussion affirmed that the "U. E." have no criticism of the selection of the Congress of Labor deputation other than the union's opinion that the three chosen representatives do not fully reflect all sections of Canadian labor.

85 Members Present

Mayor Hamilton welcomed the eighty-five United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers from 18 locals and 14 industrial centres in Ontario and Quebec. It was the largest labor convention held here in more than twenty-five years.

In a summarizing discussion toward the close of the afternoon session, Mr. Jackson appealed to the delegates to encourage the members of their locals to strive to inform themselves on all current questions and problems of the day.

Must Study Questions

"One of the constructive things you can do is to set up groups within your own membership to study the questions that are coming more importantly than ever before public attention," Mr. Jackson said. "One of them, for example, is the question of social security in proposals and bills that are now in consideration. We need more people who will make a study of that question and are able to discuss it intelligently, and to do that they must have a fairly broad knowledge which they can get only by setting out to study the whole matter."

Mr. Jackson said such questions properly related to political action, one of the subjects on the agenda. Members of the United Electrical Workers were free to follow their own political leanings and attachment. In the "U.E." there was no place for distinctions in politics and religion and race. Labor was concerned with improving the general position of workers, and with trying to raise their standard of living and conditions of employment.

"Some people say that our political action is nothing more than an attitude of protest; that there is nothing positive in it. Certainly we do protest against weaknesses which we see in the set-up of which we are a large part, but when we do protest we always put forward an alternative which we believe will help to change legislation for the people. And we need more of our members to undertake responsibilities which should not be left to their executives. We need better informed workers, men and women who will apply themselves to questions, because we realize that the better informed our people are the less chance there will be of any dictator rising up in our midst.

A Train of Problems

There is plenty to be done in this direction. Social security is only one of many questions that are before us. There is also housing, the position of women in industry, there are the problems of rehabilitation, and the return of the men and women to their homes after the war.

Housing, for example, is part of the bread and butter for the most of us. Some people in this country would like to deal with that problem in their own interests. All that labor is asking is for the provision of decent homes for a great class of people who have always done their part in this country, and especially during the past five years. In large centres like Toronto and Montreal this is a pressing and distressing problem. We have taken a stand on this question in those two cities and in Hamilton."

Mr. Jackson said that organized labor during the years of war had sought to secure a decent level of wages, not only for present needs, but as a basis for better conditions when the service men return from overseas.

"We have a lot of girls in our union, and we have contended for the principle of equal pay for equal work, and we want to make sure if it is possible, that there is no differentiation when the war is over. Some companies will subscribe to the principle on paper, but they manage to put girls together in departments on types of work they have graded beforehand.

Work for Everybody

When the boys come home again we may hear it said once more that the place of women is in the homes, and that women who have come into industry should retire in a body. Our contention is simply that in a country like Canada labor and management and goverment should be able to cooperate and provide work for everybody who really wants to work, and that decent living wages be paid."

Mr. Jackson said the "U.E." had urged upon the government the granting as a first recompense to men coming home a minimum clothing allowance of $125 to help get them back into civilian garments worthy of men who had defeated the Axis powers.

"The policy of trade unionism for after the war in a nutshell is briefly this: a job at decent wages for every man and woman who wants to work, and a steadily rising standard of living for our people. No reasonable man can quarrel with that objective."

Parade Held In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1 (ENS) — "It is the responsibility of our government to buy the equipment for our armed forces and it is the obligation of citizens to pay for it." So said Lieut. T. C. Mason to a crowd of perhaps five hundred persons gathered in the main business section of Campbellford on Saturday evening. Lieut. Mason, an officer at the Peterborough Training Centre, was speaking on behalf of the Sixth Victory Loan drive in Campbellford and Seymour where salesmen expect to reach their quota of $300,000.

The address came as the concluding feature of a Victory Loan parade headed by the R.C.A.F. Brass band of Trenton and uniformed cadets of the Campbellford High School. Lieut Mason told of the careful selection made of men who were inducted into the army of their excellent equipment and training. He said there were now between 800,000 and 900,000 Canadians in the armed forces who are perfectly equipped physically, mentally and morally "and it is your job as civilians to see that they are the best equipped financially".

The speaker recalled that Germany had spent ten years in equipping the biggest fighting ma-

Campbellford Homes Threatened By Fire

CAMPBELLFORD, May 1 (ENS) — Fire that swept through three vacant lots on Second Street shortly before noon on Saturday for a while threatened several houses. The flames burned furiously in the field adjoining the C. N. R. tracks and at times soared nearly ten feet. Firemen battled it for more than half an hour before brought under control with water. Residents turned their garden hoses on garages and barns adjoining the burning area, to prevent them from falling prey to the flames. Firemen Alex MacDonald narrowly escaped injury when his trousers took fire as he waded through burning grass with a line of hose. The fire department answered to other alarms resulting from grass fires during the day.

Let's not kid ourselves

Are you still a wishful thinker?

SURE, we're winning—but we haven't won yet. Victory will not fall into our hand like a ripe plum. Are we letting recent successes go to our heads—forgetting that the greatest battle has yet to be won?

Here are recent statements by our leaders which show that they are not doing any wishful thinking:

RT. HON. WINSTON CHURCHILL—"This ... is a time for preparation, effort and resolve. I have never taken the view that the end of the war in Europe is at hand ... and I have certainly given no guarantee or even held out any expectation that the year 1944 will see the end of the European war, nor have I given any guarantee the other way."

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING—"I wish to repeat that we are in times that are very grave indeed ... and we are heading rapidly into a situation which will be the most desperate this world has known."

HON. J. L. RALSTON—"There is not much evidence that German military power has decreased ... Germany has shown herself able to stand prodigious losses.

"I hope I can make this country realize just what we have ahead of us. It is true that good news has been coming, but remember that if that good news is to continue it can only be by continuous contribution of the matchless price which the men and women of the forces and the homes they come from pay, and only if we are willing to make our contribution in self-discipline and self-denial worthy of theirs."

In these statements there is certainly no place for wishful thinking. They are a call to a greater effort to win that victory which must be won.

New Houses For Peterborough

The shortage of housing has been giving trouble everywhere in Ontario, but so far it has not become acute in this city. However, the situation here is not entirely satisfactory. During the past week the Mayor has had enquiries about houses from at least twelve families who must find new homes soon; they do not face eviction on a particular date, but they will have to move eventually, and they cannot find suitable houses. The local branch of Wartime Housing has sixty applications on its books for houses which it cannot hope to satisfy. The housing shortage in Peterborough has not reached an acute stage yet, and if we are wise we will never allow it to do so.

The city has in its possession seventy building lots which would be suitable locations for inexpensive houses. The Government is at present considering a housing scheme which would make it possible to use these lots and relieve the shortage in this city. The Examiner is strongly in favour of action in this direction, so that we shall forestall really serious housing trouble.

It would be well to use discretion in the choice of a building plan, if it is decided to build houses on the city lots. To put up houses of the impermanent Wartime Housing type on those lots would be a serious mistake, for although they would relieve the shortage now, they would become dilapidated in a comparatively short time and might involve the city in a difficult slum-clearance problem. If houses are to be built, let us build them to stay where they are for a reasonable period.

Jeremiad In The Commons

Group Captain Denton Massey delivered an impassioned jeremiad in the House of Commons on Friday, in which he rebuked Canada for her Babylonian luxury, rebuked the House for its neglect of its duty, and prophesied that both would be brought low, yea, even into the dust. And, like everyone else who decides to take a rod to Canada, he told us that we were not whole-heartedly in the war, and that the people of Britain would not think much of us if they could see us, and that we would feel deep shame if we could see them.

In spite of the effectiveness of Mr. Massey's evangelistic manner, this means nothing at all. Many better judges than he have come from Britain, have looked into our war effort, and have praised it highly. The report of Mr. Massey's oration in the House arrived on our desk at the same time as a copy of Pioneers! Oh Pioneers!, the latest book from the pen of Hilary St. George Saunders, one of the best informed and ablest observers in the service of the British Government. The book is an account of Mr. Saunders' visit to Canada and the U.S.; what he has to say about Canada's war effort, and the attitude toward the war of the Canadian people, warms the cockles of the heart. It is not fulsome and meaningless praise; it is a careful and judicious appraisal of what we have done, what we are doing, and the way in which we are meeting the problem of war. Mr. Massey had better read it before he makes another speech in the Commons.

Mr. Massey also says that Canada is because it was lengthy in its deliberations and sometimes cantankerous and picayune in its debates. Surely he must know that these things are in the nature of parliamentary government? Does he expect government in wartime to be carried on in a blaze of furious activity and deathless oratory, after four years of war? When he returns to Britain he would do well to attend a few meetings of parliament there; he will find that long stretches of debate are just as dull as they are at Ottawa.

Mr. Massey also say that Canada is enjoying a "giddy, gilded" era, for which it will pay in blood and tears. Where is this going on? Who is giddy? Who is gilded? Who is taking the war lightly?

Only one fact emerges from this wild speech, and it is this: Denton Massey's flair for personal publicity has not been dimmed by his service overseas—"chair-borne", as he himself expresses it.

The King—In Ice-Water

A writer in the Regina Leader Post deplores departures from the correct etiquette of toasting the King at public dinners; as things are conducted at present, he says, the pleasant ceremony is declining toward farce. He tells us how it should be done thus:

"The approved and sanctioned manner in which to toast His Majesty is as follows: The Chairman rises and calls for the attention of the guests, 'Ladies and gentlemen (or as the case may be)' he says, 'I ask you to rise and drink with me a toast to His Majesty the King'. Everyone rises and stands at attention. In the meantime the pianist has moved forward to the piano and, with everyone still at attention, he or she plays eight bars, no more, no less, of the National Anthem. No one is supposed to sing. Their respectful stance is all that is required. At the conclusion of the eighth bar, the Chairman then leans forward and takes up his glass, saying 'The King'. This is the signal for everyone present to do likewise, raising their glasses and repeating the phrase 'The King'. It is then, and then only, permissible to take the required sip from the glass and the toast is over. It is not considered correct or polite to clink glasses".

There it is, and we should all govern ourselves accordingly. We confess that we have sometimes been disturbed by the custom of drinking toasts — sometimes a long list of them—in ice-water. A toast by its nature is a hearty pledge; our forefathers considered wine sacred, whether in a sacramental use or not, and when they drank to a man or a cause in the cup they really meant something by it. Nobody attaches much significance to a gulp of cold water; a man might dash his wine to the floor rather than drink to a cause which he hated, but if he threw his ice-water down he would look very foolish indeed.

Our solution is this: why don't the people who like ice-water give up the custom of drinking toasts? Plenty of complimentary speeches can be made without a toast-list. And if ice-water toasts were foregone, people with a more traditional attitude toward life would be spared the nuisance of chilling their hearts and livers when the Royal Toast was called for.

Sidewhiskers And Top Hats

Not long ago the C.C.F. published an advertisement which showed a picture of the Canadian people advancing toward a splendid future, but being impeded in their march by a group of men in top hats and morning coats who were throwing mud at them. This advertisement was severely criticized by some of the larger daily papers. It was not fair or right, they said, for the C.C.F. to represent Capital in that unfavourable light; it was downright mean to pretend that capitalists wore top hats when they went out mud-slinging. The indignation on behalf of the top-hatted capitalists was tremendous.

But we observe that some of these indignant papers, when they wish to represent the government of the day in their cartoons, use the figure of a portly, top-hatted old fellow with sidewhiskers to do so. Now what does this mean? Is it not meant to give the impression that the Government is out-of-date (sidewhiskers), superior in its attitude (top hat) and out of touch with the people of the country? The pain citizen, we observe, is always represented as a grubby, undernourished, downtrodden little fellow.

Is this fair? Not a single member of the Cabinet wears sidewhiskers; they do not habitually wear the white waistcoats and top hats which are the uniform of cartoon capitalists, bureaucrats and oppressors of the Common Peepul. If the C.C.F. are not permitted to represent capitalists in that particular garb, why should newspapers represent the Government in the same fancy dress?

It looks as though a lot of people did not know that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

Farming News and Views

By
HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

I DROVE up to Guelph as we entered the last week in April and the air was not very spring-like, nor was there much green in the pasture fields. The fall wheat looks uninjured and clover has come through the winter in good condition. The wheat on the College farm looks well and some winter barley, while showing rather brown, seems very much alive. If winter barley proves successful in Ontario it will help by getting that much seeding over in the autumn, thus lessening spring work. Nobody was on the land on the road we took and a fairly steady rain on Sunday left a surface wet enough to keep field work back for some days.

Professor Knox of the O.A.C., is back from his trip to the Old Land. He says young cattle are very thin in both England and Scotland; feed is very scarce and rationing very carefully carried out. The result is that only cattle being fitted for sale, for breeding or slaughter are well fed. Straw and turnips is the diet for growing young cattle in Scotland. Cows furnishing milk get only a maintenance ration and a rather meagre allowance for the milk they are giving. Farmers are trying to carry all the pure-bred cattle they can on the present allowance of feed, as taxes are so heavy that to sell is almost to give them to the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Britain is in the war, next door to it, and frequently closer when enemy planes come over. These conditions will not improve until the enemy is defeated, and the present business of farming is to produce all they can of the forms of food most urgently demanded by a country fighting for its very life; and this is being done rather well.

GARDENING will be getting under way when this is published, and there will be likely some increase in the land devoted to vegetables this year. Not only will this be true in towns, but farmers will likely grow a larger supply of these fine foods this year than usual. There is going to be quite an increase in the potato acreage in Ontario, and many other vegetables will fare in a like fashion. For the grower who operates on a small scale, I have a suggestion to make which may or may not be new to you. If you have a lawn which requires mowing, you can put the grass you gather to good use. As soon as your vegetables make their appearance, and show in distinct rows, cover the space between the rows with cut grass. Take the time necessary to distribute it evenly, covering the ground not necessarily very deep, but cover it completely. This mulch will help to conserve the moisture and, if a fair covering is used, will smother the weeds.

Some years ago we had a few suggestions made about covering between the rows with straw or felt building-paper, and it answered a purpose; but I felt sure grass from the lawn-mower would be much better, and I have found it so. Straw is something of a mess and is poor stuff to rot down, and building paper never appealed to me, but when you clip green grass with a lawn-mower you have a protein-rich product which ought not to be wasted. It is the fruit of the lawn and should be returned to the soil. I have frequently made a composite heap from my lawn clippings by spreading 3 or 4 inches of grass covered by a good springling of commercial fertilizer followed by a layer of soil, then grass, and repeat the performance in building the heap, always having earth on top, and wetting the whole thing down with a liberal use of the hose.

If you have enough vegetables you will find the use of grass cuttings between the rows the better and more satisfactory use for them. I find grass cuttings used this way last year, and left on top of the soil, quite completely rotted this spring. My garden is quite sandy, but the humus from grass cuttings and some manure from the stock-yards, has worked a very great improvement. Humus from the decaying of grass should be quite good for clay land as well. As a matter of fact, it was gardening in a similar fashion, if not exactly the same way, that promoted the story "Plowman's Folly," which was a new way of telling an old story.

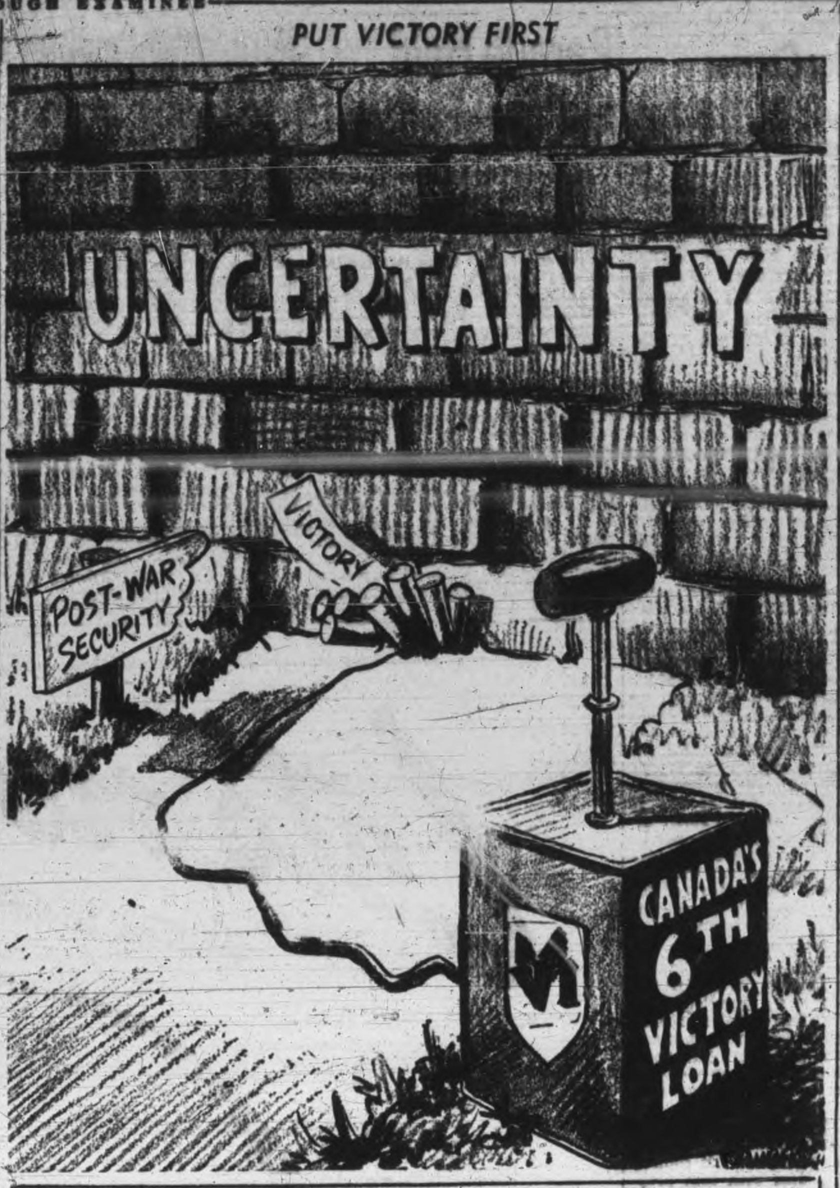
LORD DE LA WAR, the Controller for Flax for the British Government, has returned to England after an extended trip across Canada, and to parts of the United States. He has raised a bit of a "tempest in a teapot" by telling the British people that the livestock in Canada is superior to that of the Old Country, and Mr. Hudson, the British Minister of Agriculture, has taken the matter up and is using Earl De La War's statements as an urge to the English farmers to waken up and improve their home-bred cattle. I always consider it a mistake for any person to express a wholesale opinion of either our livestock or that of Britain on a brief visit and a somewhat cursory examination.

When it comes to the breeding of pure-bred cattle, Britain, might I almost say Scotland, is supreme in Shorthorns, Aberdeen Angus and Ayrshires. No one has to prove this, as the customer is always right and people come from the ends of the earth to buy specimens of these breeds to improve their herds. As for Friesians, or Holsteins and Herefords, the types bred in Britain are somewhat different to those bred on this continent, but both are quite useful for the purpose, though I think England could import Hereford sires from this continent, with improving results.

Then take the common run of beasts that go to the butcher or into commercial dairies, and you will find a great variation. In cattle for beef, Scotland produces cross-bred animals by using Shorthorns, Angus, Galloway and Highland cattle, from which Smithfield formerly got the "Scotch Short Sides" of beef, and there is no better. In Canada, we have still a good many cattle on the ranges, in which Herefords predominate and some Shorthorns and Angus are bred. From these ranges we get large numbers of beef cattle of excellent quality. The ranchers will always pay more for bulls than farmers. A rancher knows that by using good bulls he can improve the value of his beef from $10 to $25, or more, and if he has 1,000 cows that means a nice added profit. A farmer may have only a few cows and it is more of an effort for him to pay $250 for a bull, than for a rancher to pay $2,500.

The result of this is that anyone who looks over the market cattle that go through the Calgary stockyards forms a good opinion of the breeders of Canadian cattle. In Ontario there are a lot of good commercial cattle bred and the Toronto yards will show them. In England there is a huge population to drink milk, and a great many dairies to supply them that are simply milk-producing machines, many of them of brief existence. Good bulls are not kept and if calves are raised, as now in wartime, they are apt to be a sort of hopeless lot. A great many of these cows come as in-calf heifers from Ireland, and they go on to the slaughter-house in a very few years. The demand for dairies of that sort in Britain accounts to some extent for cattle not up to the mark, while in Canada most of our milk markets are supplied with rather good dairy herds, as is often the case in Britain; but we have not the large and increasing demand for milk that has resulted in the production of so many very ordinary cows in the Home Land.



Getting Things Done At Ottawa

MR. J. G. Diefenbaker, Prog. Con., Lake Centre, Sask.: I should like to ask him (Mr. Howe) the question whether the air convention which was placed on Hansard on March 17 was prepared before the Beaverbrook conference or consultation or conversation, whatever is the proper description, or whether it was prepared after the consultations that took place among nations of the empire.

Mr. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply: I think that is hardly a fair question.

Mr. Diefenbaker: Well, Mr. Chairman—

Mr. Howe: What do you mean—was it typed before or typed after?

Mr. Diefenbaker: That is the usual way the minister has of answering. Was it prepared before the Beaverbrook conference?

Mr. G. Stirling, Prog. Cons., Yale, B.C.: Was it born?

Mr. Diefenbaker: Was it born, the hon. member for Yale says, or was it conceived in the conference and born afterwards? That is what we are trying to find out, because it is very important that the committee—

Mr. Howe: Suppose I say "yes" or "no." What difference does it make?

Mr. Diefenbaker: That is not what the minister is here for.

Mr. Howe: What is the hon. member here for?

Mr. Diefenbaker: The minister is here to give us information in regard to this problem. It is material to know whether this convention was a convention representing Canada's viewpoint as presented to the Beaverbrook conference, or whether it was a convention based on the understandings arrived at, generally speaking, at the conference. I ask him the categorical question.

Mr. Howe: I suggest to my hon. friend that he assume that it was, and that is was not, and then expound both situations and tell us where he arrives.

Mr. Diefenbaker: The minister's attitude is not the attitude of a minister endeavoring to give information on events. That appears to be a continuing attitude shown by the minister toward members of this House and toward the country as a whole. I am asking him the categorical question as to whether or not the convention presented to the Beaverbrook conference is Canada's attitude?....

Mr. Howe: In other words, you want to know the details of a private international conversation.

An hon. member: No.

Mr. Diefenbaker: One knows the answer now, and the answer is that this convention was the stand that Canada took before the conference. I ask the minister to challenge that statement if it is not true. I now ask the minister this question: Was or was not Canada definitely opposed in this conference to an Empire set-up?

Mr. Howe: My hon. friend is building up the greatest piece of nonsense that I have ever heard in my life. I suggest he stop questioning me, make his speech and sit down, because I am not answering questions of that type.

Mr. Diefenbaker: That is the attitude that the minister has repeatedly taken in this House toward questions. He speaks of nonsense, grousers, yappers of the Maritimes, et cetera. He endeavors to treat members of Parliament the way he might treat those who are under him in corporations. That is not the attitude that begets co-operation.

Mr. Howe: I am not looking for co-operation.

Mr. Diefenbaker: It is perfectly reasonable to—

Mr. Howe: My hon. friend should understand that I am not looking for co-operation.

Mr. Diefenbaker: The minister says he is not looking for co-operation, but we are looking for information.

Britain's Budget—And Ours

(NEW YORK TIMES)

MANY comparisons and contrasts could be drawn between the new British war budget and our own, but the chief of them is this: that Britain really has a budget and that we have not. When the Chancellor of the Exchequer presents his budget for the coming fiscal year it is more than a mere estimate of what revenues and expenditures are going to be; it is a definite set of proposals. This budget is accompanied by a detailed tax bill, which is an integral part of it. Thus the executive assumes clear responsibility not only for every pound that the Government is to spend but for every tax and every tax rate.

Parliament is free to accept or reject this budget. But it is not free to tamper with it. If it turned down the budget flatly and completely, the Ministry would have to resign, and its resignation would be followed either by a new election or by the formation of new Ministry to bring in a new budget. If Parliament merely objected to some detail of the budget, it would not itself amend that detail; but it might force the Ministry to withdraw the budget and bring in an amended one acceptable to it.

Compared with this, the so-called annual budget that our own President submits to Congress every January is no budget at all. It is merely a set of estimates of revenues and expenditures for the current and the next fiscal year. It is not accompanied by any tax bill or any detailed set of tax proposals. Congress is not even asked to do anything about it. It neither accepts nor rejects it. It may be doubted whether most members even trouble to read it. It never comes up for vote, and therefore never really gets seriously discussed. At best there is piecemeal discussion of individual bills or appropriations. Even the President assumes no responsibility for the budget he presents. How can he? The initiative in tax legislation comes from Congress, and Congress may at any time add expenditures for which he has not asked.

The blunt fact is that under our present system no one is made clearly responsible for the Federal budget. This fact is of first importance in connection with the huge expenditures in our probable post-war budgets.

Production Doubles

Hogs passing through Canadian packing plants have reached impressive figures, reaching in 1943 more than seven million. A striking fact is that Western Canada produced nearly 66 per cent of this figure, while her position in the hog market in 1939 was 43 per cent. But total production has almost doubled in five years.—Niagara Falls Review.

Lovely Daffodils

The botanists tell us there are eight or ten distinct kinds of daffodils, most of them boasting countless varieties, and that the right name for all of them is Narcissus. The fond lay public has its own systems of nomenclature. One hears, for instance, that Narcissus means the kind with many white flowers on a single stalk, that the kinds with short cups are jonquils, and only those with long trumpets are daffodils. But the daffodils don't care. By any name they speed the arrival of spring in the wintry garden, and by any name they are loved.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

A Bible Message

Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven. And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.... Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all, and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?

And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. And every one that hath forsaken houses or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life. (Matt. 19: 23, 24, 27-29.)

For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of god our Saviour toward man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost. THE DEAD TO THE LIVING

O you that still have rain and sun,
Kisses of children and of wife
And the good earth to tread upon,
And the mere sweetness that is life,
Forget not us, who gave all these
For something dearer, and for you.
Think in what cause we crossed the seas!
Remember, he who fails the Challenge
Fails us too.

Now is the hour that shows the strong—
The soul no evil powers affray—
Drive straight against embattled Wrong:
Faith knows but one, the hardest way.
Endure; the end is worth the throe.
Give, give, and dare; and again dare!
On, to that Wrong's great overthrow.
We are with you, of you; we the pain
And victory share.

Junior Officers May Join Invasion Units

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, May 1—(CP)—Possibility that many junior Canadian officers, training at Camp Sussex, N.B., for service with the British Army, will actually see service in the Canadian invasion army overseas, is seen in Army circles here.

With the two Canadian divisions in Italy detached from the first Canadian army set-up in Britain, Defence Minister Ralston announced in the Commons recently the formation would be brought up to full strength by the use of British or other Allied units.

A reliable military source here thought it was reasonable speculation that many Camp Sussex men would be routed to British or other units slated to augment Lt. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's First Army. This source said this might even result in French-Canadian officers being loaned to fighting French units that might possibly be used in the Canadian Army organization.

It is understood there has been no lack of recruiting enthusiasm for the refresher school conducted by Brig. Milton F. Gregg, V.C., a native of the Kennebecasis Valley countryside where the school is located.

So far only a score of officers have been attached to units in the Pacific theatre—10 to the United States forces, eight to Australian and two to New Zealand. They will study jungle fighting and Pacific amphibious operations, participating as "fighting observers."

The plan is to have them gain experience for possible use by larger formations of Canadians fighting in that zone.

Second Farm Auction Yields $39,450 In Victory Bonds

The 6th Victory Loan's second farm auction, held in the drill hall at the Training Centre Saturday night, brought pledges to subscribe to War bonds totaling $39,450. This compares with pledges amounting to an even $10,000 at the first of the farm auctions in Lakefield last Tuesday.

A crowd verging on 1,000 persons was present for the auction, which was preceded by an hour of entertainment featuring the music of Graydon Sheldon and his orchestra and songs, dancing and piano duets by a number of Peterborough's favorite entertainers. After the auction there was dancing to the music of the Training Centre's Dance Band.

It was the two fine pedigreed calfs one a Jersey and the gift of Campbell's Dairy, the other a Holstein contributed by Silverwood's Dariy, that attracted most attention and brought forth the highest bid prices of the evening. Coaxed onto the stage by Harold Worton. V. S., they stood unconcerned in full view of an admiring and amused audience while the bidding for them went on. The Jersey sold for $3,900, the Holstein for $5,000, and then the successful bidder for the Jersey calf announced she would buy her bonds anyway and wished to put the calf back up for tuction again. This time it brought $3,500 in War Bond pledges, with a free trip from Dr. Worton, who balked at leading the animal on the stage a second time, thown in as a bonus.

Five sacks of Quaker pig starter sold for $1,500; binder twine form the International Harvester Co. for $2,000; a chair from Belleghem's Furniture Store, $1,600; five sacks of Ful-O-Pep Chick Starter, $1,500; a ton of fertilizer from the Canada Packers, sold in half-ton lots for $1,700 and $2,600, a total of $4,300; a smoker stand from the Canadian Department Stores, $1,000; 4 sacks of Ful-O-Pep 24 per cent. Dairy Ration $1,000; a battery from J. J. Duffus Co. $1,600; five bags of hog grower from Dewart Bros., $1,000; and 100 chicks from Braund Hatcheries, $1,000.

Some of the other articles put up for auction and sold to the highest bidder in War Bonds by Gordon Hancock, the auctioneer, included the following: Three Westclox alarm clocks, $850; three brass-bound halters from B. F. Ackerman, $1,300; a gallon of Scarfe's Paint, $600; a hay-fork from Kingan Hardware, $200; a horse blanket, J. J. Turner's, $500; a case of peas from the National Groceries, $500; three 5-lb. tins of Ovaltine, A. Young Boy Disappears With Farmer's Team

LINDSAY, May 1 — (ENS) — Provincial Constable W. H. McBrien is on the lookout for a young lad, from the Bowmanville Training School, who was employed by a farmer named Elsworth Davey, of Cresswell, Ont. It is alleged, according to the police, that the young fellow left the Davey home suddenly, picked up some money which did not belong to him, and also drove away with the farmer's team of horses.

Later the team was found tied to a fence in the southern part of the township, but there was no trace of the driver.

chine the world had ever known yet in one-half that time the Allied nations had not only overcome this handicap but had now exceeded them in production in all fields. He contrasted the freedom of democratic government with the Nazi tyranny as it was seen not only in Germany but in the occupied countries of Europe.

Mayor F. F. Long introduced the speaker and extended greetings to the R.C.A.F. band. His Worship praised the cadets (both boys and girls) for their smart appearance and excellent marching and declared their part in the parade should make every citizen in Campbellford proud. Earlier in the evening the Bandsmen were guests of the corporation for dinner at Woodlawn Inn where P.C. Denyes acted as chairman for an impromptu program for which Arnold Bates assisted at the piano for a sing song. Several of the visiting bandsmen assisted with vocal numbers and these included Sgt. Major Ed. Hancock, leader of the band.

What time is it?

In the Far East, in the remote interior of some countries, clocks are unknown . . . and the inhabitants tell the time of day by looking at the eyes of a cat. From early morning till noon the cat's pupils grow smaller. From a thin line at noon they gradually grow full round at night.

In Europe millions of enslaved people, millions of waiting soldiers watch the plane-filled skies and know that our might has grown to its peak . . . that the time has come to strike.

In Canada we see the weapons of war filing out of our roaring factories . . . we see thousands of brave sons setting out with but one thought . . . victory now. Resolutely and with new hopes we know . . . the time has come. The time for the greatest effort in our history.

Peterboro Men Lead 5-Pin Doubles

TORONTO. May 1. — Flecked with a flock of upsets, the ladies' section in the C.B.A. wound up title drives at Olympia Gerrard Alleys Saturday night.

The big names in the feminine bowling world gave way to lesser lights as topnotchers like the Centrals team, Ollie Miller, Annie Miller, Velma Barnes and Vera Ward found themselves down in the lists.

Karrys of Toronto carried off the Bennett Trophy when they finished ahead of 95 other team aspirants, with a count of 3,463. King Edwards of Toronto, City Major League queens had to be content with second place, hitting 3,409. Friday Nighters were third with 3,394.

Alma Wilson, noted Sunnyside softballer, upset the form chart when she clicked for a nine-game string of 2,313 to win the aggregate and, with it, the Bo-Peep Trophy. Lil Hughes of King Edwards claimed the runner-up spot with 2,239, followed by Avis Camp, Bolottes, Ottawa, with 2,226.

Ottawa's Canada Bread couples made it one, two in the dosubles. Audrey Williamson and Eileen Adson won the Luke Bros. Trophy, hitting 1,523, while their teammates Peg and Doreen Armstrong had 1,506 to finish second.

Lil Hughes King Edwards, made it a triple for Toronto in the open events when she copped the singles, spilling the wooden men for 880. 9A pair of Ottawa lassies, Velma Turner of Bolottes and Avis Camp, Canada Bread, finished second and third, with 816 and 807, respectively.

Simpson's ran one, two in the industrial team section. Their No. 1 team claimed the McDowell Trophy with a count of 3,163. The No. 2 team hit 3,013 to finish second. Eaton's No. 3 placed third.

Steel Company of Hamilton, sheet workers' division, paced the host of out-of-town men's teams, starting their first shift, Saturday, hitting 3,610.

O. Hanna Ottawa, took over the leadership of the aggregate aggregation when he piled up a total of 2,528 for all events. His 868 singles moved him into fifth place in that bracket.

The men's doubles also show new leaders. Goodson and Abraham now pace the field with 1,569.

With Genelecs not entering the City Softball League this season Manager Murph Chambers of Switchgear expects that his club will get most of the benefit of the players made available by the failure of last year's runners-up to function during the coming campaign. The Switchgear pilot intimated over the week-end that with the exception of George Hawkes and Jack Tucker who are slated to lineup with the Plazas, he expected that his club would land most of the other Genelec players. With most of last season's Switchgear team still on hand and the reinforcements that he is lining up Manager Chambers promises to trot out a team that will give the rest of the City League outfits plenty of opposition. Among the new talent who will be seen with Switchgear this season is Gib Brockley, the former Omemee outfielder who played a lot of good ball for the Combines last season. With Brockley in the fold the Chambers' outfit has an outfield combination ready for action that will measure up to any trio in the league for young Jack Carpenter who played brilliantly in left field for Switchgear and also hit well and Jack Playford, the veteran centre fielder of last season's Genelecs will be ready to line up with Brockley in the Switchgear gardens.

Getting one of the earliest starts in the history of the club, the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club opened its 1944 season at Port Hope on Saturday where they were defeated by the Trinity College School team. The students are keen opposition at any time so that it was not surprising that the Peterborough eleven should have found the task of beating them without any practice too large an order. The final figures show that T.C.S. after declaring their inning closed after they had registered 123 for eight wickets managed to get the Peterborough batters out for 60 in their term at bat so that the victory was decisive. It was the tail-end of the Port Hope students' team that did the damage. Peterborough-Whitaker had got rid of seven batters at a cost of 67 runs when the batters at the bottom of the list made a real stand. The result was that T.C.S. added 56 more runs with the loss of another wicket and then declared. Frank Dyer, captain of the Peterborough eleven who had taken three wickets for 45 runs tried his best to save the day with his batting, making 19 runs before he was finally retired. It was the second highest score of the day, E. M. Parker of the winners topping the list with a brilliant not-out effort of 29. The Peterborough team will play away from home again this Saturday meeting Grove School at Lakefield.

Browns Are Stopped

There was baseball in large gobs in the major leagues over the week-end; so many games in fact that it is only possible in a column like this to skim over some of the highlights. Outstanding of course was that the St. Louis Browns after breaking the American League mark for consecutive games won at the beginning of a season and equalling the National League mark with nine triumphs in a row were finally stopped Saturday when Cleveland Indians took them into camp 4 to 3. For a long time, at that, it looked as if the Brownies were going to put that one in the bag for they were leading 3 to 0 until the late stages. The Indians pushed over the winning run in the final frame. Another highlight was the fact that the St. Louis Cards taking over first place won themselves three games over the week-end, defeating the Chicago Cubs three times in succession. Brecheen won his second victory of the season Saturday wit' a six-hitter to stop the Chicago attack. In the first game Sunday Max Lanier who had already pitched two masterpieces to grab off his first two starts held the Cubs to exactly three hits and shut them out 5 to 0. St. Louis also took the second game with Rookie Wilks doing the pitching as the champs picked up the marbles with a 7 to 5 count.

From a Brooklyn standpoint what happened to the Dodgers in the first half of a Sunday double-head was the big news of the day. Since Brooklyn has had a ball club the Bums have never been kicked around as badly as that for the Giants piled up no fewer than 26 runs as against 8 by the Derocher club. Whit Wyatt headed a parade of Dodger pitchers who vainly tried to keep the Giants from running round the bases. At that the winners made ten more runs than they did hits. New York Yanks after losing to the Washington Senators 9 to 3 Saturday came back Sunday to take both ends of a double-header from the same club. Bonham pitched a five-hitter to win the first 2 to 1 and Page and Borowy held the Senators to five hits in the second game which the Yanks won 3 to 1. Incidentally it was the first loss of the season for Early Wynn who had won his first two starts in brilliant fashion. Tex Hughson, Boston Red Sox ace made his debut yesterday and fired a six-hitter against the Athletics as Boston grabbed off the verdict 3 to 2. Bucky Walters, veteran of the Cincinnati Reds had his share of the limelight Sunday by holding the Pittsburg Pirates to three hits. The Reds won 4 to 1.

Belleville Prospects

It looks as though there will be two junior softball squads in Belleville this summer, Jack Doran officially entered the Columbian Squires (sponsored by the K. of C.) while the Army and Navy was also represented last night, says Ken Colling in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer. It looks very much like a six-team loop, including the two junior squads and one entry from Tweed. This means only three intermediate clubs in Belleville, which is far from seven that operated in 1943. However, the league delegates elected Joe Samain to the chief executive's office and they voted wisely as President Samain proved himself an able executive member for the past two years. Harold Bawden was rewarded for his past work by being elected vice-president while a new secretary-treasurer took over in the person of Don Lee, who possesses plenty of energy and goodness knows that is what softball needs in Belleville. One splendid gesture was made by the meeting, that was to co-operate in any possible measure in assisting the Ki-Y groups.

Says Bill Walshe in the Kingston Whig-Standard: A little story on the value of sports in school was related in a report by Trustee Fred Pence, who with W. C. Cole took a leading part on promoting games for pupils in Kingston schools. A young lad had been misbehaving and was reprimanded by a substitute teacher. When the regular teacher returned she asked for a report and told the boy he would have to transfer to another school. A small boy in the back of the class room raised his hand to speak and in a pathetic voice pleaded: "Please give him another chance, he's our best hockey player." The considerate teacher agreed on condition the other hockey players made certain the mischief maker amended his ways. The boy remained, continued to play hockey and his marks for conduct and schooling after that were the best in the class. Further investigation proved sports changed the lad from a nuisance to well mannered and progressive student.

Two New Ones On Card For Big Show

There is an interesting question to be settled for wrestling fans next Tuesday. Can the crippling tactics of Karl "Krippler" Davis, the torrential Texan, overcome the all-out total offensive of Bob Strangler Wagner when they meet on the Brock Arena mat on Tuesday night? Wagner has, of late, muscled right in on the huge Texan's reputation as the toughest of the badmen of the mat. The Strangler is a going concern from start to finish and beats his opponents as much by his wearing energy as he does by wrestling ability.

The Portlander is on the jump every second and his surprise victory over the popular Earl McCready here last week makes him a pretty tough proposition even for the diabolical Davis.

The latter is a toughie from away back and he expressed himself as plenty resentful of Wagner's invasion of his "territory.' Davis is a hard guy in every way and has injured many an opponent. Handsome Vic Holbrook is still on the sidelines as a result of the torn cartilage which resulted in his memorable battler with Krippler Karl. Other wrestlers have suffered serious injuries at the powerful hands of the Texan but the hustling Wagner is a package of dynamite himself.

Probably never before have Peterborough fans seen such a bout as will result when these two big domineering matmen tear into each other. Certainly something will have to give and if it isn't the ring itself, it's plenty hard to pick which of the hard guys it will be.

Several new faces will be seen on the supporting card which looks to be one of the best yet lined up.

In the semi-final long Bill Middlekauf of Florida comes in for his first visit here and wrestles popular Toar Morgan, the ex-Marine. In the other bout Antone Leone, the hustling little Hollywood hurdler tackles Strongman John Arthur an exceedingly powerful grappler from Chicago.

I'm at War with the Axis and at Peace with Myself

Now I feel RIGHT
I bought a Bond
A bigger Bond than I intended to buy
And stretched myself a bit
To buy it.
Instead of "double-trouble" dollars
Burning a hole in my pocket
Or lazing in a bank account
Just asking to be spent
I bought a "triple-action" Bond
My contribution
—to the fight overseas, for freedom
—to the fight at home, against inflation
—to my own post-war security.
It seems to me
That if a fellow can't put on a uniform
He shouldn't put off buying a Victory Bond
NOT
If he wants to be at War with the Axis
And at Peace with Himself.

TORONTO, May 1 — (CP). — Quebec City reportedly was very lukewarm in its reaction to the Allan Cup-winning Aces, and fans are trying to figure out why. Although the Quebec squad brought the ancient city its first cup in history, only 4,000 turned out for the final game against Port Arthur and those who did go are said to have left the rink quietly without any of the traditional mad celebration and shoulder-hoisting.

Jack (Cornwall Standard Freeholder) Park, with an eye on other amateur series that didn't pay off so well either, advances the opinion the fans are going sour on the game. He thinks it would be best to call the whole thing off now before interest dies completely.

Perhaps interest does slacken off, quite naturally, when the lengthy play-offs drag into late spring, but there are still plenty of fans who want the game maintained so they can take in a match when they feel like it. The sturdy outcry against the service ban on sport was a good indication of that. The boys in the services especially are keen to have the game continued.

Incidentally:

Bill (Niagara Falls Review) Gaynon hears the rumor that Coach Brian Timmis may be outsted from the helm of Hamilton Wildcats, last year's Canadian football champions. Bill says Timmis disagreed with the club sponsors over the small share of mazuma given some of the Wildcats after the season ended. Joe Krol is advanced as the probable choice as coach..... Orioles Wallop Toronto Leafs Before 12,000

By the Associated Press.

The first double-header Sunday in the International League proved a tremendous success at 27,920 persons paid their way in to see how the teams looked in this wartime year.

They must have been satisfied as the day's results bunched the teams together in the standings closer than sardines in a can. Only one game separates the last place Newarks and Montreals from the first place Torontos.

The largest crowd of the day 12,000 fans, saw the Baltimore Orioles take over a temporary hold on first place as they swamped the Toronto Maple Leafs, 8-2, behind the five-hit pitching of Ambrose Palica. But the Leafs regained the league lead by winning the second game 1-0, although outhit 4 to 2. One of Toronto's two hits was a home run by Jim Tyack, former major leaguer.

Syracuse attracted 7,032 paid admissions as they split with the Montreal Royals. Goody Rosen, veteran Chiefs outfielder, continued his amazing spring hitting by clouting a triple with the bases full to earn a 4-3 win and an even split with the Royals, who won the first fame 10-5. Morris Aderholt, Montreal third baseman, hit a three-run homer in the opener.

Jersey City jumped into a tie for third place with Syracuse, Buffalo and Rochester by trouncing Bucky Harris' Buffalo Bisons 5-0 and 6-4 before 4,556. Leon Treadway, the Little Giants' outfielder, celebrated his insertion into the cleanup spot by rapping out five hits, including a triple and two doubles. Andy Hansen, 19-year-old right-hander, blanked the Bisons with five hits in the first and Mike Mellis hurled three runless innings in the second to win.

Newark took a twin bill from Rochester, 6-4 and 4-3, after losing four of their first five games. A total of 4,338 spectators saw the Bears get some good pitching from Dutch Hiller and Karl Crews. Walt Van Grofski, veteran catcher, made his second hit of the season, both home runs, to win the first. A home run by Bill Rabe, late Newark arrival, was the big blow of the second game.

8 Games Attract 208,943 Over Week-end

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Any lingering doubts that the public didn't want baseball in this third wartime season were dissipated yesterday by an outpouring of more than 208,943 fans for eight major league doubleheaders at New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Detroit, Washington, Boston and Chicago. These figures do not include thousands of servicemen who were admitted free.

The largest Sunday turnout was at the Polo Grounds in New York where 58,068—including 52,037 paid—saw the Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers split a bizarre twin bill. Thousands were turned away.

The Giants ran away with the opener, 26-8, as Phil Weintraub batted in eleven runs and Ernie Lombardi, seven. The Dodgers rallied to win the nightcap, 5-4. Joe Medwick, of the Giants, was hit in the groin by a thrown pop bottle between games, but was not seriously hurt, although he was kept out of the second game. Leo Durocher, Brooklyn manager, was banished in the sixth inning of the opener. Both the 26 runs and the 11 RBI fell short of existing records.

The St. Louis Cardinals kept on top of the National loop by sweeping a doubleheader from the tailend Cubs 5-0 and 7-5. Southpaw Max Lanier won his third straight game in the opener. Stan Musial's three-run homer won the nightcap. The double setback ran the Cubs' losing streak to nine.

Yanks Take 2.

Ernie Bonham and Hank Borowy hurled the New York Yankees to a double victory over Washington, 2-1 and 3-2, before 31,057 behind the timely hitting of Don Savage and Bud Metheny. The St. Louis Browns stayed in first place by splitting with the Chicago White Sox. The Sox took the opener 6-5, while Don Gutteridge's double won for the Browns in the afterpiece, 5-4.

Cleveland and Detroit split their bargain encounter before 38,940 — second largest crowd of the day—at Detroit. The Indians took the opener 2-1, and the Tigers the nightcap, 4-2, on Chick Kostetler's two-run single.

The Phillies went 14 innings to beat the Boston Braves, 2-1, in the first game of a twin bill before 30,392 at Philadelphia, but had to be content with a nine inning 2-2 tie in the second game when Butch Nieman socked a ninth-inning homer. Jim Tobin hurled one hitless inning to stretch his streak to 13 consecutive hitless frames.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati also split a twin bill as did the Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox. Pittsburgh won the first game, 7-1, while the Reds took the nightcap, 4-1, behind Bucky Walters' three-hitter. Bob Johnson's homer gave the Red Sox a 3-2 triumph over the A's in the first game. The Mackmen snapped back to take the afterpiece, 3-1.

Here's A Victory Bond Sales Point

I.

I'm buying a bond for a freckled kid
Who lived down the street a way—
A boy with a dog just a while ago—
A name on a list today! . . .
I'm buying a bond for a barefoot lad
Who only a short time back
Was romping the fields of the old home town,
But died in a far attack!

II.

I'm coming across in the memory
Of youngsters who left the town
With laughter and jokes and their heads held high
To take on the scrappers' frown;
The kids who were down in the swimmin' hole
Or played in the High School show—
The boys who'd be out on the sandlots now . . .
Except that it can't be so!

III.

I'm signing for all I can take aboard;
I thought I had done my share
Until in the home town sheet today
I saw "Johnny Adams" there;
He'd brought me my paper every night,
A child on a bike bright red;
He's riding the path to the house right now
I thought . . . but the lad is dead!

IV.

I've read all the ads in the War Bond drive,
The work of the writers slick;
But, God, when I think that it takes that stuff
It leaves me a little sick;
The picture of boys on a village green
Or trooping across the mead
Who now lie under a cross-filled field
Is all that we ought to need.

V.

I listen to speeches o'er mikes galore
That tell of the War Bond drive,
But all I hear is the cannon's roar—
The whine of a power-dive;
The speeches, the music, the ballyhoo—
All leave me a little cold . . .
For I know a boy who just died for me—
And couldn't be quite that old!

VI.

A duty? A noble and handsome act
This taking of War Bonds? Bunk!
Since when was investment on sure things
A Sacrifice? Scrap such junk!
I'm doing a painless and little thing;
One sales point alone rings true:
My debt to those lads from the old home-town—
Who, asked for their lives, CAME THROUGH!

Canadian Navy To Patrol North Atlantic

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 1 — (CP) — The recent announcement of Canada's Navy Minister, Hon. Angus Macdonald that the primary concern of the Royal Canadian Navy was the North Atlantic convoying job probably tells the story of the role Canada's fighting ships and men will play in the second front.

It probably means that the major strength of the R.C.N. will be concentrated, as now, in the North Atlantic, doing the job it has been built to do and playing an important part in the invasion by keeping the supplies coming that will keep the European offensive rolling.

True, there will in all probability be ships and men from the R.C.N. around the shores of Europe when the invasion opens. It is a well-known fact that landing craft manned by Canadian sailors will bump against the beaches of the Continent when the second front comes.

Too, there is a strong likelihood that at least two big R.C.N. ships, the Prince David and the Prince Robert, will be there. It has already been announced that the one-time luxury ships which became auxiliary cruisers have been transformed into invasion ships and anti-aircraft cruisers.

Some of Canada's destroyers might also see action in European waters come "D-day," especially the powerful Tribal and Fleet class destroyers recently acquired by the Dominion.

It would also seem logical to assume that some of the R.C.N. minesweepers will be in action over here during the invasion.

With those exceptions, however, it looks as though few strictly R.C.N. ships will take part in the invasion itself.

Athabaskan Lost

baskan, bobbing on the Channel waters in life-rafts. The Haida picked up 46 of the Athabaskan's complement of 200 and the Germans claimed later 85 were taken from the water and made prisoner.

Skipper Missing.

With dawn but a half-hour off and enemy aircraft in the vicinity a voice came out of the darkness close by Haida saying:

"Get away Haida, get clear."

It was believed to have been Lt.-Cmdr. J. H. Stubbs, R.C.N., of Victoria, skipper of the Athabaskan. The Haida did leave then, and Commander Stubbs' fate is not known.

Commander Sclater said the two Canadian destroyers closed with the German vessels when they discovered them close to the French coast. The Athabaskan was directly behind the Haida and fired the first star shell.

"The enemy destroyers were making smoke hoping to get away under cover of it." Commander Sclater said. "The action blazed furiously and it was just after the first few salvoes that the Athabaskan was hit.

"We saw flames spreading over the Athabaskan but she steamed on, her guns thundering. Suddenly another shell seemed to strike the Athabaskan aft and she slowed down.

"Haida hammered the enemy ships while Commander De Wolfe ordered a smoke screen to shield the Athabaskan, meanwhile maintaining the engagement.

Hit By Torpedo

"Hits were observed and a small fire broke out in the leading enemy destroyer. Then as we concentrated on the nearest one, we saw our salvoes strike home and flames appear through the smokescreen."

Commander Sclater said suddenly an explosion enveloped the Athabaskan.

"We saw a burst of flame and knew our sister ship would sail no more."

Despite the fact the odds were two to one against Haida, her captain continued the engagement. Another salvo and another struck the enemy ship from Haida's guns and the flames of the burning German destroyer mounted higher.

Commander Sclater said at this point apparently both enemy ships became confused. The burning destroyer opened up on the other Nazi craft which was fleeing from the scene, apparently mistaking her for the Haida. When the Canadian destroyer closed, pounding at her now unmoving target, her lookouts suddenly saw the rocks of the beach and realized the German vessel had been driven ashore.

Undamaged, Haida then went back to the rescue of the Athabaskan's survivors. All of Haida's liferafts and boats were ordered lowered among the bobbing lights of the new-type navy rafts to which the men were clinging.

"The sea was covered with thick oil from the Athabaskan's tanks," Cmdr. Sclater said. "Those of Haida's crew who could be spared from the guns lined the rails, shouting encouragement to those in the water.

"Come on boy, this is Haida," they said.

The survivors were shouting back and blowing their whistles.

Clinging to driftwood and the odd float, they came in. On the bridge Cmdr. De Wole urged them on:—

Used Launch

"Come on chaps, swim to the ships's side," he said.

Several of the Haida's crew including Lieut. John Coates of Paris, Ont., and Halifax, went down the scramble nets to help the survivors aboard. The whaler was lowered and then the motor launch was let go.

Three of Haida's crew, knowing their ship must get away shortly, calmly started the launch engine and proceeded to round up survivors who were some distance from the ship. The Haida had to get going and she slid away, leaving her boats in the water picking up Athabaskan survivors.

"As we pulled clear, two of Haida's crew who were down on scramble nets were unable to get up and they jumped clear—they were wearing the new life jackets," Cmdr. Sclater said.

Later R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. aircraft scored several hits on the beached German destroyer, halting efforts of a number of armed trawlers and other Nazi craft to pull her off the rocks and salvage her The Germans are believed to have given up the salvage effort.

It was just three days before that the Athabaskan and the Haida along with the destroyers H.M.C.S. Huron and H.M.S. Ashanti, and the British cruiser Black Prince, sank one German destroyer and damaged three others in the Channel.

Lt.-Cmdr. Sclater also witnessed that action.

tions many of which returned before noon indicating the targets were not far inland.

The massive force of Britain-based planes which carried out yesterday's daylight operations included about 1,000 heavy American bombers and their fighter escorts. Sunday's attack were directed against German airdromes, coastal defences and railyards.

These daylight operations wound up a month which saw at least 100,000 tons of explosives and probably more dropped in Germany and occupied territory by aerial fleets operating from both Italian and British bases.

Bag 1,300 Planes.

Lt.-Gen. James H. Doolittle said American fighters and bomber gunners during heavy bomber missions by the U.S. 8th Air Force in April knocked out more than 1,300 German fighters—a total "substantially more than the entire German aircraft production for the month."

The R.A.F. during April sent heavy bombers out from Britain on 13 nights and they flew a total of around 9,350 sorties at a cost of 215 four-engined bombers. The R.C.A.F. participated in most of the raids. The British bombers dumped more than 34,700 tons of explosives.

The following blows were deliv-and Saturday by Allied planes:—

1. Two thousand American planes from British bases rained 2,500 tons of bombs on Berlin in an operation which cost 63 heavy bombers and 14 fighters. Eighty-eight German planes were destroyed in combat.

2. A streamlined force of British Lancasters attacked an explosive works near Bordeaux, an aircraft factory at Clermont-Ferrand and other targets in France and Western Germany without loss. This night operation also was launched from British bases.

3. American heavy and medium bombers and Allied fighters from Italian bases struck the great German submarine pens at Toulon in Southern France and hit other targets in Yugoslavia and Italy. Twelve enemy aircraft were destroyed at the cost of 11 heavy bombers and six other planes.

4. R.A.F. Halifaxes, Liberators and Wellingtons in night raids from Italian lines bombed the Italian harbors of Genoa, La Spezia and Livorno (Leghorn).

problems of both Commonwealth and world significance were to be discussed, were the service heads of the British armed forces — Field-Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Andrew Cunningham, First Sea Lord, and Chief of Naval Staff, and Marshal of the Royal Air Force Sir Charles Portal, Chief of the Air Staff.

Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa, the last to arrive, hurried in to the meeting.

Mr. King greeted photographers and newsmen with a smile and appeared refreshed after a quiet week-end in London.

Presence of the British Chiefs of Staff and the War Cabinet was in accord with the pre-arranged plan for the meeting which gives precedence to the present war situation and future operations. The aim is to give the Commonwealth Prime Ministers all available information as a prelude to further discussion.

Prime Minister Churchill is presiding at the gathering—first of its kind since the war began—which has brought to London with Mr. King and Field-Marshal Smuts, Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia and Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand.

A Pimple Covered Face Kills Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples, and you probably know of cases where a promising romance has been spoiled by those red, white, festering and pus filled sores on the face.
The trouble is not so much physical pain, but the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.
The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood.
Burdock Blood Bitters helps to cleanse the blood and with the blood cleansed the complexion should clear up.

EVERLASTING PUNISHMENT

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ Scientist in Peterborough on Sunday. The Gold Text was: "Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed: and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" (Ezekiel 18:31). Selections from the Bible included the following from Matthew 19:23: "Then said Jesus until His disciples, Verily I say unto you, That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kindom of heaven." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook included the following: "There is but one way to heaven, harmony, and Christ in divine Science shows us this way. It is to know no other reality—to have no other consciousness of life—than good, God and His reflection, and to rise superior to the so-called pain and pleasure of the senses."

Rambling Reporter

ON THE BEAM

Three girls, a camera and a soldier combined in an interesting incident in Hunter street Sunday afternoon. The four stopped in front of St. John's Church for a series of snapshots and the soldier posed with each of the girls. He was an opportunist. Each time as the amateur photographer was ready to press the button he grabbed the girl with whom he was posing and planted a long kiss on her lips. Impression of eye-witnesses was that the lad in khaki had long since taken his basic training in kissing. The photography may turn out to have been a flop but the posing was a surefire success.— F. C.

WANTS PRIORITY

A moment or so after 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, a west-bound automobile on Hunter street had stopped at the Water street intersection to wait for the traffic lights to change. Along came two girl cyclists and they also stopped, between the waiting automobile and the north curb. Arrived then an east bound woman motorist who wanted to make a right hand turn to go north on Water street. She honked three or four times rather indignantly at the girl cyclists to get out of her way. They failed to do so until the light changed. But the question in the minds of on-lookers was just what that woman driver thought the girls on the bicycles should do to clear the way for her. Did she think they ought to have crossed Water street against the light, or turned north on Water when they wanted to go east on Hunter or pick up their bicycles and get off the road althogether? —G. Soldier Fined For Assault On Young Cadet

"This case has taken on quite a different aspect from what it had Saturday morning," said Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today after additional evidence had been heard in a charge against Pte. L. J. Davis, R.C.A.M.C., stationed at the local Military Training Centre of assaulting fourteen-year-old Air Cadet Billy Duignan.

The youthful cadet was called as a witness and he told the court that he had been waiting on George street with a couple of other air cadets when two soldiers came along. One of them, he said, came back to where they were, with his tunic off, and the boy said that he was struck on the jaw and rendered unconscious.

To the magistrate he said that the swelling had nearly all gone out of his jaw. He said that four of his teeth had been chipped but added that he had not seen a dentist in regard to his injuries.

Knocked Boy Down

"He let loose with a pile-driver and knocked the boy right across the sidewalk," was the way R. A. Gibson, DeLaval employee described the assault when called to give evidence. Gibson was sitting in his car, he said, and was an eye-witness of the affair. He said he had noticed two or three Air Cadets waiting near the entrance of the Sea Cadet hall and at the same time saw two soldiers, one of them very much under the weather and the other not so bad, walking along the street.

Then he saw the drunken soldier start to take of his tunic. His companion tried to stop him but the soldier took off the tunic, walked back to the boys and struck one of them in the manner he described.

"He seems to be the man," said Gibson when asked to look at the accused in the dock.

"What provocation was there?" asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"None whatever so far as I could see," replied the witness.

"I don't remember anything of what happened on the street," Pte. Davis stated.

First Offense

Lieut. Joseph Dunkerley of the Military Training Centre said that Davis had been there for six or seven weeks and had caused no trouble. "He has been a good soldier," declared the witness who said that he had examined the accused's military record and had found that he had never been charged with being drunk. He added that Davis had just been released from hospital on the day of the assault and it was possible that the beer he had consumed had had more effect upon him on that account.

Magistrate Langley pointed out that the case had taken on a different aspect as a result of the later evidence. The impression he had got on Saturday was that the boy's jaw was nearly fractured and that four teeth had been broken off.

"It's still bad enough," he added, "but I think that in view of the man's previous good record and the fact that he had been drinking I can let him of with a fine instead of a jail sentence." Magistrate Langley then imposed a fine of $15 and $4.75 costs on the assault charge. Davis, whose home is in Red Deer, Alta., had been fined $10 and $2.50 costs on Saturday on a drunk charge.

The fines were paid and the soldier taken back to the Military Training Centre.

Sgt. W. Whitnell Back In Canada

SGT. W. WHITNELL

Sgt. William T. Whitnell, who has been serving overseas for the past two-and-one-half years, has returned home and is now instructing at Petawawa. He is the eldest son of Mrs. Mary Whitnell, 356 Stewart street, and before enlisting in July 1940, was employed in the porcelain department of the C.G.E.

This soldier found his sojourn in England a pleasant one. He found the food good, although it lacked the variety experienced by Canadians, and the hospitality was excellent. Some of the other Peterborough boys, spent furloughs in Scotland, he said, where they had an enjoyable time.

At the time he left his unit, the men were in top shape and working hard. While Sgt. Whitnell was overseas, he received several parcels and cigarettes from different churches and other organizations, which were appreciated.

His wife and two sons are at present living in Ida.

$1,301,400 Given In Six Days Of Loan Drive

Peterborough city and county subscribed last week $539,450 of their $2,150,000 quota in the Sixth Victory Loan.

Of that amount the general canvass in the city provided $403,000 and the rural general $136,450. Some of the opinion at headquarters was inclined to the estimate that the city general division is making better progress than in the last Loan. This is a little tribute to the men and women throughout the city who are not classified in the other divisions, group payroll; payroll savings; special names; armed forces and so on.

Digging up nearly half a million dollars in six days is an accomplishment for the city general canvass that will attain the divisional total if that rate of subscription can be maintained.

The objective for the city general is $1,550,000, and the amount subscribed at the end of the week was $403,000 or 26 per cent of the allotment. But, the required percentage for the first week was one-third of the total or 33.33 per cent.

Actually the city general canvass is down seven points in the percentage column with one-third of the trip completed.

County $136,450

The county's percentage for the first week is 22.74 or eleven points under the required 33.33.

North Monaghan with 40.25 per cent is moving toward the halfway mark. Ennismore reported weekend sales that put the township in second place with 36.25 per cent.

Smith is in the third position at 33.67 per cent, apace with the campaign percentage for six days; Lakefield is fourth at 26.45 per cent; City of Peterborough general canvass is listed fifth; Havelock sixth; Dummer seventh; Norwood eighth; Otonabee ninth; Belmont-Methuen tenth and Douro eleventh.

The combined Peterborough general canvass, city and county, is 25.09 per eent of its objective.

In Striking Distance

According to headquarters summary this morning Peterborough had subscribed from all sources during the first week of this Sixth Victory Loan campaign $1,301,400, or 29.92 per cent of the alloted $4,500,000.

The list credits special names group with $300,000 or 21.44 per cent of their quota of $1,400,000.

Payroll Savings section is among the leaders with 47.77 per cent, and the restless total in this division will be more than that by the time some other first week figures are added to the accumulated amont.

Sgt. D. J. Beath Dies In Italy

Three Peterborough men, Harold, Gordon and Bud Beath, who had been looking forward to their brother's return from Italy, shortly, received word within the last few days, that Sgt. Donald James Beath, had been killed in an accident there.

Sgt. Beath, 32, is from Smiths Falls and he had spent three Christmasses overseas while serving with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps. Because of his long service overseas, his last letter contained the news that he expected to return to Canada on furlough soon.

Formerly employed in a Smiths Falls garage, this soldier enlisted in 1940 and served in the position of a master mechanic in Italy. Sgt. Beath wrote home in glowing terms of the beautiful scenery in England and Scotland, describing it as something which he had not found in any other part of the world.

One of eleven children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beath, Smiths Falls, Sgt. Beath is the first one to have died. Two brothers are serving with the forces, WO. Ted Beath an observer with the R.A.F. in India, and Jack, training with the Navy in Canada. The other six brothers are Harold, Gordon, Bud, of Peterborough; Douglas, Allan and Kenneth of Smiths Falls. There are also two sisters, Mrs. S. Hughes of Smiths Falls, and Miss Jean Beath of Toronto.

Brinton Carpet Reach Total $925 For Fund

When the aerial blitz first commenced against the British Isles, every good hearted person in this land felt considerably concerned, the attacks being of such a nature as to cause a great deal of resentment for the wanton attacks made on an innocent civilian life, at a cost far exceeding that of the active service forces.

Like all other things good or bad, if they continue long enough, people become accustomed to their effects and lose that genuine human feeling to some extent, so that such an occurrence as a German raider dropping a bomb on a shelter in a South coast English town such as occurred on Wednesday, with the resultant cost of much human life, passes by with little note, in spite of the fact that it is just as bad in 1944 as it was in 1941.

To the great credit of the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co., Ltd., it can be truly said they have never lost sight of the need that this would occasion, and keeping needs of these unfortunate people constantly in mind, they have established what is a record in the annals of the history of the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund for a continuous work on behalf of these sufferers, this being borne out by the fact that to-day sees their 71st contribution listed to their credit, making a total of $925.00 given for this one cause to date, a per capita average per employee, which is among the best for this particular assist to the war effort.

There is every reason to believe that in the not distant future they will attain the four figure mark, and it can readily be seen that they are playing their full share in upholding this city's motto, "Labore Vincimus," We conquer by labour.

Small Coins Play Big Part.

Nothing perhaps emphasizes more that the smallest of individual effort, may in a large co-operative way prove of great assistance to any movement that it backed by a popular desire to be of some help, than the penny boxes which are making their mute appeal throughout the city.

At the last count well over $2,100 had been collected for the fund in this manner, the vast majority of which was in the very smallest coins of the realm, the secretary of the fund having counted and rolled in the hundreds of thousands of coins to make that amount.

The latest addition to this one effort managed by the fund itself with the kind co-operation of some of the business men of the city, comes from the box located at the Zeller's Store which amounted to $2.05, same being credited in today's list also.

Bowlers Show Enthusiasm For Year's Plans

Before the biggest crowd ever to gather at a spring meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, the committees who have been doing such a tremendous amount of work to make this 15th anniversary year a record one, were given the green light. So completely in harmony were the bowlers with the work done by the committees that Fred Dearborn moved a vote of thanks to the board and the committees for their splendid work. This motion was passed unanimously.

President P. Moore presided, and he said that while the meeting was called by the chairmen of the different committees, he felt it his duty to give a brief outline of the work accomplished during the winter months. He recalled how some who were with us last season had passed on and asked the bowlers to stand, with bowed heads, in memory of the late James Baird, S. A. Archibald, and E. Frost. He thanked the boys for coming out, and then turned the meeting over to the different chairmen.

Harold Freeman, chairman of the Games Committee gave an extensive account of the work done by his committee. He went over the work and explained any changes and why the changes were made. Robert Hendry, vice-chairman, backed the chairman up in every detail and then went on to give a full account of how the committee intends to run the Friday night tournaments.

Ken Sloane, co-chairman with R. Payne of the Membership Committee, thanked all who had helped to make it possible to have 41 rinks a decided increase over last season. He said it was the co-operation he had received that did the trick. R. Payne spoke along the same lines. Mr. Payne said he believed that the ladies' section is also showing a nice increase, in fact, it has 22 completed rinks.

Ross F. Downey of the Special Tournament Committee, advised all and sundry to get their entries in early for the July 1 tournament—32 is the limit.

B. Chesler spoke on behalf of the Greens Committee, but he said it was a little too early to say much. He said it all depended on the weather.

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion, but as all present seemed to be well satisfied with what had been done, this record meeting was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

Sixty Families Are Moving Within The Week

Sixty Peterborough families will be settled down under roofs new to them when the tide of Maytime moving subsides at the end of the week.

And, according to the truckers, these families have houses, apartments or rooms to accomodate them, more or less satisfactorily in change of tenancies that has been more extensive than was generally anticipated.

Enquiries by the Examiner during the week end elicited the information that no actual hardships are entailed in the residential transfers which seem to have reached their numerical during the last few days, but that the shortage of homes is becoming acute.

Probably the total of sixty may be slightly in excess of the actual facts of moving, but the total seems to be close to that number.

A canvass of the truck and van motive industry was as follows:

Ed Cooney: Five families in two days and ten by the end of this week.

Hugh Davis, Capitol Cartage: Eighteen families in the last three days; and eight or nine booked for the week.

N. H. Bradley: Two moving today; one long distance; and five families on the books for the rest of the week.

Eddie Reid: Moving five families, and have turned down a dozen others; not storing any more furniture; no more available room.

Evans White: Have moved eight or ten; but have not accepted any other business for these next few days.

These reports indicate the general moving activity in Peterborough, and the truck men say that in other experience they have not found any extreme instances of housing hardship.

It is understood that some families have had to move into rooms, and that fortunately there has been accommodation or everybody although it has been acceptance by necessity of whatever arrangement could be made. In most cases moving has been caused by the sale of homes and notification to tenants within the time stipulated to landlords.

Mayor Hamilton has had appeals to him for actual separate housing, and the volume of moving these last few days reflects a need of houses that has been only temporarily satisfied.

A $100 loan repaid in twelve monthly instalments of $9.46 each—a total of $113.52—costs $13.52. If repaid in six monthly instalments a $100 loan costs only $7.10. Charges on loans of more than $300 were recently reduced. Notice that a $500 loan repaid in four monthly instalments costs only $22.40. Payments shown in the table include both principal and costs. You pay nothing more. We have no hidden charges of any kind.

This very handsome beret is of the more formal variety and is of white straw cloth smartly manipulated and dramatized with a black satin bow and filmy black veil. One of the season's smartest berets!

The sacred sing-song, a regular feature of the Sunday evening entertainment at the Uptown Recreation Centre, was highlighted with two special numbers this week. Miss Dorothy Cunningham, of Orillia, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. T. H. Cunningham, sang "The Lights of London Town," and Capt. V. Graham and Mrs. C. Norman sang several duets. Pte. THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, May 2

A PARTICULARLY lively and active day is foreseen by the predominant astral operations. A swift grasp of openings and lucrative ventures may lead to progessive and productive culminations, with lasting and secure foundations. Nevertheless this course of action may be incited by a sudden and abrupt undermining of old and flagging situations. This may demand a quick about-face, with decisions made without faltering or bickering, as radical and far reaching issues may be at stake. With good judgment there is promise of cooperation from public bodies or by secret understandings with large interests. Travel, agencies, and contacts call for sound decisions.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a particularly lively and eventful year, in which excellent opportunities for fruitful and productive years ahead depend on swift and shrewd decisions and movements. An abrupt and surprising turn in affairs, possibly of radical and undermining character, allows for no dallying or long drawn out decisions. Positive and definite operations may be supported by public or group bodies or by secret or behind the scenes agreements. New contracts are in order, with travel, change, of much stirring about, but profitably and happily if cleverly managed. Much pleasure for young people.

A child born on this day may be active, energetic, fond of change and travel, and will be successful if its far vision, intuition and versatility be brought to bear on upsetting and sudden reversals.

DOROTHY DIX

ONE METHOD TO IMPROVE MATE

Switching Appeasement Reported Successful But Love Needed or Backfire May Result

DEAR MISS DIX: I have succeeded in changing a selfish, careless and indifferent husband into one who is considerate, unselfish and one of the easiest persons in the world to live with. And I pass on this tip to other wives.

There was a time when I went out of my way to avoid doing anything that might annoy my husband. I exerted myself to appease him in every way. But nothing that I did ever suited him. He always found fault with me. So I quit trying to please him and changed my tactics. I do what I please and no longer cater to his desires, and strangely enough he is now trying to appease me. Habits that I have been trying to break him of for years have disappeared. Certain things that menaced our marriage have become unimportant to him and he, himself, states that the only thing that means anything to him now is his marriage to me.

My experience has proved that we are very contrary creatures. I feel that my idea would work on any careless man if he still happened to love his wife, but if the spark has died completely I would not guarantee any successful results. What do you think of my method?

A NOW CONTENTED WIFE

ANSWER: I have been told that even lion tamers disagree on whether kindness or the whip is the better way of breaking the spirits and teaching the beasts to jump through a hoop, and doubtless the same problem as to which is the better method applies to housebreaking a husband.

But the catch in your recipe for bringing a husband to heel and making him realize what a jewel he has in his Maria is that it depends upon his still being in love with her, although he doesn't give her any indication of it. Such being the case, it would be a dangerous experiment for Maria to undertake, unless she is a mind-reader and gifted with occult powers. For if she guessed wrong, she would no doubt lose her husband and her good home and shopping ticket, which are not to be sneezed at in these days of the high cost of living.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in the army, but am stationed close enough to my home to be able to come to it for week-ends. All the week I am surrounded by people. Everything is the eternal grind of nerves. And I long for nothing so much as peace and rest and to be alone with my family. But from the minute I come home until I leave, the house is flooded with visitors who put me through a questionnaire about things that I cannot talk about.

My experience is that of all the service men who go on furloughs. Is there any way that these good, kind people who mean so well and who treat us so ill, can be made to see how we long to be left ALONE?

G. I. JOE

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER: I fear not, for even the soldier's own families do not realize this. They are so proud of their boys in the service and so anxious to show them off that they make martyrs of them. I know of one case of a boy who came home on a furlough to find out that his mother had scheduled his every minute so that he did not even have time to go to see his girl.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: At 18 I was hopelessly in love with a young chap who has since married and has a family of his own. Every man I met after that suffered by comparison, but finally I married a man I did not love on the rebound.

Now after a couple of years of marriage I realize my mistake, and am wondering whether I should get a divorce. But I find myself hesitating for two reasons. First, it seems ruthless to make my good husband suffer for my mistake. Secondly, I am now 30 and may never meet a man who would rouse in me the same ardor that I felt at 18. What would you advise me to do?

ANSWER: I would advise you to realize that 18 and 30 are twelve million emotional miles apart in a woman's life. You can never bring back a day that is dead, or love again with the wild abandon of girlhood. Forget this early romance and stick to the good, kind husband who loves you.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

For May Day we are going to start our column off with some recipes for small cakes. When a caller drops in unexpectedly in the afternoon, it is so nice to serve a cup of tea and piece of cake, or a piece of fancy bread or roll. It seems so much more sociable and makes the call so much more friendly. I think there is nothing nicer for an occasion of this kind than some nice little cakes dipped in some kind of icing, then in nuts, and you can always have these on hand. Today I am starting out with Genoese pastry, ideal for dipped cakes.

Genoese Pastry

3 eggs, ½ cup sugar, ¾ cup flour, 1-3 cup melted butter, a little salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, lemon or almond extract.

Method:

Break eggs into top of double boiler and beat until light with dover beater; add sugar and beat well. Place over hot water on the fire and beat 15 minutes, keeping water just below the boiling point. Mixture should be very light and fluffy. Beat in butter, then flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Add flavoring. Pour into buttered tins about two inches deep and bake in moderate oven. When cool cut into strips, squares, triangles or any fancy shape. Ice, dip or decorate.

Dipping Small Cakes

1. Cake should be 24 hours old before being dipped or decorated.
2. Cut with sharp knife into desired shapes.
3. Cover with butter icing, quick icing or melted fondant.
4. Decorate with chopped or whole nuts of any kind.
5. Cocoanut, candied cherries, citron peel cut in fancy shapes, or angelica.
6. Small portions may be scooped out of the centre of cakes and centre filled with any fancy filling.

Queen Marguerites

1 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons boiling water, 2 egg whites, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 5 marshmallows cut in small pieces, 2 tablespoons shredded cocoanut, 1 small cup nuts, 1 box saltines.

Boil the sugar and water until it forms a soft ball in cold water, add the marshmallows. Pour this gradually into stiffly beaten egg whites, stirring constantly, then add vanilla cocoanut and nuts. Place a little of this on each saltine and slightly brown in hot oven.

Royal Fans

2 cups flour, ½ cup brown sugar, ¾ cup butter. Mix and sift 2 cups flour and ½ cup brown sugar. Work ¾ cup butter into first mixture, using tips of fingers or wooden spoon. Roll to 1-3 inch thickness and shape with fluted round cutter. Cut each piece in quarters and crease with the dull edge of a case knife to represent folds of a fan. Brush over with yolk of egg diluted with ¾ teaspoon water. Bake in slow oven. Butter is the only shortening that can be used.

Sand Tarts

1 cup butter, 1½ cups yellow sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon milk, 1 cup currants and raisins mixed and chopped, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves. Flour to roll as soft as possible. Add chopped nuts if desired.

Cream butter and sugar, add eggs well beaten and soda dissolved in milk. Then add to dry ingredients. After rolling out, sprinkle the surface with sugar, roll the pin over it very lightly, cut out and bake.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly, wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday

by Martha Logan

"After-the-Show"

Serve the Service Men something piping hot before they shove off for camp

Informal "after-the-show" suppers call for something piping hot these days, especially if the men on the party have to hustle off a little later for their service barracks. They'll be in fine fettle for parade next day if you top their evening with delicious frankfurters or hamburgers in barbecue or tomato sauce. The big point in favour of serving these hot dishes is that you can prepare them in the morning, re-heating them just before the guests sit down to the table. As a matter of fact both dishes improve in flavour with the double simmering. If you have only a tiny apartment, set your food out on a buffet and let the guests help themselves. But if you are lucky enough to have a good old-fashioned kitchen, let the boys come out and get their food. Wrap one of them up in your most capacious apron and put a chef's cap on his head. He'll get a kick out of serving his friends who'll line up with outheld plates. Let him dish out the frankfurters or hamburgers direct from the stove, pouring thick barbecue sauce over them.

MARTHA LOGAN'S BARBECUE SAUCE

2 medium-sized onions
2 tbsps. vinegar
2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cayenne pepper
¼ cup catsup
1 tsp. chili powder
1 cup water

Shred onions. Mix all ingredients together in saucepan. Cover and simmer about 45 minutes.

To Use Stores

KITCHENER, May 1 — (CP).—Mayor Joseph Meinzinger has suggested that a government official be brought here to supervise the conversion of vacant stores and factories into temporary homes to relieve the critical housing situation. Although the situation is bad now, he said it will get worse because at least 800 workers are needed to fill jobs in war factories here.

Port Hope Team Wins At Cricket

On Saturday, a record early date for cricket, the Peterborough-Whitaker Club went to Port Hope to play T.C.S., one of the oldest established matches in their schedule. Luckily there was a welcome change in the weather and the game was played under favorable conditions.

Though none of the local team had had any practice they made a good show, being eventually beaten by 123 for 8 wickets (declared) to 60.

The School batted first and did not fare too well against the bowling of Dyer, Wild and Colbran, losing 7 wickets for 67 runs. However the tail-enders scored freely. With the total at 102, Ingham (19) retired. Parker scored a quick 29 not out, including a 6, two 4's and three 3's, and received good help from Higginbotham, 11 not out, and the innings was declared with the total 123 for 8. Dyer took 3 wickets for 45 and Colbran 3 for 35.

The Club made a disastrous start against some good bowling by Higginbotham, and had six wickets down for 14. F. Dyer and Colbran improved matters and J. Parry and R. Haworth played useful innings, and the total reached 60, with Capt. Dyer top scorer (19). He went in with the score at 14 and stayed till it reached 49. Higginbotham had the fine analysis of 6 wickets for 13.

Next Saturday the Club play Grove School at Lakefield.

Babe Ruth Seeks Managing Job

NEW YORK, May 1—Give Babe Ruth a big league managerial chance and the big boy would come back to baseball in a minute.

He said so himself at LaGuardia Field, where he was interviewed before taking off for Indianapolis to appear on a government radio program.

The former home-run king, who has been visiting veteran's hospitals and doing other war work, commented that he expected more big league players would be called by the draft. But, asked if he would like to be out there swinging, he grinned:

"No; my eyes and legs couldn't take it."

WINNIPEG, May 1—(CP)—Rfm. S. (Honey) Waite of Toronto, Pacific Command's brown bomber, last night blasted out a convincing 43-second knockout over Pte. Inky Ingenthorn of Linacre, Sask., in the lightweight open division to highlight the Canadian Army, Western Canada boxing finals here.

Winners of the 14 divisions will go to Ottawa for the Canadian Army Dominion finals May 15.

Americans Give Cricket New Touch

LONDON, May 1—(CP)—The recent debut of a cricket team of the U.S. army air forces drew politely reserved comment today from the London Times and Morning Telegraph. The Americans lost 150 to 67.

Doubting whether to call the Americans' performance "dynamic" or "bright," the cricket correspondent of the Times submitted that "it was certainly enthusiastic and cheerful and eminently audible."

The Telegraph reported, "The Americans introduced a novel technique into the game when fielding. They kept up a running commentary among fieldsmen interspersed with critical advice to batsmen."

19 People Perish In Transport Crash

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., May 1 — (AP). — Nineteen mangled bodies were removed last night from the wreckage of a Navy transport plane which crashed early yesterday 30 miles south-east of this mountain town, killing or injuring all of 23 men aboard.

The Coconino County Sheriff's Office definitely identified the plane after establishing short wave communication with a rescue party of deputies and naval officers from Winslow, Ariz.

Sheriff Peeny Francis said two of the four injured men who survived the crash wandered to a ranch and later were removed to a Flagstaff hospital. The other two, one critically hurt, were found at the scene and brought here in an ambulance.

Searchers spent most of the day battling through muddy roads and wilderness-locked terrain in an effort to reach the wreckage.

SIMPLE PLAYS VITAL

NO AMOUNT of skill with the complex and fancy plays can ever make up for failure to use the simple ones properly. Many more points are swung, either favorably or unfavorably, by the way ordinary plain devices are employed than by the various types coups, end-plays and squeezes. One of the most important of these is the play called "splitting honors." There are times when this should be done, but in a case of doubt the best action is that which will pay dividends the majority of the time.

North: ♠ 8 5 2 ♥ A 7 5 ♦ K 9 2 ♣ A 8 4 3
West: ♠ J 9 7 4 ♥ 9 3 ♦ Q J 10 4 ♣ Q J 6
East: ♠ A 10 6 3 ♥ 10 8 6 ♦ A 7 6 5 ♣ 7 2
South: ♠ K Q ♥ K Q J 4 2 ♦ 8 3 ♣ K 10 9 5

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

It took the defenders no time at all to collect their "book" of three tricks on this rubber bridge hand, with two in diamonds and the spade A. East then laid down the diamond A to drop the K, and South ruffed it. Three high trumps settled the outstanding ones, and South's only remaining problem was avoidance of a loser in clubs.

There were several ways to seek this break. One was to try to find the queen and jack as a doubleton in one hand, and drop them by means of the A and K, but the odds were heavily against that. Another was to try to drop a singleton honor in the hand of one defender and then finesse against the remaining honor in the hand of his partner. The third try was to play them as both being in the same hand, guarded, but counting on their holder refusing to split his honors. South decided to try this last method, first because East had shown two aces and West might hold any other outstanding honors, and second because West was none too sound a player.

So South led his club 5. West played the 6 because he had heard about "second hand low," the old Whist maxim. The 8 was played from dummy and won. Now the contract was safe. If West had put his club J on the 5, the setting trick would have been assured.

What error might a careless declarer make on this deal to cause defeat of his 5-Spade contract by one more trick than necessary after he ruffs the second diamond?

Boy "Borrows" Car To See Girl

LINDSAY, May 1—(ENS)—Irwin Powell, a young farm hand living near Sebright, was given one year's suspended sentence by Magistrate Gee following the charge of theft of his employer's car, which charge was later reduced to one of taking the car without the owner's consent.

Powell's parents, who lived estranged in Toronto, both appeared in court. Mrs. Powell retained A. T. Lacey for the defence of her son, while Mr. Powell retained Mr. S. Pitts, barrister in Toronto.

Evidence showed that the youth had taken Mr. W. Flemming's motor car on a trip to Sebright, then to Orillia and Toronto, where he called on his girl and also his father. The father secured gasoline and sent the son back home with the car to the owner. In the meantime Orillia and Beaverton police picked up the young man and then turned the case over to Provincial Officer W. H. McBrien, as the offence happened in Victoria county.

TWO-WAY SMASH AT NAZI FORTRESS FORECAST — Persistent reports indicate that simultaneous smashes will be made by the Russians and the Allies when D-Day's signal sounds. And here is shown the boundary referred to as Hitler's "inner fortress," which soon may be cracking in several places. Even as the Reds pause, making ready for a terrific spring drive, they are at the very wall of the fortress and are expected to hit at vital Lwow, rail-gate to Warsaw and Berlin. The Allies must crack the heavily fortified coast line and break through many divisions of Germany's outstanding troops. Meanwhile the pre-invasion poundings from the air continue to knock out Nazi air strength, cripple rail lines and arms factories, and make ready for the invasion.

Direct Voting Favored For Canadian Soldiers

OTTAWA, May 1 — (CP) — The Commons committee on the Dominion Elections Act said in a report presented to the House last week that it believed direct voting in a Federal election would be more satisfactory to the majority of those in the armed services rather than voting by proxy.

The committee recommended detailed arrangements to enable Canadian electors on war service to exercise their franchise at a general election. These arrangements are contained in draft "Canadian war service voting regulations, 1944" presented to the House.

The committee said the procedure set forth in the regulations should be used at a general election during the present war and within a period of six months thereafter.

Other recommendations were:

1. That the special returning officers for the overseas vo ing terriories be appointed at least two months before the issue of the writs ordering a general election. If this was done, there would be no need to extend the period between the issue of the writs and polling day, usually 60 days.

2. That every person on active service who becomes a prisoner of war shall be entitled to vote by proxy on a special certificate issued by the chief electoral officer, Jules Castonguay. Such certificate would be issued not earlier than two weeks before polling day to the person recorded as next of kin of the prisoner, provided the next of kin is qualified to vote as a civilian elector.

3. That during the war period the date fixed for the close of official nomination of candidates be the 28th day before polling day.

4. That the returning officer for each electoral district after 3 p.m. on nomination day communicate to the chief electoral officer the names of all candidates nominated.

5. Not later than the Monday following polling day, the chief electoral officer by telegram shall advise the returning officer in each electoral district of the total of votes cast by war service electors, in every voting territory established within and without Canada, for each candidate in his electoral district. The returning officer will deal with this telegraphic report as if it were a statement of a poll received from a deputy returning officer.

6. That the time at which the returning officer for each district adds up the number of votes cast for the candidates shall not be later than Tuesday, the eighth day after polling day.

7. That if the result of the active service vote has not been sent to the returning officer on the date for the final addition of the votes, he shall adjourn the proceedings to a future date.

Bengal Governor Very Confident

NEW DEHLI, May 1 — (CP) — Governor R. G. Casey of Bengal told a press conference today that British Commanders were fully confident of Allied ability to blunt the present Japanese drive on Assam, and eventually to throw the invaders back beyond points where the campaign against India was launched.

He said he had conferred at length with both Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied Commander in coutheast Asia, and Gen. Sir George Giffard, Commander of the 11th Army group.

"As a result of these conversations I personally am confident about the outcome of fighting along the Burma frontier, and I entertain no fears about the Japanese menace to Bengal," he said.

Mr. Casey said the Commanders envisioned an Allied counteroffensive passing through two phases: First, "Complete defeat" of the main enemy forces, and second, a series of actions designed to mop up pockets of resistance which the Japanese usually leave behind.

"This naturally is expected to require some time," the Governor added.

He declared that the Japanese thrust had not affected the morale of the general populace of Bengal.

The Governor disclosed recent measures have produced surplus rice in Bengal, and expressed confidence that a recurrence of famine could be avoided. He said a large amount of new railway equipment, including locomotives and rolling stock, as well as a wide variety of powered watercraft, were needed for distribution of foodstuffs. He said the government was looking to the United States as a source where this equipment can be purchased.

Son Contests Father's Will

LINDSAY, May 1 — (ENS) — A case of considerable interest was tried before Judge J. A. McGibbon, Judge of the Surrogate Court of Victoria County in connection with the last will and testament of Joseph Stevenson, a farmer who resided in the township of Harvey, but who died at the home of his daughter, Martha Davis, in the township of Emily, January 9 1943.

By his will dated December 31, 1941, Mr. Stephenson's entire estate was left to the daughter and subsequently following the death of Joseph Stephenson, his son, Henry Lorne Stephenson, of Bobcaygeon, contested the probate of the bill on the grounds that his father was 85 years of age at the time the will was drawn up and lacked testimentary capacity because of disease of body and mind. Evidence was presented to the court as to the condition of Joseph Stephenson for two days whereupon a settlement was made dividing the property between the son and daughter in accordance wtih the minutes of settlement filed.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., of Peterborough, appeared for Mrs. Davis and C. G. Frost of Lindsay appeared for the son, Henry Lorne Stephenson.

Victory Loan Slumps Six Millions

Purchasers Increase But Total Shows Quite a Drop

OTTAWA, May 2—(CP)—A total of 136,871 Canadians yesterday bought $61,911,500 worth of the $1,200,000,000 Sixth Victory Loan, bringing the cumulative total at the end of the first day of the second week of the three-week drive to $481,244,050, Loan Headquarters announced to-day.

Loan Headquarters said that while the number of individual purchasers continued to increase the total sales were $6000,000 down compared with the same period of the Fifth Victory Loan.

For the same day in the last loan, 128,136 buyers purchased a total of $70,135,000 making the cumulative total in that loan approximately $487,000,000. Of yesterday's total, $27,678,000 was purchased by individual Canadians and their total now stands at $192,967,850. Large buyers purchased $34,233,500, bringing their total to $288,347,700.

"When the Loan started, it was necessary for the individuals to buy at an average rate of $33,500,000 daily to reach the $604,400,000 which they achieved in the last loan," a loan official said. "So far, individual purchasers have averaged only $27,500,000 daily. This means that individuals at this stage in the loan are about $42,000000 below the average daily total required. To reach the last loan aggregate, they must now purchase an average of $37,400,000 daily."

The loan as a whole, however, is above the daily average required to reach the minimum objective of $1,200,000,000. About 34 per cent of the canvassing time has elapsed. Buyers have reached about 40 per cent of the overall minimum objective. Individuals, however, have purchased only 35 per cent of their total in the last loan.

Large Sums

Large subscriptions reported yesterday included Manufacturers' Life Insurance Co., Toronto, $8,000,000; Aluminum Co. of Canada, Ltd., and its Canadian Subsidiary Companies, $4,000,000; Canadian Cottons, Limited, $1,570,000.

At the end of the first week of the loan 167 plants in Ontario had

Blamey Claims Story Distorted

LONDON, May 2 (CP)—Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, Australian Commander-in-chief, commenting today upon a statement by Lt.-Gen. Gordon Bennett that Gen. Blamey had forced him out of the Australian Army, said Gen. Bennett was placed on the reserve officers' list at his own request.

Upon his retirement from the army yesterday, Gen. Bennett, who escaped from Singapore after its capitulation in 1942, issued a statement in Sydney, Australia, in which he said Gen. Blamey refused to give him operational command. The statement said Gen. Blamey told Gen. Bennett he would not get such a command because he was associated with the failure to hold Malaya and because his "escape from Singapore was ill advised."

Gen. Blamey, in London to attend the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference, said:

"I am not prepared to enter into a public controversy over Bennett who has been placed on the reserve officers' list at his own request. The interview between Bennett and myself, as published in today's London papers, is gravely distorted. It will be noted that Bennett took no action in the matter until I had left Australia for London."

Tragedy Again

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y., May 2 —(AP).— When an army fighter plane crashed in a street here in 1941 after its pilot parachuted to safety, Mrs. I. Arthur Kramer saw her daughter, three-year-old Georgine, burned to death by flaming gasoline. Yesterday Mrs. Kramer fell down a flight of stairs in her home while carrying in her arms her second child, Louise Ann, 13 days old. The child died of a fractured skull. The mother was uninjured.

Britain Opposes Negotiated Peace With Huns

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP) — Most Rt. Hon. Cyril Forster Garbett, Archbishop of York, today attended a meeting of Toronto ministers of several communions after delivering his first public address on Canadian soil last night at St. Paul's Anglican Church.

Dr. Garbett said in his St. Paul's address that the people of Britain for the way Canada has stood by the mother country in the last four years.

Earlier at a press conference he told reporters that "opinion in Britain is dead against a negotiated peace" and added that the war "must be fought until Nazism is destroyed."

The Archbishop, who arrived here yesterday afternoon from Chicago for a week's visit to Canada, met the press following a reception given by Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Albert Matthews at Queen's Park.

The Anglican Prelate declared that any public personage in the United Kingdom who suggested a negotiated peace would be quickly thrown out of office. On this matter there was unanimity throughout the country.

Speaks for Russia

He urged a greater understanding between Soviet Russia and the Democratic peoples after the war and suggested an extensive interchange of visits by various groups of people between Russia and the western democracies.

He said that the Malvern conference in England had focussed attention on social problems. The Church had roused the public conscience regard to housing employment and the problems of general social betterment.

In addition to the primate of all Canada, Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen a great body of clergy was present at St. Paul's, including Most Rev. C. A. Seager, Archbishop of Quebec.

After reviewing the difficulties under which the church has operated in England as a result of the war, Dr. Garbett declared that out of the horrors of the struggle had emerged a spiritual awakening that augured well for the future.

"The greatness of a nation must be built on spiritual foundations and not on material foundations," he said. 'Religion is relevant to the life of the whole nation. It has a social message and in Britain today the voice of the church is heard more clearly than ever before in its denunciation of slums and unemployment and its demands for better housing and working conditions."

Three Jap Warships Sunk By Submarines

WASHINGTON, May 2—(AP).—Sinking of a Japanese light cruiser and two Japanese destroyers by American submarines operating deep in enemy controlled waters was announced by the United States Navy today.

In addition, the Navy reported, the American submersibles destroyed seven Japanese cargo vessels, one large tanker, and a large naval auxiliary on their patrols carried out in enemy territory.

Japs Unable To Disturb Road Block

Attacking Forces Lose 1,000 Men In Futile Thrusts

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press War Correspondent

KANDY, Ceylon, May 2—(AP)—Allied air-borne troops have decisively defeated a strong Japanese attempt to break a rail and road block 65 miles southwest of Mogaung in Northern Burma after a three-day battle in which heavy casualties were inflicted upon an attacking enemy force of 2,000 men.

It was the fourth Japanese attempt to wipe out the roadblock, established on the enemy's main supply route from Southern Burma to the Mogaung Valley front, where Chinese-American forces are fighting their way toward Mogaung and Myitkyina.

Field dispatches said the Japanese had succeeded in breaking through barbed wire entanglements fronting the Allied positions but had been driven back after bitter fighting.

Air Commandos joined in the battle, bombing and strafing the enemy close to the perimeter of the Allied defences.

Irritates Japanese

An Allied spokesman said that on a conservative estimate the Japanese have lost at least 1,000 men killed in their unsucessful attempts to smash the road block. This figure, he said, does not include losses from air action.

The road block was likened by a senior British officer to "an irritating hair shirt which the Japanese are trying hard to remove." Casualties, he said, have been at least 10 to one in favor of the Allies.

An Allied communique indicated that Chinese forces were making steady progress in their drive down the Mogaung Valley and announced capture of an enemy strongpoint west of the Mogaung River and south of Warazup. At last reports Allied spearheads were within 30 miles of Mogaung.

In Northern India, meanwhile, the communique noted a marked increase in activity in the Papel area 25 miles south of the Allied base of Imphal. No important change was reported in the Kohima sector 60 miles north of Imphal.

Kohima, which is scattered over a ridge about 5,000 feet high, is composed of Kohima Town, Kohima Bazaar, and Kohima Village The Japanese have been in the village, which lies about a mile from the town, for several days. They occupied the bazaar section north of the town some time ago. They have not been able to penetrate the main box-like defences of the town, although fighting recently was reported in the outskirts.

The road between Kohima is open northward to Dimapur, although the sections nearest Kohima lie within easy range of Japanese guns. The enemy blocked the road southward to Imphal, which has been cut off except by air.

NAPLES, May 2 — (AP). — British and American cigarets in Naples have soared to Black market prices for 65 lire—equivalent to the same number of cents—as a result of tightening of police controls on racketeering merchants; the Allied Control Commission said today. The commission predicted that the black market in cigarettes would be broken this month with the arrival of cigarette paper from the United States.

Spain To Expel Axis Agents From Tangier

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 2 —(AP)—Expulsion of Axis agents from strategic Spanish areas, curtailment of wolfram exports to Germany and surrender of certain interned Italian vessels are among valuable assurances obtained from the Spanish government in return for renewal of American petroleum shipments to Spain, the state department announced today.

In a statement timed to coincide with a British foreign office announcement in London, the department announced that permission would be given for renewal of bulk petroleum loadings by Spanish tankers in the Caribbean and limited package oil shipments from United States ports. These shipments have been under embargo since last February.

This decision by the British and United States governments was reached after long negotiations which resulted in assurances being given by the Spanish government that:—

1. The Spanish government will expel Axis agents from Tangier (Spanish territory in North Africa across the straits from Gibraltar) and from the Spanish mainland, and close Axis consulates and other agencies in Tangier.

1,500 Huns Perish On Red Front

Red Air Force Busy Little Change Along Land Front

LONDON, May 2 — (CP) — A Soviet communique said today that apparently 1,500 Axis troops were slain yesterday in local fighting in Romania and pre-war Poland, but the bulletin reported no essential changes on the long eastern front where the Red Army has been reported massing for a new offensive.

The communique said 600 Germans were killed in attempts to gain ground north of Iasi, Romanian oil centre, and that a battalion of 800 to 1,000 attacking Axis troops was wiped out southeast of Stanislawow and also southwest of Kowel, which is 170 miles southeast of Warsaw. On the basis of the Nazi accounts, the fighting in the Kowel sector was raging only about four miles from the Kowel-Lwow railway connecting two vital German wings in former Poland.

The Russians announced yesterday that long-range Soviet bombers started nearly a score of fires Sunday night in an attack on Brest-Litovsk, fortress city which the Germans captured two days after their invasion of Russia in June, 1941.

The communique said 17 fires were started at the rail junction and that trains carrying troops, ammunition and equipment were left in flames. Brest-Litovsk is 115 miles east of Warsaw.

The Berlin radio reported this morning there had been a flareup of action on the Murmansk front in the Arctic, where it said Soviet attacks in battalion strength had been "partially repelled" after fighting at close quarters.

Strong Russian attacks in pre-war Poland southwest of Kowel were reported smashed today in the German communique. The Nazis asserted also that Red Army thrusts had been beaten off in beseiged Sevastopol between the Dnestr Estuary and the Carpathian mountains, and on both sides of Vitebsk in White Russia.

New Type Of German Airplane

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 2 (CP Cable) — A new type of German airplane, something like a rocket, was reported today by Canadian airmen who hammered railway yards at St. Ghislain, Belgium, last night in a heavy attack described as "highly successful."

The German plane "was a peculiar thing," said FO. Martin Albers of Mirror, Alta., a Lion squadron bomb aimer. "It was something like a rocket that rose to a certain height and then spurted off on a horizontal plane."

Flt.-Sgt. Paul Clancy, Toronto, a Moose squadron bomb aimer, saw the thing, reports: "It pumped into the sky ahead of us before we started our bombing run. There was a yellowish burst of flame and smoke that reared up and then disappeared."

Leading the Canadians on the St. Ghislain attack were Wing Cmdrs. D. S. Jacobs, D.F.C., Toronto, who commands the Goose squadron, W. A. McKay, D.F.C., Vancouver, commander of the Leaside squadron, and R. A. McLernon of Montreal, Alouette squadron commander.

Flt.-Lt. Hal Calder of Montreal, a pilot, praised the way his navigator, FO. Arthur Angus, North Bay, Ont., guided their Moose squadron Lancaster to St. Ghislain after the navigation instruments, including the compass, became unserviceable.

Congestion of R.C.A.F. bombers in the target area gave FO. Keith Porter of Edmonton, a Goose squadron bomb-aimer, some uneasy moments.

"Just as we were running in over the target I noticed one of our own kites close above our starboard wing and another below our port wing," he said. "We were sandwiched in this way when the aircraft above opened it bomb doors ready to release its load. For a minute it looked as though we would get a packet instead of the target."

Premiers Give War Priority At Conference

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 2 — (CP Cable) — Strong indications came today that any action looking to changes in the machinery for commonwealth consultation will be up to the Dominions and that the British government has a "very open mind" and is willing to fall in with any course agreeable to Canada, Australia, New Keland and South Africa.

"We have a pretty elaborate system of consultation now," the spokesman said. He expressed satisfaction with the way the system works, using terms similar to those of Canadian authorities recently in commenting on suggestions for creation of a permanent secretariat or Empire council.

Immigration is listed as one of the Conference subjects and the spokesman said Britain was eager for an Imperial Immigration Policy but would like to see it two-sided, with people coming to Britain from the Dominions as well as leaving the country.

He cited the case of Canadian soldiers who have expressed a desire to remain here after the war.

The spokesman's comments came while the Prime Ministers began to discuss European war plans and indications were that views on inter-Imperial matters would not be exchanged until after the war discussion, which will take some time.

The Prime Ministers considered the war situation after hearing, at their inaugural meeting yesterday, reports from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied invasion commander, and British service chiefs.

Althought the Daily Express and Daily Mail today gave prominence to reports that formations of a permanent Empire secretariat will be an important consideration, authoritative information is that no priority has been given this question. The conference's first business is conduct of the war.

Uninterrupted Aerial Blows Devastating Europe Fire Plane, Chemical Plants

Other Ships Attack 4 Cities In Italy Dealing Two-Way Punch Raids Now Going On For 17 Days

By GLADWIN HILL—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 2—(AP).—American heavy bombers attacked German installations in northern France at midday today carrying the great pre-invasion air offensive into its 18th consecutive day after 1,000 or more heavy bombers assaulted enemy targets by night in France, Belgium, Italy and Germany. About 400 American planes, half of them bombers, were estimated authoritatively to have made today's attack.

Up to 750 heavy British and Canadian bombers flew from England through a cloudness night against German aircraft, chemical, auto and explosive factories and against the rail targets on which the enemy must depend to meet invasion, the Air Ministry announced. The others rose from Italian bases.

Formations of Allied medium bombers and fighters crossed and recrossed the Channel skies in the early afternoon, after the bombers had returned from their mission.

The bombers encountered no German fighters and an unusually small amount of flak.

A communique identified the bombers' target at the Pas-de-Calais area and said all the planes returned.

The operational record from Britain yesterday was around 4,000 sorties (individual plane flights) while Allied planes based in Italy added 1,300 more sorties to the pre-invasion aerial crescendo. Ten planes, including two Canadian, from the British-based night sky fleet failed to return, while two Allied aircraft were reported missing from all daylight and night operations yesterday in the Italian theatre. Two enemy planes were destroyed in the Italian theatre.

The Britain-based planes hit an auto works at Lyon, an airplane repair plant at Tours, and airplane factory and explosive works at Toulouse and rail installations in Chambly near Paris.

In addition to these French targets, the night raiders hit two Belgian rail targets—at Mechelen northeast of Brussels and at St. Ghislain near Mons. They also struck the German chemical centre Ludwigshafen in the upper Rhineland in what evidently was a diversionary operation.

During daylight yesterday, Allied medium bombers blasted rail targets in the Florence and Rome areas and fighter bombers ranged over rail communications along both the Italian east and west coasts and hit motor transport northwest of Metovic in Yugoslavia.

Fire Damages Downeyville Farm

DOWNEYVILLE, May 2 (ENS) — Fire broke out at the house on the Herlihey Farm now owned by Patrick Perdue on Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock.

The house is a modern frame with a large verandah and the fire caught at the corner of the verandah and was burning rapidly when discovered. The alarm was sent in by telephone and in a few minutes about 100 fire fighters were on the scene and with pails it was soon brought under control. The verandah however was badly damaged as everything was so dry it spread on the long grass surrounding the house. The well was close by and the water was drawn up with a rope and pail.

A strong wind was blowing at the time and had it not been seen the large house, with contents and a large driving shed filled with machinery would all have been burned. The occupants of the house were away at the time.

Double Crossed Union Claim In Ford Dispute

WINDSOR, Ont., May 2—(CP)—Workers in the plants of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, have been summoned to attend a meeting tonight to discuss new information received from the National Wartime Labor Relations Board in Ottawa concerning their grievance procedure with the company.

Executives of local 200, U.A.W.-C.I.O., who called the meeting, state the new information is entirely different from what they were given to understand would be sent on to Windsor as the temporary grievance procedure terms pending the negotiation of a new contract with the company. The plant's 14,000 employees have just begun to return to their jobs after being idle for a nine-day period (some of them 10 or 12 days) as the result of a dispute which culminated in a walkout Thursday, April 20

While union officers prepared a statement on their stand, this much was gathered from their comments on the information received late yesterday from Ottawa.

It is far from what the union was led to believe would be the board's terms for grievance procedure.

It favors the company and would only make for further trouble in the plants if union members were returned to work under the board's suggested grievance procedure terms.

"When we agreed to accept the board's proposals for settlement of the tie-up, we were told that our interests would be protected in the grievance procedure which would be handed down. Now, we find out we have been double crossed," one union spokesman said this morning. "We are submitting the matter to our membership."

Patrols Count 677 Dead Japs

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, May 2 — (AP) — Allied airmen and American soldiers are neutralizing Japanese strongholds barring the way from New Guinea to the Philippines, a southwest Pacific headquarters communique indicated today.

Patrols scoured the jungles north of Lake Sentani near Hollandia seeking troops isolated during the invasion of Dutch New Guinea.

Between the landing April 22 and operations through April 30 the invaders counted 677 dead Japanese. The patrol action was designed to insure firm control of the four airfields in the Hollandia vicinity.

Fighters swept the Madang-Hansa coastal stretch of New Guinea, depositing 34 tons of bombs. Naval patrols in the same area shelled Condor point and Manam Island.

Another favorite target—Rabaul, New Britain—again was attacked, medium unitsbombing Raporo airdrome.

Russians Gird Themselves for New Push

Stalin Intimates That Last Great Drive May Carry Reds Into Berlin

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Marshal Stalin has the knack of imparting grim finality to his orders of the day, and the already raw nerves of the Hitlerites must have been raked anew by his May Day pronouncement which presaged the concerted Allied action that will pursue the "wounded German beast" to its lair and "finish it off."

While the Soviet chief was issuing this call to united action, the Red Air Force was administering a pointed reminder of the retribution to come. Brest Litovsk, ancient and strategic city of many war calamities, was heavily bombed. It was there that the new-born Soviet in 1918 accepted harsh German peace conditions "dictated to her by Germany, sword in hand." Moscow has never forgotten that.

Just as there is no doubt that the western Allies are on the verge of delivering the mightiest amphibious attack of history, as it is equally sure the Red armies are girding themselves for fresh onslaughts. The Russian war machine likely will start to roll about the time the Anglo-American-French allies strike, and once it's under way it may well not halt until it is grinding German soil.

There has been a lull in most sectors of the Russian front, the exception being in the Crimea where the Red siege of the great naval base of Sevastopol continues. There are several reasons for this slackening of, none of which means that it is anything more than a temporary pause.

For one thing the Red forces had been fighting so long and steadily that they were due for a breather. It was an opportune moment to take it, since the spring weather has been making military movement difficult. Also the armies would be in need of overhauling and replacements after the terrific grind through which they have passed.

Check Communications

Even more vital would be the necessity of repairing communications which have been extended so far and so rapidly since last summer. The feat of the Russians in making their communications keep pace with their armies in the wild rush over hundreds of miles is one of the war's marvels.

This is particularly true since even where they have captured stretches of railway intact, they've had to relay the tracks. The Russian railroads are on a wider gauge than those of the rest of Europe, and the Germans had relaid the Soviet tracks to conform with their own gauge.

In making all these preparations for new offensives, the Russians must bear in mind that they are about to start the last lap to Berlin, and it will be a long run. Once they've begun they may not find it feasible to pause more than momentarily.

This means that the impending Allied offensives are calculated to be the final decisive attack—the kill. The idea is to give Hitler no rest, once the multiple onslaught starts.

Plan Pre-Fabricated Houses

Steel, Aluminum, Asbestos, Plywood Go Into Houses

LONDON, May 2 (CP)—Bombed out Britons, for whom postwar housing is a vital subject, got their first look today at the pre-fabricated houses Prime Minister Churchill has been talking about.

Five tons of steel and considerable quantities of aluminum, asbestos and plywood go into each of the tiny homes which will house half a million families for 10 years after the war while Britain is rebuilding.

The houses are not intended to be permanent or to be sold. The government will own and license them.

Each house has a living room, two bedrooms, a kitchen, a bathroom, one door, no attic and is proofed against moths and mice. They contain many built-in features and about $320 worth of furniture, including a refrigerator. They are centrally heated.

Prime Minister Churchill said in March that materials for the houses, which accommodate four persons and take four days to erect, were being earmarked to factories for production.

Forecast Balkan Invasion

Tito Sends Military Mission To London

LONDON, May 2—(CP).—Arrival in London of a military mission from headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), Yugoslav Partisan leader, renewed speculation today concerning the possibility of an Allied invasion of the Balkans.

The mission, consisting of a Croat and a Slovene, arrived yesterday.

The Free Yugoslav radio, meanwhile, declared that Maj. Randolph Churchill, who parachuted into Yugoslavia recently, has been touring liberated coastal territory there, establishing contact with Partisan leaders and strengthening their collaboration with the Allies.

The broadcast said the presence of the Prime Minister's son was "a sign of attention and recognition accorded us by our allies and proof of the cordial collaboration between the peoples of the liberation movement and our great allies."

George S. White Condemns Manpower Plan

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, May 2 — (CP)— The Federal Government's handling of compulsory military training regulations drew a barrage of criticism from Opposition benches in the Commons yesterday, with the debate varying from the question of how many draft evaders there are in Canada to how home defence troops should be used.

The Commons, which to-day will hear Finance Minister Ilsley open debate on a Bill amending the Bank Act, heard G. S. White (PC-Hastings-Peterborough) state that if men in the home defence army were needed overseas it was the duty of the Government to see that they were made available for overseas service.

Speaking after J. G. Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said there were nearly 390,000 "missing men" in Canada who failed to respond for compulsory military calls, Mr. White said it was "humiliating" for officers to have to ask the call-up troops to volunteer for active service.

"It is time the Government stopped this farce, this back-door method of recruiting," Mr. White said.

The manpower debate, set off when the House resumed study of war estimates of the Labor Department, followed Mr. Ilsley's introduction of the Bank Bill which was given first reading. Main features of the Bill were:

1. Limiting the right to issue or re-issue bank notes after Jan. 1, 1945, to the Bank of Canada, and providing for the complete retirement of notes of other banks after Jan. 1, 1950.

2. Reduction of the maximum rate of interest or discount from seven to six per cent.

3. Broadening facilities for loans to farmers and fishermen with special provision for agriculture to be made under a separate Farm Improvement Loan Act.

At 5 Per Cent

4. Provision for banks to make unsecured loans at five per cent for a one-year loan repayable in monthly instalments.

5. Transfer of unclaimed bank deposits to the Bank of Canada.

Simplification of the borrowing equipment for certain types of business.

This and other preliminary House business were disposed of before Mr. White stepped into the manpower debate to say what the gov-

British Sub Gets Five Jap Ships

LONDON, May 2—(CP).—British submarines have sunk a Japanese destroyer and four other vessels in recent attacks on enemy supply lines in Asiatic waters, the Admiralty announced today.

In addition, a communique said, two supply ships and an escort vessel were damaged by the undersea raiders, one of which also was credited with bombarding military installations at Port Blair in the Andaman Islands in the Indian Ocean.

The destroyer was attacked and sunk south of the Adaman Islands while escorting a supply ship, which also was torpedoed, the Admiralty said. Another supply ship was reported sunk in the same area while travelling under strong escort.

The other vessels reported sunk included a medium-sized supply ship with a deck cargo of motor transport and two smaller vessels, which were destroyed in Malacca Strait between Malaya and Sumatra.

The submarine which bombarded enemy positions at Port Blair engaged in a brisk duel with shore batteries and escaped unscathed, the communique said. Hits on a small escort vessel were scored by the raider during the action.

QUEEN MARY

An outline of the steps required to make and beautify a rock garden and lily pond, was given to the members of Queen Mary Home and School Association at their meeting Monday evening. A. D. Butcher, representative of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, was guest speaker, and illustrated his talk with colored slides of rock gardens and lily ponds.

Mr. Butcher explained that in planning a rock garden a suitable location must be selected and that it could be either a natural bank, or a bank made in the autumn by fallen leaves, covered with earth. Discussing the choosing of stones, the speaker said that weatherworn stones, with dull finishes, produce the best effect.

Mr. Butcher dealt with the selection of flowers in some detail. He said that although perennial plants meant less work in connection with the garden, the blooming period of these plants was over early. Therefore he advised that some space be left for a few annuals. He also mentioned that wild flowers should not be forgotten, since they came up early in the spring. Other suggestions to beautify the garden, concerned the use of lawn ornaments and the planting of moss that will grow on earth.

Referring to lily ponds, Mr. Butcher assured his audience that they were not an expensive project. He pointed out that oxygen plants and snails kept the water pure, and explained that the plants should be placed in pots or boxes on the bottom of the pool, and the amount of water in the pool increased as they grew.

To conclude his address, Mr. Butcher showed a few autumn scenes of local beauty spots. He also mentioned that the Junior Horticultural Society is sponsoring a sewing competition for girls, and a competition in making lawn ornaments, for boys.

Bombers Return To Smash Port Of Genoa

NAPLES, May 2—(AP). — Allied bombers hit German installations last night at Genoa for the fourth consecutive night while other formations raided the port of La Specia, it was announced today.

While those two objectives were being attacked by mediums, four-engined bombers in other night forays into northern Italy blasted targets at Livorno on the coast and at Allessandria, 50 miles southwest of Milan.

Two Allied aircraft were reported missing from all the day and night operations in the Italian theatre, embracing a total of more than 1,300 sorties. Two enemy planes were destroyed, a communique said.

In daylight yesterday, medium bombers blasted rail targets in the Rome area and fighter bombers ranged over rail communications along both the east and west coasts. Other fighter-bombers hopped the Adriatic and attacked motor transport northwest of Metkovic in Yugoslavia.

A factory and dump at Popoli and a dump near Moricone in Italy were attacked from the air last night.

There was no change in the battle lines aground. The communique said several small enemy raiding parties were repulsed.

However, the question of the secretariat may come later in the general discussion of inter-Imperial matters since Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia is favorable to it. The Canadian Government is not, though, and the subject will not likely be pursued.

The general objective of the conference is exchange of views and no decisions binding on the governments of the Dominions can be made by the Prime Minister alone.

The Daily Express merely said formation of a secretariat to serve as a "head office staff for the Empire" is to be considered but the Daily Mail went farther, saying the subject "began to assume a vital place in the deliberations" and "it became obvious that such a body will have to be set up if there is to be an effective agreement and equally effective fulfilment of a common policy in the world councils."

An official spokesman for the conference dismissed the prospect of the conference seeking a common policy as something open to the suggestion that Britain was imposing policy on the Dominions. He said what it was hoped to obtain was agreement on a line for the British Government to take in world matters. This involved no intention of ganging up against other nations since an effective world order could be based only on colalboration of all

Curtin Meets Press.

Mr. Curtin will be the first of the overseas leaders to meet correspondents at a press conference. This has been arranged for Thursday.

In the House of Commons, meanwhile, Clement R. Attlee, Deputy Prime Minister, announced to-day that BBC is arranging to broadcast Prime Minister Mackenzie King's speech to both Houses of Parliament to suit the convenience of the greatest number of listeners at home and overseas. Mr. Attlee also said consideration was being given to inviting Mr. Curtin and Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand to participate in the same meeting or a similar one.

Britons got a good glimpse of the conference principals in their newspapers to-day. A picture, prominently displayed, showed them seated at a table. Mr. Churchill, puffing a cigar, was in the centre with Mr. Mackenzie King on his right and Mr. Curtain on his left. Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa sat to the right of the Canadian Prime Minister, and Mr. Fraser was at Mr. Curtin's left.

As the conference resumed to-day it was made clear to delegates that the British Government hopes the talks will lead to "approval and agreement" on British policy concerning international settlements after the war.

Bonds Will Buy Helpers For Odd Jobs

Everybody is welcome at the big war bond rally to be held in the Collegiate Auditorium Wednesday evening, when the services of many well-known Peterborough citizens will go to the highest bidders in War Bond pledges. This is the keynote of the "Odd Jobs Auction" a novel and entertaining program arranged in support of Canada's Sixth Victory Loan, and whose success will depend in no small measure upon the turnout which comes to view it. The more people, the more fun—for everybody. It stands to reason.

Actually, the whole darn thing is free. What you pay, $1 for reserve seats at the Victory Loan office, 287 George street or at the door, or 50 cents for rush seats as you go in, you get back in an equivalent amount of War Savings stamps. So what can you lose? It is not necessary to take part in the bidding and buy any bonds; even if you have done your utmost in this respect and feel that you simply can't afford any more, you are just as welcome as the fellow who comes there determined to outbid the rest of the gang and acquire the services of that good-looking blonde waitress or that handsome refined boot black.

Be there and join in the fun. The R.C.A.M.C. military band from Camp Borden, whose ability to give out nobly with the trumpets, trombones, drums and cymbals is well and favorably known in these parts, will start off the program with an hour's concert between 7:45 and 8:45 p.m. Then Stan Francis, whose fame as director of the "Share the Wealth" program needs no explanation to hosts of radio fans, will take over as master of ceremonies, with Jim Wharry and Andy Rutter serving as auctioneers.

Private advices reaching the ears of this reporter have made it clear that Peterborough's experiment in attempting to put its Victory Loan drive well over the top is attracting wide attention, not limited to the immediate vicinity of the city. In fact it was the statement of a publicity man in Toronto that "Your odd-jobs auction is the biggest thing in connection with a Victory Loan to hit Canada yet." Well, maybe he was in an optimistic, generous mood, but it shouldn't be too difficult for the city to prove him right after all and so make the name of Peterborough a by-word whenever the talk turns to the conduct of successful bond drives.

The only other auction of this kind ever attempted to sell war bonds on a large scale was undertaken in Winnetka, Illinois early this year, and it was so eminently successful and aroused so much interest that everybody in the States wanted to know about it and how it was done.

The list of persons who have volunteered their services and expressed a patriotic desire to go under the auctioneer's hammer tomorrow night now nearly totals 50, and between the lot of them they are ready to perform almost every conceivable domestic and odd-job work. They are practicing up like mad and they're all full of pep. Buy a bond and put them to work. But if you can't do that, come anyway and have yourself a good laugh.

Spain To Expel

Release 5 Ships

2. Five of seven Italian merchant ships interned in Spanish waters will be released to the Allies and ownership of the two remaining, along with an unnamed number of Italian warships, shall be submitted to arbitration.

3. All Spanish military forces have been withdrawn from the Axis armies facing the Russians on the eastern front.

4. Wolfram shipments to Germany, under complete embargo since last Feb. 1, shall be resumed at a "drastically curtailed" rate.

It was the aim of the United States government, the Department saiad, to effect a complete embargo on Wolfram shipments to Germany.

But something less than that was agreed upon at the request of the British government which obtains valuable raw materials from Spain.

The hope is entertained, it was learned from official sources, that before the resumed but curtailed wolfram shipments to Germany are of any great value to that country, Allied war strategy will have made the shipments physically impossible.

Resumption of petroleum shipments to Spain will be under the conditions existing when the embargo was enforced in February, calling for inspection and other safeguards to prevent any of it being re-shipped to Germany.

The embargo on petroleum shipments to Spain was applied to support a demand that Spain cease exporting wolfram to Germany. Wolfram exports were stopped at once, according to the State Department announcement. Germany had obtained 300 tons in January of this year and had purchased another 1,000 tons.

Under the new agreement token shipments of 20 tons a month may be made in May and June, and 40 tons a month for the remainder of the year, if Allied military operations have not made shipments impossible.

$100 Fines Given For Operating Pinball Games

Fines of $100 without costs were imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on proprietors of four downtown establishments who had previously entered pleas of guilty to the illegal operation of pinball machines.

The four who were fined this morning were Mrs. E. LeBarr, Charlotte street; Siro ZaZkos, proprietor of Plaza Billiards; Louis Yeotes, Louis Billiards, and E. Shung of the Hollywood Cafe, Charlotte street.

In the cases of Walter McIlmoyle, Charlotte street, and George Dormer, George street, sentence was deferred for a week, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., pointing out that the circumstances were different in these two cases. Evidence in the charge against McIlmoyle was to the effect that there were two machines on his premises and Dormer had pleaded guilty to operating a punch board in addition to the other charge.

In a lengthy judgment Magistrate Langley refused to grant an application made by the crown for the confiscation of the machine that had been seized in the store of Henry Jay, following the raid of the provincial police anti - gambling squad which led to all these charges.

Not Illegal

His Worship, quoting numerous authorities, stated that the machine in itself was not illegal, that the evidence had shown that it was the property of a third party and there was nothing to indicate that the owner was not a person who was innocent of any knowledge of the machine's being used for illegal purposes.

In view of this finding Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., asked that there should be an adjournment in connection with a similar application for the confiscation of the machine found in Dormer store and intimated that he would announce later what he proposed to do in regard to confiscation applications in the other cases.

Evidence was given this morning by Provincial Constables Arthur Collins and James E. Downs of Toronto.

Collects On Winnings

In the LeBarr case Constable Collins swore that he had played the pinball machine, had won four free games and had been paid 20 cents.

To Mr. Carley who defended all the accused the witness said that by the time he had won Mrs. LeBarr had her hat and coat on ready to close the store.

In his argument Mr. Carley submitted that Mrs. LeBarr had been afraid of the officer who came into the store late at night and she had paid him to get rid of him. "If he had asked for a dollar I imagine she would gladly have paid it," said defence counsel.

Results of Play

In the charge against Walter McIlmoyle both provincial officers gave evidence. They said that they had played a twin dice machine as well as a pinball machine and that they had been paid money on each. Constable Collins said that he had seen another man play the pinball machine, win 40 free games and get paid $2 while he himself had won 12 free games and received 60 cents.

In the charge against the Hollywood Cafe, Collins stated that he had four free games and been paid 20 cents while Downs swore that on playing the machine in Plaza Billiards he had won 20 free games and been paid a dollar.

Collins in testifying in the charge against Louis Yeotes said that the machine paid 48 free games. He played three of them off and had been paid $2.25 for the balance.

Mr. Carley commented during the hearing that the constables sent down by the Attorney General had been the parties responsible for breaking the law.

5 Lindsay Plants Reach Objective

LINDSAY, May 2—(ENS)—Stepping into the second week of the 6th Victory Loan, it was announced by local headquarters that several firms have obtained their objectives and gone well over the top. Among the first were: The Northern Casket Company; the John McCrae Machinery and Foundry Co.; Claxton & Co.; the John Carew Lumber Co., and the County of Victoria.

They also give considerable credit to the firm of Knitters Limited, one of the first to reach its objective; and to the officials and employees of the Dominion Arsenal in Lindsay. The employees of the Canadian National Railway, of which there are some five hundred in Lindsay, have been good supporters of the loan.

been awarded three-star honor flags which are given when nine-tenths of the workers pledge 15 per cent of their pay. Among those who placed for this ranking were two of the province's newspapers, the St. Catharine's Standard and the Fort William Times Journal. The latter was also reported to have been the first establishment to receive the "V" honor in the Lakehead unit.

Ontario special names reported a $20,000 subscription by the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America at Windsor, Ont.

The Armed Service total stands at $29,806,250 compared with a combined objective of $27,750,000. Only service over the top is the Army, with $16,520,300 on a quota of $12,750,000. The Air Force has $10,210,050 for 97 per cent of a $10,500,000 quota, and the Navy $3,075,700 for 87 per cent of a $3,500,000 quota.

Put Victory First

We buy Victory Bonds voluntarily because we are a democracy. Totalitarians are not asked to pay for war—they are made to.

Only four county districts reported on Monday and these for a total of $17,450, or just half the necessary daily amount if the Sixth Victory Loan objective of $600,000 in Peterborough county is to be reached.

Smith township has grabbed the lead in the rural field and Gordon Hancock and C. H. Hunter have pushed their total up to $43,100, having now obtained 47.89 per cent of their objective.

North Monaghan failed to move and hence lost its lead. However, they still are a few percentage points above the necessary 38.88 on the day. These two are the only real bright sports in the general canvass field.

Gordon Hancock turned in $8,800 on six sales and C. H. Hunter $3,950 on 11 sales, Peter Mather in Otonabee reported $3,100 on 15 sales and W. H. Giffen $6,450, to Norwood's total of $18,200. Dave Miller and W. Darling reported $5,150, bringing Dummer's total to $11,550, or 38.5 per cent of their objective, only .38 down on the required amount.

In the city the 24 canvassers added to the General Canvass $13,200, compared to $17,450 by six canvassers in the rural area. With buying through the banks the General Canvass in the city advanced $26,950.

The team of Walter Metheral, Jim Juby and Vic Tully reported the largest sales for the day of $4,400, with the team of S. G. Cole, John Lee and W. P. Kinlin reporting $2,500. The remaining six teams were all down in the "chicken feed" bracket when compared to the General Canvass objective of $1,550,000.

Well known to the citizens of North Monaghan are three rather unfortunate individuals, unfortunate in that all are crippled. They are Mr. John Todd and his sister Violet, and their mother, Mrs. Mary Todd of Brown Street. These folks at considerable sacrifice to themselves, always manage to buy bonds—they have never yet missed out on a loan drive and according to J. Arnott, their canvasser, and as far as that goes, according to everyone, they deserve a lot of credit. In spite of their disability, they are very cheerful and live each day to its fullest. They have a small workshop and are capable of doing anything in the line of wood-cutting, making kites, etc. As Mr. Arnott expressed it, "They have a grand little shop and do such marvellous work, and they are so darned cheerful about everything. They just seem to want to do everything they can to put this loan across."

Group Payroll Savings reports:— Grand Hotel—133% of objective, of $1,500. Secured $2,000. 90% participation. Canvass completed. Sunshine Dairy—200% of objective of $500.00. Secured $1,000. 100% participation. Canvass completed.

4-Month Term Given For Stealing Clothes

Four months definite and two months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory was the sentence imposed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on Percy Holland, who pleaded guilty to illegal possession of three shirts stolen from the C.D.S. store.

Constable Percy Sexsmith in giving evidence said that the department had received a complaint about a man who was trying to sell shirts on the street. Witness with Constable W. A. Clarke had arrested Holland, and when they seached him at the police station found three shirts hidden under his coat. They bore C.D.S. tickets, the witness said.

"This man has been a nuisance for a long time," said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., handing over Holland's record to the court.

The accused admitted that in addition to the cases listed he had been convicted here only seven weeks ago on a similar charge and had been sentenced to six weeks in jail.

Fiftieth Year Observed By Oddfellows

MILLBROOK, May 2 (ENS) — The fiftieth milestone in the history of local Oddfellowship was observed Sunday afternoon with a special service in St. Andrew's United church, attended by over two hundred members of the Order, and with the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, Byron E. Dundas, of London, as guest of honor.

Representatives from I.O.O.F. Lodges from Bowmanville, Oshawa, Peterborough, Port Hope, Omemee, Pontypool and other points were present for the occasion, and besides the Grand Master, other Grand Lodge officers included the Grand Marshal, F. Hutchinson, of London, and the Grand Herald, S. Rowe, of Peterborough; the District-Deputy Grand Master, E. J. Padgham, of Bethany, and several other district officials.

Headed by the standard bearer, D. Sheppard, P.G., and the Salvation Army Band of Peterborough, the parade left the I.O.O.F. hall at 3 p.m. A colorful feature, attracting much attention, was the Canton Oshawa No. 11, Patriarchs Militant, which immediately followed the band, and which, upon arrival at the church, formed a guard of honor, allowing the Grand Master, with the Noble Grand of Millbrook Lodge, Rev. A. L. Sisco, and the long line of marching men, to pass through an arch of their drawn swords as they entered the building.

Captain T. Allen was in command of the Canton, other officers being: Colonel George Kerr, Major L. Wilson, Lieutenant C. Lord, and Ensign H. Peever. The Grand Master read the lesson from Matthew 10, and special music included two selections by the male quartette, M. McDowell, B. Ingham, W. Coombe and G. Might, and the offertory anthem, "O Love Eternal," by the choir. The baskets of red roses either side the chancel were provided by the local Lodge, and the words of welcome, on behalf of the session and congregation, and of Millbrook Lodge, to the Grand Master, and the other visiting brethren, were expressed by the minister, Rev. A. L. Sisco.

Speaks on Singan

"For Others" was the sermon theme, the slogan chosen by the Grand Master when elected to office, and the familiar story of the Good Samaritan formed the basis of the appeal to live up to the principles upon which the Order is founded, and which were so fully exemplified in the life "of the Greatest Oddfellow of all, Jesus Christ, Who went about doing good, and Who went to Calvary and suffered death of the cross to redeem the world. We shall meet Him on the road of service," he declared.

Following the parade back to the hall, the Canton went through some of its marching movements, and the visitors were served lunch before leaving for home. The members of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176, their numbers augmented by former members here for the occasion, marched with the Subordinate Lodge into the church and were seated with the Order. The actual date of the half-century birthday is May 1, and the celebration continued on Monday, afternoon and evening.

Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco, whose guest the Grand Master was during his stay in the village, kept 'open house' on Sunday evening, in order that Oddfellows of the district might visit with Mr. Dundas.

Runaway Horse Overturns Wagon On Lawn

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2—(ENS)—A runaway on Sebastopol street at 10:30 Monday morning brought housewives to the street as a milk wagon filled with empty bottles and the tail end of the day's milk supply overturned and shattered with a resounding crash.

Wayne Gunter had been making his deliveries at the west end of the street and when he re-entered the wagon to proceed east the horse suddenly took fright and broke into a run. Unable to bring the animal to a stop as the wagon crashed from side to side Gunter finally jumped out, thus probably saving himself from serious injury. But the horse and wagon continued down the street crossing the sidewalk and finally upsetting on the lawn outside the J. F. Fink residence as the horse turned sharply to regain the road.

Three-year-old Garry West, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jamse West, narrowly escaped instant death as horse and crazily plunging wagon reeled past him where he was playing on the lawn outside him home.

School Children Plant 6,000 Pine Trees

GORE'S LANDING, May 2 (ENS)—Planting of 6,000 white pine trees on Hamilton township's Reforestation project by school children took place recently, with eight schools represented.

The area used for the reforestation project is 25 acres on the 6th concession, southeast of Plainville, over the Beaver Meadow road. Hamilton township councillors were in attendance and Inspector W. H. Carlton of Cobourg also helped with the Field Day in the afternoon.

The ground had been plowed for planting the trees and about 10.30, the children were grouped, and working in relays, the trees were planted in one and a half hours. Only students of Grades 7 and 8 took part in tree planting, accompanied by their teachers.

Sports Run Off

At noon, everyone brought a lunch and afterwards a Field Day was arranged with Rev. Lloyd Delaney of Gore's Landing, in charge of events. Races for boys and girls, from 11 years and under, 12 years, 13 and 14 years respectively were run. A shuttle relay race with 6 to a team was won by S.S. No. 16 (Gore's Landing - Plainville). The tug-of-war was the main event and caused considerable excitement. Six teams competed. Bewdley defeated Harwood, followed by two teams made up of several school entries. S.S. No. 16 defeated Bewdley, and in the finals defeated the combination team. A wheelbarrow race for boys and three-legged race for both boys and girls was followed by refreshments. A ball game was arranged with a picked team from Harwood and Bewdley playing against a picked team of S.S. No. 16 and other schools. The score was 23-20 for S.S. No. 16.

Final points won by the schools taking part in the Field Day were: S.S. 16—47 points; S.S. 18 30 points; S.S. 15—20 points; SS. 13—16 points; S.S. 2—13 points; S.S 1—11 points; S.S. 10—9 points; S.S. 12—8 points.

Utilities Puts $10,000 In War Bonds

COBOURG, May 2. — (ENS).—Cobourg Public Utilities Cimmission voted to buy $10,000 of the present issue of Victory Bonds at its meeting Monday night. At the Fifth Victory Loan the Utilities purchased $3,000 worth. The increase in the amount reflects the excellent financial condition of the utilities.

The secretary announced that no change in the rates could be expected in spite of the betterment of the financial condition. The 13th power bill is above that anticipated, partly due to amalgamation of the Niagara, eastern and central systems. The amount of the 13th bill is a credit of $8,150.33 as compared with $4,364.42 last year. This year's 13th bill is one of the largest in the history of the utilities.

The secretary also pointed out that there was a reduction in the cost of power.

"However the H.E.P.C. tells us to leave the rates unchanged and invest our surplus in Victory Bonds," said Mayor Burnet.

Better Bank Balance.

Secretary Arthur McIntosh went on to point out that there was an increase in the bank balance over last year. No money was being spent on the system than was absolutely necessary and that was something to be met in the future as well as paying off the debenture.

"Until that is done I don't think the rates will change," declared Mr. McIntosh.

Mr. McIntosh was delegated to attend the Aeronautical Society meeting in Toronto this week.

Accounts passed were as follows: Electric Dept.—P.U.C. of Cobourg (wages) $419; Receiver General of Canada, $95.25; postmaster, $44; town of Cobourg, $83.98; Northern Electric, $1.40; Canadian General Electric, $39.99. Total $683.62.

Water Dept.— P.U.C. of Cobourg (wages), $464.31; P.U.C. of Cobourg (Elec. Dept.) $133.08; Canadian Brass Co., $14.19; town of Cobourg $142.73. Total, $754.31.

Bond Auction At Norwood Sets New Record

A fine turnout and some of the briskest bidding that has yet characterized the Sixth Victory Loan's farm auctions sent the War Bond rally at Norwood Monday night over the previous top established in Peterborough last Saturday. Pledges to subscribe to war bonds totalling $39,500 were made by an enthusiastic crowd that jammed Norwood's town hall and overflowed to the street.

The grand total exceeded by $50 the pledges collected at the second auction held in the city, and country residents were justifiably proud of their achievement, sending up three rousing cheers or their equivalent to celebrate the victory when the totals were announced. Auctioning of all the articles, the list of which was similar to that in the first auction at Lakefield, brought in pledges amounting to $39,200; and then additional bids were asked from those persons who had bought sacks of feed, the Quaker Oats guraanteeing to make delivery to their door to any feed-winners who would pledge to purchase one or two more bonds. Bids of $100 and $200 were immediately forthcoming, and Norwood found itself in the position of having nosed out Peterborough in the farm auctions which are helping to swell the total of contributions to the county's 6th Victory Loan campaign.

Highest price paid at the auction and, for that matter, in the three auctions to date, was $6,000, which was brought by a De Laval junior separator. Many other bids in the thousands of dollars were recorded at Monday's auction, which was conducted, as those that went before it, by Gordon Hancock.

Entertainment featuring Graydon Sheldon's orchestra was put on before the main business of the evening got underway, and when the auction was over, the large crowd enjoyed taking part in an old-fashioned square dance.

Tonight at Keene's Town Hall at 8 p.m. will be held the final farm auction, and a wide variety of valuable articles will once again be offered as prizes to the high bidders in pledges for subscriptions to Canada's 6th Victory Loan.

Here's a method that makes budgeting easy and simple—and ends tiresome bookkeeping too!

Special helps for Budgeteers

Everyone who uses the Calendar is invited to join the Budgeteers. Budgeteers receive a new booklet or letter from time to time to encourage them in their efforts. Their letters and questions are always welcome and receive personal answers. Special recognition is given to Budgeteers when they complete a full year of budgeting.

We hope that more and more families will budget their spending during the difficult months ahead. For many years families have been bringing their money problems to us here at Household Finance, oldest and largest Small Loans Company in Canada. Our contact with them has shown us what careful planning can do to make family income go farther. The Budget Calendar itself has come out of this long experience. Bonds After The War

People who can see nothing in the future but death and destruction—there are always a few of these unhappy beings in every community—have been spreading the foolish rumour that when the war is over this country will be so beggared that the government will not be able to meet its obligations, and specifically will not be able to redeem its Victory Bonds. Nothing could be more nonsensical. The rumour was nailed by the Minister of Finance, the Hon. Mr. Ilsley, in a speech which he made last week in Windsor. This is what he said:

"It will be of the greatest importance that we maintain, indeed assure, a ready and stable market for all these millions of bonds that we have sold. We have now the monetary and financial machinery and we have developed the methods for accomplishing this, and we will therefore be able to deal with any situation which may develop in a way which will keep faith with the millions of small investors who are supporting the savings program in this emergency".

We mention this matter simply as one instance of the sort of silly and ill-informed opposition which the Victory Loan campaign is likely to meet. If any of our readers have heard such talk, and have paid any attention to it, we ask them to consider the matter sensibly: is it likely that a country as rich as Canada, and with Canada's proven resourcefulness, will be brought to penury by this war? Only if we lose the war, and we can only lose if we fail to put our best effort into the fight. For many of us, our best effort is represented by the buying of Victory Bonds.

It is disturbing that the Loan campaign in this district is not keeping up to its schedule. So far the lag has not become a matter for serious worry, but unless the slack is taken up during this week it may become so. The lag, as we have pointed out before, is in the General Canvass, the hardest field for the salesman. If you are included in the General Canvass will you make a special effort to invest this week, and keep the Loan moving at its proper pace?

The Empire Premiers Meet

The leading statesmen of the British Commonwealth are gathered in London this week for a conference which should have a great influence on the course of Empire policy after the war. Prime Minister Mackenzie King was first on the spot, and we think that Canadians generally will feel that they have the best possible representation at the conference table. By no means everyone in this country acknowledges Mr. King as the best leader in Dominion affairs, but there are very few who do not agree that he is our ablest tactician in international affairs. His stature as a Commonwealth leader is recognized by his colleagues from the other British Dominions; his shrewdness and foresight as an Empire counsellor have often been praised by Mr. Churchill and his predecessors; Canada's best representative is at the conference and we may be assured that Canada's best interest will be served.

Important as the conference is, we need not expect much in the way of spectacular news from it. Specific questions of Empire policy will be discussed, but sharp and detailed conclusions may not be reached. Matters may be decided upon which it is not expedient to make public. The conference is primarily for a clarification of opinions, and if the various Dominions leaders go home knowing each other's minds, its purpose will have been served. For two centuries the British people have believed that one frank discussion round a table was worth a bushel of notes exchanged through diplomatic channels. The conference will clear up a lot of Empire business.

And it may result in the crystallizing of a definite Empire opinion and course of action in the post-war world. We have heard a great deal about the necessity for firmer friendship and understanding among the free peoples when the war is over, and the Empire has repeatedly shown its willingness to join in such friendship. But it is a plain fact that the British Commonwealth is already a union of nations, all on good terms with one another, and all interested in united action wherever it is advisable and possible. This conference may result in the drawing together of the Dominions and the Mother Country for even closer co-operation in the critical days which lie ahead. And we must remember that in the Commonwealth the policies which are never definitely formulated are sometimes the strongest.

Where The Boot Pinches

For some time a dispute has been going on about the quality in material and workmanship of shoes made in Canada under government contract, for the Army both here and abroad. The charges were made by Mr. James Clark, who is described as an expert in the manufacture of shoes, who was senior inspector for Army footwear of the Joint Inspection Board of the United Kingdom and Canada: the charges have been denied by the Hon. Mr. Ralston, the Minister of National Defence, and the Hon. Malcom MacDonald, the British High Commissioner. According to these gentlemen, some of the charges made by Mr. Clark were unfounded, and some others were greatly exaggerated; a leather shortage made it necessary to make some boots with thinner soles than others, and to use a "filler" which is not used in the best peacetime boots.

Most people would be content to leave the matter there. But Mr. Clark insists on repeating his charges, and demands that they be investigated. But—and this is where the boot really pinches—a sub-committee of the War Expenditures Committee has taken upon itself to refuse an open inquiry into this matter.

Now whether Mr. Clark is right or whether he is dreaming, the Canadian people do not like to be told that a matter of public concern cannot be investigated. After all, it is our money which is concerned in the manufacture of the boots, it is our money which would pay for the investigation, and it is our money which pays the sub-committee which has treated us so brusquely. If we want an investigation clear the matter up, we will have it.

So far as this paper is concerned, we do not think that Mr. Ralston and Mr. MacDonald would have said that the boots were satisfactory if they were not so. But we do not want to see the public right of investigation into the spending of public funds vetoed by any committee, or sub-committee. If it is necessary to have an investigation in order to show this sub-committee the limitations of its power, let us have it by all means.

Canada Loses a Friend

The death of Col. Frank Knox, the United States Secretary of the Navy, robs his country of a great citizen and Canada of a good friend. Col. Knox was a U.S. citizen and his career took place entirely within the great republic, but Canadians were always proud of the fact that his parents were originally from this country. His goodwill toward Canada was shown in many ways.

Although he had been prominent in the Republican party for many years, Frank Knox accepted the post of Secretary of the Navy under President Roosevelt in 1940. This meant that he was read out of his party, and that he was the object of much ill-natured criticism and scorn from isolationists and party men. But his own statement on the matter is illuminating: "I felt that the crisis was upon us. I told the President that as a loyal citizen I would do anything he wanted me to do or go anywhere he wanted me to go. I am an American first and a Republican after that". Those are the words of a man of great patriotism; Knox was the sort of man upon whom great republics are built.

When things looked black for the United Nations Knox was a firm friend. In 1941, when things looked very bad indeed, he came to Canada to speak in Montreal on behalf of the First Victory Loan. This is a part of what he said:

"How could we retain the slightest vestige of self-respect if we were to save ourselves at the cost of every other people's liberty? That has never been the American way and, please God, I hope it never will be.... What you Canadians and we Americans have was bought with courage and sacrifice. What we hold must be paid for in the same coin".

Shortly before his death Col. Frank Knox was in Canada, this time in Toronto; he was in excellent spirits, for he had seen the cause which he served brought from the darkness of 1941 into the light of the present day. He did not live to see the job finished, but he will be remembered as one of those who worked devotedly for victory.

Basic English

By H. N. BRAILSFORD in The New Statesman and Nation

MR. CHURCHILL'S patronage of Basic English compels us to make our choice. Is it to be the universal language of tomorrow? History had already settled the main question. The world's ligua franca will be English, but what sort of English? For reasons conclusive to everyone who understands the nature of human speech, none of the artificial languages has or deserves a chance. No language can live or preserve its standards, unless its usages and idioms are fixed by the traditions and literature of a people whose mother-tongue it is. A collection of words is not a language.

It is only in the life-time of our generation that the decision swung in favour of English. French was the cosmopolitan language of educated Europeans throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. In my own experience as a wandering journalist, it was still in the early years of this century generally spoken all the way from Spain to Persia. It was everyone's second language in Turkey and the Balkans, while in Tsarist Russia the upper and official classes usually spoke it well. The decisive fact that made English the world's choice was that China stepped out of her isolation speaking our language. It is indeed the tongue with which all Asiatics make contact with each other and the West; it links Indians with their Chinese neighbours and also with Americans. Simultaneously the Revolution deposed French from its place of honour in Russia: it vanished with the aristocrats. In the world of tomorrow four Great Powers will be predominant. Two of them have English as their mother-tongue: in the third it is universally studied in all higher schools and is often the language of instruction. The beautiful but difficult language of Russia will be increasingly studied: but it cannot compete with English as the common language of mankind.

❖ ❖ ❖

BUT will it be in the basic dialect or in standard English that we shall converse across the continents? Mr. Ogden's language has swung into such high favour since Mr. Churchill became its champion, that it may already be too late to question its claim. It has its utilitarian merits. A foreigner should be able to learn its vocabularly of 850 words with ease: its grammar is ultra-simple. It should be of use to the business man and the scientist. It may even be true, as its advocates claim, that anything men need say can be said in it. It becomes, however, an excessively verbose language the moment it leaves the level of everyday life, and it puts a heavy strain on the translator's ingenuity. Take, for example, the first clause of the Atlantic Charter: "Their countries seek no aggrandisement, territorial or other," becomes "Their countries will do nothing to make themselves stronger by taking more land or increasing their power in any other way." The case is worse when Basic is used for narrative. Without verbs it is impossible to convey action swiftly and simply.

❖ ❖ ❖

HOW much will a foreigner have gained when he has mastered this peculiar form of English? He will be understood, wherever he goes, which is saying much. He will be able to write a satisfactory business letter. But will his very limited vocabulary enable him to understand the drift of an ordinary conversation, in which the rest of us talk normal English? He could not read a novel or a newspaper. There are, it has been reckoned, over 25,000 distinct words in an average issue of the Times. With his equipment of 850 he could not even guess his way through the leader page. A "talkie" or a BBC news-bulletin would bewilder him; a play would exasperate him. Basic, in short, will be of little use to the foreigner until we Englishmen take to using it for most of the purposes of life. That, indeed is, the conclusion which the exiled governments in London are said to have reached.

❖ ❖ ❖

HOW does the account stand the other way round? An Englishman can of course understand Basic without more ado. But a foreigner will earn [illegible] it and speak it very much more eas[illegible] can hope to do. What we have to do [illegible] banish and repress most of the words we habitually use in daily life. If we use more than the prescribed 850 we are not playing the game. With a great deal of trouble it can be done in writing, if we keep Mr. Ogden's page of permissible words constantly in front of us and consult his dictionary perpetually. But to learn to speak Basic would be a terrific job. To start with, we would have to learn by heart that vocabulary of 850 words, so that we could be perfectly sure which of the words that come crowding to our lips may be used and which of them—the overwhelming majority—must be rejected. It would want not months but years of practice before one could talk Mr. Ogden's language instinctively. Most of us, if we know French or German fairly well, think in these languages after spending a few days in France or Germany. Once that habit starts it is easy to talk, even though one still makes mistakes or hesitates for words. But could a "true-born" Englishman ever learn to think in correct Basic? There is firstly that tiresome matter of the verbs. If we should be tempted in a sudden rush of spontaneous emotion to say "I love you" we must check ourselves, and translate it, instead, into the tedious "I have love for you." The lady in her turn must not answer "I knew you loved me." She must reply "I had knowledge that you had love for me." Nor is this all, or even the worst. I set myself the other day the experimental task of translating one of Mr. Churchill's purple passages into Basic. The result was pitiful: I could get no rhythm into it; all the bravura was gone. I turned, therefore, to something that should have been easier, and tackled the first nursery rhyme that came into my head: Three Blind Mice. This was a great deal worse. None of these words occur in the basic vocabulary—blind, mouse, wife, carve, life. How many of us, in a rapid conversation, could improvise a phrase of moderate length, using only the permitted words, which would mean "mouse" and no other animal? I could, I suppose, force myself with much labour to write this very unattractive language, but could I—could you—learn to think it and talk it spontaneously?

❖ ❖ ❖

THEN are we doomed to offer up our mother-tongue as a sacrifice to the higher interests of mankind? I venture to think that Mr. Ogden and his school are too modest and too pessimistic, when they assume that class'cal English will never be adopted as a universal language. Their conception of a lingua franca is needlessly philistine. How many of us, when we take the trouble to learn a language, are content to use it only for the ends of trade? We want to converse in it; we want to familiarize ourselves with its literature and enjoy the music of it in the theatre. Is two months really all the time we care to give, that we may acquire a tool so subtle as a language? There is no need to simplify our grammar; nor does the vocabulary of English, with its kinship both to Latin and Teutonic languages, present any unusual difficulty to the foreign student. Its one exasperating difficulty is its chaotic spelling. We are amused when we are invited to justify such an anomaly as the use of one clumsy sign for five distinct sounds, as in "rough," "plough," "through," "thorough" and "dough"; but do we realize the needless and depressing trouble that such oddities cause to foreigners — not to mention English children? These peculiarities of spelling have, to be sure, their historical interest; they indicate a word's parentage. Our queer form "plough" reminds us, as "plow" does not, of the cognate German "Pflug." But on the balance, if English is to realize its manifest destiny as a universal language, the case for a drastic reform of our archaic spelling is conclusive. During several centuries civilized men used Greek as their lingua franca; thereafter Latin took its place, and finally French. English, if we will but reform its spelling, is a much easier language than any of these. We shall gain nothing by mutilating it or simplifying it. It can take the place history has made for it, as it is, as our ancestors shaped it, a natural language in which men pray and write verses and make love. I would add only this stipulation: that if others learn our mother tongue, we and the Americans should, in our turn, make it a point of honour to learn one foreign language thoroughly.

CLIPPING ITS WINGS

—By Rube Goldberg

Something Special About Wessex

IN one of Mr. Hardy's own illustrations to his "Wessex Poems", we see a Roman high road crossing a steep ridge of down, which rapidly falls into low-lying fields, and beyond them stretches the thin horizon of the sea, just broken by the cliffs of Portland. In the middle of the road, looking towards the sea, stands a lonely sentry, dressed in the uniform of Napoleon's time, and some miles away in front of him you can make out the little Georgian town of Weymouth.

The scene is very characteristic of the great author's work—the Roman road, the wide view, the distant sea, the little town, and the lonely figure standing between earth and sky. The Romans drove that road across the ridge of down already marked by the graves of an earlier savage race, and to the right of where that little sentry stands they built their camp among vast earthworks of warriors who have not left a name. It was this very point in the road that the mixed levies had reached when the news of Buonaparte's landing was contradicted, as is told in "The Trumpet-Major". And from that high ridge you may now look round upon a wide and beautiful country which one man's brain has inspired with a life more genuine than its own.

Extended among the fields, or folded in woods and little valleys, there they all lie, the scenes of those delicate and human lives—the town of Casterbridge, the villages of Weatherbury, Mellstock and Wellbridge, and behind them, like the edge of a dark and tossing sea, rise the sandhills and fir woods of Egdon Heath. Or, if we look toward the sun, at our feet is the genteel watering-place of Budmouth, and tied to it by the narrow Chesil Beach stands the old and quarried Isle of Slingers. It hardly matters whether we call these places Dorchester, Puddletown, Stinsford, Weymouth and Portland, or by the author's names....

The mere identification of places does not much matter. The books would have exactly the same value if there were no such places at all. But of no other part of England could Mr. Hardy have written as he has written of Wessex. I believe he thinks the general type of the English people, especially of the girls, is becoming more and more like his characters. I think so, too, and am heartily glad of it. That class which he most describes—an independent, lower-middle class, not fully educated, not quite exact in its grammar, but brought into touch with the realities of working life on the one side and with intellectual things on the other—that class in England is certainly gaining in humanity, in refinement, and in the subtleties of spirit and passion. But in Wessex people there is a further touch of something which you will not find, say, in Nottingham, or Northamptonshire. It is a sensitive and poetic quality, which the curious may trace to the absence of mines and factories, or to the larger survival here of the British spirit, protected by heaths and forests from the invasions of stolid Germanity all those centuries ago. I only know that among those West-country people Thomas Hardy himself was born and grew up, that a tablet in Dorchester Church celebrates the beneficence of a Thomas Hardy of Shakespeare's time, and that on a down west of Portland stands a monument to the Hardy of Nelson's "Victory".—From "Essays in Freedom and Rebellion", by Henry W. Nevinson.

Adolf And Benito Confer

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THE Berlin radio reported this week that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini had conferred together and had reaffirmed the Axis determination "for victory over the Bolsheviks in the east and the Jews and plutocrats of the west."

We have just received a verbatim report of this conference from secret underground sources and it is printed herewith:

MUSSOLINI (timidly): "Hi, Adolf."

HITLER (wearily): "Hi, Benito."

M. (anxiously): "What's cookin', Adolf?"

H. (suspiciously): "If you're leading up to some smart crack about Hamburg—"

M. (hastily): "No, no, Adolf. I only meant, what do you hear?"

H. (angrily): "What do I hear? Achtung, achtung, always achtung, and then the verdammt enemy bombs."

M. (with forced gaiety): "But we've got the Bolsheviks on the run, haven't we, Adolf?"

H. (snarling): "Ja, ja, we've finally run them right out of Russia; hard on our heels, breathing fire down our necks."

M. (quickly): "But anyway, Adolf, we've got the western plutocrats and the Jews fixed, haven't we?"

H. (glumly): "That's what I keep telling myself, schapskopf. We've driven them out of most of Europe; we've got them bottled up in the rest of the world."

LONG SILENCE

M. (desperately trying to find a suitable topic for conversation): "What do you hear from the boys in Tokyo, Adolf?"

H. (with heavy sarcasm): "They assure me they will equal the glorious victories on land and sea won by the Italians."

M. (wincing): "As bad as that? (with a smile) I'll bet there won't be any invasion this year, Adolf!"

H. (furiously): "Silence! Das ist verboten—even to speak of it. (Thrusting paper in front of Mussolini) Sign this. It is the conclusions we have reached at this conference." (He signs).

M. (giving Nazi salute): "Heil Hitler."

H. (giving Nazi salute): "Heil Hitler."

In Parliament

(From Hansard—April 21, 1944)

Mr. Mackenzie King (Prime Minister).... I have one other thought in mind to which I should like to give expression, and it is this: The sacrifices of the men and women of Canada who served in the last war have been memorialized by a national war memorial in the heart of this city. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to create another memorial which would pay proper tribute to those men and women who will have served in the present world conflict.

What finer memorial could there be than a capital city which would serve as a model of community planning for all the other cities of Canada, and which would be symbolic of the world-wide effort of Canada in the present war, and the significant place we hope our country will occupy in the world of the future?

We have today, as I have said, in the heart of Ottawa a memorial to the fighting forces of the last war. What memorial would more fittingly express what we feel with regard to the services of the fighting forces of Canada in the present war than a national capital which would be not only the pride of Canadians but also an object lesson to other cities and to other countries; in it a memorial to find its expression in a federal district, the site of the Canadian capital, through the heart of which would flow the Ottawa River.

A Bible Message

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.... And God saw every thing that he had made; and, behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day....

And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made...

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. (Gen. 1: 26, 31; 2: 2, 6, 7.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen. (Jude 1: 24, 25.)

Clarity Doesn't Pay

It is the opinion of political experts that Willkie's campaign failed because he made his international position too clear. Many Republicans, it seems, would rather curl up with a good mystery story.—New Yorker.

Finishing It Up

A few years ago Adolf Hitler started tearing down Berlin to rebuild it as a super-duper capital, according to his own warped ideas. He got as far as tearing down the linens on Unter den Linden, but interrupted his job to engage in the bigger job of creating his "new order" for Europe. Now the R.A.F. is finishing the job of tearing down Berlin for Hitler. Our guess is that Hitler won't be there when the city is rebuilt.—New York World-Telegram.

Sobering Thought

It is a safe assumption that there will not be much spot televising except of speeches and such formal affairs. When sight is added to sound, a really finished performance is required. And the best way to guarantee that is to have the program filmed, to have it finished and ready before the broadcast begins. Yet an executive of a film corporation has just pointed out that a single television station operating around the clock would need more movie entertainment than is produced by all the Hollywood companies combined. He calmly asks for what one might be tempted to call the impossible. "For television we have to produce pictures and sound which are just as interesting as Hollywood movies, yet produce them in larger volume, at a lower cost, and at a faster rate." Well, the radio industry managed to do it, to fill time, endlessly passing, with sound for America's millions. Some of it is excellent sound and much of it is asinine sound, but it never ceases. The television industry will turn the trick, too, and probably in about the same manner. Meanwhile, get ready for another revolution in the entertainment field.—Baltimore Sun.

Propaganda—In the Worst Sense

"It is not true that Canada is in danger of being ceded to Germany by England. Canada is no longer a colony and England cannot dispose of us as France was able to do in 1763."

"Canada is in no danger from any foreign aggression because President Roosevelt has promised to defend us. We ought to have remained neutral, like Eire."

"The fifteen billion dollars that Canada has had to spend in this war has not been spent for her own defence, but is 'the most extraordinary colonial tribute that anybody could imagine'."

These are examples of the sort of propaganda now being spread by the exponents of a certain type of French Canadian nationalism. They are taken from the newspaper that has befriended the Bloc Populaire Party, Le Devoir, and from the party's official organ, Le Bloc.

The disturbing point about this propaganda is that it cannot be regarded as the expression of responsible opinion. It is deliberately constructed from distortion in order to appeal to prejudice. As such, it can allow of no genuine development in itself, and no adjustment with other genuine Canadian viewpoints. It contributes only disruption to Canadian life at a time when constructive thinking is necessary as never before.

Canadians Hit Munitions Dump

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 2—(CP Cable)—Canadian airmen reported today they had blown up an ammunition dump in last night's raid on Somain, a French coalfield town south of Lille near the Belgian border.

Halifaxes from the Canadian bomber group made up the entire force striking Somain, starting fires seen 50 miles away by airmen en route home. The raid cost one Canadian bomber, the only plane lost in R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. night operations.

Nearly every airman saw the great explosion at Somain which FO. Tom Rance of Toronto, an Alouette Squadron pilot, said "lighted up my instrument panel like daylight."

"This was followed by two smaller ones," he added. "Flames leaped high into the air and, from the orange-yellow color and the brilliance of the short flash, I would say we hit an ammunition dump."

Others participating included: the Hammond brothers of Windsor, Ont.—FO. Harold and Sgt. Ken and Flt.-Lt. George Gardiner, Petrolia, Ont.

Canadians in R.A.F. squadrons participated in an attack on railway yards at Achines, northwest of Paris, virtually unopposed. FOS. David Irwin of Ottawa and Jack Wylie, Prince Albert, Sask., making their first overseas operation as co-pilots, said the trip was duller than they had expected.

Mess Room Chatter

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN BRITAIN, May 2.—(CP).—Flt. Lt. Charlie Scher, Australian ace of a Canadian Mosquito squadron who shared with Flt. Lt. Howard Cleveland of Toronto in the destruction of a German "flying monstrosity," five-engineed BI-Heinkel glider tug, over Central France in February, has been awarded the D.F.C.

Scherf's score stands at 7½ destroyed.

Thirty two year old Wing Cmdr. B. R. O'Bryon Hoare, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar, who has been called the R.A.F.'s 'Nelson' because he is blind i none eye has been awarded a Bar to his D.S.O.

An intruder pioneer with a handlebar moustache of mighty proportions, he now commands a Mosquito squadron. He had taken part in more than 100 sorties against airfields and as escort to bombers and other missions.

Flt. Lt. V. W. Berg of the R.A.F. expects to fly again after being in and out of hospital for nearly 2½ year. Berg, one of the pilots of thqe Hurricane fighter wing which served on the Murmansk front in the winter of 1941, crashed on take-off and since then has been in five Soviet hospitals and another in Scotland. He suffered a fractured thigh and facial injuries, and only recently was given a medical o.k.

Red Cross Has $746 On Hand

NORWOOD, May 2—(ENS)—A meeting of the executive of the local branch of the Red Cross Society was held recently at the home of the president, S. S. Breckon.

The treasurer's report showed all outstanding accounts paid and a balance on hand of $746.65. Bills presented for delegates' expenses to convention, wool purchased from headquarters, and material purchased locally, amounted to $35.83.

An interesting report of the convention held in Toronto was given by Mrs. Ernest Patterson. Several items of interest in connection with various branches of Red Cross work were read by the secretary.

The following articles were shipped to headquarters since the March meeting: 42 large quilts; 17 crib quilts, 30 infant vests, 20 pr. khaki gloves, 10 khaki ribbed helmets, 5 airforce turtle-neck sweaters and 15 pr. service socks. The cooperating units had donated 23 large quilts and 4 crib quilts during the month.

The sewing convener reported that 50 flannelette gowns and 100 white handkerchiefs had been cut out and were being made up. The wool convener had received and accepted a new quota for 50 knitted

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

WELL DONE

Those two words bind up all that one can say about the Scout Craft Show of the past week. From the opening remarks by his Worship Mayor Hamilton on Tuesday to the closing. Every Cub, every Scout and every Officer did their best to bring success to the show.

The craft work was a great improvement on any that they had before, better work, better variety. One or two were outstanding. The model by Sutcliffe of Murray Street, the model of the Pack lairs of St. Luke's, the model Toten pole by Lorne Bolton of St. John's were among those that drew special mention of the visitors. The many Airoplanes also came out in the general comments. Mark Street Troop must be congratulated on the splendid Camp site that they constructed in a hurry. Many of the articles were made by the boys themselves. Every Cub and Scout master is asked to send a complete list of the Boys' names and kind of articles to Mrs. Langhorne, so certificates can be issued to every one entering articles in the display.

2nd. Armour

Parents night will be held on Monday May 8 at 8 o'clock. All Cubs are asked to be present on Tuesday at 7 o'clock. Cubs may get their craft work at Akela's home. Akela and Baloo wish to thank all the Cubs' parents for letting their boys come out so many nights last week.

St. John's

The Pack— With the Scout Craft show over, the Pack got down to it's usual routine, with the investiture of Bobby Burgess into the Scout Movement. The ceremony was caried out immediately following the opening ceremony with Mrs. Burgess being present to witness her son's advent into World Scouting. One member from each six, then went to the market hall to obtain the Craft work of the members of the Pack, Baloo conducting the boys while Akela led the rest of the Pack in games.

During the closing ceremonies Jack Fowley was presented with his first Star. Donald Sollitt passed cleanliness, Robert Marchen was accepted as a new Chum.

Chins Up Tea

St. John's Mothers Auxiliary will be holding their semi-monthly "Chins Up Tea" in the home of Mrs. Paterson, 748 George street on Wednesday, May 3.

Coming Events

The next Scout event of interest will be the Jamboree. The dates have have not yet been settled but it would be well for all officers to start preparing. Why not get some of the past events in line and get some practices ready? A week-end camp for Scouts is expected and there is a proposed week-end camp for officers and members of the executive.

Camp Grounds

We would like to call the attention of the Scouts and officers to recent reports received. Some boys have been out to the camp grounds and have been digging grease pits and fires in any old spot. This must stop. We would urge that no Scouts go out, unless they report to their Scouters.

Tailless Frog From Sunny California Out-jumps All Entrants In Hop Classic

NEW YORK, May 2 — (AP).—Throaty croaks, one in a Brooklyn accent and another in a Louisiana bayou drawl, greeted a decision that the inter-sectional frog-jump-match was won on Saturday by a tailless Batrachian from frog-famous Calavers County in California.

The entry of Al Jermy, Stockton, Calif., newspaperman, leaped four feet and one-half inch in the three jumps allowed in the championship match.

His frog came from the Calavers County area immortalized in Mark Twain's classic story, a fact tieing in nicely with the championship which was sponsored by Warner Brothers for publicity for a forthcoming motion picture, "The Adventures of Mark Train."

Second was an entry from the stable of Governor-elect Jimmie Davis of Louisiana. The bayou jumper made the three feet 11 inches.

New York City's champ, coached by eight-year-old Tony Trezza and nine-year-old Joe Covella, both from Brooklyn, chalked up only three feet 2½ points. Warner Brothers awarded the boys and four other competitors each a $100 War Bond and, when school is out, will pay their expenses on a tour of Missouri's Tom Sawyer-Huckleberry Finn county.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

The high spot of the trials of Derby candidates yesterday at the Churchill Downs was the performance of Joe Goldband's Shut Up in stepping the official distance of a mile and one-quarter in 2:05 3-5, only one ond three-fifth seconds slower than Count Fleet's winning time last year. In preparation for Saturday's $75,000 classic, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Stir Up stepped the distance in 2:11 3-5, while M. B. Goff's Skytracer, son of the 1938 Ascot Gold Cup winner, covered nine furlongs in 1:55 3-5. Shut Up was clocked yesterday at that mark in 1:52 2-5.

Arivals at the Louisville track included Mrs. A. J. Abel's Gramps Image, fresh from its upset victory in the Chesapeake Stakes at Pimlico last Saturday. Warren Wright's Pensive, second in that Pimlico feature, was due to arrive at the Downs to-morrow.

Following a conference with P. K. Wrigley, owners of the last-place Chicago Cubs, yesterday, Jimmy Wilson announced his resignation from the $20,000 post of manager which he had held for three years and no successor was immediately named by the National League clubowner. The Cubs had lost nine straight games under the 43-year-old Wilson who had figured in major-league company since 1923.

Dick Vanstone of St. Catharines last night was appointed manager of the St. Catharines-Merritton Combines in the Niagara Senior Baseball League, succeeding Ed. Hales who resigned after 20 years as player and pilot. Both are native sons of the Garden City.

Muriel Wylie, southpaw twirler of the Simcoe Stars, who won the Ontario Women's Softball title last year, has signed to play with Hamilton in the Olympic Women's Softball League at Sunnyside, Toronto.

Winner of the Wrigley and Barker trophies in one-mile championship swims at the Canadian National Exhibition, Bernice Looney of Warren, O., has been chosen for the Ohio State team to compete in the U.S. National Natatorial meets this season.

Harry Giddings yesterday shipped a number of noteworthy horses from Oakville to the Woodbine track, including W. E. MacDonald's Tulachmore, Ten to Ace and his own King's Plate candidate, Wise Teddy. SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Bill Westwick in the Ottawa Journal describes Strangler Bob Wagner as one of the most truculent figures developed in a sport that revels in them and Peterborough fans will agree that the Ottawa scribe is not far off the target. Wagner does battle at the Brock Street Arena in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling show tonight with that other stormy petrel of the mat game, Karl Krippler Davis of Texas and the general opinion is that these two bashing behomeths will stage one of the toughest tussles in ring history here. Both men battle the same style. Carry the battle to the other fellow and keep on the pressure all the way is the theory of both. Davis is the most powerful, probably, but Wagner's persistent attacking makes up for that. Wagner just keeps on sailing in until his sheer persistence wears down the opposition. How that will work against a rowdy of the Davis type who also believes that the best defence is a strong offensive remains to be seen. In any event there shouldn't be any lack of action or excitement for both Davis and Wagner refuse to stall for a moment. They know only one style and that is to keep on the attack. The result should be a memorable clash that will have the crowd in an uproar long before the winner is decided.

* * * * * *

Promoter Tunney has supplied a strong supporting cast for tonight's show and the two preliminary bouts should not fall far behind the main argument in interest. Two new performers are on the card. A well-known performer in the south Billy Middlekauff, popular in the Florida belt makes his first appearance in Peterborough and brings with him from the sunny south the reputation of being a tough egg as well as a decidedly clever wrestler. He will need to be both for his opponent in the semi-final tonight is the well-fancied Toar Morgan, former marine, who backs up from nobody and who has plenty of power and ring experience himself. Chicago's John Arthur is another new mat star who is making his Peterborough debut. Arthur is billed as a decidedly strong and clever grappler and it will be interesting to note how he fares when matched with the lively Tony Leoni, the Hollywood speedster who moves plenty fast and perhaps will have to when he clashes with the Chicago strong man.

They Don't Like It

Our friend Bud Lloyd at Petawawa Camp sends this column a copy of the program of the Eastern Canada army boxing championships calling attention to the new rules that are in vogue, chief of which are the fact that the referee remained outside of the ring and the spectators were required to maintan silence during the rounds. The second feature has caused plenty of complaint all over the country, incidentally and this by Jack Koffman of the Ottawa Citizen is a fair sample of the criticism from all and sundry: "It is addressed to Major I. Eisenhardt, senior sports officer as follows: "I sincerely hope, Major, that you aren't expecting a more favorable reaction from Ottawa boxing fans in the finals. If so, you are doomed to disappointment. The boys who follow sport here are no different from the folks in Osh Kosh or any point you care to mention. They want some action and, once it arrives, they love giving their vocal chords plenty of exercise. As I understand it, there will be about 2,000 civilians present for the title bouts and your referee is headed for grief, barrels of it, if he attempts to tell these cash-on-the-line folks when and how they are to make noise. It isn't too late to make a change, if you can convince the men responsible. You have put in a great deal of time in getting this tournament across and the crowning touch, if possible, should be a decision to allow the customers to yell whenever it suits their fancy. A move in this direction would bring you the gratitude of all boxing lovers."

There was a meagre bill of fare in the big leagues Monday, with only two games played in the American League, all that were billed and nary an engagement scheduled for the National loop. The feature of what ball was staged was provided by the Cleveland Indians who staged a seven run rally in the 8th inning to take over a game from the Chicago White Sox that the Pale Hose looked as if they might have had tucked away. The final count was 9 to 3, that big frame proving altogether too much for the White Sox. Lee was the losing Chicago pitcher, with Maltzberger who is getting plenty of work in a relief role finishing the game. Credit for for the victory went to Poat who took over in the later stages for the Indians. Washington Senators had a field day in the only other game scheduled, defeating the Boston Red Sox 11 to 4. The Washington bats were swinging merrily all afternoon, the Senators cracking out 20 hits and among the Boston pitchers who tried to put out the fire was Lefty Judd, the pride of Ingersoll. The loss however was chalked up against Yank Terry who has yet to come up with a winner this season.

Looking After the Kids

Belleville has the same problem of looking after youngsters in sport that is causing much concern here among those who realize how badly we have been falling down in this regard says Ken Colling in his sport column: "When the annual meeting of the Belleville Softball Association moved to co-operate with the Ki-Y groups in the matter of the provision of coaches and other such assistance that might tend to elevate the game in Belleville it was definitely a move in the right direction to educate the boys of Belleville at softball. Such co-operation should pay fat dividends in the future as the kids coming out of our Ki-Y groups will be further advanced and ready to take their places with the local junior O.A.S.A. teams. However, what are Ki-Y leagues, Board of Education or city in general doing to assist the groups of boys in the city who want to play a game of baseball? Today there are three such groups of teen aged boys in Belleville who want to play baseball, but unfortunately there isn't a baseball diamond available in the city. Bob Blaind's Foster Ward kids have groomed themselves an improvised diamond at the Cricket Field, but the field is far too rough and some lad faces the danger of breaking a leg. Are our city fathers going to pass up these kids and force them into the street and maybe subsequently into our juvenile courts just for the lack of the expenditure of a few paltry dollars?"

Toronto Leafs who have been idle half the time since the season opened and have only played five games are still at the top of the heap with three wins and two defeats but the rest of the clubs have been doing some moving around. Jersey City after a bad start have been cooking with gas recently and yesterday they grabbed off their fourth straight win in a row, climbing up to third place. The Jerseys got a fine pitching effort by Frank Rosso who only yielded six scattered hits to take the Buffalo Bisons into camp 6 to 2. At Syracuse Montreal Royals got an even split on the series by cking out a 4 to 3 victory over the Syracuse Chiefs, managing to shove the winning marker over the counting station without the aid of a solitary hit. The Rochester Red Wings must have thought it was Christmas when two Newark pitchers handed out 16 bases on balls. The Wings mixed ten hits with all those charities and had a soft time winning 11 to 4. That made an even split on that series, too.

Men's City Softball League teams are reminded of the important meeting of the league tomorrow night at the Duffus Board Room. This will be the last chance to enter teams for the coming season.... Second baseman George Myatt of the Washington Senators cracked out six hits in as many trips to the plate in yesterday's game against the Boston Red Sox.... Jimmy Wilson, one of the popular old veterans of baseball has tossed in the towel... He resigned yesterday as manager of the Chicago Cubs who are currently at the bottom of the National League list with but one win in ten starts.... A number of Peterborough fans are planning to have business in Toronto Thursday when the Leafs will open their home season with the Jersey City club providing the opposition.

New Army Show Features 8 Chorus Girls

By ANITA FREEDMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KITCHENER, Ont., May 2—(CP)—Styled for Army camps and high on corn and slapstick, "About Faces of 1944", newest Canadian Army show unit, made its first appearance here last night at No. 3 Canadian Women's Army Corps basic training centre before an audience of 1,400 and C.W.A.C.'s and visitors.

With only 25 members in the troupe including musicians, the show is more informal and less professional than the original Army show which now has been broken up into five units overseas.

Capt. Romney Brent, British stage and screen actor who is the producer, collaborated with Capt. Robert Farnon on several catchy tunes, Sgt. William Reid of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Pte. Jack Kelly of Toronto turned out some whacky dialogue but highlight of the show was the smart-stepping chorus. Although none of the eight girls had had stage experience, they managed under the expert guidance of Choreographer Felicia Sorel of New York, to form as neat a line as ever met the eyes of a service man or woman. Most of the nine girls in the show took their basic training at Kitchener.

Thrilled with being in the chorus were Ptes. Audrey Tebbs, Betty Campbell, Jean Gordon of Toronto, Barbara Cumming, St. Catharines, Ont., Mary Leonard, Detroit, Zita Hawley, Sydney, N.S., Marjorie Beattie, Montreal and Thelma Bishop, Port Huron, Mich.

Vicavious, brown-haired and blue-eyed Margaret Cross of Lethbridge, Alta., as a gypsy fortune-teller through whose crystal ball the various scenes—in Russian Egypt and Hollywood—were presented, held her own as comedienne along with Reid and Kelly. Reid took part in an earlier service show—"Ritzin' the Blitz"—presented in 1940.

NEVER TOO OLD—Maj. Hank Gowdy, former New York Giants' catcher and coach of the Cincinnati Reds, takes a cut at the ball at Fort Benning, Georgia, where the major is head of the school baseball league of six teams. Gowdy was the first ball player in World War 1 to sign up for service.

NEW YORK, May 2—(AP)—Master Sergeant Zeke Bonura has had an informal invitation to teach Britons how to play baseball after the war... It seems that Zeke gave some British soldiers instructions last summer in Africa and a couple of officers, highly impressed by Bonura's ability and geniality, asked him how he'd like to continue that work... But Zeke is reported to have passed up the bid because he feels he has a couple of good baseball years left and he'd like to return to swinging that old bludgeon as soon as the war ends.

One-Minute Sports Page

Jimmy Johnston argues that one reason why his fighter, Tony Shucco, is better off than "Eenie, Miney and Moe," — Savold, Baski and Mauriello—is that Jimmy does all the managing for Shucco while the others have five "managers" apiece and then have the last word themselves.

A Rookie A Day

Casmir Eugene Keitniewski, White Sox third baseman—the scorers have shortened it to 'Cass Kwiet' but Cass and his brother are trying to agree on a better handle... Jimmy Dykes says it should be Cass "Phenom" because the kid looks so good for an 18-year-old... But you'll notice Tony Cuccinello has been playing third for the Sox... A pickup from Detroit sandlots, Kwiet batted .507 and .600 in two American Legion tourneys. Has a strong arm and fine pair of hands.

Tarawa Island Picture Wins High Award

NEW YORK, May 2—(AP)—Martin Flavin, author of "Journey In the Dark", today held the Pulitzer prize for the most distinguished American novel of 1943 while Associated Press staff members Daniel De Luce and Frank Filan possessed two of the nine journalism awards.

De Luce, war correspondent who entered Nazi-dominated Yugoslavia to report the activities of Marshal Tito's forces, won the Pulitzer prize for international telegraphic reporting. He now as assigned to the Anzio beachhead.

The war front photographic award was won by Filan who risked his life to get the picture, "Tarawa Island," which showed a blasted Japanese pillbox with dead Japanese strewn through the debris.

Flavin, who began his writing career in 1926, has written two other novels, "Corporal Cat" and "Mr. Littlejohn." He also is the author of several plays, including "Children of the Moon" and "The Criminal Code."

The award for distinguished correspondence was won by Ernie Pyle of the Scripps-Howard newspaper alliance whose newspaper column depicts the human side of the war.

Byron Price, director of the Office of Censorship and executive news editor of the Associated Press on leave, received a special citation "for the creation and administration of the newspaper and radio code."

In making this award, members of the advisory board of the Graduate School of Journalism of Columbia University, upon whose recommendation the Pulitzer prizes are awarded, said they "deplore certain acts and policies of Army and Navy censorship in the handling of news at the source, and for the unreasonable suppression of information to which the American people are entitled."

Jersey City Wins 6-2 Over Buffalo

By The Associated Press

Thanks to the Buffalo Bisons who have bowed four times in succession, Jersey City Giants to-day are breathing the rarified atmosphere of the International League's first division for the first time this season.

As the Giants wind up their home stand to-day with another round against Buffalo, they can hold their heads high and look down on their neighbors from Newark who usually lead but now are holding up the rest of the league in the basement.

With Toronto's league-leaders idle for a second straight day, the Jersey area again is the only busy spot in the league. In addition to the game in Jersey City, Newark and Rochester conclude a series at Ruppert Stadium. All other league clubs are idle, travelling for the "northern" openings Wednesday and Thursday. Montreal was scheduled at Syracuse to-day but the game was postponed with an announcement that all future Chiefs' home games except Sunday, will be played at night.

Frank Rosso hung up his first victory by limiting Buffalo to six hits in Jersey City's 6-2 triumph. Catcher Andrews Pleitas' triple with the bases loaded in the sixth was the big blow.

Montreal scored in the ninth without benefit of a hit on two walks, an error and a long fly to shade Syracuse 4-3 to spoil John Bebber's first start in professional ball.

Newark's pitchers handed out 16 walks as Rochester strolled to an 11-4 walkover with Tom Astbury, Al Schoendienst and Del Rice slugging homers.

Games to-day and probable pitchers:

Rochester at Newark—Wicker vs. Rager.

Buffalo at Jersey City—Kenworthy vs. Oana.

After 2,130 consecutive games on the diamond for New York Yankees, Lou Gehrig was benched at his own request five years ago today. Seven weeks later the great first baseman, who batted in 100 or more runs a year for 13 years, announced he was retiring from the game, as doctors diagnosed a muscular stiffness as a form of paralysis. Gehrig died from the rare disease on June 2, 1941.

Queen Alex Beats King George Team

Queen Alexandra doubled the score on King George team in the opening game of The Public School Softball League on Monday afternoon winning by 14 to 7.

A big innings in which the north end school sent no fewer than eight runs across the home plant was responsible for the victory.

Queen Alexandra scored a quartette of runs in the first but the Ashburnham team did almost as well with three. However the battle was about over when the Queen Alexandra team piled up its eight run rally in the second.

The game was called at the end of the fourth inning.

TORONTO, May 2 — (CP). — If anyone thinks the hockey amateurs sometimes are a little steep in their monetary demands, he hasn't seen a thing yet, it would appear from reports from Hamilton, Ont., where softball apparently is getting in the big-money class.

Tommy Moore of the Hamilton Spectator recounts a story of a highly-regarded Hamilton player, who must remain nameless. The star said he would turn out for one of the Hamilton teams if he was paid $35 for signing, if the club put a new roof on his house, if arrangements were made for him to work into shape at the Y M. C.A., if——. But at this point the club official reached for his hat and left quietly.

Ambidextrous reminiscence:

Old-timers in Winnipeg were talking about the late Tony Mullane of Chicago, who could whip the strikes across the plate with either hand and some thought he was the only two-fisted hurler in baseball history. However, Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith points out Larry Corcoran who played with London, Ont., Tecumsehs in the old International League, also threw from either port or starboard. Corcoran played with Winnipeg Shamrocks and the Y. M.C.A. team as well.

Incidentally:

Dave (Sweeney) Schriner may be all through with hockey, but he's doing all right with his golfing. He sank a hole-in-one at the Calgary Inglewood Course, lofting the pill 195 yards over the Irrigation Canal. Sweeney always like to do it the hard way.....Opening of the Canadian turf season is approaching rapidly. The horsemen get their steeds away for the first race on May 13 at Victoria Park on the West Coast. The meet runs to May 24 when the main Western feature, the Alberta Derby, will be run off....Sportsmen in the United States are showing keen interest in the new Canadian physical fitness program. Physical instructors from this country attended a New York meeting of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation to help spread the idea about....Vince (Winnipeg Tribune) Leah has been promoting lacrosse among the youngsters in the Manitoba capital, but they've been treating him rough. He was struck in the face by a rebound while watching his bantams work out, and came out more battered than any of the players.

7 Fast Horses Race Today In Derby Trial

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sport Writer.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2 — (AP). — Out of the maze of unfamiliar owners, little known trainers and unpredictable horses that surround Saturday's renewal of the Kentucky Derby rises the name of Eddie Arcaro to dominate pre-race calculations as few jockeys have in the 70 years of the turf classic.

Seven eligibles get in their final test in the Derby trial to-day at Churchill Downs and some 15 other horses wait in their stalls for the big race.

None of the favorites are in today's mile trial, but the race is expected to be a big help in deciding the size of the field for the Derby in that it'll probably eliminate at least five of them. Topping the seven are Mrs. Payne Whitney's Broad Grin, and Mrs. George Poulson's Broadcloth.

Arcaro, hailed by many horsemen as the best rider in the land, will be up on Stir Up on Saturday and that fact, as much as the proven ability of the son of Stimulus, has made Mrs. Whitney's representative the strong favorite to be on the front end of the $75,000 parade at the end of the testing mile and one-quarter.

Eddie will be the only rider in the race that has tasted the fruits of a Derby victory. He booted Lawrin home for Herbert M. Woolf in 1938, and repeated in 1941 with Warren Wright's Whirlaway, the world's leading money winning thoroughbred. If he is successful again he will be the third jockey to win three Derbies. Isaac Murphy and Earl (Mandy Man) Sande each turned the trick.

Tobin Expected To Subdue Cocky Dodgers

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim (No hits, no nuthin') Tobin takes a hitless streak of 13 2-3 innings into Brooklyn today as he makes his bid for a double no-hitter in the same ball park where Johnny VanderMeer did the trick six years ago.

Since Tobe turned back the Dodgers without a single last Thursday he has hurled one perfect relief inning in Philadelphia and Lippy Leo Durocher of the Brooks has been bounced out of one ball game and fined $100 in addition to suffering the indignity of a 26-8 pasting from the Giants.

There may not be any connection between Leo's tilts with the umpire and the goose eggs his Dodgers laid in Boston, but fans of the nation look for some novel twists in today's duel between Tobin and the Brooklyn club. The Durocher clan is expected to bunt and scramble for anything resembling a base knock with high hopes of a rousing afternoon. Tobin is saying nothing but letting that record do the talking.

Ties Batting Record

The entire National League enjoyed an open date yesterday before shifting around for new series today but a modern batting record was tied by George Myatt of Washington in one of the two games played in the American.

Myatt collected six hits in six at bats as Washington mauled Boston, 11-4, to gain a piece of a mark held jointly by 23 modern players, two of whom, Jim Bottomley and Roger Cramer, had done it twice. Uncle Wilbert Robinson still holds the all-time record for one game of seven hits for seven with Baltimore in 1892.

Roger Wolff had an easy time of it behind the Senators 20-hit outburst and found time to chime in with three singles in addition to scattering 11 Red Sox safeties.

Jimmy Grant, a Chicago White Sox castoff, made his old manager live to regret it by haunting his old mates with a game-winning double in Cleveland's 9-3 victory. Grant's second two-bagger of the day came with the bases loaded in the 7-run Cleveland eighth. Manager Lou Boudreau made a place for Grant in the lineup when he took himself out and moved Russ Peters from second base to short.

Rookie Hal Kleine of the Tribe has the tough luck of being replaced for a pinch hitter the inning before the big disturbance after allowing only five hits. Relief Man Roy Poat thus got credit for his initial triumph of the year.

Japanese Claim Truk Base Bombed Anew

LONDON, May 2. — (CP).— A broadcast Tokyo Imperial Headquarters communique said to-day that an aircraft carrier task force attacked the Japanese naval base at Truk in the Caroline Islands Sunday and Monday and caused "some damage" to ground installations.

Japanese planes and garrison units "heavily damaged" an aircraft carrier and shot down more than 30 attacking aircraft, the war bulletin claimed. It also reported that the Mortlock Islands in the Carolines were bombed.

The Japanese further claimed that they sank one cruiser and damaged another large warship, probably an aircraft carrier, out of a task force off the west coast of Hollandia, New Guinea, on April 27.

There was no confirmation of the Tokyo announcement from any Allied source. U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor announced yesterday that the skipper of a single navy search Liberator made a daring aerial attack on Truk Saturday.

The bomber damaged a vessel anchored in the Truk lagoon and strafed airstrips on Moen and Eten Islands before returning safely home. This single plane attack was the 32nd air strike at Truk in seven weeks.

Norwood Flier Bombs Hirson

LONDON, May 2 (CP Cable)— A couple of Saskatchewan pilots—FO. Lincoln Montgomery, Churchbridge, and Flt.-Sgt. Al Glaser of Fox Valley—called Monday's bombing of a marshalling yard at Hirson,

SGT. W. LOBB

France, by Mitchell bombers as the best they had seen in any operation

The two Saskatchewan airmen, fliyng with the R.A.F. 2nd Tactical Air Force, reported the only opposition came from light anti-aircraft fire.

"The engine shed was our aiming point and it just disintegrated," said Montgomery, a veteran of 35 trips. "Smoke rose 5,000 feet."

Glaser said he watched from the bombers window "as our bombs went smack through the centre of the target."

Other Canadians on the raid included Sgt. W. Lobb, Norwood, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Lobb.

were clearly identified by the night raiders. Other planes laid mines in enemy waters.

The Canadian bomber wing was out in "great strength" with the British formations.

An R.C.A.F. communique said Canadian Lancasters and Halifaxes took part in the attack on railway yards at Santghislin, Belgium. Visibility was good and first reports indicated that the attack was well concentrated.

The communique also said that during yesterday's heavy attacks, R.C.A.F. Spitfires escorted Mitchells and Boston bombers of the 2nd Tactical Air Force in attacks on the railway yards at Cambria. From this and other daylight operations of Monday, all Canadian planes returned safely.

2000 U. S. Planes

Some 2,000 American bombers, including 1,000 heavyweights escorted by fighters, joined swarms of R.A.F., Canadian and Allied planes to pound the anti-invasion defences of the Calais coast yesterday. Numerous rail junctions in Belgium and France also were hit in the non-stop aerial blows.

In the late afternoon American heavy bombers blasted Railway yards at Brussels and Liege in Belgium and four other important rail targets in France; Reims, 80 miles northeast of Paris; Troyes, 85 miles southeast of Paris, Metz, 185 miles east of Paris and Sarreguemines, on the German border 40 miles east of Metz.

American fighters provided escort and support for the afternoon operation. The Germans offered only weak air opposition and sent up only a moderate amount of flak, returning crewmen reported.

In the evening toward dusk, Allied medium and light bombers with fighters escorting, bombed railway centres at Louvain, Belgium and Valenciennes and Blanc Misseron in northern France.

ernment should bring Home Defence men into the Active Army.

The government's policy in obtaining men for the armed forces was one of political expediency.

"I do not understand how they can expect to run a political war and at the same time create National unity," Mr. White said.

The Quebec legislature had adopted, by a vote of 54-4, a motion stating it was opposed to sending conscripted men overseas. Several Federal Cabinet ministers were from Quebec, and if they did not approve of the legislature's motion they should say so.

Col. Ralston said that the Army would continue its recruiting activities as in the past after Mr. White said it was "humiliating" for officers to have to ask call-up troops to go active.

"The government wishes to pass over to the officers . . . the job of coercing, forcing, bullying and pleading with these men," said Mr. White.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., General Officer Commanding-In-Chief, Pacific Command, had to "plead" with men to go on active service, and had said the outcome of the Second Front might depend on the number of Home Defence men ready to back up the troops now overseas.

"You can only toke the inference from those remarks that there are not sufficient reinforcements overseas," said Mr. White.

Col. Ralston replied that "it is absolutely ridiculous for my honorable friend to say anything of the kind."

Mr. White's remarks were "unjustified," the Defence Minister said.

"He is doing something which is harmful to Canada when he suggests that it is humiliating to request officers to ask men to enlist, or to endeavour to see that they do enlist. I say that is part of the job we have to do to get them."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he could state "without fear of contradiction, after reading the records of the United States, Great Britain, New Zealand and Australia, that the record as of call-up in this country reveals an appalling condition of default and disobedience unknown anywhere else among the countries having any system of call-up.

A return tabled in the House had shown that 1,449,417 men have been called for medical examination and 979,569 have reported. This left 469,848 unaccounted for, less 71,545 who enlisted when they received their call-up notice. The number of men unaccounted for had increased about 60,000 in the last eight months.

Labor Minister Mitchell had said that only 49,001 men now were unaccounted for with 67,674 a year ago, Mr. Diefenbaker said. "But that favorable reply is not borne out by the records he added.

Mr. Mitchell said he stood by his earlier figures of men unaccounted for. Mr. Diefenbaker had quoted the figures to suit himself.

When reference was made to a "lost legion" of men it was not true, and an effort was being made to convince the country of something that did not exist, the Minister said.

PAYING FOR THE WAR

WE'VE GOT TO WIN THIS WAR

and we've got to pay for the supplies and equipment to do it, without bringing on inflation.

To pay for the war, taxes on incomes, profits and luxuries have been increased. But that's not enough. And there's a practical limit to taxes—so funds also have to be secured in other ways.

Victory Bonds are the best alternative for raising extra funds without increasing taxes to a level that would be unbearable.

PREVENTING INFLATION

When there is so much more money to spend than there are goods to spend it on then the danger of inflation, with its disastrous rise in the cost of living, looms over us.

To meet the threat of inflation, prices, profits, wages and supplies are controlled.

Excess spending must also be switched from where it can bid up prices and costs, and put to work for the common good.

PROTECTION FOR THE INDIVIDUAL

Over 3 million individual Canadians have invested over 3 billion dollars to date in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates.

If left around for loose spending, this 3 billion dollars would have bid up prices, created black markets, prevented the fair distribution of supplies . . . blown the lid off.

For national security and stability nothing has been a more important factor in preventing inflation than this investment by Canadians.

Millions of Canadians have learned new habits of thrift and the way to protect their own future.

This advertisement is the fourth of a series being issued by the Government of Canada to emphasize the importance of preventing further increases in the cost of living now and deflation later.

Dinesen Family Always Ready To Buy Bonds

By ALENE HOLT,
Local Victory Loan Headquarters

In the interests of Canada's Sixth Victory Loan, Mr. and Mrs. George Dinesen of 257 Carlisle street were called on by "Woodie" Roberts. He was impressed and reported his findings to the writer, who is always on the lookout for human interest stories that will appeal to the public.

From the moment you drive up to 257 Carlisle street you are assured of the patriotism of the occupants by the Victory Loan Bond buyers' sticker proudly displayed on the door. Mr. and Mrs. Dinesen answer your knock and you are invited into a room that holds many memories. Hanging on the wall there are many paintings by their son, LAC Jens Kaj Dinesen, more paintings by Mr. Dinesen's brother-in-law, Oscar Hullgren, who lives in Stockholm and is one of the best living marine painters in the world, and last is the miniature Danish flag, "Dannebrog," which centres the dining-room table.

Mr. Dinesen formerly was a foreman at the Western Clock Company, but unfortunately suffered a stroke about four years ago and is now an invalid.

Mr. Dinesen was born in Aalborg, Denmark, chief city of N. Jutland. Mrs. Dinesen was born in Aachen of German parents. Mr. Dinesen came to Canada in 1921 and Mrs. Dinesen in 1925, and they have been residents of Peterborough since that time.

The couple have four sons: Viggo, who is now a mining engineer in Haileybury. He married the former Reta Cummings of Peterborough. Eric comes next and until a short time ago he was working in Montreal for the factory manufacturing Mosquito bombers and torpedo boats. He has now returned to this city with his wife, the former Wilma Johnston, and their two children, and is at the Peterborough Canoe Company where he worked many years ago. He introduced the sport of water-skiing in Canada some eight years ago on Little Lake. Walter is another son and he is employed at the Canadian General Electric in the wire department. The son well known to Peterborough people is LAC Jens Kaj Dinesen of the R.C.A.F. in Fingal. He is a painter and was recently invited by His Excellency the Governor-General to display one of his paintings at the Air Force art exhibit under the auspices of the Royal Art Association. He was accompanied to Ottawa by his wife, the former Norma Draper of Peterborough. When he is not studying to be a bombardier, he is the cartoonist for the Fingal Observer, a newspaper published by the No. 4 Bombing and Gunnery School. He has been in the R.C.A.F. since 1943 and was formerly employed in the aircraft department of the C.G.E.

Only by talking to these people can one realize how much they love their adopted country. They have bought Victory Bonds on every drive; their sons, who are not fighting in actual service, are blood donors; and they are intent on doing all they can to bring about peace not only to Canada but to their beloved homeland. They still have many relatives abroad and exerpts from their letters tell of what is happening over there.

Mr. Dinesen's sister, Julie Dinesen Hullgren, also an artist, is married to Oscar Hullgren, and she often writes of the sabotage efforts in Denmark. The Danes hate the Germans and the latter are constantly trying to break the brave Danish spirit. he writes that sabotage is considered a great sport among the young Danes. As an example, she cited Germans in Denmark expect invasion from England in Denmark and they have fortified the coast of Jutland and commanding the Danes to build walls and fortresses. This gives the Danes another opportunity for sabotage and they use their previous sugar in the cement thereby making fortifications crumble easily.

On another occasion, Mrs. Hullgren relates, a German minister asked permission of a Danish minister to use his church for a speech to his German soldiers. This was permitted and all went well until the German minister started talking about Hitler and called him their god. The Danish minister, who was in the church, stood up and directed them all to leave immediately. They did!

She said the Germans have moved their headquarters to the centre of Jutland at Silkeborg. The Danes responded to this move by blowing up all railroads. The headquarters is in the centre of things and no railroads are near the place. As soon as they are built they are blown to bits.

Danes are proud of their own Einstein, namely Prof. Bohr. The Germans too would like to have him because they fear he will use this science and knowledge against them. While they were making designs on him he fled to Sweden and he is safe now in England.

The Germans, ever mindful of their Jewish "friends," tried to get them all to wear yellow stars so they would be set apart, but the King of Denmark would have none of this. "If you wish the Jews to wear a yellow star, I will wear a yellow star, and what the King wears we all will wear," he declared.

According to actual statistics, it can be said that people having loved ones living in these conquered countries and suffering terrible hardships, about which we know nothing, are the ones to really make the sacrifices and they are the ones that will go all out to buy that extra bond.

LIEUT. A. L. O'TOOLE

LIEUT. F. O'TOOLE

BROTHERS SERVE IN DIFFERENT LANDS—Two former Peterborough boys, sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Toole, are serving in the Canadian and American forces. Lieut. A. L. O'Toole is on the staff of the commander of the fleet of the U.S. Navy, somewhere in the South Pacific. He is a graduate of St. Peter's High School, St. Michael's College, Toronto, and the University of Michigan. When war broke out he was teaching at Mundelein College in Chicago, and then became attached to the staff of the Communications in Washington. Later he volunteered his services to the Navy and was accepted. His brother, Lieut. F. O. O'Toole, is serving with the Tank Corps at Camp Borden, having enlisted two years ago. He too is a graduate of St. Peter's and St. Michael's schools. At the time of his enlistment, he had left the teaching profession and was employed by Mutual Life Insurance Company. Both are brothers of Mrs. T. F. Fitzgerald, R.R. No. 6, Peterborough.

Doctor Who Practised Medicine 50 Years P.C.I. Graduate In 1880, Has 90th Birthday

Dr. Kidd is enjoying good health and is looking forward to the summer weather.

Rural Mail Boxes Invaded By Starlings Small Pests Stage Blitz On Letters

The pesky starling, mischievous inhabitant of the countryside, has been making a nuisance of himself again. This time he is invading rural mail boxes and, the Post Office informed the Examiner today, is building nests therein. Rural route couriers making their round of deliveries in recent days have found not a few such starling-built nests in country residents' boxes, made of straw grass, weeds, bits of string and almost every kind of object the ingenious builder finds handy.

Particularly affected in this vernal inroad of the starlings are the old-style boxes, both large and small which have no covering over the slot, it is reported. The birds simply and unceremoniously throw the mail out, sometimes scattering it over a fairly wide area. Then they go to work building their nests. But boxes of a newer type are not, on the other hand, entirely immune from the avian trespassing. Sometimes the bright little birds use a sort of door-breaking technique, striking the mail-box a glancing blow and thus hoping to knock off the covering from over the slot. This they are frequently able to do.

The remedy, however, is near at hand and rural route boxholders who take the proper precautions need not worry that they will come out some morning to pick up their mail only to find it stewn down the road muddied or soiled by dust, rain or dirt. Make a fastener, the Post Office advises, so that the slot will be amply covered and make it really fast. Then the poor starlings will just be plain out of luck.

Lagging Note Evidenced In Loan Returns

Rural and urban Peterborough were just about on even terms in the Victory Loan's general canvass Tuesday evening, and both were trailing their objective in the percentage column by 11 points.

For the first seven days the campaign results should have been 38.88 per cent of the objective.

Section in that distinguished company were the officers and men of Peterborough Training Centre at Exhibition Park, reporting 64 per cent; employees of factories on the payroll saving plan 50 per cent; Smith township 47.89 per cent, North Monaghan 40.25 per cent and Dummer with 38.5 per cent deserving to be classed in that starry company.

The general canvass in the city stands this morning at 27.74 per cent; and the rural general canvass 27.63 per cent; an advance for the country subscribers, and a dull intimation that the general canvass in the city, which has been moving along so promisingly, is already beginning to knock in a cylinder or two.

The total general canvass for Peterborough, city and county was reported Monday night at 27.71 per cent of their allotted quota. Compare that (if you are interested in this matter of the Sixth Victory Loan) with the 38.88 per cent of the progressing requirement, and you get a glimpse of the gap between objective and accomplishment.

Smith In Front

Smith farmers find themselves at the top of the "record of performance" column, almost at the half way mark. Propitious weather has been warming the soil and getting the work done and reminding the Smith farmers that they simply have to take time off to settle this question of how much of the Sixth Victory Loan they intend to take down to the bank and lock in their deposit boxes, or add to the little sheaf of bonds that are kept in the bureau drawer.

North Monaghan was pushed off the top Monday by returns from Smith, but the neighbors along the south and west borders of the city are still comfortably out in front of the required percentage.

Dummer moved up into third place with 38.5 per cent, and Ennismore is next in line with 36.25 per cent, heading the too long list of municipal groups in the minus column.

Norwood is still up with the leaders at 31.38 per cent, and in sixth position is Peterborough's general canvass.

Others in order are: Lakefield 26.64 per cent; Havelock 24.17 per cent; Otonabee 23.45 per cent; Belmont-Methuen 20.4 per cent.

Grand Total 30.62 Per Cent

Finally, if there is any doubt about the Peterborough unit, city and county, all hands considered together, being behind their objective, the cold and bare figures are, for seven days, up to Monday night:—

Total objective	$4,500,000
Subscribed	1,377,750
Progress percentage for 6 days	38.88
Peterborough's grand total	30.62

Peterborough is dragging behind the campaign's expectations by a minus 8.26 in the percentage column.

C.G.E. Men Seek Ball Diamonds

An application by the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club for the use of two baseball diamonds at King Edward Park and a third on the Park street site of the skating rink last winter inspired a direction by the Council last night to Alderman Curtis to publish a notice that any clubs wishing to use the parks this summer should write to him as chairman of the parks committee.

"That is what we did last year," said Alderman Cotton, "and everything was satisfactory."

When the letter from J. Menzies, secretary of the C.G.E. organization, was read, Alderman Bradburn enquired: "What about the employees of other plants?"

"What about the boys of the district?" Alderman Sullivan added; "there ought to be a diamond left for them."

Alderman Curtis said there was some talk of a soccer club wanting to use King Edward Park again.

"Let Alderman Curtis and his committee look after it," Alderman Swanston urged, and "power to act" was added to Alderman Cotton's resolution.

"With all due respect to the C.G.E. club, we should not give them a practical monopoly," Alderman Dutton commented, and the allotment of park space and time was turned over to Alderman Curtis.

Box At Capitol Brings 11.15 For War Victims

When people are on pleasure bent, a carefree atmosphere usually prevails, which could perhaps be excused from thinking too much of the sterner and sadder things of life, for the two represent such opposite extremes as to preclude any possibility of their mixing very well together.

Yet in the midst of all the sorrow and trouble that is of a world-wide nature today, to go on one's own selfish enjoyment without giving any thought to the myriads of people to whom such an enjoyment is totally impossible, hardly seems to fit the spirit of the times, when thousands are sacrificing everything they hold dear that these suffering people may some day in the future know what real happiness may mean once more.

At all three local emporiums of pleasure in the shape of film entertainment, to all patrons there is a mute reminder of the need that exists among the war torn people of Britain in the shape of a penny box, like an angel of mercy stretching out its arms and hands in appeal, and to the credit of many who find entertainment in this manner, it may be said that the appeal has not been unheeded, resolving itself into one of the better returns in this respect on behalf of the objects they seek to serve through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

Children Do Real Well

Better still, and including a feature which speaks volumes for a better world future, is the fact that to a large extent, these same boxes receive a wide support from the children who attend, and in all probability their givings would be the only coppers they had, or would represent a part of what would most likely be a very modest supply of pocket money.

The latest of these boxes to be collected from the Capitol Theatre, where the jar was well filled with coins to make a total of $11.15, of which $6.40 was in coppers among over 700 coins that were contained therein.

Then another good contributor in the same class is also listed today, this one being collected on a monthly basis, credit going to the box located at the Bell Telephone Co. Ltd. office under the supervision of cashier B. Conley, who takes quite an interest in furthering the cause in this manner. The $2.25 listed in its name makes a total of $113.98 that has come to the fund from this one box.

Previously acknowledged	$75,827.01

WHY BOYS DON'T REPEAT DATES

Intruding Parents, Heavy Demands for Luxuries Reasons For Girls Staying Home Evenings.

MANY girls write to this column asking why it is that they cannot hold men. They say that boys seem attracted to them when they first meet and date them, but that they play no return engagements.

Well, of course, even the Bible sets down the way of a man with a maid as one of the insoluable mysteries, so there is no authentic explanation of why the lads camp seven deep on one girl's doorstep, while they never cross the threshold of the girl next door. It is just one of the things that is. But, generally speaking, when a girl is a good-looker and carries an average line of attractions and she has to spend her evenings going to improving lectures or symphony concerts with another girl, instead of stepping out with a boy friend to dance, it is due to one or the other of the following causes:

Family May Handicap Girl

Sometimes it is because she is handicapped by her family. When a young chap calls on Marybelle, they act as if he had come to ask her hand in marriage, whereas his only serious intention was to invite her to have a hot dog at the corner drug store. That gives him a trapped feeling and makes him flee for his life from that danger zone. Or maybe the reason the boy doesn't go back the second time is because he has to spend the evening in the bosum of the family listening to Papa's views on the mistakes that the Army and Navy are making in running the war, or to Mama tell what a cute baby Marybelle was.

Maybe the trouble is with the girl herself. She is not men-wise and doesn't know how to handle them. She is either too indifferent or too pleased, and either attitude is fatal. The boy wants her to show subtly that he has made a hit with her and she enjoys his society, but he doesn't want her to throw herself at his head, and if she does he dodges. Worst of all is for her to act grateful for his attentions. For that is proof that she is passed over by the other boys, and men still have to have another man's O.K. on a woman.

Luxury Demands Drive Away Boys

Often the reason a boy is not a repeater is because a girl puts too high a price tag on herself. She makes her company a luxury that only the son of millionaire can afford. She may be used to hopping buses and to a corned beef and cabbage menu at home, but when a lad takes her out she calls for taxis and orchids and restaurants where even the cover charge sends him to the beanery for the next month. So it is good-bye darling, and never again for him.

And very often it is because the girl thinks she enhances her value in a boy's eyes by bragging about the number of suitors she has and the brilliant marriages she could make. It doesn't inflate any boy's ego to think of one of these mankillers flaunting his broken heart in public so his first date is his last.

So look to your technique, girls, to see why you have no Number Two dates.

Have YOU thought

What it means to wear this emblem!

When you listen to news of what our boys are going through overseas

. . . and read the casualty lists in your newspaper every day

. . . and measure the sorrow and anxiety that have come to thousands of Canadian homes — and may come to many more . . .

Are your satisfied that you are doing ALL YOU CAN?

Our men and women in uniform are ready, if need be, to die for Canada, for Freedom, for YOU.

Compared with that, no amount of self-denial is too great.

Are you prepared to put EVERY SINGLE DOLLAR YOU CAN SAVE into Victory bonds? Into bonds that will assure a steady flow of vital supplies to bring Victory closer?

That's what YOU can do to help shorten the war, to save precious lives. And that's what the wearing of this emblem means—that you too are doing your share . . . that you are buying all the Victory Bonds you can!

She also represented her with a walnut end ceived many beautiful gifts at a miscellaneous shower given by forty of her Belleville girl-friends.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

The very newest shade of summer is creme-brule, silk pongee, much newer than the stark-white for the summer suit. With this suit is worn a sunlight yellow waist, high at the neck with turned down collar and bow tie. With this wear pigskin gloves and carry a pigskin purse. The hat is made of the pongee like the suit. This is a soft Breton sailor worn well on the back of the head. Button earrings in gold are also worn.

The new dinner coats are made of light colored satins. These coats are made in box style and are just hip length. The coat has a standing collar but, as it is always worn open, we suggest a bouquet of flowers at the throat. Pink satin gloves complete this coat, which is made of pink satin, but whatever color the coat is, be sure to have matching gloves.

There are many pretty new style this year for the girl who has just turned 20. The round neck-lines and cap sleeves need slender arms and smooth necks. Jumpers which take slim hips and wide shoulders. Beret worn either over the face or back of the pompadour. The short cadigan coat, in melon color because it can be worn with long skirts or short, with town suits and country slacks, looking as if it were chosen for each outfit.

A most unusual dinner dress is a black silk sheath with shoulder cape and a narrow path of jet embroidery from neck to hem. A small hat made of small pink rosebuds, and black lace gloves complete this most charming outfit.

A shirt-waist dress made in black and natural silk shantung. The skirt is of the natural shade, the waist all black and black gloves are worn.

A youthful shortie (coat) for the teen aged girl. Made in either plain or checked material, its only trimming is the saddle stitching. This coat is knee length and has patch pockets.

Have a hat made in the Dutch style of the same material as the coat. This coat and hat can be worn over any style of dress or any color. Smart for either dress-up or to wear to college, the one place where the teen aged miss likes to look her smartest on entering.

Council Applies For 50 Low Rental Houses

Endorsing a federal project to build permanent houses of a low rental type, in centres where they are most needed, as reported in a news despatch from Ottawa several days ago, the council last night applied for at least fifty of these houses to be allotted to Peterborough, in a resolution by Alderman Dutton, seconded by Alderman Glover.

Mayor Hamilton introduced the subject with a reference to the newspaper outline of a proposal purporting that the Dominion government has under consideration a plan to relieve the serious shortage of housing accommodation throughout the country.

"I think the Examiner was a little too optimistic Monday night about the situation in Peterborough," His Worship said. "I had three or four citizens call me last week, telling me they had to move, and expressing anxiety about where they could find vacant houses. I feel that there is a decided shortage right here in Peterborough. The Board of Health knows that there are families living in conditions which we don't want them to live under in this city."

Alderman Glover said the city's housing problem had been gradually developing from the stage in the industrial depression during the thirties when the building of houses had been greatly reduced and virtually suspended. "The condition has become worse during the last few years because we invited war workers here. There would have been a lot more fuss and raising more hell if we hadn't got the war industries than there is over the housing situation."

Alderman Bradburn stated that he was not prepared to support the motion until he had some definite information about the reported plans of the Government. One thing that should be known definitely was whether the Government intended to embark on a permanent housing scheme with full payment of the municipal services which the city would have to supply. The temporary Wartime Housing scheme has provided a lesson in that respect.

"One of the reasons why more houses are not being built," said Alderman Bradburn, "is because property has to bear more of their cost than it can afford."

Alderman Dutton said he understood from the newspaper account that the Government was proposing to build a type of house which could be paid for in twenty years

Eight of the members voted for the resolution. Alderman Bradburn and Curtis did not, and Mayor Hamilton did not call for the nays.

Welland Resolution

Discussion of the permanent housing project was preceded by debate on a Welland resolution recommending that municipalities should not be held liable by Wartime Housing Limited, a federal agency, for any rental arrears incurred by tenant families of men overseas and by returned men and their families.

Mayor Hamilton said he agreed with the principle of the Welland recommendation to the Department of Munitions and Supply because the men of the armed forces were in the service of the government and the country.

"For that reason I think municipalities with Wartime houses should be relieved of that rental responsibility because it seems to me something the Government itself should assume," His Worship said.

"Hasn't the municipality in which they lived some responsibility to the men overseas for houses their families need?" Alderman Glover asked.

Twelve Houses Rented

"Yes, I agree with you," Mayor Hamilton replied, "and that is why I applied to Wartime Housing to provide houses for some of those families. I asked Wartime Housing for something like twelve houses, and they quite readily provided for those families of men in the services, and it has worked out satisfactorily in so far as I know. But, I still feel that the responsibility for any of those rentals which might get behind is a responsibility of the federal government and not of the municipality."

Alderman Sullivan informed the council that the local Dependents Advisory Board had received from the Dependents Board of Trustees, Ottawa, instructions providing for special consideration and assistance for the families of service men in emergency housing circumstances. The telegram from the chairman of the Ottawa Board was as follows:

"The Dependents Board of Trustees are empowered to provide supplementary grants or special assistance to qualified dependents of members of the armed forces where such dependents have special or emergency needs.

Advisory committees are reminded that this provision covers assistance to such dependents who may be threatened with eviction and have other accommodation available, but require financial assistance to meet transportation costs.

Please arrange with your committee and your co-operating local welfare organizations to give immediate and sympathetic consideration to applications of this nature.

Grants may be made locally as necessary within usual limits of committee authority. Where reference to the Board at Ottawa is required please use telephone or telegraph. Special arrangements have been made by the Board to deal immediately with these emergency cases.

Your Mayor and municipal authorities should be reminded immediately of the assistance available through your committee, and that the Dependents Board of Trustees is both ready and anxious to help qualified dependents who need emergency assistance. I bespeak your close personal attention to this matter, and urge the most prompt and sympathetic action. You may be assured of the fullest co-operation of the Board."

Alderman Dutton said he was wondering "whether that supersedes any arrangement we have with Wartime Housing. If the city becomes liable for rent, does that arrangement apply?"

Mayor Hamilton said he did not think it did.

Not Much Chance

Alderman Glover: "We are not taking any great chance in assuming any rental deficit."

Mayor Hamilton: "I feel satisfied that not one service man's wife and family is likely to be a liability to the city, but I also feel that the responsibility is with the federal authorities rather than with the municipality."

Alderman Sands said he rather regretted the entire discussion of the resolution the Welland council was circulating. "I feel that it is in bad taste. In a general way the people of Peterborough and the members of the council have not suffered much as far as the war is concerned. If housing for the families of the service men does cost us some money the families can't pay, I believe the citizens at large are willing to do so. As to the reference to returned men in the Welland resolution that is opening up the question as to the continuing use of the temporary Wartime Houses."

Alderman Glover: "I think the men who went overseas from Peterborough and their families who are here are citizens of Peterborough, and this city would not do anything to cause them the least worry. If we get a house for a soldier's family, and we have to pay something for it, we are willing to pay for them. That's the way I see it."

Says Ottawa "Ducking"

Alderman Swanston said the Federal government was "ducking at every responsibility they can, and putting it on the municipality."

"With the invasion likely to come any day now, I feel keenly about this, and I'd like to see that Welland resolution thrown out," said Alderman Sullivan. "What if the housing of our service men's families does cost up $1,000 or $2,000? What does that mean?"

Alderman Dutton's motion to endorse the Welland resolution was seconded by Alderman Bradburn, and carried on a division of 6-4.

The yeas were Aldermen Bradburn, Cotton, Ovens, Curtis, Dutton, Swanston.

The nays: Aldermen Mark, Sullivan, Glover, Sands.

Board Upholds Union Cause; Strike Ended

WINDSOR, May 2 — (CP) — Production workers were back at their jobs in the Ford Motor Company of Canada plant here today for the first time since April 20 following acceptance Saturday by the Company and Local 200 of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) of government proposals for settlement of a grievance procedure dispute which caused the stoppage.

The Union and Company representatives accepted proposals set forth by the National Wartime Labor Relations Board at the conclusion of a two-day hearing at which both submitted proposals for settlement of the dispute which left more than 14,000 workers at the Ford plant and an additional 2,000 at Feeder plants out of work for 10 days.

Negotiations for a new contract will be started within the next 10 days and are expected to be completed within 30 days. If unable to agree, the Company and the Union will submit to conciliation the points on which agreement cannot be reached.

The Company accepted the Board's proposals at Ottawa late Saturday and the Union announced acceptance of the proposals at a mass meeting at Windsor, Saturday afternoon.

George Burt, Canadian Director of the U.A.W., said the Union's cause had been upheld by the Board and "we congratulate the Board on reaching their recommendations."

INGENUITY, skill and well-directed efforts, concentrated on new and improved ways of doing things, may develop fresh opportunities for mending the fortunes and solidifying the position in connection with superiors, employers or others in influence. This aim should be carefully held in mind. Generous rewards may be forthcoming for cleverly thought out and executed programs and policies. Daring and initiative enhances such probability, and a modicum of personal charm may lend force to attaining cherished ambitions and plans. Prestige and popularity may be safely sought.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which they may safely exploit their exceptional skill, versatility, or originality and ingenuity. Used with daring, directness and initiative such qualities are bound to enlist the support of those in high places and power, or those whose financial aid is needed for promotion of clever ideas and well-organized programs. There is force as well as personality, prestige and social popularity used as a lever to attain ambitious aims, if tactfully and discreetly applied. Shun show and extravagances.

A child born on this day may have much versatility, clever constructive ability, winning support from those in power. Its personality is influential and should be modestly used to further its ambitions.

22 German Ships Sent To Bottom

LONDON, May 2 — (CP) — Nine British submarines sank two medium-sized supply ships and 20 small ships during recent patrols in the Mediterranean and Aegean Seas, and damaged seven others, an Admiralty communique announced to-day.

One submarine braved the shore guns to surface outside a Southern French coast harbor to shell a larger tanker lying inside. Several hits were obtained on the tanker which was severely damaged.

The two medium sized supply ships were torpedoed and sunk off the French Riviera.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

—By J. R. Scott

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

Most children dream of some day living in a castle, with its memories of knights and ladies, great hunts and historic battles. The ambition of one young Peterborough airman, whose name remains anonymous at his parents request, experienced to the full these delights on a recent leave he spent with Lord and Lady Mansfield in Perthshire, Scotland.

"His Lordship owns Scone palace (pronounced Scoone) where all the Scottish kings lived when Scotland was a kingdom of its own. At present he is living at Logie House, a minature palace in beautiful Glen Almond. Because of the scarcity of help, they gave up the big castle for the duration.

"Our host entertained us with a hunt. They dressed us in tweeds for the occasion and we could shoot rabbits, hare, pigeons, roe deer, red deer and fox. This left a large field for our guns and we did quite well. My buddy and I slaughtered rabbits, hares and pigeons and Lord Mansfield got a deer. In our party there were two deer, 28 hares, four rabbits, two pigeons and a lot of fun. We used 12 gauge shotguns for all this work. Lord Mansfield has his own shells specially manufactured bearing his colors (blue and white) and his crest."

The flier said the Mansfields were charming people and they couldn't help but have a good time. They stayed on the edge of the highlands in the midst of the heather. The scenery was wonderful and reminded him of home in spots.

Men on leave looking for a place to stay can consult clubs for service personnel. They have lists for places all over Great Britain where families are willing to entertain men. All this lad had to do was place an order for a castle in Scotland and he drew Lord and Lady Mansfield.

His First Love

Once a man has become a part of a fast moving fighter plane, although he acknowledges the usefulness of a bomber, he wouldn't make a transfer, for anything which could be offered. This Peterborough boy recently tried handling a Flying Fortress, and while he found it an interesting experience, he is satisfied with a Spitfire.

"While we were visiting an American Fortress station recently, we went up in a Fortress B-17 and I got in 3½ hours flying time which goes in my log book. It certainly is a change between flying with one engine and with four. It is also a change that I would hate to have permanently. Flying a big bomber compared with a fighter, is like handling a truck.

"The plane I flew had been on about 35 missions and had been shot up badly. It had lots of holes in it and came home from the last raid on two motors—the other two were shot out. They had to replace all the motors in her. She is called Sharon Anne, after the skipper's young daughter. He is a swell fellow, as are his whole crew. We were grounded by bad weather, and the next morning we took off, me flying, and the navigator gave us a course which he thought would take us home. Unfortunately he got us a bit lost and I found myself climbing the Welsh mountains. Next he took us to Scotland and finally we came home on the beam.

Takes On Guardianship

"I went in my 'Master' a few days ago looking for Forts and after five tries found the Sharon Anne and skidded up on its wing. The boys recognized me and I flew formation with the Fort for about an hour. They were keen on me doing aerobatics for them so I did a bit. Those are the boys that watch the Focke-Wolfes and Mes cue up for attacks on them and the screaming dog fights as our fighters chase them off.

"I wish I could take you up above a layer of clouds with me. Below there is a perpetual mist and half light. When you poke your nose above the stuff, you are dazzled by the bright sun and pure white of the cloud top. One of my favorite sports is to get above the cloud and do some low flying about a foot off the top of them, at 200 miles an hour. Several times I have found the cloud top shaped in a huge wave like the swells on the Atlantic, and I really have a time climbing the crest and roaring down the other side. When you are whipping the whiffs of cloud, the speed is really apparent."

Raids Colorful

In his opinion, raids seen from the ground can be colorful. He stood outside and watched the whole effect, so that he could analyze it in terms that his parents could understand. He described it as a good imitation of a big thunderstorm. The barrage roared as planes moved overhead, and as the guns hammered away with gusto, Pathfinder flares were dropped by enemy bombers, marking out the target area. The flier said they were huge parachute flares that drifted down, burning a brilliant green-white and lighting up the streets in a luminescent glow. He picked his way through empty streets down to the Thames embankment where he hoped to see most of the action, all the time dodging a heavy rain of flak, whose razor sharp edges even on small chunks, can cause painful injuries.

In between the thundering of the gun explosions, the onlooker could hear the Jerries wheeling above trying to avoid the flak or diving in on their bombing run. One aircraft unloaded a bomb stick near him making five terrific whoomps, and then he saw a "kite" come spinning down in a long trail of flame to the ground. Another skimmed over the roof top beside him in a screaming dive. Rocket guns were busy with the A.A. and made a great noise. When the noise had died down to a distant drone, then the night fighters went into action.

Serving In India

Flt. Sgt. Fred Bayliss of Peterborough has been serving in the Far East for several months. He writes that while he thinks first impressions are generally best, things have changed so much since his arrival in India, that his original ideas are all wrong now.

His letter to the R.C.A.F. Auxiliary, thanking them for a parcel, was written the latter part of January. He wrote that they were in the middle of the hot season which would last until the end of March. The biggest thing he misses there, is snow and ice.

"Cocoanut palms grow everywhere and we drink the milk from the nuts. Bathing in the sea is very dangerous, and although we did it when we first came, it is now forbidden, except in a few places. I am naturally dark, but this torrid sun has burnt me till it is hard to tell me from the natives Everyone is anxious to get the war over, but we are luckier than some. Maybe you knew my old pal Bud Sanders? That was tragic.

"Sports stores are beginning to arrive through the Y.M.C.A., and last year we organized a softball league. I was transferred for six months, so missed nearly all the games. Up country in the hills it is much cooler and at night it is sometimes necessary to wear blues. Taken all around this would be a paradise, if it weren't for the war.

"A lot of Canadian produce is appearing here now and it helps to make things more homelike. I have received cigarettes from Stan McCormick's mother, and from Mrs. W. J. Moorhead of the R.C.A.F. Auxiliary. The Canadian Legion also sent me some, so I am well off. Of course those have been spread out and it is just as well, for cigarettes go bad here quickly since the humidity is so high."

New Training

Soldiers stationed at Camp Borden are being tested for night vision, and it is expected every soldier in Canada will eventually undergo a similar test.

A canvas chamber which excludes light has been erected indoors, a system of towers and targets devised, and, after a proper adaptation period, groups of 15 are put through a 45-minute quiz.

Misses Small Daughter

Although he has enjoyed his experiences in England, Pte. Aiden Moore writes that he will be ready to shove off any time, preferably west from Liverpool, back to his little family.

"I would like to see my small girl. My wife writes often about her and tells me of her little antics. It is a little strange, but it will be a wonderful strangeness when I come home. It will be a grand feeling using dollar bills again, and seeing miles of highway and not being crowded wherever you go. It will also be a relief not to have a pocket loaded down with pennies," he wrote.

He described a wonderful leave he had in London recently. He and some friends visited an American club there, which they found just like a touch of the United States. The soldier said there was a smart band beating it out and the place was jammed with Americans and Canadians. The building is huge and would cover almost half a block around.

"I heard from Jack (a brother) the other day, while he was still on a leave. He has discovered a farmer who is willing to feed him bacon and eggs. A nice set-up. However I have been scoring myself lately and finding the odd egg. Believe me, it takes ability to surmount obstacles over here."

Pte. Moore, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Moore, 43 Frank street, and has three other brothers overseas.

SGT. BDR. L. BLASTORAH

Sgt. Bombardier Leo Blastorah, son of Bernard Blastorah and nephew of Miss Margaret Blastorah of Harwood, is stationed overseas. He was formerly a student at Cobourg Collegiate and St. Michael's College, Toronto.

Labor Must Unite

NEW YORK, May 2—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said "there cannot be a united America unless there is a united labor movement in America," and asked yesterday when addressing a pre-convention meeting of the United Hatters Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union, that the congress of industrial organizations return to the American Federation of Labor.

Nothing Is Safe

WINDSOR, May 2—(CP). —Police last week had a call from an enraged victory gardener who reported that topsoil had been stolen from his plot. Only evidence came from neighbors who had seen a man drive up, bring out a shovel, and leave shortly after.

PREVENT ADVERSE RUFFS

NOTHING WILL burn up a declarer more than having a defender over-ruff a trick when he could have prevented it by drawing the trumps first. It is not always that a declarer, who has to ruff out some losing cards from his own hand, also has more trumps than he needs in the dummy. If he has, however, and can afford to drop the trumps first, he should do so.

3 ♦	4 ♠	5 ♦	5 ♠

South ruffed the second diamond lead, and saw that his contract was doomed, with two certain losers staring him in the face in the club suit. To prevent going down more than one trick, he decided to ruff out his two heart losers. So he cashed the heart A, led the 2 and ruffed in dummy with the spade 2. East over-duffed with the 6, scored the club A and led back another club to the K, so that the contract was beaten two tricks. West returned a heart, but South this time ruffed with the A, and thus avoided carelessly being beaten a third trick.

There was no excuse for South being set more than one trick. After getting in with his ruff of the second diamond, he should have taken two rounds of trumps. That would have settled the defenders' spades and left him two in dummy to ruff his two bad hearts. Even if that method of play had shown that all three outstanding trumps were bunched in the same hand, this would have protected him if West was the man with the three trumps.

Of course, if East had all three trumps and a singleton heart, there would have been no way to make the contract. But South could have guarded himself against every other possibility, and should have done so.

Marmora C.W.L. Activities For The Past Year Are Reviewed

MARMORA, May 2 — (ENS) — The annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in the Sacred Heart School with a good attendance. Correspondence from Diocesan conveners was read as well as many letters of thanks for baskets received by sick members of the parish and from members who had received spiritual offerings for members of their families. Mrs. Black made reference to the honor roll of boys and girls in the services which is to be placed in the church in the near future, and plants were made for a day of prayer on the occasion of its dedication. The president also thanked the members who had donated generously to the box of clothing which is to be sent away soon, and urged members to cooperate to their utmost in all war work.

The next gave the annual report revealing a successful year, and thanked the members for their cooperation. Mrs. J. Belanger presented the secretary's report. This was followed by that of the treasurer, Mrs Charles Crawford. This report showed receipts for the year amounting to $770. The Social Service report was given by Mrs. Hannah Auger, and in the absence of the convener Miss Mary Hughes that of the Red Cross by Mrs. J. Black.

A gift was then presented by Mrs. Black to Mrs. Thomas Reid, she and Mr. Reid having recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. A gift was also presented to Mrs. Hannah Auger for her efforts as social service convener.

Rev. Father H. J. Farrell congratulated the executive and members on the year's attainments, and urged them to continue the good work under the new executive. He also referred to the installation of the new Archbishop Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, D.D., which took place at Kingston on Tuesday.

The nominating committee made up of Mrs. John Crawford, assisted by Mrs. John Finnegan and Mrs. J. O'Neill, then took charge of the meeting and the election of officers as follows: Chaplain, Rev. H J. Farrell; president, Mrs. E. D. O'Connor; 1st vice-president Mrs. L. P. Hughes; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Joseph Doyle; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. E. Shannon; secretary, Mrs. J. Belanger re-elected; treasurer, Mrs. N. McDonald; councillors, Mrs. Rose Johnston, Mrs. Fred Johnston, Mrs M. Shannon, Mrs. M. A. McNally, Mrs. Theresa Warren, Mrs. C. Cook, Mrs. J. Clairmont, Miss Mary Hughes and Mrs. M. O'Connor. A lunch was served by members of the retiring executive.

Skin elasticity is the secret of a youthful complexion

Compare face with shoulder skin. You'll find shoulders look 5 or more years younger. That's because shoulder skin retains its elasticity—while facial skin pores are clogged with make-up, unable to breathe for hours at a time. And when pores can't breathe skin starts to age prematurely. But Palmolive can help retain youthful elasticity in your skin.

Look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, (use a face cloth) massage warm, rich, vitalizing Palmolive lather thoroughly into your skin for one full minute. Now a quick rinse and pat dry. Palmolive's 60-second Beauty Massage has been scientifically tested by 2,301 women and 36 doctors. Their reports prove conclusively that . . . in just 14 days, it brings lovelier complexions.

Gen. MacArthur Won't Accept Nomination

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, May 2 — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur back from an invasion which carried him 500 miles nearer his cherished goal of returning to the Philippines, stated unequivocally today he neither desires nor will accept nomination for President of the United States.

Noting "a widespread public opinion that it is detrimental to our war effort" for an active military leader to be considered for the office, he said, "I request that no action be taken that would link my name in any way with the nomination."

"I do not covet it nor would I accept it," read his brief statement concerning the movements in the United States to make him the Republican Presidential nominee.

It was his frist unequivocal and positive reply to individuals and groups who long have been urging the general either to come out into the open or be a silent but draftable candidate.

The flat statement capped a series of developments in which a Republican representative in Congress from Nebraska had urged the general to be a silent candidate and MacArthur had expressed appreciation of the interest manifested, but did not make clear whether he would accept if drafted.

The complete text of the statement read:

"Since my return from the Hollandia operations, I have had brought to my attention a widespread public opinion that it is detrimental to our war effort to have an officer in high position on active service at the front considered for nomination for the office of President.

"I have on several occasions announced I was not a candidate for the position. Nevertheless, in view of these circumstances in order to make my position unequivocal, I request that no action be taken that would link my name in any way with the nomination.

"I did not covet it nor would I accept it."

Cheese Producers Are Hopeful Of Equaling 1943 Output

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2—(ENS) —There is no relief for the labor shortage in sight but cheese production will probably equal last year's output of this district in the opinion of producers and dairy officials. With the single exception of Port Perry Creamery, which is located in the Toronto milk belt, though it boards its cheese at Campbellford, all plants will be fully manned when they get into heavy production in spite of the large number of dispersal sales held during the winter and early spring comparatively few milch cows have left the district.

A poll of cheesemakers reveals that all of them expect to handle as much milk as they did in 1943 and most have either already engaged a helper or expect little difficulty in finding one. The general opinion among cheese men is that it is the farmer who will suffer most from the labor shortage.

Leigh Isaacs, president of Beaver Factory, said production of cheese began there on April 25 with Alex. Stewart, formerly of Brae as cheesemaker. Beaver factory was brought up to date during the past month as all the old line shafting was taken out and four electric motors installed to drive the separator, agitator and pumps. More than $300 was spent on their make room alone but this they expect will come back in the form of dividends on high scoring cheese. Mr. Isaacs declares most of the farmers in that area have an extra cow or two "so we're looking for a bigger year."

Must Get Help

Asked about the labor situation Mr. Isaacs said it was the individual farmer and not the factory that was having the difficulty. In his own case, he said he needed two men to help operate his 200 acre farm and look after 17 head of cattle. "If we don't get the help now the grain crops will be short in the fall," was his opinion, and this was echoed by Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray who pointed out although many farmers had installed milking machines to help with the dairy end of the business it appeared likely that field crops would suffer. And smaller grain crops mean less feed or livestock, less beef, bread, poultry and eggs.

At Cedar Creek factory maker Sam Hobbs expects to again have a full time helper in the plant. He opened his factory on April 10 and up to the end of the month was averaging three cheese per day. Like other plants the big production will not begin till this month. Cedar Creek is perhaps the only plant where Government restrictions on trucking will definitely effect production. "We could get more milk if we could get a permit to draw." He explained the former milk drawer discontinued two years ago and by the time government officialdom got around to considering his application for permit last season it was mid-June "so we let the matter drop." Cedar Creek's output could be increased by five cheese a week if a permit to draw milk could be obtained.

Last week J. Kelso was preparing to begin operations for Bobcaygeon's 60 patron, joint stock factory.

Actual figures for the district (including part of Seymour) indicate a slight drop in early season production already. "We are not up to last year at this time," stated J. A. Murray, and this may be partly due to small truckers, anxious to make their equipment last, and reluctant to start driving pocketed roads and muddy lanes. A year ago Seymour was the banner cheese producing township of the Dominion with 2,037,945 pounds to its credit, and Mr. Murray is optimistic that this record will be maintained.

Co-Op Adopts New Charter

CAMPBELLFORD, May 2—(ENS) —The Campbellford District Co-Operative adopted its new charter and named a board of directors at an enthusiastic meeting held here recently. It was the first full meeting since the annual gathering in January and was designed to acquaint members with their expansion program which gained considerable headway last month when they purchased the O'Sullivan block on Bridge street at $4,200.

Leonard Harmon, secretary of the United Farmers, Toronto, delivered the keynote address, explaining the by-laws and outlining policy. He referred to the Co-op system as heralding a new order of business destined to take a critical part in the commercial field. Speaker Harmon urged members to keep the long range view in mind and recalled that in the past the farmer had little control over the price of his produce but with the cooperative system expanded, it would result in better control and give the farmer a stronger voice in matters pertaining to his own economic welfare.

Joseph Galloway accompanied the speaker from Toronto, and other guests included Norman MacMurchy, Howard MacLean and William Grant of Peterborough, and Rev. J. P. Collins of town. Rev. Collins, strongly optimistic of the future of the co-op, recalled the important part it had played in keeping farmers going during the depression in Maritime provinces in the thirties.

Directors of the Co-op now hope to boost their membership from its present 90 to 200 before the summer's end, and as an inducement are offering four per cent on capital invested. They expect the English Line Egg Circle, the town's biggest and oldest cooperative to amalgamate with them by the end of the year and in the meantime are making provision for them to use a part of their building to carry on their business. By the middle of May the Co-op expects to be open for business selling feeds hardware, groceries, and general farm supplies.

The new directors, from whom a president and secretary will be named are: Ernest (Barney) Eagleson, Earl Godden, R. A. Bateson, F. A. Burgar, W. F. Scott, Mel McKeown, E. Lindsay Anderson.

Union Heads Urge Men To Return And Aid War Effort

WINDSOR, Ont., May 3—(CP).—Strong picket lines of Local 200, United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) were in operation at the Ford Motor Company of Canada today, barring the entrance to all but a few employees and forcing Wallace R. Campbell, president of the company, and other officials to remain away from their offices.

Telephone operators were among those admitted and business calls to the giant war plant were referred to a downtown hotel, from where some of the company's business was being carried on.

These early developments marked the latest chapter in a company-union dispute which began weeks ago, broke into the open with a walkout April 20, was mended for a brief period last Saturday and flared forth again last night when a mass meeting of 10,000 workers voted in favor of the walkout and immediately threw pickets around the plant.

Workers reporting for the midnight shift did not enter the gates.

At last night's meeting the Union membership approved a recommendation of their executive to remain away from their jobs today and until a satisfactory solution of their grievance procedure is given by the Wartime Labor Relations Board whom they accuse of breaking faith with them.

A Brief Scuffle

The action was taken against the advice of Union leaders, including the International Board.

At the Charles street gate of the plant shortly before midnight there was a slight disturbance when a man described by pickets as a foreman attempted to enter the company property.

He was escorted toward the street by a number of Union men, one of whom shoved him to the pavement. As he fell a picket kicked him and struck him with his fist as he got to his feet.

Other pickets grabbed the assailant and rushed him back into the line.

Gunner Refused To Leave Post

TORONTO, May 3 — CP). — Lieut. Glenn Keith Cowan of Hamilton, an officer aboard H.M.S. Black Prince, told to-day in a London dispatch to the Toronto Star how AB. G. J. Parsons of Belleville was rescued by force as he sought to remain at his gun post on the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan as it sank last Saturday after an engagement in the English Channel.

Parsons was in charge of a gun turret on the Athabaskan and his gun crew continued firing after the order to "Abandon ship." They fired five rounds when the chief gunner's mate came along and ordered them to stop firing and obey the order to abandon the ship.

"Whose orders am I following anyway?" asked Parsons, and another round was fired. Then he took his crew to the ship's side and told them to jump.

"You are coming with us,' the men said.

"Go ahead—I'll follow," he replied.

But two members of the gun crew seized Parsons and tossed him overboard before jumping themselves.

"Other great deeds will yet come to light," concludes Cowan's story.

Montreal Plans 900 Low-Rent Homes

Federal Government To Supply 3 Million Capital In Non-Profit Scheme

MONTREAL, May 3 —(CP)— Plans for the construction of more than 900 low-rent dwellings in the Montreal area, with private industry and the Federal Government supplying the $3,000,000 capital, were announced today by a group of Montreal businessmen headed by George W. Spinney.

Mr. Spinney is president of the Bank of Montreal.

The plan calls for formation of a company under provincial charter with capital stock to be issued to Montreal business firms to the extent of about 3,000 shares of $1,000 each, with interest limited to three per cent.

"Shareholders in the new company would agree to forego expectation of capital gain, for the plan contemplates merely the ultimate return of funds subscribed," said the announcement.

It added that if negotiations could be concluded with the provincial government the properties probably would "be turned over to the city after retirement of the Dominion Government mortgage loan and the shareholders' capital.

Speaking of the participation of the Federal Government in the project, the announcement said that "the minister of finance has agreed to advance funds up to nine times the amount subscribed by shareholders, at a three per cent rate of interest in the form of a mortgage loan," and added that the money would be repaid out of rentals over a period of probably 40 years.

Under the plan, the dwellings would take the form of flats in three-storey buildings occupying about seven city blocks. Each building would be divided into flats containing one, two or three bedrooms in addition to a living room, kitchen-dinette and bathroom.

4 District Boys Return Home

KINGSTON, May 3.—"Yes, we're glad to be back in Canada—but we've left many friends overseas." So Company-Sergeant-Major Frank Smith, of Kingston, summed it up for the 22 soldiers who arrived in Kingston from overseas Monday afternoon. Five are receiving medical attention at the Kingston Military Hospital, and the others obtained furloughs from No. 3A District Depot, Fort Frontenac, and were ready within an hour and a half to leave the depot for their homes.

Corporal Arthur Payea, of Kingston, who has been in Sicily and Italy with the Royal Canadian Engineers, suffered a badly shattered arm on December 9 while serving on the Italian Moro River front. Private Harold Sanford, of Bannockburn, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, had the misfortune to have his elbow badly smashed by shrapnel in the same fracas. Corporal Ken Sisley, of Hastings, another H. and P.E. man, received severe injuries to a leg, when a German anti-tank mine exploded near Cattrazanza, Italy, on September 8. Private Edward Plane, R.C.O.C., was injured in England in a truck accident, and his return to Canada was necessitated. These men all expect to leave hospital before long for their homes.

Private Gordon Grieve, of Port Elgin, who has been overseas for two and a half years, contracted a severe illness six months ago. He is now well on the way to recovery, and speaks highly of the army medical services.

Missed Dieppe.

Private Ernie McDonald, of Trenton, a veteran with three years' service in World War I, is back in Canada, following four years and seven months in this war. He is one of the Canadians who served in France in 1940. Gnr. Tom McCoy, of Belleville, served in North Africa and was returned to England in November of last year, when his medical category was lowered. Sapper Jim Sisson, of Peterborough, was at sea on his way to Dieppe, but the barge he was on did not land.

The returning draft included:

CSM. F. Smith, Sgt. W. G. Gibson, Cpl. A. M. Payea, Kingston; Sgt. W. A. Ironside, Gnr J. McCoy, Belleville; Gnr. A. E. Hawkins, Spr. J. J. Sisson, Peterborough; Sgt. I. F. Sopha, Havelock; Sgt. K. Commonwealth Premiers Hear All Invasion Secrets

LONDON, May 3 — (CP Cable). — Commonwealth Prime Ministers were told "all the invasion secrets" during yesterday's meeting at 10 Downing Street, the Daily Express political correspondent reported today. While the meeting was in progress, the chiefs of all the fighting services waited outside and were called in as technical angles arose, the correspondent said.

Before coming to Britain the Prime Ministers were informed, by cipher cables, of the general invasion plan, but "the facts disclosed to them in Downing Street were so secret most of them have not been put into writing even in the Cabinet archives," the correspondent added.

As soon as the meeting ended, he said, an official gave the room a close scrutiny and destroyed blotting paper and note pads. This is regular security procedure after discussion of matters of secrecy.

The war situation still was under review today, the third of the meeting, and is expected to occupy most of the week. The conference, described by Prime Minister Churchill as "one of the most important events that has taken place since the outbreak of war," now is getting down to routine procedure. The scope also was broadened, it became known last night, the first night session, when a spokesman said the widest possible range of world problems was due to be discussed.

Mr. Churchill's reference to the importance of the conference was contained in his address of welcome Monday, made public last night. The prime minister told the overseas leaders they were in London "in the most deadly climax in the conflict of the nations."

It was "high time," he added, that the prime ministers got round the table "to exchange views and ideas." He thought the ideas were convergent but it should be the duty of the prime ministers "to find where divergencies or potential divergencies exist and see how such divergencies can be adjusted while they are still small.

Texts of the other prime ministers, also made public, indicated the Commonwealth leaders were confident of agreement on principles. Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he anticipated "no difficulty in arriving at agreement on all essential matters by convergence of views."

1,727 Jap Boats Have Been Sunk

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, May 3.—(AP).—Allied Headquarters in a special statement to-day claimed 1,727 Japanese coastal vessels, barges and schooners have been sunk and 3,548 damaged since April, 1942.

A comprehensive review of the Allied anti-barge campaign said this destruction had the effect of "paralyzing enemy efforts to supply, reinforce or evacuate the 17th and 18th (Japanese) armies cut off and surrounded in New Guinea, New Britain, New Ireland and the Solomons."

The Japanese have been driven to the use of barges and other small craft by heavy losses of cargo ships and transports early in the war and by the proved inefficiency of submarines as supply agents.

The Headquarters statement estimated that the 1,727 small boats destroyed could move a 50,000-man army.

Mosquitoes Blast Leverkusen

French Railways Rendered Useless By Heavy Bombing

LONDON, May 3 — (CP) — R.A.F. Mosquitoes, taking over the western phase of the European air war, made a 30-minute attack on the German chemical centre of Leverkusen last night while Italy-based bombers blasted Genoa and communcations centres in northern Italy.

The 400-mile-an-hour Mosquitoes dropped many 4,000-pound block busters on Leverkusen, which lies just north of Cologne and is the home of one of the largest chemical works in Europe, employing 20,000 workers.

The Acheres railway yards in France also were hit by Mosquitoes as British heavy bombers remained idle for the first time in seven night.

Besides Genoa, second only to Marseilles as an important Mediterranean port, the southern arm of the Allied Air Force also struck at Piacenza, north Italian road junction, in an extension of the widespread assaults made yesterday.

(The German radio said at noon (German time) that there were "no enemy aircraft over the Reich," the Federal Communciations Commission reported. An hour earlier, it had announced that single aircraft were over the southwest Germany.)

While the swift Mosquitoes visited Germany for the first time this month, Allied Intruders, including the R.C.A.F. City of Edmonton Squadron, swept over the continent as far as Munich and shot down five German planes.

An air ministry communique said mines also were strewn in enemy waters and that no Allied planes were missing.

The Acheres railyard, near Paris, was last hit by R.A.F. heavies April 30 in the campaign to knock out railroads supplying the enemy's anti-invasion forces.

Fires Spring Up

Mosquito pilots back from the Leverkusen raid said all the town's defences opened up as the bombers swept up over in clear weather.

"Many of us were carrying 4,000 pounders and as we made our bombing run I could see them exploding among flashes of the anti-aircraft guns," one said. "Fires soon sprang up. I could still see them more than 60 miles away."

More Tourists

LONDON, May 3—(CP).—German spies have flooded the towns of El Ferrol, San Esteban, Gijon, Santander, and Sebastian on the Spanish Bay of Biscay coast, Tass, Russian news agency, said Tuesday in a Lisbon dispatch. The Tass dispatch reported many recently arrived "tourists" were in fact German airmen destined for service on secret airdromes on the Iberian peninsula.

Soviet Party Atheistic; People Devout

TORONTO, May 3 —(CP)—Most Rev. Cyril F. Garbett, Archbishop of York, visited Hamilton, Ont., today, after addressing two meetings in Toronto Tuesday at which he said:

1. "We must be ready to resist aggressor nations by the use of force "after peace is restored";
2. International goodwill and co-operation after the defeat of Germany and Japan are prerequisite for post-war security;
3. The greatest hope for the future lies in continued co-operation among the British Commonwealth, the United States, Russia, and perhaps France, China and other countries;
4. There is a real revival of religion in Soviet Russia, although the Soviet party is "still atheistic."

Yesterday was a busy day for the archbishop. He addressed a joint meeting of the Empire and Canadian clubs at noon, attended a meeting of Toronto clergymen of various denominations and a reception by Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto, and Mrs. Owen, during the afternoon, and spoke at a mass meeting under auspices of the National Council for Canadian-Soviet Friendship at night.

Many At Church

At the night meeting, the Archbishop said that after a 10-day recent visit to Russia he was no authority on that country; but he had the highest admiration for the spirit of the people who had endured terrible sufferings, and for the achievements of the Red Army.

He had been impressed with the enormous vitality of the vast population and Russia's almost limitless resources.

Church services which he had attended in Moscow were attended by thousands of worshippers.

"The Soviet Party is still atheistic," he said, "but it is true to say that within the churches there is freedom of worship and an increasing number of churches are being opened month by month."

"The Russians," he said, "have suffered terribly. They have endured without flinching and now triumphantly they are driving the enemy from their country.

"I was told there is not a Russian home that has not suffered bereavement. But through it all they have never lost faith in their country."

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Sir Ellsworth Flavelle and addresses were also made by Metropolitan Benjamin, head of the Russian Orthodox Church in North America, and Gregory Tounkin, Soviet Charge d'Affaires at Ottawa. The Metropolitan extended greetings in the name of the people of Russia and Petriarch Sergei. Mr. Tounkin ex-

Air-Borne Troops Dominate 40 Miles Of Track Vital To Jap War Program

Allies Capture New Ground At Kohima
Withdraw At Paletwa
American-Chinese Army Moves South

LONDON, May. 3—(CP).—British air-borne Commandos have struck a new blow at Japanese communications in Burma and have succeeded in knocking out 40 miles of the important Mandalay-Myitkyina railway in the vicinity of Indaw, a southeast Asia command review issued here declared today.

This is the second "Chindit" swoop on the Indaw area, the review said. While the first, which started a month ago was described as satisfactory it was said the present one gives promise "of still better results" in helping American-Chinese forces advancing on Myitkyina from the north.

Indaw is situated about midway on the railway from Mandalay to Myitykyina, on which the Japanese must depend for moving men and supplies from southern Burma to meet Stilwell's forces.

The review said that as a result of the Chindit strikes the Japanese in the Indaw sector were "clinging in small groups to the comparative safety of high ground" and moving only by night.

Capture Strongpoint

KANDY, Ceylon, May 3—(AP)—Allied troops have captured several additional enemy strongpoints north of Kohima in assaults designed to lessen Japanese pressure on that Indian frontier base, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

At the same time, however, a communique said, Allied forces on the southern end of the Burma front evacuated the village of Paletwa "in readjusting" their positions in that area.

Paletwa is situated on the Kaladan river about 100 miles north of the Japanese-held port of Akyab and about 35 miles northeast of Buthedaung.

Stilwell Gains

In Northern Burma, the communique said, Allied forces have destroyed more enemy strong points and Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's American-Chinese troops are continuing to advance south and west of Warong.

The Allied forces also pressed forward north and northeast of Imphal in a fighting advance which at one point piled up more than 250 enemy dead in recent operations, the bulletin said. Bad weather hampered operations south of Kohima.

British long-range fighters in daylight Tuesday hit enemy communications at Mandalay and other points in Burma, damaging seven locomotives and more than 200 pieces of rolling stock.

Bond Purchasers Nearing Million Mark

OTTAWA, May 3 — (CP). — As the $1,200,000,000 Sixth Victory Loan reached half-way in the three-week drive, purchases up to yesterday amounted to $553,617,500, the National War Finance Committee announced to-day.

Purchasing $72,373,500 worth of bonds yesterday, Canadian buyers picked up about $2,000,000 of the ground lost in the first seven days of the campaign

The total sales for the same day in the Fifth Victory Loan were $70,044,300 and the cumulative total was approximately $557,000,000.

Yesterday's total sales were made up of $33,446,550 from the individual buyers; large corporate purchases totalled $38,926,950.

The number of applications was down slightly over the same day in the last loan, with the total 147,580 as compared with 158,425 six months ago. An earlier response from the armed forces has brought the cumulative total of applications at this stage to nearly the million mark— 953,853, as compared with approximately 820,000 in the Fifth Victory Loan.

"The overall picture to start the ninth day of canvassing is that 44.4 per cent of the canvassing time has elapsed," an official of the National War Finance Committee stated to-day, "and we have only

Tito Closes In On Zagreb City

LONDON, May 3—(CP).—Yugoslav Partisans have captured two towns north and northeast of Zagreb, capital of Croatia, but an Axis drive west of Zagreb has forced them to withdraw in several places.

The Partisans also captured Ibjelopolje, in Sanjak, 40 miles northwest of the Albanian border, killing 200 Axis troops, and destroyed a troop train in Dalmatia, killing 170 Germans and wounding 150.

The Yugoslav broadcast also said Partisans had captured a German armed steamer and crew in a harbor on the Dalmatian coast.

The bulletin added that Dalmatian units had inflicted heavy losses on the Germans in repulsing assaults in the Prolog Ruja sector of Dalmatia and were cutting up rail lines all through the area.

Meat Rationing Lifted In U.S.A.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—(AP).—The United States office of Price Administration to-day made all meats except beef steaks and beef roasts ration-free, effective at midnight.

The removal of ration points, announced by O. P. A. Administrator Chester Bowles at a surprise press conference, covers all cuts of pork, veal, lamb and mutton; all beef except steaks and roasts; beef hamburger beef stews, all kinds of variety meats, sausage, ready-to-eat meats canned meats and canned fish.

The action was taken, Mr. Bowles said, because lend-lease buying had been halted for the time being; also because of reduced army and navy demand, the crowding of storage space and the hope that the action will bring more meat to market this summer.

Meat rationing and meatless Tuesdays were suspended temporarily in Canada Feb. 29 because of large surpluses which had been built up in the Dominion through lack of transportation facilities for shipping meats to the United Kingdom. Authorities emphasized that rationing would be resumed when shipping congestion was relieved.

Split Second Timing to Feature Invasion

Labor Minister Bevin Tells War-Workers He Knows Precise Moment Of Attack

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

We've been told that D-day for the great invasion of Western Europe has been set, and Labor Minister Ernest Bevin confided to British war-workers during the week-end that he even knew the precise moment, though he dared not reveal it.

It will seem strange to most folk that an unprecedented amphibious attack—an operation which literally is an adventure into the unknown—can be pinned down with such exactness. Still, it is because of its very magnitude and uniqueness that there must be as much exactness as is humanly possible.

However, we can take it for granted that, despite an exact date, the time can be altered to meet an unforeseen emergency. It's obvious that a date which depends to considerable degree on untested elements must be conditional to that extent.

This point was illustrated at the time of the Sicilian invasion. The day before D-day a freak 33-knot wind developed suddenly, whipping up waves that made hundreds of soldiers sick and worried their officers. Vice Admiral H. K. Hewett, commander in chief of the U.S. Naval Forces in North African waters, called in Commander Richard C. Steere, the weather man who always gives the right answer. Steere said the wind would die down and advised no change in plans. But the time of the invasion presumably would have been altered if his report had been adverse.

Barring this qualification as to flexibility, we can be sure that plans have been worked out exactly. While the zero hour can't be guaranteed is that things will follow a certain course after the zero hour has been reached.

In the matter of ordinary land offensives, operations are worked out to a fineness that's uncanny. Days before a big drive the whole thing has been reduced to decimal point exactness. The maps show just where attacking troops will be at precise times as the line advances. Everything corresponds to this precision. Only in that way can the all-important co-ordination be achieved along the whole front.

Of course, the best planned offensives are likely to have local upsets, such as some unit being held up by fierceo pposition. However, these can be compensated for, as the occasion may demand, because of the precision of the operation as a whole.

Dewey Has 239 Delegates

Democrats Hang On In Southern States

NEW YORK, May 3 — (AP). — United States administration forces beat back their democratic critics in Florida and Alabama senatorial primaries while Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York gathered in more convention support to-day for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Senator Lister Hill, Democratic whip, was renominated in Alabama and Senator Claude Pepper ran up a substantial lead in his five-way contest for renomination in Florida. Both men are administration stalwarts and both were opposed by vigorous critics of many of President Roosevelt's policies, in their part of the country nomination is as good as election.

Support for the President figured as a side issue in another senatorial primary, in South Dakota, where Republican Senator Chan Gurney won renomination despite opposition claims that he had "adopted much of the New Deal philosophy."

This brings Dewey's total of the pledged or claimed delegates to 239, with 530 needed to nominate at the Chicago convention.

Huns Build Balkan Defences

Look For Action On Three Fronts

LONDON, May 3—(AP). — New Allied offensive operations in the Mediterranean in conjunction with the anticipated invasion of western Europe were forecast today by the Germans, who were reported reinforcing their defences on the Dalmatian coast to meet a possible thrust into the Balkans.

In a broadcast from Berlin, a German military commentator declared that large movements of Allied troops and supplies observed in southern Italy "indicate the two armies (5th and 8th) intend to launch a fresh attack." Canadian troops are holding along the Adriatic front in Italy.

The Germans intimated they expected this assault to coincide with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's invasion assault from the west and a renewal of the Russian drive from the east.

Gen. Veledit, a member of the military mission sent to London by Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) of the Yugoslav Partisans, said the Germans in his homeland "are frightened of an Allied invasion from Italy and have diverted four of their 14 divisions in Yugoslavia to guard the Dalmatian coast line."

Heavies Hit 5 Targets Across Italy

1,800 Sorties Flown In 24 Hours By Allied Planes

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

NAPLES, May 3 —(AP)—Heavy bombers of the R.A.F. bombed Milan, La Spezia, Genoa, Livorno and Piacenza last night in a smash follow-up to daylight attacks yesterday by American heavyweights on La Spezia harbor and rail yards across northern Italy, it was announced today.

Six Allied planes were missing from 1,800 sorties flown during the day and night in the steadily rising offensive the Mediterranean air force is waging. One enemy plane was destroyed.

The Genoa attack was the fifth in five consecutive nights on that city.

Marauders for the second straight day bombed rail yards in the greater Florence area.

The rail centres on which the American bombers concentrated their bombs in the daylight attacks included Castelmaggiore and Faenza, in the Bologna area; Parma, 50 miles northwest of Bologna on the route toward Milan; and Fano, on the east coast line between Ancona and Bimini. Piacenza, hit at night by the R.A.F., is 40 miles southeast of Milan.

Fighter-bombers hit shipping in the Adriatic off the Dalmatian coast as part of the 1,800 sorties flown in this theatre during the day and night.

10,000-Mile Trip Made By R.A.F. Man

Although he has travelled approximately 10,000 miles in the past month, Sgt. Frank Heafield of the R.A.F. stationed at Pensacola, Fla., has not yet tired of seeing the beauties of Canada and the United States. He is spending a leave with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Heafield, 477 Mark street.

When he got a furlough, the R.A.F. man decided it was an ideal time to visit an aunt and uncle in California. While there he got a chance to see Hollywood from the inside, and made an interesting tour of one of the motion picture studios, with Deanna Durbin's mother and father. From California, he came to Peterborough, and after a few days here he will return to Florida.

Although he did not know a young Peterboro boy Sub. Lieut. Douglas Wolfe, who was killed in a crash at Pensacola in October, 1943, he was anxious to contact relatives here, so that he might at least give them a picture of life at the station where the boy crashed.

Sgt. Heafield enlisted more than two years ago and after taking his ground training in England, the young flier came to the United States about nine months ago, where he began training with the United States Navy. When his course is completed he will be assigned to the R.A.F. coastal command.

He may be a long way from home but the blonde flier is not too homesick. Peterborough is now something like coming home because this is not his first visit here. Sgt. Heafield came to the city last October and liked it well enough to return. He declared that in his travels he had not found the country so different from England, and added that Peterborough particlularly reminded him of England.

"Everywhere I go people are so friendly and kind, and this has been particularly true of your city," Sgt. Heafield told the Examiner, Tuesday.

On motion by Councillors Martin and Ketchen council requested three tons of calcium chloride, to be sent along with the nearest town or village shipment, as it is in previous the district engineer, Department of Highways, Port Hope. On a motion of Councillors Sanderson and years, this request to be sent to Martin, no action was taken regarding the lowering of town hall rent.

Employees Of C.G.E. And Genelco Subscribing $485,000 Of Loan Presented With 3-Star "V" Flags

"You've done a swell job, girls and fellows, and I want you all to know how much I appreciate it personally," was the informal but deeply grateful tribute paid by Ian F. McRae, works manager, to the employees of Genelco Limited and of the Canadian General Electric Company at the conclusion of their joint shop campaign for the Sixth Victory Loan Tuesday afternoon.

"I have been asked by the president of our company to extend you his appreciation of what you have done. Our Peterborough works have accomplished one-half of the total Loan of the Company. I am sincerely grateful to our canvassers for their assistance. Without them, and of course without the hearty response of the employees, we wouldn't have been able to put over this drive so well.

A week ago last Friday, you remember, I put out the challenge to clear up our quota of $450,000 within a week, and you did. By the following Friday we had received applications for $465,000 of the Sixth Victory Loan. I am glad to be able to announce that our total is now up to $480,000. That means 106.6 per cent. of our quota.

"In both works we have had 3,894 subscribers or 94 per cent. of all our employees, and the average subscription was $123. That is a very fitting tribute to the employees of our works. We are still keeping the list open if any others care to subscribe."

Mr. McRae said the Victory Loan was going all well throughout the city and county, and especially in the response by the employees of Peterborough's industries.

To the large assembly of employees on the lawn near the Park street gate at 5 p.m., Mr. McRae explained that the employees of the two plants had [illegible] for a three-star "V" flag, [illegible]ing that 90 per cent. of the [illegible]ees were applying 15 per cent. [illegible] their pay-roll for the purchase of Victory Bonds. For the presentation of identical flags to the two groups Mr. McRae introduced Gordon S. Matthews, Victory Loan committee chairman for the city and county.

Mr. Matthews complimented all the employees for "the wonderful success" of their canvass.

"These flags should have six stars on them," said Mr. Matthews, "three for this Sixth Loan and three for the Fifth Loan."

He called upon Mrs. Eileen Hope of Genelco Limited to accept on behalf of its employees the "V" flag they had won. Mr. Matthews mentioned the fact that Mrs. Hope's husband has been overseas three years, "and she has done a grand job in the last three campaigns."

Michael J. O'Toole, with four sons, two daughters and one son-in-law in the armed forces, as cited by Mr. Matthews, received the "V" flag awarded to the C.G.E. employees.

Mr. Matthew also called to the platform, Roy Parnell, chairman of the C.G.E. canvassers committee, and Lorne Jackman, chairman of the Genelco canvassers, to receive certificates of honor from the National War Finance Committee.

"On behalf of our Victory Loan Committee in Peterborough as I wish to thank you as representing the two groups of canvassers for the fine work you have done," Mr. Matthews said. "If the people of the city and country generally, as well as the employees of Canadian General Electric Company and Genelco Limited, and of the other industries in the city, I don't think we will have any difficulty in reaching our objective of $4,500,000."

Before and after the presentation of the "V" flags, the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps Band of Camp Borden under the direction of Albert Croasdale played a number of selections accentuating the spirit of accomplishment in the major subscription of $485,000 in Victory Bonds as the C.G.E.-Genelco response to the Sixth Victory Loan.

Trade Pressure Hurts Germany

LONDON, May 3 — (AP) — The British-American agreement with Spain limiting shipuents of wolfram to Germany, an economic solar plexus blow at the Reich, was interpreted in London to-day as a new demonstration of a mounting conviction among neutrals of the approach of Allied victory.

The second payoff is an intensified Allied get-tough policy agreement, although not quite as complete as the United States had sought, followed Turkey's decision to halt shipments of chrome to the Nazis. The two economic victories assure the Allies of at least a 50 per cent success in the campaign to stop the flow of strategic metals into Germany.

Axis Shipping Battered At Sevastopol

Lwow Bombed By Russians Land Front Quiet

LONDON, May 3 (CP)—The Red Air Force continued to bear the brunt of the fighting on the Eastern front Tuesday, sinking five Axis vessels fleeing from the Crimea after dealing another smashing blow to the big rail junction of Lwow in Old Poland Monday night, Moscow announced today.

Soviet bombers hammered Lwow again last night, said a Berlin broadcast.

A Soviet communique listed the five destroyed vessels as two landing barges, two patrol boats and a tug and said an 800-ton transport was severely damaged by a direct hit.

Although German broadcasts continued to assert that the Red Army was striking powerfully southwest of Kowel, in a sector less than five miles from the vital Kowel-Lwow railroad, the Soviet communique said only that minor engagements were fought south of Tiraspol along the Lower Dnestr river and southeast of Stanislawow in old Poland.

The spokesman maintained that the success in knocking out the railway yards gave the Germans the alternative of stationing reserves further back from the coast or bringing up more reserves to the fortified coastal areas.

In the first case, he said, there would be considerable delay in getting troops and supplies to any given spot and, moreover, the Allies would have greater opportunity to bomb trains. The alternative would mean concentrating troops in the dangerous area of the constantly-bombed coast at the risk of heavy casualties.

Official announcements last night said R.A.F., American and R.C.A.F. sky fleets based in Britain and Italy easily established a record during April by scattering a total of 80,460 tons of bombs on their chosen targets in Germany and occupied territories.

From dawn to dusk yesterday explosives were loosed at a two-ton-per-minute clip on invasion coast defences and rail feeder lines by bombers of virtually all types. The skyfilling forays went almost unchallenged by the Germans.

In Tuesday's attacks, R.A.F., R.C.A.F. and American bombers and fighter-bombers, smashed German feeder rail lines at the rate of one an hour in the greatest continued assault in the history of aerial warfare. Since the dawn of May 1 it is estimated that more than 35 rail junctions and other key enemy targets have been blasted.

Although an official estimate was not available, it appeared that yesterday's attacks by R.A.F., American and Canadian planes approximated those of preceding days when sorties totalled around 2,000 or 3,000 daily, raising to possibly 7,000 the bomb tonnage for May's opening 36 hours.

The U.S. air force announced heavy damage to 29 German aircraft plants attacked during the month.

The American fliers shot down a total of 1,282 German planes in combat and U.S. fighter pilots, corroborated by cameras, claimed destruction of 450 on the ground.

The air ministry announcement raised the bomb total dropped in a single night to 5,040 tons. This record was set the night of April 20 when more than 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers hit Cologne and rail yards in France and Belgium.

He said that from Cologne to the Bay of Biscay there were no freight yards for a distance 100 miles inland from the coast capable of making up trains and only military and (continued above: coal traffic is proceeding in France and Belgium.)

Ratepayers Taxed 42 Mills Although Town Rate Set At 44

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3, (ENS) Though council actually increased this town's tax rate by one mill to 44 mills this year due to the Provincial Government's one mill educational subsidy, citizens will again pay on a 42 mill rate. This was forecast a month ago by Deputy Reeve H. M. Fowlds, Chairman of the Finance Committee, but only became factual with the passage of a by-law which officially set the tax rate at the May meeting of council.

Estimates by various committee chairman were tabled at a special meeting of the Finance Comittee and according to Deputy Reeve Fowld's report they were up from last year by approximately $2,500. Budget figures from which the date was established, were as follows—County rate, $8,845.24: Board of Health, $800. up $300.; Special Sewers, $500. up $200; Wood $500. up $500; Public School rate, $12,696 down $700 (due to additional government grants on Domestic Science and Manual Training Departments in the P. S.) High School rate, $5,152 up $1,500; Garbage collection, $1,000 up $150; Police $3,200 up $150 (increased salaries); Town property, $500 was up $100 (new bicycle racks); Library, $1,700 up $100; Fire Protection, $3,000 up $600 (salary inc. $300 new hose etc.); Street Oiling, $2,500 up $300 (additional car of primer needed to finish street surfacing); Direct Relief, $125; Office, $500 up $50; Rents, $400 up $175 (formerly charged under Hospitalization); Salaries $4,200; Printing $200 up $50; Interest $100 down $75; Legal, $250; Road and Bridges, $4,800; Street Lighting, $4,500 down $500 (due to new type of lighting); Miscellaneous $200; Industrial $50 down $50; Grants, $350; Uncollected taxes $6,000.

Commenting on the 42 mill (net) rate Finance Chairman Fowlds declared "I see no reason at present why we should not end this year with a balanced budget, providing all committees keep within their estimates".

No Report

Police Chairman MacMillan had nothing to report regarding the destruction of street signs. He had already ordered the Police Department to conduct an investigation but so far had been unable to arrange a committee meeting to discuss the matter. Councillor Donald reported the bicycle racks had been completed and were now serving their purpose. Built of steel, the five racks had cost approximately $23. each, and their utility had already been realized in the form of requests for the construction of at least two others.

Regarding dog licenses this year, Assessor R. H. Townsend asked if the usual procedure for collecting taxes on the town's estimated 225 dogs and on motion the matter was left in his hands. It was also pointed out that the by-law restricting dogs from running at large during the early gardening season would automatically come into force on May 15 and would remain in force for two months. The police department will have the usual publicity given to this question which in years past had caused considerable contention.

New System Forecast

Members heard with interest a review of the work done in the assessor's office and the likelihood of a new appraisal system being adopted on a province-wide scale in the near future. Mr. Townsend felt it would be timely to make some adjustment in his remuneration and left the matter with the Council who agreed and added another $100 to his annual $350 salary. Collector Birmingham reported payments on taxes dueing April included $55.42 on 1943 taxes; $526.25 on 1944 pre-payment of taxes; and $594.25 on arrears. He had also checked on the amount of relief wood used during the past winter and found the town still had on hand a total of 116¼ cords indicating only 34 cords had bee used last winter. Of this 12 had been paid for and the balance came in the category of relief wood.

On Reeve MacMillan's recommendation, council purchased a root cutter nozzle for cleaning sewers at a cost of $25 and they also settled the question of adjustment of shrubs killed by last summer's weed spraying. A motion authorizing replacement of shrubs owned by Douglas Cochrane, at a cost not to exceed $5 was passed.

In the opinion of Councillor Brady now was the time to begin action that would provide a summer play ground for children. He suggested swings and teeters could be installed either on the corner property at Market and Rear streets or behind the Armouries on Sebastopol street. "We tried the playground idea out at the old jail on Front street a few years ago and one boy nearly got killed," recalled the Reeve. But Councillor Brady did not see how swings and teeters could be very dangerous and on motion the Mayor appointed a committee comprising Brady, Bell and Taylor to look into the possibilities of providing a playground.

Hospital Plans

Principal discussion of the three and a half hour session concerned the report that Dr. E. A. Stuart planned to discontinue operating the local hospital. It was pointed out that if the town took over the operation of the hospital it would be necessary to spend from $3-$4,000 for improvements before a license would be granted.

"I know the people of Campbellford and Seymour want this hospital to continue," said Mayor Long, who recommended a special meeting should be called to decide on a course of action. On motion the Mayor was authorized to arrange a special meeting to which members of the Seymour council should be invited together with local doctors and dentists. The meeting was set for Wednesday evening at 7.30.

The milk by-law, now completely re-drafted in accordance with recommendations made at Queen's Park, was given two readings and final passage deferred until it was approved by the Minister of Agriculture. The by-law fixing the tax rate was passed and its content prompted the Mayor to ask, "Where does the increase come in? We started in with a balance of $2,829 at the beginning of the year."

Finance Chairman Fowlds then went over the budget, and explained that tax arrears were down $1,000 and the grant from the Water and Light Commission was $3,000 less. To raise sufficient for year's operations the following amounts went to make up the 44 mill rate—County rate, 6.10; Town Debenture, 8.10; Relie and Hospitalization, 1.20; High School Debenture, 5.84; High School Trustee, 3.55; Public School Trustee, 10.; Board of Health, .55; Public Library, 1.17; Town Rate, 7.49. A separate by-law established the Separate School rate at 10 mills.

Council also authorized the Institute for the Blind to hold a Tag Day here on September 16; received confirmation of the date previously set for the Navy League Tag Day on June 3; authorized the Mayor and Deputy Reeve to attend a post war planning and development conference in Toronto on May 8; abated taxes on the old church shed property owned by Mrs. S. A. Anderson on Thirty-Foot Lane; decided to sell by tender two lots on Inkerman street.

Joint Action Urged To Maintain Hospital

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3 (ENS) —Members of Seymour council listened attentively to a plea that they combine with Campbellford on some joint action to prevent closure of this town's hospital which annually serves many township residents. Deputy Reeve H. M. Fowlds and Councillor H. M. Donald addressed the gathering at their May meeting on Monday afternoon in an effort to enlist the support of the township body but no definite action was taken.

Other business transacted during the session included appointment of Charles Bullock as operator of the road maintainer; setting June 5 at 1 p.m. as the date for the annual court of revision; authorizing Reeve W. Rowe to attend the post war planning discussions to be held in Toronto on May 8; renewing the township's public liability insurance with J. P. Archer. Council learned from Edwin Hubble of Trent River that he would hold them responsible for any damage that might accrue to him by reason of a gate on the unused road allowance north of his property on Highway 30 being left open. But members disclaimed responsibility under the statutes.

The following accounts were passed: Campbellford Hospital, $10.50; Bell Telephone, $2.75; Receiver General, rent $1.00; Ted Iliffe, lab. $19.70; George Chard, lab. $13.80; Jack McCredie, lab. $38.55; Wm. Allan, brush cutting, $27.20; Wm. Bateson, brush cutting, $12.80; Stewart Hay, brush cutting, $8.00; Art Smith, brush cutting, $4.80; John Dewey, dragging, $16.25; J. I. Free, dragging, $3.25; George Nelson, dragging, $3.25; Wm. McDonald, lab. $1.95; D. T. Petherick, supt. $14.60; Garfield McArthur, lab. $3.20; Earl Brunton, lab. $5.85; Marshall Wynn, lab. $5.85; Harry Dunkley, lab. $8.50; Mason Bros. supplies, $2.55; Dominion Road Machinery, supplies, $41.87; Sawyer Massey Ltd., supplies, $4.54; C. N. R. Freight, $1.65; G. W Anderson, school att. officer, $5.00; Chas B. Mahoney, lab. $9.50.

Average Sale Down 19 p.c. In Victory Loan

COBOURG, May 3 — Victory Loan officials in Cobourg expressed disappointment at the first week's results of the campaign in Northumberland County when the total of the week's subscriptions stood at $293,500 whereas it should have been around $533,000 with one third of the drive period over. If the trend continues it is feared that the county will fall short of is objective of $1,600,000 by some $300,000.

Cause for the poor showing for the first week is attributed to smaller average subscriptions compared with previous campaigns. While approximately the same number of sales have been made the average amount per applications has fallen off 19 per cent. or about $70. It was also announced that of 56 counties in the Province of Ontairo, Northumberland stood in 55th place.

Reports from the Payroll Savings Section covering the larger industrial plants in the county show that the canvass in that field is progressing favourably with three companies exceeding their objective, namely, Cooey Machine and Arms Co. Ltd. and Cobourg Matting Company of Cobourg and the Cooey Metal Products of Brighton. Early reports from other plants which have started their canvass indicate that they will exceed their objectives. Other plants are starting their canvass this week.

One of the salesmen in the county reports an unusual subscription he received last week from Pte. Leslie Acorn formerly of Wicklow. Pte. Acorn went overseas with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and saw action in Italy where he was seriously wounded. At the present time he is lying in a hospital in Italy with a bullet a half inch from his heart. Notwithstanding the price he had already paid, Pte. Acorn sent $150 to his mother in Wicklow and instructed her to purchase Victory Bonds. Pte. Acorn sets an outstanding example for the citizens of Northumberland County.

Cobourg which challenged Port Hope to the effect it would obtain a greater percentage of its objective than would Port Hope, was away behind. At the close of business Saturday night, Port Hope reported total sales of $110,000 or 25 per cent. of its objective compared with Cobourg's $70,650 or 20 %.

Forgiveness Theme Of B.Y.P.U. Address

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3—(ENS) —Miss Isobel Frederick gave the topic, "The Experience of Forgiveness" which was one of the main features of the regular meeting of the Baptist Young People on Monday evening. Miss Frederick based her remarks on an article written by Professor McCracken of McMaster University and she dealt with the need, conditions, meaning and effects of forgiveness. Miss Evelyn Cook, president, presided for a worship period conducted by Rev. H. Bryant and members answered the roll call by responding with a verse of Scripture that began with the letter "R." Mrs. Bryant led in the singing of some favorite choruses and at the close it was announced that for their next meeting the group would be guests of Mrs. B. MacPherson.

Choir Holds Party

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3—(ENS) Costumed to represent some well known song which later provided much entertainment as members attempted to guess their names, St. Andrew's Choir met as guests of Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Ralston for a social evening recently. Games, contests and a sing song featured the program with the prize winners being Miss Hazel Atkinson, Mrs. E. Carlaw and T. C. McNeice. At the close of the evening dainty refreshments were served by the social committee headed by Miss C. MacKenzie and including Mrs. V. Hay, Mrs. E. Henson, and Mrs. E. Carlaw.

Post War Plans Discussed Again

CAMPBELLFORD, May 3 (ENS) —The problem of post war planning is not solely the interest of any one government but is a problem that should interest the thinking citizens of every town. This was the opinion expressed by Rotarian Harry Fowlds in an address before members of the club on Monday when he offered several concrete suggestions applicable to this town.

The speaker referred to post war rehabilitation plans for members of the armed forces and spoke of educational and technical training that would be offered. He made special reference to intense efforts being made by the Canadian Legion to insure jobs for men discharged from the armed forces, and the educational program being carried on in prisoner of war camps in Germany. "We must get together and solve the problems that will affect our town, said the speaker adding that one of the most vital questions concerned preparations for the building of a hospital. He felt that the government might well assist in the building of a hospital here after the war . . . "but the most important thing right now is to keep our hospital open". Mr. Fowlds felt the present was an opportune time to petition the government for help on this matter.

Something Different

From the long range viewpoint, however, Campbellford should look for more than merely post war improvements. One of the main things was to provide work for the men who would be discharged from the army. He reminded too, that many of the men who had advanced to positions of responsibility in the army, would not be content to return to poorly paid laboring jobs.

Drawing on his knowledge of town finances, the speaker stated Campbellford was now in a good position financially. After next year the only large debenture which will remain unpaid will be those on the High School, he declared. In 1945 there would be about seven thousand dollars less to pay on debentures than in 1944 and rather than reduce taxes by this amount he recommended only a two or three mill reduction leaving the balance for post war work.

Guests at the meeting included Harold Scott, M.P.P., Peterborough; S. L. Hodgens, Toronto; and H. H. Hannah, Lindsay.

H.M.C.S. Athabaskan

Slowly and surely the annals of the Royal Canadian Navy are growing. The loss of H.M.C.S. Athabaskan while on patrol duty in the English Channel, was serious, but we have cause for pride in the manner in which she came to her end.

The Athabaskan was in pursuit of two German destroyers. She and H.M.C.S. Haida had the Nazis in full flight, and though she had been hit, she was pressing her advantage vigorously. It was at this time that she was struck by a torpedo which split her in two, but she continued to fire on the enemy until she sank. When the companion ship tried to give her assistance the commander of the Athabaskan, Lt.-Cmdr. J. H. Stubbs, ordered her to keep clear of the wreckage.

The Athabaskan, one of our Tribal Class destroyers, had a fine history. She did good work in the Channel, and she did her part in the fight with the Scharnhorst; last August she was torpedoed in the Bay of Biscay, and was out of the fight for three months.

Now she is gone, but she went in the best possible way, pursuing the enemy and fighting to the utmost of her ability. That is what makes great navies.

A Comprehensive Reflection

In 1905 the P.C.I. Echoes announced its intention "to reflect as comprehensively as possible the different interest and pride in the Collegiate throughout our town"; the 1944 edition performs that duty admirably. All school magazines are interesting, for they have a freshness and enthusiasm which more sophisticated productions often lack. But the current Echoes is considerably better than the average; it is a first-rate piece of editorial work, and the staff deserves congratulations from the public and thanks from the students of P.C.V.I.

In our opinion the format of the magazine this year is better than it was in the 1943 edition. It is more closely-knit, more coherent, and better taste has been shown in matters of typography and arrangement. The book is a handsome piece of work.

It contains some interesting writing, in the editorial columns and in the Purple Patches. If we may venture on a general criticism, it is that the latter are not as purple as they should be. Youth is the time for purple writing: later in life writing tends to become either blue or red and the true Tyrian has vanished forever.

Disillusionment Of Mr. Hansell

Speaking in the House of Commons on Monday, April 24, the Rev. E. G. Hansell, the Social Democracy member for MacLeod, made some interesting remarks. Referring to the Hon. Mr. LaFleche, he spoke thus: "In making a speech or answering a question the other day the minister said we had to have faith. My work for a good many years taught me that I had to live by faith, and perhaps I know just a little bit about that. There was a time in my life when I used to make it a rule, because I thought it was quite ethical to do so, to trust everyone and consider that everyone was honest until I found that they could not be trusted because they were not honest. I thought that was a pretty good rule to follow in those days, but I have been in politics now for a few years and it seems to me—perhaps I have fallen a little bit from those high ideals — that I am gradually unconsciously slipping into that place where I do not trust anybody, and consider that everybody is a crook until I make extremely sure he is honest. That seems to be about the way I have a tendency to fall. I hate myself for it. But somehow or another that is the life of one who is in politics for very long".

Mr. Hansell is only 48, and he has been in politics for the last eight years. We may have hopes that after another eight years he will have regained his faith in mankind.

For we do not agree that politics invariably breeds cynicism and mistrust. It frequently does so in naive men and in shallow men, however. We imagine that Mr. Hansell is one of the naive ones. Any man who expects to find unblemished honesty in his fellow-beings is doomed to disappointment. Any man who expects to find invariable high-mindedness among parliamentarians is doomed to disappointment. But that is not to say that parliamentarians are crooks and low-lifers; they are, in the main, men of honour, speakers of the truth (as they see it), and good servants of the people. But they are human beings at best, and being human they sometimes sin.

Only naive people rush from one extreme of belief to the other. If Mr. Hansell finds that not all men are honest, he should not think that he has drained a cup of bitter wisdom when he declares that they are all crooks. They are just men—neither more nor less. Mr. Hansell ought to regard them as such, and not as angels or devils. And he ought to stop hating himself: he's probably a very good fellow.

How Giddy Is Britain?

The recent astounding charge made by Group Capt. Denton Massey that Canada was enjoying a "giddy, gilded" era, while Britain was fighting for dear life, has led us to examine a newly-arrived batch of English papers for possible evidences of giddiness in that country. We have found enough to prove that Britain is reasonably giddy at present, and that her people seem to be astonishly gilded when one considers how severely they are taxed.

The races enjoy such popularity as they have not known for years, and betting is lively, though not many bets are laid in large sums. In London there are 34 legitimate theatres doing excellent business, and the fare they offer ranges from Hamlet and Congreve's Love For Love to a review called Sweeter and Lower; two ballet companies are dancing eight times a week; fourteen super-cinemas are hard at work in the heart of London; there are thirteen concerts advertised for Easter Week; there were seven special exhibitions of paintings in the same week; the football matches reckon their attendance in thousands. Outside London the theatre and the cinema are doing a rush business, and the Committee for National Entertainments Service cannot begin to meet the demands made upon it; people write to the press about matters which would certainly impress the serious-minded Group Captain as giddy, if not precisely gilded. And to celebrate the 75th birthday of the great orchestral conductor, Sir Henry Wood, a group of music students gave him a cheque for a thousand guineas, as the nucleus for a fund to rebuild Queen's Hall.

This, we submit, is giddy and gilded conduct. It is also good British common sense. People cannot endure month after month of war without entertainment and some sort of rational enjoyment. If the British had been a people who liked to sit about pondering the seriousness of their position they would not have lasted out the days of 1940.

Don't Mention It, General

General Patton, familiarly known to his men as "Old Blood and Guts", seems to have a genius for getting the wrong kind of publicity. The last time he appeared in the news was when he slapped and abused a man who was suffering from shell-shock; now a report comes from London of a speech in which he talked of the destiny of "we Americans, the British, and, of course, the Russians, to rule the world". The first version of the dispatch made no mention of Russia, but the General said that he had been incorrectly reported. Even at that, he forgot to make any mention of China.

The General has overlooked something: the United Nations are supposed to be fighting for the right of all nations to have the sort of rule they want. His idea that the rule of three big countries should be imposed upon them may not appeal to their fancy. An underground movement in France or Norway might not be pleased to hear that, in General Patton's opinion, it was merely an agency for establishing a new control over the earth by a Big Three.

Of course no one will take the General too seriously. He is said to be a very fine soldier, and much must be forgiven such men. If he is as fine a soldier as he is a bad diplomat, he must be very fine indeed.

The Battle And The Breeze

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

THIS is a review of three unusually good books about the war. Those of us who have never been in the fighting services sometimes develop romantically erroneous ideas about those who are in them now. Soldiers, sailors, airmen—we are apt to think of them as dashing but marionette-like figures who rush into the limelight, perform acts of great daring, and then are put away in the puppeteer's box until they are wanted again. Now it is quite true that the men of the armed forces do many very remarkable things, but there are also periods of their service when they are doing routine jobs, and when life is pretty dull for them. And they think and talk about their jobs in an interesting but offhand way which it is good for us to know about. These three books give us valuable insight into the minds of the men who are closest to the fighting; they are short and compact, but they are full of meat.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE first is not written by a fighting man, but by a writer who knows all about fighting men and has written several brilliant reports of campaigns for the British Government. He is Hilary St. George Saunders, and his latest book is called "Pioneers! O Pioneers!" (Macmillan). The quotation from Walt Whitman which is used as a title should give you a clue to the nature of the book; it is an account of the author's visit to the "young, sinewy races" of the U.S. and Canada, and it is an interesting document in the history of Anglo-American friendship.

◆ ◆ ◆

LET me content myself with saying that this is a very good book and that you ought to read it; for I want to concentrate on Mr. Saunders' chapter on Canada, which I should like to see dropped in the form of a leaflet from planes all over this country. "The atmosphere of Canada at war to one coming as I did from Chicago, is like a great wind to a mild breeze," says Saunders: "you have only to walk a block or two or mingle for half a minute with the throng in an hotel lounge to realize that you are once more among a people who know that they are fighting for their existence." In this chapter we have a chance to see ourselves as others see us, and the picture is a somewhat unfamiliar but very pleasing one. We have become confused by the abuse of the Government of the day, the janglings over conscription and the inflated statements of well-meaning soldiers who think that the Canadian people can only be satisfied if Canadian troops are shamelessly touted as "the finest in the world," or as "daggers" pointed in this, that and the other direction. Saunders saw our war effort as an extremely well-informed outsider, and his praise is sweet because it is sincere and credible. It would be an excellent thing if his observations on the situation in French Canada were widely distributed, read and digested in this rancorous province.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE next of these three books is "The Fire Was Bright" by Leslie Kark (Macmillan) who is a Squadron-Leader in the R.A.F. Kark is a South African who has been educated in England. There is much to be said for the man from the Dominions who has had a chance to get some of his schooling in England; he understands Englishmen and appreciates them, but he will never be one of them; this puts him in a first-rate position to observe them and describe them to other people; the Britisher who straddles the ocean can be a very useful fellow. In this collection of thirteen short stories Kark tells us about the adventures in the air of a few Englishmen and a number of interesting Britishers from other parts of the Commonwealth. The stories are in the modern manner—that is to say, they do not seem to begin or end in any special place, and are better at evoking an atmosphere than at telling a story. Some of them are a little too clever to be really successful. But none the less the collection is a good one, and it tells us a few things about what airmen think and feel which most of us do not know and would never guess.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE third book is "One Eye On The Clock," by Geoffrey Willans, a Lieutenant in the R.N. V.R. When the war broke out, Willans was posted to a corvette on Atlantic patrol duty, but his ship was one of those which took part in the evacuation of Greece and in the Battle for Crete. Later he was transferred to an aircraft carrier, and went to the U.S. with this vessel, and commanded a British crew which took an American cargo ship home for duty there. Willans had plenty of adventure, but he seems to be the most leisurely fellow living; it is not being bombed in the harbour of Benghazi that he likes to write about; he prefers to tell us what his fellow officers and the men under his command talked about in the long hours when they were expecting danger, and looking for it, and not finding it. We may be glad that his inclinations turned him to this sort of writing, for what men think and say is always interesting when we have a chance to compare it closely with what they do. Willan's impressions of the United States are interesting, particularly when we compare them with the weighty pronouncements of statesmen and publicists on matters of Anglo-American friendship. Willans loved America. He even loved the fifteen years old schoolgirl who greeted him with "How do you do, Lootenant; what long eyelashes you've got." But much as he loved America he was glad to get back to England.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE men in the services have plenty of time to think, if they are inclined that way. These books tell us what they think, and it is perhaps disconcerting for the postwar planners to learn that they do not think furiously about the brave new world which we must build when the war is over. They think of simple, timeless, really important things like girls, gardens, food, drink, books, and the best way to spend a holiday.

6 Hours 58 Minutes

The shape of things to come in air transportation has been outlined by the record-breaking flight of the huge Lockheed Constellation, which crossed the continent from Burbank to Washington in a dramatic flight of six hours fifty-eight minutes. Under the pilotage of Howard Hughes and Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Air, this massive craft, able, as a troop transport, to carry 100 soldiers with full equipment, beat the former transcontinental record, set by the same Howard Hughes in a special speed plane, by a full half hour.

Planned originally to carry more than 50 passengers with all the comforts of luxury travel, this 'plane will now go into war service for the Army as the C-69.—New York Times.

DEMOCRACIES' WAY OF LIFE —By Thomas

Massey Talks Through His Hat

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

THERE will be two distinct reactions to the tirade against the Canadian people loosed by Group Captain Denton Massey in the House of Commons Friday. The first will be anger; the second will be a realization that Group Captain Massey, to put it as politely as possible, didn't know what he was talking about. He declared a carnival spirit existed in the country, that the things he has seen since returning home were "alarming" and "tragic", and that the days in which we live are "as giddy and as gilded as those of 1929".

With the best will in the world, no impartial observer could brand this sort of talk as anything but arrant nonsense, and to make matters even worse, it is capable of harming the country's war effort. It is a pretty shabby accusation to be levelled against a people who have given an excellent account of themselves in war. It wouldn't hurt to take a look at the record, to see what has been accomplished in these gilded and giddy days.

Since 1939 Canadians have more than doubled food exports from this country. Billions—not millions—of dollars worth of food has been sent overseas. Other exports have more than tripled since 1939; they total approximately $10 billion. Canadian men and women last year had produced over $6 billion worth of war material since 1939; the total value of contracts awarded by the Department of Munitions and Supply long since passed the $10 billion mark.

Canadians are paying for all this. They are paying, every last one of them—men, women and children — $1.16 per day. Back in 1939 they paid three cents per person per day. A single man earning $1,500 a year paid $22 in 1939; today he pays $367, part of which is compulsory saving. And on top of that staggering tax the Canadian people have loaned their Government $310,000,000 in War Savings Stamps, $5,765,885,110 in Victory Bonds, and are now busily engaged in making up another $1.2 billion or better.

And these figures do not tell the whole story. They do not tell of the thousands of devoted women who work for the Red Cross, who work in their own homes, in church and other organizations, in order that servicemen may have comforts they would otherwise go without. They tell nothing of other work on behalf of servicemen, undertaken by men and women all over Canada. They tell nothing of the thousands of little sacrifices made daily by Canadian men and women to help the war effort.

Group Captain Massey seemed to think that England was the only country that knew what an all-out war effort was. Presumably, he felt no spirit of carnival could be found there. Yet people who read the newspapers noticed that 133,000 Britons made roaring holiday when England met Scotland in an international soccer match.

We are sorry that Group Captain Massey begrudges Canadians what little gaiety they have managed to retain. But we have no intention of surrendering it merely to conform with his rather peculiar ideas of behaviour. After Mr. Ilsley has taken his dismaying slice, and after the Victory Loan has been over-subscribed, Canadians will take the small change they have left and after meeting all necessary living expenses, and making donations to the many charitable appeals, spend a very small percentage of it on what luxuries and amusements are available. It won't be much—and we don't think the majority of servicemen would want them to act differently.

Public Opinion Wins Wars

(NEW YORK TIMES)

GENERAL Eisenhower's message to the American Newspaper Publishers Association is a striking statement to come from the commander of the Allied armies in Britain at the time when he is completing preparations for the greatest test of military force in American history. At such a moment the thoughts of the leader of the grand assault might be expected to concentrate on military problems to the exclusion of everything else. To the soldier entrusted with the fearful responsibility of breaching the walls of Europe, striking power and the weight of arms are naturally and paramount consideration.

Yet General Eisenhower turns back from the head of his poised armies to tell the newspaper publishers and the American people it is public opinion that wins wars. He says that the correspondents covering the front are "a part of the great team striving to conclude this war at the earliest possible moment." In the time and circumstances this is handsome testimony on the part of the soldier who fights the battle to the men who report it and the civilian population that supports it. But it is also a significant reminder that public opinion shares the soldier's heavy responsibility for victory. What General Eisenhower is saying is that the best and bravest armies cannot win wars alone. They are gambling their lives to give us an opportunity to win a victory. When the signal is given they must march into the unknown and face whatever hazards it holds. But unless the people at home are ready to follow through, unless they are as determined as the soldiers not to waver, not to turn back, not to be stopped by the obstacles they also must face if they mean to translate military victory into peace, they will surrender what the fighting men have won.

The Quietest Place Imaginable

THERE is a little village here near Cambridge the homely, summer-sounding name of which is Haslingfield. It is a straggling hamlet of white-walled, straw-thatched cottages, among orchards and old elms, full of closes of meadow-grass, and farmsteads with ricks and big-timbered barns. It has a solid, upstanding Tudor church, with rather a grand tower, and four solid corner turrets; and it has, too, its little bit of history in the manor-house, of which only one high-shouldered wing remains, with tall brick chimneys. It stands up above some mellow old walls, a big dove-cot, and a row of ancient fish-ponds. Here Queen Elizabeth once spent a night upon the wing. Close behind the village, a low wold, bare and calm, with a belt or two of trees, runs steeply up.

The simplest and quietest place imaginable, with a simple and remote life, hardly aware of itself, flowing tranquilly through it; yet this little village, by some felicity of grouping and gathering, has the rare and incomparable gift of charm. I cannot analyze it, I cannot explain it, yet at all times and in all lights, whether its orchards are full of bloom and scent, and the cuckoo flutes from the holt down the soft breeze, or in the bare and leafless winter, when the pale sunset glows beyond the wold among the rifted cloud-banks, it has the wonderful appeal of beauty, a quality which cannot be schemed for or designed, but which a very little mishandling can sweep away. The whole place has grown up out of common use, trees planted for shelter, orchards set for fruit, houses built for convenience. Only in the church and the manor is there any care for seemliness and stateliness. There are a dozen villages round about it which have sprung from the same needs, the same history; and yet these have missed the unconsidered charm of Haslingfield, which man did not devise, nor does nature inevitably bring, but which is instantly recognizable and strangely affecting.

Such charm seems to arise partly out of a subtle orderliness and a simple appropriateness, and partly from a blending of delicate and pathetic elements in a certain unascertained proportion. It seems to touch unknown memories into life, and to give a hint of the working of some half-whimsical, half-tenderly concerned spirit, brooding over its work, adding a touch of form here and a dash of colour there, and pleased to see, when all is done, that it is good.—From "Escape, and Other Essays", by Arthur Christopher Benson.

An Easy Escape

That story about two British naval officers walking out of a prison camp in Germany and eventually reaching safety, although they continued to wear their uniforms, may make us feel better about the continued escapes from prison camps in this country. In nearly every case, however, our escaped prisoners have been re-captured sooner or later.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

A Bible Message

And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil. . . .

And the Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. (Gen. 2: 8, 9, 15-17.)

Thus saith the Lord, Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the Lord. For he shall be like the heath in the desert, and shall not see when good cometh; but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, in a salt land and not inhabited.

Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit.

I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings. (Jer. 17: 5-8, 10.)

SAIL 200 MILES IN STORMY ATLANTIC —When the engines of the Royal Canadian Navy Bangor minesweeper H.M.C.S. "Lockeport" broke down at sea after a two-day battle with a North Atlantic gale the crew sewed their hammocks together, and with home-made sails headed into port under sail at three knots. They travelled close to 200 miles before being picked up by tugboats and towed to safety. These 15 Ontario ratings played important roles during the "session at sea." When the storm was at its worst and many of their shipmates became seasick they did double duty watches and all gave up their "mick" to be used for making sail. Engines Fail, Tars Make Sails Out Of Hammocks

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT: Seamen serving aboard the Royal Canadian Navy Bangor minesweeper H.M.C.S. Lockeport added a touch of Nelson's day to their naval careers recently when they hoisted sail and headed into port after their engines failed in a storm in the North West Atlantic, Navy officials announced today.

The breakdown occurred when Lockeport ran into an Atlantic gale 290 miles at sea, and the sturdy steel craft logged 190 miles "under canvas" before she was met by an ocean tug and towed the last 100 miles into port. It was believed to be the first time in the history of the Canadian Navy that a steam powered ship ever reverted to sail.

The sails were made from the sailors' hammocks sewn together All available canvas aboard was put into use and the canvas covers of the seaboats were converted into a mizzen sail.

Ran Into Gale

Lockeport was steaming toward an Allied Port when she ran into the gale. Seas ranging from 10 to 20 feet in height buffetted the tiny vessel mercilessly, carrying her miles off her course. For nearly two days she held her own but the pounding of the seas had helped to damage her boiler fan engines and the main boiler stop valve so badly that the ship could no longer make steam enough to drive the main engines.

Adrift and without motive power the Lockeport was in a precarious position. After a consultation with the coxswain, Chief Petty Officer James Armstrong, R.C.N.R., of Vancouver, Lieut. Ralph M. Wallace, R.C.N.V.R., Lockeport's captain, gave the order to sew hammocks together into sails.

"We are damn lucky to be here today," said Lieut. Wallace, whose home is in Saskatoon. "It was only by the grace of God and the ingenuity and tenacity of my men that we survived. We spent four days out there at the mercy of the North Atlantic and it was tough going."

Peterborough Boys Aboard

Peterborough and district boys aboard the Lockeport were Lt. H. T. Jones, R.C.N.V.R., A. B. Morley Crowe, Stoker Bruce Oakley, O.S. Eugene Blackwell of Port Hope. Aboard also was L.S. Edgar Burleigh of Belleville and O.S. Lewis Francis of Kingston.

Lieut. Wallace was particularly high in his praise for Armstrong and gave him a full share of the credit for bringing the ship through.

"Armstrong, realizing the spot we were in after our engines broke down, made the suggestion that we hoist sails," said Lieut. Wallace. "He told me he sailed in four-masted schooners in peace time and if he had my permission to employ the use of the sailors' spare hammocks and the canvass from the seaboats he could rig up a sail that would carry us."

"We had quite a time of it," said Armstrong, "but the crew worked like mad preparing the sail and sea anchor, and they should get the credit. "We experienced trouble throughout the trip," he added. "Shortly after our engines broke down our seaboat and two depth charges broke loose and we were almost washed overboard securing them. When we got under way with the sails, we got a message giving the position of another ship in distress and we altered our course accordingly. We were only able to proceed at the speed of three knots under sail, and were about 60 miles from the position of the ship in trouble when we were informed that help had arrived. Shortly after that the tug made her appearances and took us in tow."

New Hands Became Seasick

Lieut. F. M. Travers, R.C.N.V.R. of London, Ont., told how some of the crew had to do double duty watches when most of the new hands became seasick during the heavy going.

"More than half our crew were flat out," he said, and for four days several of our senior hands had to be content with only a few hours sleep."

To L.S.B.A. A. Max "Pills" Andrews, of Edmonton, it was the "busiest four days of his life. He had the tedious job of attending to the seasick ratings and bringing hot drinks to the man working on the sails and the gun crews who were closed up throughout the episode. "I didn't even have time to get my boots off," he said.

Ldg. Seamen James Bithell, Robert Collins and Edgar Burleigh, Petty Officers James Buchanan and William Woods, were largely responsible for preparing the sails, while Buchanan, Armstrong, Butterfield and Erickson played prominent roles in securing the seaboat and depth charges when they broke adrift.

NO LONGER CUBS' MANAGER—Here is Jimmy Wilson who has quit as manager of the Chicago Cubs, an office he has held since 1941. His resignation follows a nine-game losing streak for the Cubs. He is pictured here unpacking in Chicago after his return from St. Louis, where the Cubs lost to the Cards.

McCready Biffs Ref. Gains Verdict

Earl Moose McCready, subbing for Bob Wagner in the main bout of Tuesday night's Tunney wrestling show at the Brock St. Arena, showed how it is possible to kill two birds with one stone. McCready had the satisfaction of socking the referee on the jaw and thereby winning the bout. What his opponent big Karl Davis had to say about it all couldn't be repeated in a family newspaper.

It happened like this. With the match all square with one fall each Davis had a headlock on the Moose and Referee Ernie Powers bent over to see that the grip wasn't turned into a strangle. Just at that moment McCready cut loose with a right swing at the big Texan, missed him completely, caught Powers on the button and knocked him to the canvas.

The dazed official finally got to his feet, rushed over to McCready and raised his arm in token of a victory. He was certain that it had been Davis who had done the punching so he disqualified the tough hombre from down Texas way and declared the Aurora farmer the winner.

The astounded Davis protested long and vigorously but to no avail. "You can't punch me around and get away with it" was all Powers would say and that was that.

McCready took the place of Strangler Bob Wagner who had lost the decision to an attack of intestinal flu and couldn't go on. Probably it was just as well for the Strangler that he didn't for Davis was tougher than ever.

A Sneak Raid

He took the first fall in short order after a Pearl Harbor attack, started before the bout officially began. When the two battlers came to the centre of the ring for the usual preliminary huddle with the referee there was an argument over the fact that Davis was wearing a piece of tape on his hand. McCready wanted it removed; the Texan stubbornly refused to discard the protection. Suddenly he cut loose on McCready with a haymaker that knocked the Moose off his feet and then proceeded to kick him as he lay prostrate on the mat. McCready tried several times to get to his feet and was promptly knocked down again, and he was about out when Powers finally managed to drag the bad man away.

The Moose was still groggy when the battle proper got under way and Davis lost no time in continuing his punching and kicking attack. McCready could put up no defence and after several minutes of being booted and knocked around the ring was finally flattened for the fall.

The second round was something else again. McCready came back like a wild man, forgot all about the science of the game and waded into Davis with rabbit punches, elbow smashes and pile-driver swings. Powers intervened several times to momentarily stop the onslaught and Davis rallied to do a little pressing himself, using a series of headlocks that for a time halted the McCready attack. But the Moose fought out of that jam and came back with another barrage of smashes that obviously weakened the big Texan. Then McCready applied his rocking chair cradle hold and took the fall amid wild cheers after 15 minutes of spirited battling.

The third round was just as tough and the outcome was in doubt until the punch-drunk Powers disqualified Davis for a McCready punch and it all ended happily for everybody but the Texan.

Two New Performers

Two new grapplers were seen in action in the preliminary battling. One of them was John Arthur of Chicago, reputed one of the strongest men in the wrestling game, and he was matched against another mat artist who prides himself on his strength in the person of Toronto's Al Bunny Dunlop. The two met in the opener and they went the full half hour to a draw. There was plenty of action. Both tried to demonstrate their power and tried head locks and arm locks without much advantage either way. Arthur was plenty tough and several times he cut loose on Dunlop with a punch that came up from the floor and really shook the Toronto strong man. The crowd got a big laugh out of one incident. Referee Powers went close to the two men once as they were locked in a bear-hug and in the mixup Dunlop slapped a hold on the official and rolled him to the mat. When Bunny finally discovered his mistake and got to his feet Arthur landed a hay-maker on the button that drove Dunlop out through the ropes. Both were going strong at the finish.

Billy Middlekauff, former boxer, met Toar Morgan in the semi-final bout and gave the former Marine plenty of opposition in the early stages of the battle but was finally beaten with his own favorite weapon. After the two had gone fourteen minutes with honors about even Middlekauff cut loose with a series of punches that drove Morgan against the ropes. That was his undoing for the big former Marine bounced off the ropes and caught the surprised Southerner smack on the jaw with a smash that knocked him flat on his back. Morgan was quick to seize his opportunity. He pounced on the surprised Middlekauff and spread him for the fall before he could do anything about it.

Referee Powers worked as hard as the wrestlers in handling the three bouts while the timing and the announcing was taken care of by Fred Scates.

Tonight will be the last opportunity for teams to enter the City Softball League so that the meeting to be held this evening at the Duffus' Board Room is of great importance. At the preliminary meeting of the league held last week five teams, the Plazas, Military Training Centre, Switchgear, DeLaval and U.E. Unions entered the loop and it was decided at that time that entries for the season would close tonight. A sixth club would round out the organization and make the matter of drawing up a schedule simpler and league officials are hoping that another organization will line up with the other five tonight. The schedule will in all probability be drawn up at this meeting; at all events the opening games will be arranged and it is probable that an earlier start than usual will be decided upon to make up for the week's layoff that will be inevitable later on in the season when the C.G.E.-Genelco closes down for the annual vacation. Another important piece of business on the agenda tonight will be the election of a secretary-treasurer and still another the adoption of a constitution for the league. All teams should be represented in view of the nature of the business to be dealt with.

The Examiner is anxious to give as complete coverage as possible this season to all Church League and school softball games and in order to do so it will be necessary to have the co-operation of officials of both league and clubs. Obviously it will be impossible for us to attend and report the large number of school and church games scheduled and so we will have to depend upon our friends in the various organizations to send in reports. They have been very good in other seasons and we know that we can count on them again. All that we ask is that the reports should be sent in as soon as possible after the games are played, that they should not be too lengthy, that they should be written legibly and on only one side of the paper and particularly that care should be taken to spell the names of the players correctly and also to state accurately the position of each player. In the past we have had some score cards sent in that were so carelessly written that it was almost impossible to make out the names and others in which the positions were not stated or else numbers were used to designate positions. There is an orthodox way of using numbers for that purpose but some of the scorers we have seen followed quite another system and had us stymied. Write the names plainly and use the abbreviations p, c, 1b, etc., for the positions, please.

The Phillies have evidently dug up a new giant killer. Rookie Charlie Schanz who came to the National League from San Diego of the Pacific Coast circuit and who was the twirler who stopped the New York club after its initial winning streak of five straight games was sent back at the Giants yesterday and all the Coast heaver did was to toss a one-hitter and on top of that come through with the bases loaded and the score tied in the ninth with a triple that drove in three runs and gave the Phillies a 5 to 2 win. The only blow off Schanz's offering was a homer by Joe Medwick with a teammate on the runway. Incidentally the win was scored at the expense of the Giants' rookie Bill Voiselle who had won three in a row before being stopped yesterday. Jim Tobin, Boston Braves' ace started against the Brooklyn Dodgers but it was not his day and he was driven out early. The Bums took the decision 7 to 6 in 11 innings. The defeat was not chalked against Tobin but against Cardoni who relieved him. The winning pitcher was the Dodgers' Bob Chipman who garnered his third victory of the season. In the other National League game of the day Pittsburg Pirates scored three in the eighth and beat the St. Louis Cards with a rookie on the hilltop for the champs 3 to 1.

All four of the home clubs, strangely enough, lost in the American League yesterday. Johnnie Niggeling came up with a finely pitched four-blow effort and the Washington Senators knocked off the Boston Red Sox 5 to 2. Woods was the losing pitcher. Old Bobo Newsom was a victim when he started for the Philadelphia Athletics against the Yanks. He was driven out but was in the box long enough to be charged with the loss. Zuber held the A's to five scattered hits and the Yanks hadn't much trouble in winning the argument by 4 to 1. St. Louis Browns who started off with a nine-game winning streak have been finding the going a lot tougher since they were finally stopped and yesterday they had to take a 4 to 3 beating at the hands of the Detroit Tigers. Newhouser was the winning pitcher for the Tigers and Steve Sundra one of the Brownies' master workmen was the defeated heaver. Bill Dietrich of the Chicago White Sox came up with a neat tossing demonstration when he held the Cleveland Indians to five hits, the White Sox winning by 3 to 2. Al Smith started for the losers but the gentleman who received official marking for the loss was Calvert who went in in a relief role.

Says Ford Moynes in the Lindsay Watchman-Warder: A great man in the sport world has passed to the great beyond; a little fellow with a fertile brain, a flare for humor and a good sport—namely "Bill" Fry, editor of the weekly newspaper issued at Dunnville. There were few better fellows than Bill Fry. Perhaps some Lindsay folk will remember him as a humorist for he was guest speaker at the Rotary Club here years ago, when he kept the Rotarians and their wives in a fit of laughter with his stories of newspaper days, but particularly stories of how transposed lines and typographical errors crept into print. Kiwanians will remember hearing the Editor at the ladies' night held in Peterborough. He was a good guy (pardon the vernacular) and as an editor he was quoted far and wide. In the sport field he was a hockey fan and did such good work (as many an editor has) in his own territory that he was sent as a delegate to the Ontario Hockey Association and in time passed through the various offices to the head of that Association. These were the days when the O.H.A. was really something. Amateur hockey lived up to the word and professionalism was frowned down on with severity. The O.H.A. ruled with an iron hand, but a just one. He was associated on the O.H.A. with such good hockey presidents as Frank Hyde of Woodstock, Darrach of Collingwood, Sutherland of Kingston, Dick Butler of Lindsay, "Sky" Cason of Stratford, George Dudley of Midand, Rollie Glover and Percy Bond of Peterborough, and many others. And Bill Fry, although small in size, was big in brains and very popular. Hockey in Ontario owes much to such men as Editor Fry, who has written his last "30."

Mortality among big league managers this season is reaching a new high. The campaign is only a few weeks old but already two of the pilots under the big top have been called by the armed services and a third has resigned. Mel Ott, hard-hitting manager and outfield star of the New York Giants was the first major league leader to receive an invitation from the army. Yesterday Lou Boudreau who in addition to managing the Cleveland Indians also plays a lot of shortstop for the same club became the second big league manager to get a bill from Uncle Sam's forces. The pilot who resigned was of course the veteran Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs who tossed in the sponge after his club had managed to salvage only one game out of the ten played. With three clubs in the market for new bosses at this stage of the campaign something of a new record has been set.

In War as in Peace...
C·C·M· DEALERS
Maintain Repair and Parts Service

WHEN you buy a C.C.M. Bicycle you do so with the knowledge that you can depend upon C.C.M. dealers throughout Canada to give you complete and prompt repair service at any future time—in war or in peace.

That has been the enviable record of C.C.M. dealers, backed up by "The Factory", for 45 years through the stress of two world wars. In fact, in times of war, especially the present war, a reliable and completely genuine C.C.M. parts and repair service is doubly important because of the severe restrictions on bicycle production.

This assured genuine C.C.M. parts and repair service by C.C.M. dealers from coast to coast gives your C.C.M. bicycle a permanently high market value should you ever wish to deal your C.C.M. on a new one or should you need to sell.

If you are in need of a bicycle as essential transportation, and can qualify under one or more of the classifications (A, B, C, D) set forth herewith, go to your nearest C.C.M. dealer and complete a Bicycle Purchase Application Form. Then as soon as your C.C.M. dealer has a bicycle for you under your application, he will notify you—the sooner you apply the sooner you will have a bicycle.

A — A user in the course of whose daily duties the bicycle is needed to enable him to earn his livelihood (such as delivery messenger, messenger, watchman services, police patrol, collector, employee of public utilities).

B — A war worker, who requires a bicycle for transportation purposes to and from place of employment, minimum 15 miles weekly.

C — A civilian worker, who requires a bicycle for transportation to and from place of employment, minimum 15 miles weekly.

D — A school teacher or student, who requires this form of transportation to and from school or college, minimum 15 miles weekly. A clergyman, professional man or farmer who requires the use of a bicycle as a means of transportation for the carrying out of his work.

Schanz Pitches One-Hitter Beating Giants

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

You don't have to be a good hitter to be a winning pitcher in the big leagues, but Rookie Charley Schanz of the Phillies knows today that it helps.

Schanz was only one of five major league hurlers who helped his own cause with a timely base knock in yesterday's games that tightened up the races in both circuits.

The big righthander whom the Phils drafted from San Diego is the shining example but Curt Davis of Brooklyn, Bill Dietrich of the White Sox, Johnny Niggeling of Washington, and Hal Newhouser of Detroit have reasons to thank their own bats for adding something new to their victory records.

Schanz might have lost a one-hitter if he hadn't been able to come up with a bases-loaded triple in the ninth to give the Phils a 5-2 verdict over the New York Giants. Up to then the Polo Grounders led on their one hit, Joe Medwick's homer after George Hausmann had walked in the seventh.

Davis came on as a relief man with Brooklyn and Boston all tied up 6-6 in the 11th, blanked the Braves in the top half and then drove home Paul Waner with a single to break it up. Jim Tobin's no-hit streak was ended in the first inning and he gave way to a pinch runner after allowing seven hits in three innings in Brooklyn's 7-6 victory.

In Cleveland, Dietrich tossed a five-hitter in trimming the Indians 3-2, but he had to start his own White Sox rally with a single in the 10th. He moved around on Leroy Schalk's single and romped home with the big run on Jimmy Webb's fly to centre.

Newhouser chimed in with a double in Detroit's extra-base attack on St. Louis. Chuck Hostetler, Ed Mayo and Rudy York were the other sluggers in handing the Browmies their first home loss 4-3.

Niggeling's lone hit in backing up his own four-blow effort against Boston for a 5-2 victory did not help in the scoring but he prolonged a sixth-inning rally by working Pinky Woods for a walk and helped another with a neat sacrifice in the eighth.

Hitting honors went to George Stirnweiss with his three bingles as the Yankees moved into undisputed possession of second place by downing the Athletics 4-1, but Bill Zuber and Jim Turner combined to limit the Mackmen to five safeties. Outfielder Tuck Stainback broke his right leg stealing second base in the third inning to force another reshuffling of the New York outfield.

In the only other big league game Pittsburg ended the Cardinals' four-game winning streak with a 3-1 verdict for Preacher Roe who retired for a pinch hitter in the eighth but got credit for his second victory. Chicago and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

BAILIEBORO, May 3—(ENS)—About sixty friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Butler recently prior to their departure when they will live in Peterborough. James Roddy acted as chairman for a short program of musical numbers by the Junior Sod Busters, a solo by MacIntosh Bradshaw with guitar accompainment and a reading "The Frenchman" by Miss Clara Seens. Miss Gladys Haskins read an address while Arnold Barnard and Fred Hie presented them with an occasional chair and a wall mirror. The balance of the evening was spent in dancing.

TORONTO, May 3 — (CP). — With the generous use of substitute players allowed in athletic contests now, Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson forecasts that people will have to cease calling baseball teams 'nines,' basketball squads "quintettes," hockey teams "sextettes,' and so on.

He points out that the early season's baseball games this year have shown box scores with a dozen or a dozen and one-half names in many cases, Frank Boucher suggests adding an alternate goalie to the hockey line-up, and the trend everywhere is for more players and shorter stretches of playing time.

A few days ago we were talking about suggested new coolr-number for race horses. Maybe they'll need something-like that in other sports if things keep on.

Western Buffaloes:

Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini gives some more details of the Calgary Buffaloes Athletic Association which is doing such good work with the youngsters. The organization grew out of the Calgary intermediate hockey champions of Western Canada in 1943. The first year, 90 boys of bantam and peewee age were taken in hand and given hockey instruction. Next year some of the boys will graduate to midgets and other bantams will be added. The club will follow the youngsters through the junior stage, the final part of the five-year athletic plan.

Incidentally:

Western curling lost two of its stalwarts last week in the deaths of of Archie McConaghy and Mac Braden. The latter as regarded as one of he best skips ever to play in the Manitoba capital, and with McConaghy helped make Manitoba the great curling centre it is..... In the spring a youngster's fancy in Halifax turns, not to marbles, but to chess. Monty Wren, vice-president of the Canadian Chess Federation, and another chess enthusiast, Tom Parker, have organized chess clubs in two Halifax schools, where three dozen or more boys are getting keenly interested in the game....The latest from Montreal is that the Y.M.C.A. is planning a male beauty contest. It isn't as bad as it sounds, though, since physique and not facial flawlessness is the requirement.

Bill Dietrich, White Sox—Pitched five-hit ball game and scored decisive run against Cleveland in 10th inning.

Johnny Niggeling, Senators—Pitched Washington into tie for third place with four-hit performance against Boston.

Red Wings Beat Newark To Finish Trip

By The Associated Press

Manager Ken Penner who shifted to Rochester from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League, has his team up in a first-place tie with Toronto today as the International League holds two of it "northern openings." The first games at Montreal and Rochester will not be played until tomorrow.

Rochester wound up its invasion of the League's southern cities by trimming Newark 7-3 yesterday, boosting its record to six won and four lost.

The Red Wings were a second-division club last year and Penner spent most of the season buried in the coast league's cellar by the 1944 combination appears able to seize opportunity when it knocks. Although outhit by a 12-8 margin in the Newark finale, Rochester clubbed out a victory by making the hits count. Jack Sturdey's two-run homer was a big blow.

Speed is the Red Wing's dish if you can judge by the stolen base column. Both second baseman Ora Burnet and Shortstop Red Schoendienst pilfered three yesterday. That was Burnett's speciality at Sacramento last year where he led the League with 32. Schoendienst had 20 for Rochester.

All other League clubs were idle yesterday, the Buffalo-Jersey city and Montreal-Syracuse games having been postponed and the others unscheduled.

In today's "northern" openers Jersey city invades Toronto and Baltimore moves into Buffalo.
